"I, A. S. Ragammal, am bound unto A. L. Hannay, Esquire, the Registrar of the High Court, in the sum of Rs. 1,43,873-10 7,

I, M. Subbaraya Chetty, in the sum of Rs. 88,000 and we, P. Appavu Mudaliar, Aiya Mudaliar and Muthuswami Mudaliar in the sum of Rs. 2,25,000 to be paid to the said A. L. Hannay Esquire or the Registrar of the High Court for the time being for which payment to be made we bind ourselves by these presents ...." "The condition of this obligation is such that if A. S. Ragammal do make a true inventory and exhibit the same in Court within six months from the date of the grant, within a year from the grant, do make, and render a true account thereof, the said property and credits do well and truely administer according to law, and all the rest and residue of the property and credits which shall be found remaining upon the said administration account, she do deliver and pay unto such person or persons as shall be lawfully entitled thereto, then this obligation to be void or else to remain in full force."

The 1st defendant filed an account in Court and among the debts due from the estate of Kandaswami Chetty, she mentioned the legacies payable under the Will of Kuppu Chetty with the accumulations of interest upon the said legacies.

Subbaraya Chetty instituted proceedings against Ragammal for getting his surety bond vacated (Original Suit No. 19 of 1903 on the file of the High Court) and in the said proceedings both Ragammal and Subbaraya Chetty admitted that the aforesaid legacies were payable out of the estate of Kandaswami Chetty and that the said legacies were unpaid and the administration of the said estate was otherwise complete.

Original Suit No. 218 of 1908 was filed by the next reversioner of the estate of Kandaswami Chetty against Ragammal alleging several acts of waste on her part and it having been found that the 1st defendant Ragammal had been guilty of gross mismanagement, a Receiver was appointed on the 2nd May 1910 and she was directed to deliver to the Receiver possession of all the properties belonging to the estate of Kandaswami Chetty in her hands.

On the 6th October 1911 a decree was obtained against the 1st defendant by Venkatasiva Chetty one of the legatees above named in the City Civil Court, Madras, for the legacy payable under Kuppu Chetty's Will with interest thereon By order of the High Court dated 2nd April 1912, the Receiver was directed to pay the amount due under the aforesaid decree to the said Venkatasiva Chetty.

The present plaintiffs made an application to the High Court for an assignment of the administration bond and in pursuance of an order made on the 5th November 1912 the administration bond was assigned to the plaintiffs to enable them to file a suit for the recovery of the amount due thereunder for the benefit of all persons interested in the estate of the said Kandaswami Chetty. The plaintiffs were the nearest reversioners to the said estate.

The plaint alleged several acts of waste on the part of the 1st defendant, alleged that the terms of the administration bond had been broken and charged that the 1st defendant and the sureties were liable.

Among other defences it was pleaded on behalf of the sureties, that they were not liable in respect of waste committed after the completion of the administration by the 1st defendant, that the 1st defendant shed her character as administratrix as soon as she had filed the inventory and accounts, that the administration had at all events been completed several years before institution of the suit and that the suit was barred by limitation.

Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Iyer, for the 2nd Defendant :—There is no cause of action against the sureties. The 1st defendant ceased to be an administratrix long ago and it is only for her acts as administratrix that they can be made liable. No sooner had the 1st defendant paid debts and funeral expenses of the deceased, her functions qua administratrix ceased and the property vested in her as heir. See In the goods of Nursing Chunder Bysack (1). In George Attenborough & Son v. Solomon (2), Haldane, L. C., observes that as soon as the executor assents to the legacy the estate becomes vested in him as trustee. See also Solomon v. Attenborough (3). The judgment of Fletcher Moulton, L. J.: Dobbs v. Brain (4), Nixon v. Smith; In re Timmis (5) and Henderson-Roe v. Hitchins: In re Smith (6). In all these cases it was held that as soon as the functions of the executor ceased the properties vested in him as trustee. These are cases where trusts have been declared by the Will. I rely on them for showing that the sureties are liable only for acts of the administratrix as such and not for her acts in a different capacity. Administration ceases as soon as the inventory and accounts were filed in 1901 and debts must be presumed to have been paid by 1901. After a reasonable lapse of time, it must be presumed that the duties of administration have come to an end George Attenborough & Son v. Solomon (2).

(1) 3 C. W. N. 635.
(2) (1913) A. C. 76; 82 L. J. Ch. 178; 107 L. T. 833; 57 S. J. 76; 29 T. L. R. 79.

This is a suit on a bond and on failure to comply with the terms of the bond in 1901 by her not filing an inventory in due time the breach occurred and the suit is barred. For delay in filing an inventory and account, only actual damage can be recovered: Canterbury v. Wills (7), also Lachman Das v. Chater(8). Payment of legacies under Kuppu Chetti's Will is not one of the duties which the 1st defendant had to perform as administratrix of Kandaswami Chetti's estate. As soon as Kandaswami Chetty died the estate of Kuppu Chetty had become unrepresented unless somebody got administration de bonis non. So 1st defendant could not represent the estate: DeSousa v. Secretary of State (9), Williams on Executors, 10th Edition, Volume I, page 381: In Indian law the executor of an executor is not executor of the original testator. See also Narasimmulu v. Ghulam Hussain Sait(10). If Kandaswami did not assent to the legacy there must be a suit for general administration and after his death the suit must be against the administrator de bonis non of the estate of original testator: Okhoy Coomar v. Koylash Chunder (11). If he had assented, still he would neither be a trustee nor a debtor. He would not be a trustee because no trusts were declared by Kuppu Chetty's Will. The executor of a deceased man is an executor until he pays the legacy. Assentin[8] does not convert him to a trustee, Rowe, In re, Jacobs v. Hind (12), Sander v. Heathfield (13); Hardwick v. Sutton (14), In re Davis; Evans v. Moore (15), Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume 14, page 312. It has very recently been held that he is not an express trustee. Blow In re, St. Bartholomew's Hospital v. Cambden (16). He is clearly not a debtor: Godefroi on Trusts, third Edition, page 219: Chunilal v. Suraj Ram (17), Henderson-Roe v. Hitchins, In re Smith (6), Ballard v. Marsden(18). Debt is a garnishable thing and legacy assented to is not granishable; Vyse v. Brown (19), Dix v. Burford (20). Article 123 of the Limitation Act only applied to assented legacies. It shows that debt is different from legacy. As I said representation should be completed before relief in respect of the original estate could be given: The liability of the 1st defendant, if any, is on account of her being in possession of assets not because she has obtained Letters of Administration to her husband's estate: See Baroda Prasad Banerjee v. Ganjendra Nath Banerjee (21). In Penny v. Watts (22), it was held that a bill to recover the payment of a legacy out of the assets in the hands of an executor, cannot be maintained without making the administrator de bonis

(3) (1912) 1 Ch. 451; 81 L. J. Ch. 242, 106 L. T. 87; 56 S. J. 270, 28 T. L. R. 225.
(4) (1892) 2 Q. B. 207 at p. 211; 61 L. J. Q. B. 749; 67 L. T. 371; 41 W 7; 57 J. P. 22.
(5) (1902) 1 Ch. 176; 71 L. J. Ch. 118; 85 L. T. 672; 50 W. R. 164
(6) 42 Ch. D. 302; 58 L. J. Ch. 860; 61 L. T. 363, 37 W. R. 705.
(7) 1 Salk. 315; 91 E. R. 278.
(8) 10 A. 29; A. W. N. (1887) 279.
(9) 12 B. L R. 423.
(10) 16 M. 71.
(11) 17 C. 387.
(12) 58 L. J. Ch. 703; 61 L. T. 381
(13) 44 L. J Ch. 113 at p. 116, 19 Eq. 21; 31 L. T. 400; 23 W. R. 331.
(14) 57 L. T. 14
(15) (1891) 3 Ch. 119 at pp. 124 125; 61 L. J. Ch. 85; 65 L. T. 128, 39 W. R. 627.
(16) (1914) 1 Ch. 233; 83 L. J. Ch. 185; 109 L. T. 913; 58 S. J 136; 30 T. L. R. 117.
(17) 3 Ind. Cas. 765; 33 B. 433 at p. 433; 11 Bom. L. R. 708.
(18) 4 Ch. D. 374 at p 377, 40 L. J. Ch. 614, 42 L. T. 763; 28 W. R. 914.
(19) 13 Q. B. D. 199; Cab. & E. 223; 33 W. R. 168; 48 J. P. 151.
(20) 19 Beav. 409; 52 E. R. 408; 105 R. R. 190.
(21) 1 Ind. Cas. 289; 9 C. L. J. 383 at p. 404; 13 C. W. N. 557.
(22) 2 Phillips 149; 41 E. R. 898; 16 L. J, Ch. 146; 78 R. R. 59.

non a party: See also Tingrey v. Brown (23); In the goods of William Bridger (24) Doe d Bennett v. Turner (25), Ex parte Lord Guydir (26), Creasor v. Robinson (27), Rowsell v. Morris (28), Dowdeswell v. Dowdeswell (29), Mitchell v. Reynolds (30), Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume 14, pages 195 and 196. The administration of the properties of Kandaswami does not include payment of the legacies payable under the Will of Kuppu Chetty. Administration of estate of Kandaswami Chetty has ceased and the sureties are, therefore, no longer liable. Blake v. Bayne (31).

Mr. C. Venkatasubbaramiah, for the 1st Defendant, referred to section 45 of the Probate and Administration Act: Narasimmulu v. Ghulam Hussain Sait (10), Ameer Chand v. Mohamud Bibi (32) and Blake v. Bayne (31).

Mr. G. Krishnasawmi Iyer, for the 5th Defendant: The administration bond is void and ultra vires as it has been taken in the name of the Registrar instead of that of the Judge as required by section 78 of the Probate and Administration Act: See Debendra Nath Dutt v. Administrator-General of Bengal (33). Where the Statute requires a particular form to be adopted the Court has no power to alter it. See Sri Raja Sinhadri Appu Rao v. Prattipathi Ramayya (34), Raman Chetti v. Municipal Council of Kumbakonam (35), Amedabad Municipality v. Sulemanji (36), Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 14, p. 206, Mayne v. Fletcher (37), Bainbridge v. Postmaster-General (38). The assignment is also ultra vires. There must be a statutory provision transmitting the right to the successors-in-office: Tingrey v. Brown (23), Howley v. Knight (39), Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume 8, paragraph 814 Power v. Banks (40). Plaintiff is not a person competent to sue as the assignment is bad. Besides the estate has been fully administered, Blake v. Bayne (31).

Mr. Venkatasubba Row, for the Plaintiff: This is a suit on an administration bond. There are four conditions (1) filing an inventory, (2) filing an account, (3) well and truly administering according to law (4), paying residue to the persons lawfully entitled. The suit was filed within three years from the breach of the fourth condition. The suit is, therefore, within time. Time runs from the last breach of any of the successive conditions, Sanders v. Coward (41), Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume 3, page 100.

The breach of the fourth condition occurred when the first defendant delivered possession of the estate to the Receiver in Civil Suit No. 218 of 1908. The 1st defendant was administering till then. She would be administratrix so long as any debts due by the estate remained unpaid. It is in evidence that a legacy payable under the Will of Kuppu Chetty was paid by the Receiver under directions of Court. That was an amount payable by the 1st defendant as administratrix. Administration came to a premature close by the appointment of a Receiver. The sureties will be liable for all acts of waste committed by the 1st defendant as administratrix. She having continued to be administratrix till delivery to Receiver they are liable for all acts charged in the plaint.

It is contended on the other side that the 1st defendant was liable only to pay debts. She is liable to make all payments

(23) 1 Bos. & Pull 310; 126 E. R. 921; 4 R. R. 805
(24) 4 Pro. D. 77; 47 L. J. P. 46; 30 L. T. 123.
(25) 7 M. & W. 226; 56 R. R. 692; 10 L. J. Ex. 213.
(26) 56 E. R. 717; 4 Madd. 281.
(27) 14 Beav. 589, 51 E. R. 411; 21 L. J. Ch. 64; 15 Jur. 1049; 18 L. T. (o. s.) 82; 92 R. R. 243.
(28) 17 Eq. 20 at p. 23; 43 L. J. Ch. 97; 29 L. T. 446; 22 W. R. 67.
(29) 9 Ch. D. 294; 48 L. J. Ch. 23; 33 L. T. 828; 27 W. R. 241.
(30) P. Wms. 181; 24 E. R. 547.
(31) (1908) A. C. 371; 77 L. J. P. C. 97; 99 L. T 35.
(32) 6 C. L. J. 453.
(33) 33 C. 713; 3 C. L. J. 422; 10 C. W. N. 673 (F. B.)
(34) 29 M. 29 at p. 36.
(35) 30 M. 290; 2 M. L. T. 294.
(36) 27 B. 618; 5 Bom. L. R. 592.
(37) 9 B. & C. 382; 4 M. & Ry. 311; 7 L. J. (o. s.) K. B. 209; 109 E. R. 142.
(38) (1906) 1 K. B. 178; 75 L. J. K. B. 366; 94 L. T. 120; 54 W. R. 231; 22 T. L. R. 70.
(39) 14 Q. B. 240; 19 L. J. Q. B. 3; 14 Jur. 665.
(40 (1901) 2 Ch. 487; 70 L. J. Ch. 700; 85 L. T. 376; 49 W. R. 679, 66 J. P. 2117 T. L. R. 621.
(41) 15 M. & W. 48; 3 D. & L. 281; 15 L. J. Ex. 97; 10 Jur. 186.

which the deceased was bound to make or which had to be made out of his estate. Williams on Executors, 10th Edition, Volume II, page 1346; Volume I, page 751 et seq.

It is argued on the other side that the intestate was not bound to pay legacies out of his estate. This is erroneous. The Will of Kuppu Chetty directed his executor, Kandaswami Chetty, to pay certain legacies and take the residue for himself. The admissions of the 1st defendant and of Subbaraya Chetty in the various affidavits and pleadings filed, show that Kandaswami Chetty took possession of the residue and treated himself as owner. The petition for Letters of Administration states that Kandaswami Chetty took the estate of Kuppu Chetty and Letters are asked in respect of the estate so taken. It was impossible to ascertain the residue unless the legacies had been provided for. Assent of executor to his own legacy is as necessary as to legacy to a third party. Until he examined the state of assets he could not take his legacy. Williams, Volume II, 1109.

Residuary legatee is to be paid after all other legatees are paid, Williams, Volume II, 1192.

The residue can only be ascertained after the legacies are set apart: Ganoda Sundary Chaudhurani v. Nalini Ranjan (42).

The admissions of the 1st defendant and Subbaraya Chetty also show that these legacies were payable out of the estate of Kandaswami Chetty. Kandaswami Chetty was either a debtor or a trustee in respect of these legacies. He may be taken to have invested them with himself. The inventory and accounts filed are intelligible only on this footing. If by investing them with himself, he committed a breach of trust he became liable and after him his estate continued to be. He may be presumed on account of lapse of time to have assented to the legacies. Williams, Vol. II, 1106.

He then becomes a debtor; at any rate his estate becomes liable. I also say that under the terms of the Will of Kuppu Chetty, Kandaswami Chetty was an express trustee for the payment of these legacies: Nistarini Dasi v. Nundo Lal Bose (43), Ram Dhan v. Mani Bai (44).

Administratrix would be bound to pay moneys which the intestate was to account for in the capacity of trustee.

Wassell v. Leggatt (45), Sander v. Heathfield (13), Hardwick v. Sutton (14).

An executor is a trustee in respect of legacies payable under the Will. The cases quoted on the other side only show that an executor is not an express trustee for the purpose of limitation but they do not say that he is not a trustee. In any event Kandaswami Chetty by his conduct constituted himself a trustee. I rely on Fletcher Moulton's judgment in Solomon v. Attenborough (3) and on observations of Lord Haldane in the same case in the House of Lords, George Attenborough & Son v. Solomon (2), Phillipo v. Munnings (46), Byrchall v. Bradford (47), O'Reilly v. Walsh (48), Dix v. Burfod (20), Tyson v. Jackson (49).

In this case as the legatee happened to be an infant to whom the legacy was to be paid in his eighteenth year with interest accumulated till then, Kandaswami Chetty undoubtedly was a trustee. Henderson-Roe v. Hitchins, In re Smith (6).

In the accounts filed by the 1st defendant, interest was shown to be due to the legatees. Interest could not be paid out of Kuppu Chetty's estate. It could only be paid out of Kandaswami's estate. This again assumes the moneys had been invested with himself. By reason of the investment he would be a trustee. If the investment with himself was wrongful he would be committing a breach of trust. If the accounts maintained by the Kandaswami Chetty were produced, they would conclusively prove that he treated himself as debtor. The accounts filed by the 1st defendant must be deemed to be an extract from such accounts. In any case the administratrix would be liable. The liability (42) 1 Ind. Cas. 514; 36 C. 28 at pp. 42,43, 12 C. W. N. 1065.

(43) 30 C. 389; 7 C. W. N. 353.
(44) 25 B. 429; 3 Bom. L. R. 45.
(45) (1896) 1 Ch. 554; 65 L. J. Ch 240, 74 L. T. 99; 44 W. R. 298.
(46) 2 My. & Cr. 309, 40 E. R. 658; 45 R. R. 63.
(47) 6 Madd. 235; 23 R. R. 204; 56 E. R. 1061.
(48) Ir. R. 6 Eq. 555.
(49) 30 Beav. 384; 54 E. R. 937; 32 R. R. 320.

of administratrix is not confined to debts as stated by the other side. The liability extends to demands subsisting against the estate, whatever the nature of the demand may be. See section 89 of the Probate and Administration Act. It is also argued on the other side that the legatee had a right of action only against a person who should have constituted himself an administrator de bonis non of Kuppu Chetty. No doubt the legatee could have taken steps to have an administrator de bonis non and he could have sued him but the administrator de bonis non would seek to recover the legacy from the personal representative of the executor of Kuppu Chetty. It would be his duty to do so. If it was an amount which had been allowed to be mixed up with his own money by Kandaswami Chetty his personal representative would be liable. Here the legatee obtained a decree against the 1st defendant in her capacity as administratrix. It was a debt, therefore, payable by her as such. If the personal representative would be liable at the suit of an administrator de bonis non the former would be liable in an action by the legatee. In numerous cases it has been held that the personal representative of the administrator was a proper and necessary party: Ritchie v. Rees(50), Gale v. Luttree(51); Holland v. Prior(52), Hall v. Austin (53). Further there could not be an administrator de bonis non in this case as Kandaswami Chetty had fully administered the estate. As I said before the residue to which he became entitled could not have become ascertained if the administration had not been complete. But I would go further and contend that the executor would be liable for all acts of the 1st defendant until she delivered the estate to the reversioners. The 4th condition of the bond could be deemed to have been performed only on the handing of the estate to the persons lawfully entitled, that is, the reversioners. As administratrix she could not give herself possession of the estate. Her rights being those of a limited owner in her capacity of widow, she in her capacity as administratrix could not hand the estate to herself as the widow without taking safeguards for preservation of estate.

Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Iyer replied.

JUDGMENT.—This is a suit by the plaintiffs as assignees of the administration bond executed by defendants Nos. 1 to 4 and one M. Subbaraya Chetti in connection with the grant of Letters of Administration by this Court to the 1st defendant to the estate of her deceased husband, Kandaswami Chetty. The plaint sets out that Kandaswami Chetti died issueless on or about 18th December 1898 leaving the 1st defendant, his widow and legal representative, that the 1st defendant obtained Letters of Administration to the estate of her husband on the 24th November 1899, having executed an administration bond dated 12th and 17th October 1899, that defendants Nos. 2, 3, and 4 and one M. Subbarya Chetti joined in the execution of the necessary administration bonds as sureties, that by the terms of the administration bond the 1st defendant bound herself to pay Rs. 1,43,873-10-7, the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th defendants to pay Rs. 2,25,000, and Mallappa Subbaraya Chetti (whose legal representatives are the 5th and 6th defendants) to pay Rs. 88,000 to the Registrar of the High Court or his assigns in case the 1st defendant did not administer the estate properly, that the 1st defendant took possession as administratrix of her husband's estate of properties to the value of Rs. 1,70,000 but failed to administer it according to law, that she committed various acts of mal-administration and waste and mismanaged the properties, that in Original Suit No. 218 of 1908 the 1st defendant was found guilty of waste and mismanagement and a Receiver was appointed, that by an order of this Court dated the 5th November 1912, the administration bond executed by defendants Nos. 1 to 4 and M. Subbaraya Chetti was directed to be assigned to the plaintiffs herein, the nearest reversioners, to enable them to sue for the benefit of all persons interested in the estate and that the plaintiffs are consequently entitled to an account of the 1st defendant's administration of the estate of her husband on the footing of wilful default and to a decree against the sureties in respect of any sums that may be found to be due by reason of such default.

The 1st defendant filed a written statement denying any mal-administration or

(50) 1 Adams 144.
(51) 2 Adams 234.
(52) 1 M. & K. 237; Coop. t. Brough. 426; 39 E. R. 671, 36 R. R. 316.
(53) 2 Collyer 570; 63 E. R. 865.

waste or that any mal-administration or waste was found by the Court in Civil Suit No. 218 of 1908. She also pleads that the suit is barred by limitation, that it is res judicata by reason of the decision in Civil Suit No. 218 of 1908, that the present relief asked for ought to have been asked for in that suit. She states that, as administration was over when she paid all the debt due by the estate and paid the residue over to herself as the next heir lawfully entitled to get it and since everything intended to be done to administer the estate was done before 1902, the suit is barred by limitation, and that assuming any waste to have been committed it would not be in the course of administration so as to entitle the plaintiffs to any relief. Defendants Nos. 2 to 6 filed written statements denying any waste or mal-administration and containing similar allegations. The other defendants filed written statements containing similar allegations.

The following issues were settled :—

I. Was the 1st defendant guilty of the acts of waste and mal-administration alleged in paragraphs 5, 6 and 7 of the plaint ?

II. Are the sureties liable for acts of waste, if any, after the filing of the inventory and payment of the debts ?

III. Is the suit barred by limitation ?

IV. Is the suit barred by Civil Suit No. 19 of 1902 and Original Side Appeal No. 2 of 1904 ?

V. To what relief are the plaintiffs entitled ?

II issue. Kandaswami Chetti, the husband of the 1st defendant, died issueless on the 18th December 1898 and Letters of Administration were granted to his estate to the 1st defendant. The grant is marked I in this suit. A schedule is annexed giving a list of properties moveable, immoveable and outstandings. The usual administration bond was executed by the 1st defendant and defendants Nos. 2 to 4 and M. Subbaraya Chetti, uncle of defendants Nos. 5 and 6. The terms of the bond were as follows:—"The condition of this obligation is such that if the above bounden Arni Sannyasi Ragammal the administratrix of the property and credits of Arni Sannyasi Cundasawmy Chettiar late of Madras but now deceased, do make a true inventory of the said property and credits which have or shall come to the possession or knowledge of the said Arni Sanhyasi Ragammal administratrix or to the possession of any other person for her and the same so made do exhibit into the said High Court within six months from the date of the grant of administration to the said Arni Sannyasi Ragammal and within a year from the said grant of administration do make and render a true account thereof ; and further the said property and credits of the deceased do well and truly administer according to law, and all the rest and residue of the said property and credits, which shall be found remaining upon the said administration account, she, the said Arni Sannyasi Ragammal, do deliver and pay unto such person or persons as shall be lawfully entitled thereto, then this obligation to be void and of no effect, or else to remain in full force and virtue."

It is clear the liability under the administration bond is confined only to such acts of waste and mismanagement as can be attributable to the 1st defendant as administratrix and not to any such acts attributable to her as the widow in possession of her husband's estate under Hindu Law after administration was over. In the present case the 1st defendant was both administratrix and heir and the question is when she ceased to be the administratrix, and became clothed with the larger powers of heir. I am of opinon that as soon as the duties imposed on her by the Probate and Administration Act were complied with, the administation of the estate was over and any subsequent acts of waste or mismanagement would be by her as widow which though giving the reversioners certain right could not be covered by the terms of the administration bond. It is argued by Mr. Venkatasubbarao for plaintiff that a Hindu widow is bound to preserve the estate for the benefit of the reversioners and that consequently when a widow takes out Letters of Administration the estate is handed over within the meaning of the administration bond "to such person or persons as shall be lawfully entitled thereto," only when it comes into the possession of the next full male owner. I do not think there is any authority for this proposition. A widow is as much the heir of an intestate as any male successor and she represents the estate just as fully as any other person. The fact that her powers of disposal are curtailed will nonetheless make her the person to whom the adiministrator, if he were a third party, would be bound to deliver the estate as directed both by law and the administration bond.

Under the terms of the administration bond the 1st defendant as administratrix had to do the following :—

(1) to file an account and inventory showing assets and liabilities;

(2) file an account showing the assets which came into her hands and the manner in w ich they have been applied and disposed of;

(3) to administer the estate properly, and

(4) to pay the residue to the person entitled.

The duties of an administrator are set out in Chapter VII of the Probate and Administration Act and the condition in the bond to administer the estate properly must be taken to mean that the duties imposed on an administrator by the Act should be performed. As soon as the administrator has performed these duties the administration must be deemed to be at an end and when the person entitled to the estate is the executor or administrator himself subsequent possession and acts are attributable to him not as administrator but as heir. It is no doubt true that an executor or administrator cannot divest himself of liability in respect of any claim or duty arising out of the duties imposed upon him by law as such executor or administrator by handing over the estate to the heir but this does not affect the question as to the period when the executor or administrator must be deemed to have duly administered the estate, and if he is the heir, to have clothed himself with the larger powers of heir. As pointed out by Fletcher Moulton, L. J., in Solomon v. Attenborough (3), while no one can put a time limit to the office of executor or to say that he has ceased to be executor because he has passed his accounts and though some claim might turn up which would find and not recreate him executor that has nothing to do with the rights and liabilities created by the handing over of the estate to the rightful heir after the inventory and accounts have been filed and the statutory obligations as to collection of outstanding and payment of debts have been discharged. The position of a Hindu widow who takes out Letters of Administration was considered, In the goods of Nursing Chunder Byack (1), and it was held that when there are no debts and legacies to be paid and the administration is at an end the widow who obtained Letters of Administration is in possession of the estate not as administratrix but as the widow and heiress. I am of opinion that as soon as the 1st defendant did the acts required to be done by law as administratrix, such as the filing of an inventory and account, payment of debts payable by the estate of the deceased, etc., the liability of the 1st defendant and the sureties under the administration bond ceased and that any subsequent acts should be attributed to her as heir and not as administratrix but as a widow in possession as heir.

III Issue. It is not disputed that a suit to enforce a bond subject to a condition should be instituted within three years from the period when the condition is broken. The present case falls under Article 68 of the second Schedule to the Limitation Act. In cases where the bond contains successive covenants each breach gives a separate cause of action but the date of the last breach is the starting point of limitation in a suit on the bond when the bond is conditioned on the performance of several acts and the obligation to pay is enforceable till the last of the conditions is fulfilled.

In the present case Kandaswami Chetty the person to whose estate Letters of Administration were granted to the 1st defendant, died on the 18th December 1898, Letters of Administration were granted on the 24th November 1899, the administration bond was signed by the 1st defendant on the 12th October 1899 and by the other sureties on the 17th October 1899. Inventory and accounts were filed on the 11th February 1901. In November 1901 Subbaraya Chetti one of the sureties applied to be discharged but his application was rejected. He filed Original Suit No. 19 of 1903 praying to be discharged. In his plaint, Exhibit B 6, he alleged that administration of the estate was complete with the exception that five individuals referred to in paragraph 21 of the plaint had not been paid. The 1st defendant filed a written statement (Exhibit B 7) alleging that the surety had caused loss to the estate by mismanaging the same and that all the debts due by the estate had been paid except certain legacies due under the Will of one Kuppu Chetti to whose Will Kandaswami Chetti, her husband, had taken out probate. This suit was dismissed. So far as the breaches complained of in the plaint are concerned it is admitted that no breach can be established which is within three years prior to suit except non-payment of the legacies due to the legatees under Kuppu Chetty's Will, one of whom Venkatasiva Chetty alias Murugesa Chetty filed Original Suit No. 345 of 1911 on the file of the City Civil Court and got a decree for the legacy due to him under Kuppu Chetty's Will. It is conceded that unless the payment of the legacies payable under the Will of Kuppu Chetty can be treated as part of the administration of the estate of Kandaswami Chetty there would be no breach within three years before suit. All the breaches of duty now complained of were alleged in Original Suit No 218 of 1908 by the present plaintiffs who then sued as reversioners and it follows that the terms of the bond were broken and the bond became payable three years before suit.

It was argued by the plaintiff's Vakil that payment of the legacies payable under the Will of Kuppu Chetti was part of the duties of the 1st defendant as administratrix of Kandaswami Chetty's estate and that as they were not paid till within three years before the present suit, it must be taken that administration continued till then and that there was a continuing breach of duty till the legacies were paid.

Kuppu Chetty died leaving a Will (probate of which has been marked as Exhibit A) bequeathing the residue of his estate to Kandaswami Chetty (1st defendant's husband) who obtained probate. The Will gave a few small legacies. These were of Rs. 500 each to his brother's sons with a direction to pay them with interest at 6 per cent. when they attained 18 years. Another was a sum of Rs. 500 to be paid to Kanniammall at any time after she demands "After she begets a child." The Will provides that Kandaswami Chetty "shall from the whole of his property take out and set apart the legacies" and left the whole of the residue to Kandaswami Chetty.

There is no evidence as to what Kandasami Chetty did but it is conceded that he died without paying the legacies. The case is now where an executor dies without having fully administered the estate. It is clear that under the law as it stands in India the administrator of an executor is not a derivative executor and that on the death of an executor or administrator without having fully administered the estate the duty of carrying on the administration of that estate will not devolve upon the deceased executor or administrator's personal representative but on a person appointed for the purpose under sections 19 and 45 of the Probate and Administration Act (corresponding to section 196 of the Succession Act). I need only refer to De Sousa v. Secretary of State (9) and the observations of Mookerjee J. (at page 403) in Baroda Prasad Banerjee v. Gajendra Nath Banerjee (21). In Narasimmulu v. Gulam Hussain Sait (10), it was held that the word, 'may' in section 54 of the Probate and Administration Act means 'shall' and that unless Letters of Administration de bonis non are taken out the estate of a testator is not represented on the death of the executor with probate.

If Ragammal, the 1st defendant, did not represent the estate of Kuppu Chetty it was not any part of her duty to pay the legacies payable under Kuppu Chetty's Will and so payment of legacies which Kandasami Chetty was bound to pay as executor would not come within the scope of administration of his private and personal estate.

It is argued that Kandaswami Chetty's estate became liable to pay the legacies as he was an express trustee under the Will of Kuppu Chetti. There is nothing in the Will constituting him a trustee for the legatees, and unless the Will creates a trust the executor will not be an express trustee but will simply be an executor. In Royal General Theatrical Fund Association v. Kydd, In re Lacy; (54), it was held that executors were not express trustees merely by virtue of the office in the absence of any trusts imposed upon him by terms of the Will. Dacre v. Patrickson (55). In re Davis; Evans v. Moore (15), Rowe, In re, Jacobs v. Hind (12), lay down the same rule. Several cases have been cited by the plaintiffs' Vakil but they are also cases where the executor was constituted trustee by the terms of the Will and where he became one by express declaration on his part or by his acts from which the law implied the creation of a trust which did not exist before.

(54) (1899) 2 Ch. 140; 68 L. J. Ch. 488; 80 L. T. 706 47 W. R. 664.

It is also argued that Kandaswami Chetti who was the residuary legatee must be presumed to have assented to the legacies payable by the Will of Kuppu Chetti and that consequently he became personally liable and that the assent made him a trustee or at least a debtor so as to make the payment part of the duty of his administratrix. Mere assent to a legacy does not convert an executor into a trustee unless he has separated the fund and set it apart, In re Barker, Buxton v. Compbell (56). It does not transfer the liability from the estate of the deceased and fasten it on to that of the executor so as to make it a debt payable by his executor or administratrix in the usual course of administration. The following observations of Justice Kekewich in Rowe, In re, Jacobs v. Hind (12), are in point: "I am not disposed to think, without direct authority, that an executor, by assenting to a legacy, makes himself a trustee of that legacy. What he does do is this: he makes himself liable to pay out of his own moneys; that is quite possible, but that does not make him a trustee or even a debtor."

Even assuming that Kandaswami Chetti assented to the legacies payable under Kuppu Chetty's Will the only consequence would be that in a suit for the legacy he could not plead want of assets and if he has reserved no assets he might be compelled to pay out of his pocket. I do not think that a mere contingent liability to pay as executor or administrator of another estate can be treated as a demand on his private estate so as to postpone the completion of the administration to his estate in case he dies without paying the legacies. No doubt section 89 of the Probate and Administration Act makes demands and rights of suit of or against the deceased survive to and against an executor or administrator but this does not necessarily prolong the period of administration beyond the payment of funeral and testamentary expenses and the debts and legacies payable by the deceased. The test is whether the executor or administrator can resist a suit by the heirs or beneficiaries for delivery to them of his estate on the ground that the deceased was himself an administrator or executor of another estate and his estate might be called upon at some future date to meet some possible demand. When Kandaswami Chetti died he was executor of Kuppu Chetty's estate and there is no evidence that he did anything to constitute himself a trustee or to make himself personally liable to pay the legacies as a debt. The legacy still remained a legacy and the rights of the legatees were to proceed against the estate of Kuppu Chetty though they had the right to proceed against Kandaswami Chetty's estate if there was any and the assets of Kuppu Chetti were thereby made insufficient to pay the legacies. Under these circumstances I do not think the payment of the legacies due under Kuppu Chetty's Will was any part of the duties of the administratrix of Kandaswami Chetty's estate.

It is, no doubt, true that both the 1st defendant and Subbaraya Chetty, one of deceased sureties, thought that the administratrix of Kandaswami Chetti was bound to pay the legacies under Kuppu Chetty's Will but an idea of liability based on the erroneous view of law that an administratrix of an executor represents the original estate will not affect the rights and liabilities of the sureties under an administration bond or extend the period of limitation.

As it was conceded during the argument that subsequent to 1908 there were no debts of Kandaswami Chetti to be paid or assets to be realised if the legacies payable under Kuppu Chetty's Will are excluded I am of opinion that the 1st defendant as administratrix became functus officio and that at least from 1908 she should be treated as being in possession as heir. This view is strengthened by the fact that the present plaintiffs filed Original Suit No. 218 of 1908 as reversioners against 1st defendant as a widow in possession as heir under Hindu Law and got a Receiver appointed. The cause of action on the administration bond arose at least prior to 1909 and the suit is, in my opinion, barred by limitation.

(55) 1 Dr. & Sm. 182; 29 L. J. Ch. 846; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 863; 8 W. R. 597 at p. 647, 62 E. R. 348, 2 L. T. (N. S.) 764; 127 R. R. 69.

(56) (1892) 2 Ch. 491 at p. 495; 62 L. J. Ch. 76; 66 L. T. 848.

IV Issue. The present suit is brought by the plaintiffs as assignees of an administration bond while they were suing as reversioners under Hindu Law in the previous proceedings. It is difficult to see how the decision in those proceedings can be res judicata. This issue was not argued or pressed.

V Issue. Though not raised by the issues Mr. G. Krishnasamy Aiyar who appeared for the 5th defendant contended that the administration bond was void as it was executed in favour of the Registrar of the High Court and not in favour of the Judges of the High Court as required by section 78 of the Probate and Administration Act. His argument is that as the section requires the bond to be given to the Judge, the High Court had no power to make rules contrary to the express provisions of the Probate and Administration Act. Reference was made to Debendra Nath Dutt v. Administrator-General of Bengal (33), where it is stated in the judgment of the Chief Justice that administration bond was at one time in the name of the Registrar and subsequently taken in the name of the Chief Justice as it was thought that the Registrar was not the proper person. It is unnecessary to consider this point as it is clear that it is not open to the sureties, on the faith of whose bond the estate was ordered to be administered by the 1st defendant, to dispute the validity of the bond. It was open to the High Court apart from the provisions of the Probate and Administration Act to make an order conditional on security being given and in the present case it is not disputed that the grant would not have been made if the sureties did not sign the bond sued on. It does not lie in the mouth of the sureties to say that the High Court had no power to take the bond in the form in which it was taken.

As I have found issues II and III in favour of the defendants it is unnecessary to decide the first issue.

The suit fails and is dismissed. The bond was assigned to the plaintiff by an order of the High Court and in Civil Suit No. 218 of 1908 a Receiver was appointed permanently on the ground that 1st defendant was mismanaging the estate as widow in possession of her husband's estate. I think this is a case where the costs of the plaintiff and the sureties defendants Nos. 2 to 6 should be paid out of the estate. The Receiver will pay their taxed costs.

Suit dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 146 OF 1913.

January 24, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Prideaux, Offg., A. J. C.

DALCHAND—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

CHAND KHAN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Minor—Mortgage by guardian—Legal necessity—Alienee of minor's rights in property entitled to challenge the mortgage.

An alienee who has acquired the rights of a minor in property is entitled to challenge a mortgage granted by the guardian of the said minor, and make the mortgagee establish legal necessity for the loan, or to show the same was for the minor's benefit.

Appeal against the decree of the Divisional Judge, Jubbulpore Division, dated the 30th November 1912, reversing that of the Subordinate Judge, Jubbulpore, dated the 27th June 1912.

Mr. F. W. Dillon, for the Appellant.

Mr. M. Chuckerbutty, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—Musammat Kuare, now dead, executed on the 5th March 1895 the mortgage-bond in suit on account of herself and her sons, defendants Nos. 2, 3 and 4, and her grandsons, defendants Nos. 1 and 5.

Plaintiffs sue to recover Rs. 1,340 thereon.

The payment of considerations and execution of the document have been held proved.

Defendant No. 6 on a prior mortgage has foreclosed certain shares of the property in suit, and he and defendant No. 7 are in possession under certain sale-deeds. They are the real contesting parties to the suit. They contested the legality of the plaintiffs' mortgage. The lower Appellate Court has held that the first five defendants were minors at the time of the mortgage, the first four being properly represented by Musammat Kuare, but that defendant No. 5 at the time had his mother and guardian alive, and for this reason the mortgage could not bind him or his takers. It, however, found the last point not very material as Musammat Mulla, the boy's mother, had on his account mortgaged the same properties to defendant No. 6 before the date of plaintiffs' mortgage.

Dealing with the question of legal necessity the question arose whether defendants Nos. 6 and 7 could raise this plea at all. The original Court had held they could. The Divisional Judge finds that infancy is a purely personal privilege of which no one but the infant himself can take advantage, and finding that the plea was not for the benefit of the defendants Nos. 1 to 5 who have no interest left in the property, held on the authority of Vithoba v. Sakharam (1), that it was unnecessary to prove legal necessity as the minors' interests are not concerned.

The claim was decreed.

In this second appeal preferred by the sixth defendant the sole question pleaded is whether an alienee who has acquired the rights of a minor in property is entitled to challenge a mortgage granted by the guardian of the said minor, and make the mortgagee establish legal necessity for the loan, or to show the same was for the minors' benefit. That is, can they plead what the minors themselves could have pleaded if they still were the owners of the property covered by the mortgage? The question is not free from difficulty and no express authority for the proposition advanced has been quoted; but there seems to me no reason why the ordinary rule should not be applied, namely, where it is sought to enforce a mortgage by a guardian the mortgagee must prove the transaction was entered into in good faith, that is, he advanced a sum reasonable with reference to the value of the property and that the money was raised for the relief of a recognised necessity: that proper enquiries were made, and that these satisfied him of the existence of such necessity. The burden is always upon the alienee to show the money was for the minor's purposes or the minor has benefited thereby. In certain matters minority is a personal privilege and cannot be taken advantage of by the minor's assignee either before or after his death, such as the benefits of section 7 of the Limitation Act. Yet it has been held that a purchaser can avoid the acts of the guardian of the vendor, Dattaji Sakharam Rajadhiksh v. Kalba Yese Parabhu (2).

The powers of a guardian de facto or de jure to alienate the property of his ward are the same as those of a manager of a joint family acting for a minor co-parcener. In Muhammad Musamil-ullah Khan v. Mithu Lal (3), the question referred to a Full Bench was "whether a transferee from the head of a Hindu family who had previously mortgaged joint family property without legal necessity, stands in a better position than his transferor, and can set up the case that a prior mortgage of the property transferred to him was made without legal necessity." It was there "held that in view of the fact that the purchaser had acquired a title to the property by adverse possession as against all the members of the family, it was open to him, notwithstanding that his title was originally acquired from the mortgagor alone, to set up as a defence the invalidity of the mortgage." This principle can, I think, be extended. In the present case appellant has acquired as against the original owners a title to part of the property mortgaged. The mortgage here was not void but voidable at the instance of the minors if they could prove want of legal necessity, and the trial of the validity of the mortgage seems necessary for appellant's protection against the claim made against him on the mortgage. Under these circumstances it seems to me that he can raise the plea disallowed by the lower Appellate Court, and I hold accordingly. It has been found by both Courts that the mortgage was not justifiable, and that no legal necessity for the same existed, and that it was not for minors' benefit. Plaintiffs' suit then fails. Defendant No. 7 has not appealed, nor have the other defendants and the case proceeded ex parte against Nos. 1, 2, 4 and 5, but the appeal by one defendant where there is a common ground as here is virtually an appeal by all, and proceeding under Order XLI, rule 4, I reverse the decree of the lower Appellate Court in favour of all the defendants. The appeal succeeds and plaintiffs' case stands dismissed with costs.

(1) 4 O. P. L. R. 128.

(2) 21 B. 749.

(3) 11 Ind. Cas. 220; 33 A. 783; 8 A. L. J. 901

Appeal accepted.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL No. 192 OF 1910.

December 9, 1914.

Present:—Sir John Edward Power Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

ACHANTA VENKATASURYANARAYANA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

YELLAPRAGADU SHIVA SANKARA NARAYANA—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Appeal—Finding adverse to defendant—Defendant whether entitled to appeal—Res judicata.

There is no right of appeal against a mere finding.

Where, therefore, in a suit to declare an adoption invalid, the invalidity of the adoption is found but the suit itself is dismissed as time-barred, the defendant has no right of appeal against that finding as there is no decree against him.

The fact that that finding may operate as res judicata in subsequent proceedings will not give him a right of appeal.

Run Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Koer, 11 C. 301 (P. C.); 12 A. 23; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 602; 9 Ind. Jur. 202; Parbati Debi v. Mathura Nath Banerjee, 15 Ind. Cas. 453; 40 C. 29; 16 C.W.N. 877; 16 C. L. J. 9, followed.

Ranganatham Chetty v Lakshmi Ammal, 21 Ind. Cas 15, 14 M. L. T. 189, (1913) M. W. N. 690; 25 M. L. J. 279, distinguished.

Appeal against the decree of the District Court of Godaveri, in Original Suit No. 10 of 1908.

Mr. A. Narasimhachari for Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Iyengar, for the Respondent, raised a preliminary objection that no appeal lay against an adverse finding, as the result of the appeal was favourable to the Appellant.

Mr. P. Somasundaram, for Mr. P. Narayana Murti, for the Appellant, contended that as the finding may operate as res judicata unless set aside he was entitled to appeal.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff sued for a declaration that the adoption was invalid. The District Judge found that the adoption was proved but was made without authority, but that the suit to declare its invalidity was barred as the adoption had come to the knowledge of the plaintiff more than six years before the date of suit. Although the suit was dismissed an appeal has been preferred on behalf of the 2nd defendant, the adopted boy, against the finding that the adoption was invalid for want of authority in the widow. The suit having been dismissed, the 2nd defendant had no right of appeal against the finding. It is suggested in his behalf that it may operate as res judicata against him unless it is set aside. There is, in our opinion, no foundation for this contention. See the observations of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in Run Bahadur Singh v. Lucho Koer (1) and also in Parbati Debi v. Mathura Nath Banerjee (2) The question dealt with in Ranganatham Chetty v. Lakshmi Ammal (3) does not arise here and it is unnecessary to consider that decision. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 11 C. 301 (P. C.); 12 I. A. 23; 4 Sar. P. C. 602; 9 Ind. Jur 202.

2) 15 Ind. Cas. 453; 40 C. 29; 16 C. W. N. 877; 16 C. L. J. 9.

(3) 21 Ind. Cas 15; 14 M. L. T. 189; (1913) M. W. N. 690: 25 M. L. J. 279.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 274B OF 1913.

August 22, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Stanyon, A. J. C.

BHIORAJ—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

NARAYAN—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT

Registration, object and effect of—Execution—Admission by legal representative—Who is legal representative—Validity of registration.

Registration is intended to be a contemporaneous publication of a transaction as a guard against subsequent fraud and alteration. It is not in the least necessary for the purposes of registration that the legal representative should be the heir of the deceased executant. It is sufficient if he has authority, express or implied, to admit execution of the deed.

Registration of a deed is something different from the validity thereof, and from the value of the title of the executant to the property affected by the deed.

Documents are not registered against any person in the same way as a decree may be given against one person and not against another.

BHIORAJ v. NARAYAN.

T, the executant of a deed, left two children a boy and a girl, both under the guardianship of her husband. T having died before registration, her husband as guardian of the boy, erroneously believed to be the heir, admitted execution at the time of registration. The legal heir of T was the girl.

Held, that the deed was duly presented by a person authorized to present it and the registration was valid.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Akola, dated the 4th April 1913, confirming that of the Munsif, Khamgaon, dated the 5th November 1912.

Mr. F. W. Dillon, for the Appellant.

Mr. V. T. Deshmukh, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case technicality has defeated justice in the Courts below because the law has been applied in a way opposed to common sense. The suit was brought to enforce a deed of mortgage, dated the 17th March 1907, for Rs. 161 by one Musammat Tulsi, the wife of Yado Teli, in favour of the plaintiff. Certain fields were mortgaged by this deed. The debt was payable with interest at 24 per cent. per annum on the 9th December 1907. The deed was presented for registration by the plaintiff on the 16th July 1907. Before this date the executant Musammat Tulsi died, and, in response to a summons issued by the registering officer, her husband, Yado Teli, as guardian of his minor son Narayan, described as the heir of the deceased, appeared as her representative. He admitted execution of the deed and the receipt of the full consideration stated in the deed. The registering officer also satisfied himself that Narain was a minor and the recognized heir of the deceased. Thereupon the document was registered and was accepted by every one concerned as duly registered.

On the 25th March 1912 the present suit was filed, and Rs. 322 were claimed as due on the bond. The defendant originally impleaded was the minor Narayan. His father and natural guardian is said to have disappeared, and his mother's sister Gopi was put forward as his guardian, Sitaram, the husband of Gopi, professing to be on bad terms with her and, therefore, living apart from her. The absence of Yado opened the way for a denial of execution of and consideration for the bond. But before this it was urged that Musammat Tulsi had, left a daughter Mathuri who was her heir, and Mathuri was added as a defendant. She is a minor, and Gopi appeared as her guardian also. Thus was Yado relieved of the necessity of facing his admissions and statements before the registering officer. The plea was now taken that Tulsi having inherited the fields in dispute from her father, they became her absolute estate under the Bombay School of Hindu Law, and would descend as he stridhan. Therefore, Mathuri and not Narayan was her heir, and their had been no valid registration of the mortgage-deed. This preposterous quibble has actually succeeded in the Courts below, who have dismissed the suit on the ground that the bond, being in law unregistered, is inadmissible in evidence for the purpose of relief against the mortgaged property. The plaintiff has appealed and, of course, the appeal must succeed.

The lower Appellate Court describes the bond as an instrument that "has not been registered as against Muthuri." The expression seems to involve some misapprehension. Documents are not registered against any person in the same way as a decree may be given against one person and not against another. Registration is intended to be a contemporaneous publication of a transaction as a guard against subsequent fraud and alteration. Where an executant cannot, or does not, appear, at the registration, it is necessary that some one should appear for him. Such person is called the legal representative. It is not in the least necessary for the purposes of registration that such legal representative should be the heir of the deceased executant. It is sufficient if he has authority, express or implied, to admit execution of the deed. That alone is sufficient to justify registration though an admission in respect of the consideration is usually added. Registration will be effected, even if consideration is denied, upon execution being admitted. When Tulsi died she left two little children, a boy Narayan and a girl Mathuri, both under the guardianship of her husband, Yado. This husband had full authority to admit, for the purposes of registration that Tulsi had executed the deed. He did so but at that time he and all others concerned were under the misapprehension that Narayan was the heir of Tulsi: so Yado acted as the guardian of Narayan. In fact and in law he was also at that time the guardian of Mathuri. The conjecture of the District Judge that Yado admitted everything on behalf of Narayan because he considered the payment of his own debts, included in the bond, a pious obligation on his son, and that he would have said something else as the guardian of Mathuri, is a purely gratuitous assumption, crediting Yado with a knowledge of Hindu Law for which there is no justification. The question whether Tulsi had executed the deed was a question of fact as to which Yado had to tell the truth, and there is no reason to suppose that, having admitted execution for Narayan he would have denied it for Mathuri. It would indeed undermine the operation of the law of registration, and upset titles for the benefit of dishonest persons, if deeds, registered on admissions of execution made by the accepted heirs and legal representatives of deceased executants, for the time being were to fall into the category of unregistered documents upon some other persons establishing better claims to the estates of such executants. Suppose Musammat Tulsi had herself appeared and made the admissions that Yado did. Would the registration of the deed have been any the less valid if some person evicted her from the mortgaged property thereafter by proving a better title? It is clear that the registration of a deed is something different from the validity thereof, and from the value of the title of the executant to the property affected by the deed. I hold that the admission of execution made by Yado was all sufficient for the purposes of registration, and the validity thereof is not affected by his error that his minor son rather than his minor daughter, had inherited the mortgaged estate. Assuming that the registering officer erred in taking Yado's admission of execution, quoad guardian of Narayan, instead of quoad guardian of Mathuri, that was only an error of procedure which would not invalidate the registration. I am fortified in the view I take by the decisions in Sah Mukhun Lal v. Sah Koondun Lall (1), Muhammad Ewaz v. Birj Lal (2); and Pakran v. Kunhammed (3). The case of Mujib-un-nissa v. Abdur Rahim (4) is not an authority the other way The document in that case was presented for registration by a person whose authority to present it as an agent of the executant, had ceased to exist by the death of his principal. Their Lordships of the Privy Council held that the power and jurisdiction of the registering officer only arises when he is invoked by a person in direct relation to the document, and that requirement had not been complied with in the case before them. The registration was, therefore, not merely irregular and valid, but illegal and a nullity. The Board expressly distinguished this case from their previous decision above quoted and in no way overruled the latter. In the present case the deed was duly presented by a person authorized to present it, and the registering officer, having satisfied himself of its execution, registered it, as indeed he was bound to do.

The appeal is affirmed. The decree of the lower Appellate Court is reversed, and the case is remanded for a decision on the merits. The appellant will be given the usual refund certificate. Other costs here and hitherto will follow the result.

Appeal accepted; Case remanded.

(1) 2 I. A. 210; 24 W. R. 75; 15 B. L. R. 228.

(2) 1 A. 465 at p. 473, 3 Suth. P. C. J. 438; 4 I. A. 166; 3 Saraswati's P. C. J. 738.

(3) 23 M. 580

(4) 23 A. 233; 11 M. L. J. 58; 3 Bom. L. R. 154; 28 I. A. 15 (P. C.), 5 C. W. N. 177.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 26 OF 1914.

December 7, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and Mr. Justice Napier.

THIKKILLATH TARAWAD KARANAVAN AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

VADAKKA CHATHIBIKATH MANCHU NAIR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Landlord and tenant—Malabar Law—Kudima tenure—Ejectment, right of, when arises—Failure to perform services—Forfeiture—Denial of landlord's title, whether sufficient.

The mere denial of the landlord's title will not work a forfeiture of that tenancy.

A landlord's power to recover the land and to oust the tenant in kudima janmam demises, is limited to cases in which the tenant omits to perform the services for the performance of which the grant was made.

Musammat AMBA v. SHEORAM.

Second appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of South Malabar at Palghat, in Appeal Suit No. 462 of 1913, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Alathur, in Original Suit No. 141 of 1912.

Mr. A. S. Venku Aiyar for Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Iyer and T. R. Krishnaswami Iyer, for the Appellant.—The assertion by the defendants of a jenmam right is quite inconsistent with the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant. It, therefore, worked a forfeiture and the landlord is entitled to eject. Exhibit V on which the defendants base their kudima jenmam demise is not genuine.

Messrs. C. V. Anantakrishna Iyer and T. K. Govinda Aiyer, for the Respondents. The kudima jenmam tenure is forfeitable only for failure to perform the services. Second Appeal No. 987 of 1904. The genuineness of Exhibit V was not disputed in the Court of first instance.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff sought to eject the defendants on the ground that their assertion of jenmam right in two deeds one of partition and one of mortgage worked a forfeiture. In Second Appeal No. 987 of 1904 Benson and Wallis, JJ., agreeing with the District Judge of North Malabar held that a landlord's power to recover the land and to oust the tenant in kudima jenmam, demises is limited to cases in which the tenant omits to perform the services for the performance of which the grant was made. This view is in accordance with the description given of this form of tenure in Chapter XIII of Moore's Malabar Law. We think that the plaintiff has failed to make out that he had a right to eject the defendants by virtue of their denial, if any. A further point has been taken that Exhibit V on which the defendants rely for proving that their tenure was of the species called adima jenmam or kudima jenmam was not genuine, but its genuineness was evidently not disputed in the District Munsif's Court.

The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs of the 5th and 6th defendants.

Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 425 OF 1913.

July 29, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Batten, OFFG. J. C.

Musammat AMBA—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

SHEORAM—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Central Provinces Tenancy Act (IX of 1883), s. 94—Ejectment, meaning of—Wrongful but peaceful possession with intention of excluding the rightful holder.

Ejectment in section 94 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act means a dispossession, that is to say, a loss of possession through some act of the defendant which was a taking of possession with the intention of excluding the plaintiff. Force includes in cases of this sort the moral equivalent of force.

Thus, a person who takes wrongful but peaceful possession, and when asked to give up possession by the rightful holder, refuses to do so, must be held to eject the rightful holder, provided his declared intention is to retain possession permanently.

Ganpat v. Trimbak, 3 Ind. Cas. 51; 5 N. L. R. 97, referred to.

Appeal against the decree of the Divisional Judge, Nagpur Division, dated the 11th April 1913, confirming that of the District Judge, Chanda, dated the 9th August 1912.

Mr. M. V. Abhyankar, for the Appellants.

Messrs. J. Mitra and Waman Rao Gharpure, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The findings of facts are that the plaintiffs, or rather their mother, their predecessor, sub-leased their occupancy fields, by a lease which expired on the 14th February 1908. Prior to the expiry of the sub-lease the defendants, the landlords evicted the sub-tenant, and when the plaintiffs demanded possession they refused to give them possession. The last date of refusal is given in the plaint as the 10th April 1909. The suit for possession was instituted on the 8th July 1911. The lower Courts have dismissed the suit as time barred, with reference to section 94 (1) of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act. In appeal it is urged that the plaintiffs, in the circumstances stated above, were not ejected within the meaning of sub-section (1) of section 94; the plaintiffs, it is argued, were not in physical as opposed to legal possession, and so were not dispossessed and not ejected. The learned Divisional Judge has referred to the judgment of Skinner, A. J. C., in Ganpat v. Trimbak (1), as defining ejectment. In that case the landlord took possession with the tenant's consent, and it was held that the tenant was not ejected within the meaning of section 94. The meanings of the words 'eject' and 'evict' were discussed, and it was remarked that in section 92 "the words 'ejectment' and 'ejected' * * * seem to be used to denote wrongful and forcible dispossession." The meaning in section 94 (1) is clearly the same as in section 92.

On the findings of fact the appeal, in my opinion, must fail, and the reasoning of the learned Divisional Judge appears to me to be correct. It is to the effect that a person who takes wrongful but peaceful possession, and when asked to give up possession by the rightful holder, refuses to do so, must be held to eject the rightful holder, provided his declared intention is to retain possession permanently. It appears to me that ejectment in section 94 means a dispossession, that is to say, a loss of possession through some act of the defendant which was a taking of possession with the intention of excluding the plaintiff. This is what happened here. Force includes in cases of this sort the moral equivalent of force, and what happened was that the defendants were in wrongful possession on the expiry of the sub-lease, and, when asked to give up possession, by their conduct evinced the intention of remaining in forcible possession. The retaining of possession certainly amounted to ejection as soon as there was a refusal to restore possession, even if it did not previously do so.

For these reasons I dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 3 Ind. Cas. 51; 5 N. L. R. 97.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1150 OF 1914.

January 13, 1915.

Present:—MR. Justice Chamier.

CHATAR PALMAN AND ANOTHER—JUDGMENT-DEBTORS—APPELLANTS

versus

PREM NATH TEWARI AND ANOTHER—DECREE-HOLDERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 48—Minor—Extension of period of limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 6, applicability of.

Section 6 of the Limitation Act, 1908, serves only to extend, for the benefit of minors, periods of limitation provided by the Act itself, it does not extend the period of limitation provided by section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908.

Jhandu v. Mohan Lal, 128 P. R. 1894, Ramana Reddi v. Babu Reddi, 18 Ind. Cas 586; 37 M. 188; 13 M. L. T. 79; 1913) M. W. N. 114; 24 M. L. J. 96, approved of Moro Sadashiv v. Visaji Raghunath, 16 B 536, not approved of.

Execution second appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Gorakhpur, dated the 30th April 1904, reversing that of the Munsif of Bansi.

Mr. G. L. Agarwala, for the Appellants.

Mr. Iswar Saran, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of proceedings taken to execute a decree obtained on May 22nd 1901 by the respondents, who were at the time and still are minors. Their guardian made several applications for execution of the decree which were granted, the last of them being made on February 6th 1912, and ultimately dismissed on December 3rd 1912. The present application was presented on May 27th 1913, i. e., a few days after the expiration of 12 years from the date of the decree. One of the grounds on which the application was contested' and the only ground with which we are concerned now was that further execution of the decree is barred by section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The Munsif decided this question in favour of the judgment-debtors-appellants but the Additional Subordinate Judge decided it against them, following the decision of the Bombay High Court in Moro Sadashiv v. Visaji Raghunath (1). In the case cited the Bombay High Court pointed out that section 7 of the Limitation Act of 1877 served only to extend, for the benefit of minors, periods of limitation provided by that Act, but they held that section 230 of the Code of Civil Procedure must give way to the general principle that time does not run against a minor. In Jhanda v. Mohan Lal (2), the Punjab Chief Court declined to follow the decision of the Bombay High Court and quite recently in Ramana Reddi v. Balu Reddi (3), in a case arising under section 6 of the Limitation Act of 1908 and section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure of 1908, the Madras High Court followed the Punjab decision and declined to follow that of the Bombay High Court. I prefer the view taken by the Punjab and Madras Courts. Section 6 of the present Limitation Act, like section 7 of the Limitation Act of 1877, serves only to extend, for the benefit of minors, periods of limitation provided by the Act itself, indeed strictly speaking it refers only to periods of limitation prescribed by the first Schedule to the Act. Section 48 of the present Code of Civil Procedure, like section 230 of the Code of 1882, recognizes certain exceptions to the general rule which it lays down, but it makes no exception in favour of minors. I know of no general law, apart from section 6 of the Limitation Act, which lays down that minority is a ground of exemption from the operation of the Law of Limitation. As Sir Meredyth Plowden said in the Punjab case, the present question may be a casus omissus, but if so, it is the business of the Legislature, not of the Courts, to provide for it. Apart from the actual wording of section 6 of the Limitation Act there are great difficulties in engrafting on section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure the rule laid down in the Limitation Act. If any extension of the period of 12 years is to be allowed, how much is to be allowed and from what date is the extension to be calculated? An extension of three years only will not meet all cases and yet the Limitation Act does not allow an extension of more than three years after the minor attains his majority. It appears to me that it would be pure legislation to hold that section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not apply to this case or to hold that minors, situated as the present respondents are, can claim an extension of the period prescribed by it sufficient to enable them to take out execution after they attain their majority.

(1) 16 B. 536.

(2) 128 P. R. 1894.

(3) 18 Ind. Cas. 586; 37 M. 186; 13 M. L. T. 79; (1913) M. W. N. 114; 24 M. L. J. 96.

For the reasons given by the lower Appellate Court it is impossible to hold that the present application for execution is one to restore or revive the last previous application. Indeed the respondents put forward no such contention before me.

In my opinion the respondents' present application for execution should have been dismissed. I allow this appeal, reverse the decision of the lower Appellate Court and restore the order of the first Court dismissing the application. The respondents will pay the appellants' costs in all three Courts.

Appeal allowed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 304 OF 1913.

July 15, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.

HARIA—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MANAKCHAND—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32 (2)—Statement by deceased scribe of a bond as to marks (nishani) of executant, admissibility of.

The bond in suit purported to be executed by three persons who were all dead. The signature of each of them was represented by an irregular scribble such as might be made by an illiterate person, and against each of these marks there was the statement that it was the mark (nishani) of one of the executants, the name being given in each case. The scribe and the attesting witnesses were also dead. The whole of the bond including the statement as to the marks was proved to be in the handwriting of the deceased scribe by the evidence of his father, a bond-writer.

Held, that direct evidence was to be found on the bond itself in the written statement made by the deceased scribe that the signatures were those of the persons whose names were written against them, and that that statement was relevant under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act, having been made by the deceased scribe in the ordinary course of his business as bond-writer.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Narsinghpur, dated the 20th February 1913, reversing that of the Subordinate Judge, Narsinghpur, dated the 25th October 1912.

Mr. G. P. Dick, for the Appellant.

The Hon'ble Sir Bipin Krishna Bose, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff, who is respondent in this Court, sued on a mortgage-bond, dated the 29th of September 1892, purporting to be executed by three persons who are all now dead. The signature of each of them is represented by an irregular scribble such as might be made by an illiterate person, and against each of these marks there is the statement that it is the mark (nishani) of one of the executants, the name being given in each case. These three statements are in the same hand-writing as that of the rest of the bond. That is proved by the statement of Bhagwandas, Brahmin (P. W. No. 1), who describes himself as a bond-writer, to be the hand-writing of his deceased son, Ramdayal. He stated in the first Court that the bond, that is, presumably all of it that was not obviously in a different hand-writing, was in that of his son, and this might well be held to include the statement that he was again called in the lower Appellate Court to make, that the names of the executants were also written by his son. Both attesting witnesses also are dead, and the signature of each of them has been satisfactorily proved to be in his hand-writing.

The mortgage secured a debt of Rs. 900, and it was stipulated that this sum was to be repaid on the 3rd of May 1901 and till it was repaid, the mortgagee was to remain in possession of the property and appropriate all the profits in lieu of interest. The mortgagee has actually been in possession under this agreement ever since. Of the six defendants one only appeared to defend the suit He is the son of one of the executants and the grandson and nephew of the other two, and he said: "I know nothing about the execution of the bond in suit by my father. Harbans was my grandfather and Mulli was my uncle. They died, but when, I cannot say. Plaintiff is in possession of the land claimed. I have got no means to redeem the mortgage even if proved."

Apart then from the formalities required by sections 68 and 69 of the Evidence Act, it seems clear that the genuine nature and the validity of the document have been fully proved, having regard to the definition of proof in section 4 and the rule of common sense enunciated in section 114 of that Act. Compliance with those formalities is, however, necessary. In the first Court it was held that the last of those prescribed by section 69, proof that the signatures of the ostensible executants were the signatures of the persons named, had not been carried out, because there had been no attempt to prove who wrote the names, which appear against the marks which are the signatures of the executants. As has already been pointed out, there was some evidence on this point. The deficiency, such as it was, was, however, made good in the lower Appellate Court, and it was there held that sufficient proof of the execution of the bond had been given to satisfy the requirements of section 69. Against this finding the defendants have appealed.

On the line of reasoning adopted in Abdulla Paru v. Gannibai (1), I am satisfied that there is evidence on the record directly tending to show that the signature marks on the document were made by the alleged executants, and that, therefore, the finding of the lower Appellate Court that that fact is proved cannot now be assailed. That direct evidence is to be found on the bond itself in the written statement made by the deceased scribe that the signatures are those of the persons whose names are written against them. That statement is proved by the evidence of Bhagwandas (P. W. No. 1.), and it is relevant under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act because it was made by the deceased Ramdayal in the ordinary course of his business of a bond-writer. For the appellants it is objected that there is nothing to show that Ramdayal was a bond-writer. The evidence on the point is certainly not strong, because the point was never raised, but I consider it to be sufficient. He was the son of a bond-writer, who appears to regard the writing of this bond by him as quite in the ordinary course of affairs, and the writing and the manner and the terms of the bond are all evidence of its having been written by a professional bond-writer. In the absence of even a suggestion to the contrary, I hold, therefore, on this evidence that the bond was written by Ramdayal in the ordinary course of his business. This finding, given under section 103 of the Civil Procedure Code, makes the written statement of Ramdayal in regard to the persons by whom the signatures on the bond were made relevant under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act. There are many strong reasons for believing that statement to be true, and absolutely none for believing it to be false, and it has been accepted as true by the Judge of the lower Appellate Court. The finding that due execution of the mortgage-bond has been proved must, therefore, stand.

(1) 11 B. 690.

The defendants have also appealed against the decision of the lower Appellate Court that the plaintiff is entitled to a decree for sale on the mortgage, contending that it is an usufructuary mortgage and the plaintiff is entitled only to remain in possession until they choose to redeem, which they can do at any time on payment of Rs. 900. The question is an open one, but the plaintiff is willing to concede the point for the purposes of this case, provided that the question of his right to sue for sale hereafter, if he should desire to do so, is not thereby made res judicata and that this right to retain possession till redemption, which the defendants admit, is clearly stated. He has in fact realised that his suit was ill-advised, as the right to possession of the land is worth now a great deal more than Rs. 900, and the property is not transferable except under his mortgage, being an occupancy-holding. To force a sale and obtain re-payment of his debt would be entirely against his own interest, but having once launched the suit he was of course bound to appeal against the finding of the first Court that the mortgage-bond was never duly executed. It appears that on that finding the defendants were foolish enough to take forcible possession of the holding, and that the plaintiff has now recovered possession by a suit under the Specific Relief Act and has also recovered Rs. 140 as mesne profits. On the announcement of the decision that the mortgage-bond was duly proved, the parties have agreed that the decree of the lower Appellate Court shall be set aside and that in lieu thereof a decree shall issue declaring that the mortgage-bond in suit was duly executed and that the plaintiff is entitled to hold possession of the mortgaged property till redemption, and ordering that each party shall pay its own costs throughout. A decree will issue accordingly.

Decree accordingly.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 352 OF 1914.

February 15, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Parlett.

MA NGWE AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

MA THA HLAY—RESPONDENT.

Mortgage-deed—Provision extinguishing right of redemption if right not exercised within two years, effect of.

A mortgage-deed provided that if the mortgagor failed to redeem within two years, the mortgagees had a right to treat the transaction as a sale, and further that if they did not wish so to treat it, they could call upon the mortgagor to redeem at once and that the mortgagor was bound to do so, but if he were unable to do so, the right of redemption would be extended indefinitely:

Held, that as soon as the two years had elapsed without the mortgagor exercising her right of redemption, that which was a mortgage in its inception became an absolute sale from the beginning, finally closing the transaction between the parties as in the case of an ordinary mortgage by conditional sale.

Thumbusamy Moodelly v. Hossain Rowther, 1 M. 1; 2 I. A. 241; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 198; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 531, referred to and followed.

Mr. Palit, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.—Respondent sued to redeem 15.59 acres of land mortgaged to the appellants for Rs. 800 on 14th May 1904. The mortgage-deed stipulated that the land should be redeemed within two years, but the plaintiff set up a subsequent agreement whereby her right of redemption was kept alive. This she failed to prove, and both Courts decided the case upon a consideration of the meaning and effect of the terms of the mortgage-deed, but whereas the Sub-Divisional Court interpreted them as putting an end to the mortgage, the Divisional Court held the contrary. The passage in its judgment runs :—

"It (the deed) does contain a simple clause that failure of redemption after two years automatically passes the title to the land. On the contrary, it provides for a series of alternatives which the parties may adopt, and it seems to me to have been the intention of the parties that there should have been some formal declaration of the course of conduct they desired to adopt. The mortgagee could either call on the mortgagor to redeem at once, and if he could not do so might take over the land or if he did not wish to take over the land and the mortgagor could not redeem, then the right to redeem became prolonged indefinitely. In a case where there is any doubt about the effect of penal clauses in the mortgage-deed, the deed should be construed in favour of the mortgagor so as to keep alive the right of redemption. In the present case neither party appears to have taken any action at the expiry of the term of the mortgage. Matters were allowed to drift until the suit was filed and the land to continue to appear in the assessment rolls as subject to mortgage and to be assessed in the name of the mortgagor. The conclusion to which I come, is that it was never intended that the clauses relating to the right of redemption in the mortgage-deed should operate to extinguish that right without some further act of the parties."

This is by no means clear that the Divisional Court should, under Order XLI, rule 27, have admitted in evidence the certified copy of an assessment roll from which it drew the conclusion that the land continued to be assessed in the name of the mortgagor. At any rate the extremest inference which could possibly be drawn from this assessment roll for the year 1907-08 was that at the time it was prepared, the land mortgaged had been reported to the Revenue Authorities as having become the absolute property of the original mortgagees. As this was only the second year after they allege it had become her property, the delay was not very unusual. It is, however, very significant that the plaintiff made no attempt to show that the records of any of the six subsequent years contained similar entries.

The document, after referring to the mortgage as one for two years, proceeds "when the term expires I will redeem: should I not do so, let the mortgagees, if they so desire, take the land outright for the aforesaid sum of Rs. 800; if they desire me to redeem at once, I will do so; or if they do not desire to take the land outright and I cannot redeem and we say 'let us wait,' then 'let the land be redeemable upon payment of the money after whatever lapse of time." These terms do not appear to me to provide a number of alternative courses which could be followed at the choice of the parties, but rather a series of consequences which would ensue in a fixed order. To begin with, for the first two years the mortgagor had an indefeasible right to redeem. After that period, if she had not exercised her right, the mortgagees had a right to treat the transaction as a sale. If they did not wish so to treat it however, they could call upon the mortgagor to redeem at once and she was bound to do so; but if under these circumstances she was unable to redeem, the time for redemption would be extended indefinitely. That extension could only come about if the mortgagees declined to exercise their right of foreclosure: that right was theirs as soon as two years had elapsed without the mortgagor exercising her right of redemption. "Thereupon," to quote the words of the Privy Council in Thumbusamy Moodelly v. Hossain Rowthen (1), "that which was a mortgage in its inception was to become an absolute sale as from the beginning, finally closing the transaction between the parties, as in the case of an ordinary mortgage by conditional sale." I consider that no further act of the parties was required to extinguish the right of redemption, nor was any formal declaration of the course they desired to adopt, and that the decision of the Sub-Divisional Court was correct. It is restored and that of the Divisional Court reversed. Respondent will pay appellants' costs of this appeal.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 1 M. 1; 2 I. A. 241 at p. 249; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 198; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 531.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 409, 1064, 1937 TO 1951, 1953 TO 1999 AND 2001 TO 2003 OF 1912.

December 9, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Napier.

Sowcar Lold GOVIND DOSS KRISHNA DOSS VARU—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

GURRAM CHINNAPPA NAIDU AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 13, cl. 3, if retrospective—Enhanced rent, contract to pay, if presumable from 40 years' payment—Wells dug at tenant's expense—Site of wells given free of rent by landlord—Consideration—Enhanced rent, if claimable.

GOVIND DOSS v. GUBRAM CHINNAPPA NAIDU.

Section 13, clause (3), of the Madras Estates Land Act I of 1908, has no retrospective operation.

A valid contract to pay rent at enhanced rate can be presumed from payments at that rate for 40 years.

Where a landlord set apart a considerable area of land for the digging of wells for irrigating the lands in respect of which enhanced rates are claimed and charged no rent for the area so set apart, he must be deemed to have contributed to the cost of the wells dug by tenants on that area, though at their expense, and such contribution is sufficient consideration for a contract to pay rent at enhanced rate.

Arumugam Chetti v. Raja Jagaveera Rama Venkateswara Ettappa, 28 M. 444; 15 M.L. J 292; 9 M L T. 76 and Raja Kumara Venkata Perumal v. Ramudu, 27 Ind. Cas. 688; 28 M. L. J. 81; (1915) M. W. N. 132; 17 M. L. T. 129, followed.

Arumugam Chetti v. Raja Jagaveera Rama Venkateswara Ettappa, 8 Ind. Cas. 330, 9 M. L. T. 76; 35 M. 134, distinguished.

Second appeals against the decrees of the District Court of North Arcot in Appeal Suits Nos. 100, 177, 104, 108, 109, 111 to 122, 124 to 133, 135 to 138, 140 to 142, 144 to 167, 169, 171, 176, 178 to 180, and 182 to 184 of 1911, preferred against those of the Court of the Revenue Divisional Officer, Chandragiri, in Summary Suits Nos. 702, 779, 706, 710, 711, 713 to 724, 726 to 735, 737 to 740, 742 to 744, 746 to 769, 771, 773, 778, 780 to 782 and 814 to 816 of 1910.

FACTS.—These suits were filed by the ryots of Kammapalli in the Narayanavanam taluk against the defendant, the mortgagee with possession of the said taluk, under section 55 of the Madras Estates Land Act, I of 1908, to compel him to grant a proper patta. The tenants alleged inter alia that the defendant had no right to recover enhanced rates for wet crops raised on manavari land with the aid of wells dug at their expense. The defendant mainly contended that the sites of the wells, which were poramboke, were given by him free of rent for the digging of the wells, that as such he had contributed to the cost of such wells, that enhanced rates were, therefore, legally claimable by him, and that the tenants had been paying the said enhanced rent for the last 40 years and so could not go behind the said payments. The Court of first instance held that the landlord was not entitled to levy enhanced rates as the wells had been dug at the sole expense of the tenants. On appeal the District Judge concurred with the Head Assistant Collector. The defendant thereupon appealed to the High Court.

Mr. V. C. Seshachariar, with Messrs. B. Sadagopachariar, K. Bhashyam Aiyangar and C. Narasimhachariar, for the Appellant:—The District Judge erred in construing section 13 of the Madras Estates Land Act. That section is not retrospective. Raja Kumara Venkata Perumal v. Ramudu(1). The tenants having paid rents at the rate claimed for the last 40 years, a contract to pay at that rate ought to be presumed. The landlord having given the site of the wells free of charge, he must be deemed to have contributed towards the construction of the wells and so it is quite competent to him to claim an enhanced rate of rent.

Mr. P. Nagabhushanam, for the Respondents:—The wells had been dug at the tenants' sole expense. The landlord is, therefore, not entitled to claim any enhanced rent for the improvements. Consequently there is no consideration for the promise to pay enhanced rate presumable from 40 years' payment. The sites of the wells are so insignificant in value that their free grant, even if true, cannot be adequate as consideration.

JUDGMENT.

S. A. No. 409 of 1912.

NAPIER, J.—The question that arises in this appeal is whether in the circumstances of this case the zemindar is entitled to charge enhanced rates for crops grown with the aid of well water. The District Judge has considered the matter solely with reference to section 13, clause 3, of the Madras Act I of 1908 and has assumed that that section applies to improvements made prior to the Act. It had been decided in Raja Kumara Venkata Perumal v. Ramudu (1) that that clause has no retrospective operation. The further point decided in that case was that a valid contract to pay enhanced rate could be presumed where the rate had been paid for a period of 60 years or so. The reasoning of the District Judge cannot, therefore, be accepted and it has only to be considered whether there was a valid contract in this case, that is to say, whether, although the ryots did in fact dig the wells utilised for irrigating the crops, the landlord did or did not contribute something towards the construction of the wells which would in law amount to a consideration for a contract to pay enhanced rates. It is admitted that the sites occupied by the wells have never been charged with rent and that they are entered in the estate accounts as poramboke. The District Judge takes the view that as there is a term in the patta under which the zemindar is entitled to charge rent for that land, he cannot set up that the abstention to charge rent was the consideration. We cannot accept this view. Undoubtedly a considerable area though made up of small plots has been rendered uncultivable by the construction of a number of wells within it and admittedly if that area had not been set apart for wells, the zemindar would have been entitled to receive rent from any cultivating tenant in respect of it. By handing over that area to the ryots for the construction of wells he has in our opinion contributed to the cost of the wells and such contribution is good consideration for the contract set up by him. It is admitted by the ryots that they have been paying these increased rates for about 40 years; and on the principle enunciated in the case above quoted and based on the judgment of Subrahmania Aiyar, J., in Arumugam Chetti v. Raja Jagaveera Rama Venkateswara Ettappa (2), it would be open to us to presume consideration for the contract. This case is, however, a stronger one, for there is definite evidence of that consideration. We, therefore, hold that the proposed patta is not invalid on that ground. In this view it is not necessary to decide the other point raised, namely, that there is in fact no enhancement, though we may observe that the decision in Arumugam Chetti v. Raja Jagaveera Rama Venkateswara Ettappa (3), relied on, does not seem to us to be applicable to the present case. We, therefore, reverse the decision of the District Judge and hold that the patta tendered is a proper patta. The plaintiffs will pay the costs throughout.

(1) 27 Ind. Cas. 688, 28 M. L. J. 81; (1915) M. W. N. 132; 17 M. L. T. 129.

The decision in this case governs Second Appeal No. 1064 of 1912 and the other cases posted with it.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—I concur.

Appeals allowed.

(2) 28 M. 444; 15 M. L. J. 202.
(3) 8 Ind. Cas 330; 35 M. 134; 9 M. L. T. 76.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 176 OF 1914.

January 12, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier and Mr. Justice Piggott.

POTHI RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammat ISLAM FATEMA AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 27—Restraint of trade—Landlord allowing cattle market to be held on his land in return of toll, whether trading—Agreement not to hold market to sell cattle on particular days, whether void.

A landholder who, in return for market tolls or fees, allows a cattle market to be conducted on his land, is not thereby exercising the trade or business of selling cattle.

Therefore, an agreement between the owners of two neighbouring lands to the effect that a market for sale of cattle shall not be held on the same day on the lands of both of them, is not void under section 27 of the Contract Act.

First appeal from an order of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Bareilly, dated the 1st of September 1914.

The Hon'ble Dr. Tej Bahadur Sapru, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.—The question raised by this appeal is the applicability of the principle laid down in section 27 of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872) to the circumstances of this particular case. It is alleged that the defendants, who are land-holders, had entered into a contract with certain neighbouring land-holders as to the holding of markets on their respective lands. The plaintiffs sued for enforcement of this contract and for damages. The first Court threw out the case on the finding that the agreement was void, in that it was an agreement restraining the defendants from exercising a lawful profession, trade or business, and that consequently it was not necessary to go into any of the other questions raised by the pleadings. The lower Appellate Court has reversed this decision and remanded the case for trial on the merits. The question is whether the owner of land entering into an agreement with the owner of neighbouring land, to the effect that a market for sale of cattle shall not be held on the same day on the lands of both of them, is entering into an agreement which is void under section 27 aforesaid. It seems to us that a landlord who in return for market tolls or fees, allows a cattle market to be conducted on his land is not thereby exercising the trade or business of selling cattle. If he is exercising any business at all, he is exercising the business of a land-holder, and the agreement on his part not to allow his land to be used for some particular purpose on some particular day is not an agreement restraining him from exercising a lawful profession, trade or business. These considerations are sufficient to dispose of this appeal. It is accordingly dismissed.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL 1297 OF 1913.

December 22, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sankaran Nair and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

UDAYAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

A. L. A. R. R. M ARUNACHALA CHETTIAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), ss. 4, 12—Custom not to pay rent for land remaining fallow—Term in patta that no rent is chargeable on lands allowed to lie fallow, whether improper—Tax on palmyras, when payable.

A tenant is bound to pay rent upon every portion of his holding, whether he cultivates it or not, but is subject to any custom which may be proved to exist in particular localities.

Where, therefore, a custom not to charge any rent for the lands which are allowed to lie fallow by the tenants exists, a term in a patta to that effect is not improper.

Nagu Chetti v. Bhaskara Sethupathi, 9 Ind. Cas. 41; 9 M. L. T. 191; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 6; Kadir Mohideen v. Alagappa Chettiar, 12 Ind Cas. 566; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 394, distinguished.

Arunachellam Chettiar v. Muthayanai Thevan, 25 Ind. Cas. 675; 26 M. L. J. 575, followed.

Prima facie, a tenant who pays rent for a land should not be taxed twice over for trees standing on the land unless he derives special benefit from them.

Therefore, a separate tree tax on palmyras should be levied only when they are tapped for toddy, and not when they merely put forth spathes.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Ramnad at Madura, in Appeal Suit No. 897 of 1911, preferred against that of the Court of the Sub-Collector of Ramnad, in Summary Suit No. 879 of 1911.

FACTS.—The suit was by a tenant for the grant of a proper patta by the landlord. The points in dispute were whether the landlord was entitled to levy rent on lands allowed to remain fallow for a season, and whether a tenant was liable to pay tax for palmyra trees standing on land for which rent is being paid and if so, from what period of time, whether from the time they are tapped for toddy or at any previous stage. The Sub-Collector of Ramnad held that a custom existed in the Ramnad zemindari to which the suit lands appertained for tenants occasionally to allow a portion of their holding to remain fallow and for the landlord not to charge rents for such portions and that the landlord was entitled to levy tree tax only from the time the trees were tapped and that till then he was entitled to rent for the land alone. On appeal the District Judge held that though the custom set up was true it was unreasonable, that the tenant was liable if he negligently allowed the land to remain waste and that the tenant was liable to pay tree tax from the time the trees put forth spathes. The tenant appealed to the High Court and the landlord also filed a memorandum of cross-objections.

Mr. A. Sundaram, for the Appellant:—The cases relied upon by the District Judge have no application to the facts of the present case. There is nothing unreasonable in occasionally allowing a portion of a holding to remain fallow. Arunachellam Chettiar v. Muthayanai Thevan (1). The tenant will be bound to pay tax for trees only if he derives any benefit therefrom.

Mr. S. Sundararaja Iyengar, for the Respondents:—Under section 4 of the Madras Estates Land Act the tenant is bound to pay rent on every portion of his holding, whether he cultivates it or not: Nagu Chetti v. Bhaskara Sethupathi (2), Kadir Mohideen v. Alagappa Chettiar (3) and Second Appeal No. 445 of 1912. The tree tax was payable from the time the trees became fit for tapping by putting forth spathes.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff who is a tenant sued for the grant of a proper patta to him by the landlord. He took various objections to the one tendered by the defendant (Exhibit VI). The Sub-Collector modified

(1) 25 Ind. Cas. 675; 26 M. L. J. 575.

(2) 9 Ind. Cas. 41; 9 M. L. T. 191; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 6.

(3) 12 Ind. Cas. 566; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 394.

UDAYAL v. ARUNACHALA CHETTIAR.

its terms in some respects. On appeal, the District Judge reversed that decision with reference to two of the disputed terms. This second appeal and the memorandum of objections relate to them.

The first point for decision is whether waste dry lands included in a tenant's holding are not chargeable with rent. The Sub-Collector, after discussing the evidence in the case, came to the conclusion that it is the custom in the zemindari of Ramnad not to charge any rent for lands which are allowed to lie fallow by the tenant. The District Judge on appeal accepts this finding and says: "The evidence shows that waste has not been charged before:" However, he considered it to be unreasonable that the tenant should be at liberty to allow lands to remain uncultivated and directed the patta to be amended "so as to make it clear that waste should be charged only if due to the ryot's neglect." We are unable to agree with this conclusion. There is nothing unreasonable in a tenant occasionally leaving a certain portion of his holding uncultivated. Prima facie the tenant would be very anxious to cultivate every field included in his patta. It is more to his interest than to that of the landlord to do so. If any portion of his holding remains waste, it must be due to circumstances beyond his control. The defendant's Vakil has not asked us to provide against allowing lands to remain waste for a number of years continuously. That by itself would be evidence of wilful default for which provision, if claimed by the landlord, may have to be made. Such a question does not arise for decision before us. The suggested amendment by the District Judge would lead to a great deal of abuse. It is not possible to predicate accurately what would amount to wilful default or neglect on the part of the ryot; this clause would lead to unnecessary litigation and to the embitterment of feelings between the landlord and the ryot. As regards decided cases, in the case of Nagu Chetti v. Bhaskara Sethupathi (2), relied upon by the District Judge, the question as to whether by the custom of the zemindari the tenant can allow a portion of his holding to remain occasionally uncultivated was not considered. No such custom was apparently set up or found in that case. The other decision relied upon by the District Judge is that of Kadir Mohideen v. Alagappa Chettiar (3). In that case all that was decided was that a clause imposing liability on the tenant to pay rent on waste land if cultivated by him was reasonable. Apparently the waste land was not included in the holding and the provision to the effect that if the tenant encroaches upon neighbouring waste lands of the landlord and cultivates them he should pay tirva, is a very proper provision. On the other hand in Arunachellam Chettiar v. Muthayanai Thevan 1), which related to the Ramnad zemindari, the learned Judges came to the conclusion that there was nothing unreasonable in the custom which gave liberty to the tenant to allow a certain portion of his holding to remain occasionally uncultivated. In Second Appeal No. 445 of 1912, although the decision was with reference to lands in the same zemindari, the learned Judges did not consider any question of usage.

In the argument before us section 4 of the Estates Land Act was relied upon as indicating that the tenant is bound to pay the rent upon every portion of his holding, whether he cultivates it or not. This general provision is subject to any custom that may be proved to exist in particular localities. On the whole our conclusion is that the decision of the Sub-Collector is right and that the District Judge's suggestion to amend the patta should not be upheld.

The second point argued relates to tree tax, i.e., tax on palmyras. In the plaint it was admitted by the tenant that it was usual to pay the tax for the palmyra trees which are tapped for toddy. Having regard to this admission the Sub-Collector came to the conclusion that until a tree is tapped the landlord is only entitled to the rent upon the land on which the tree grows and that he is not entitled to any tree tax. The District Judge on the other hand has come to the conclusion that the moment that a palmyra tree puts forth spathes, it should be taxed. We think this is not correct. Prima facie the tenant who pays rent for the land should not be taxed twice over unless he derives any special benefit from the trees standing on the land. This is the correct view having regard to the provisions of section 12 of the Estates Land Act, which reserves considerable rights to the tenant in the trees growing on his holding.

We must, therefore, reverse the decision of the District Judge on the two points mentioned above and restore that of the Sub-Collector. This disposes of the memorandum of objections as well. Appellant will have his costs in this and in the lower Appellate Court.

Appeal allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 65 OF 1914.

January 22, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir P. C. Banerjee, KT.

WILAYAT ALI KHAN AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

GHANI KHAN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Appeal—Suit filed in Subordinate Judge's Court but heard and decided by Munsif—Jurisdiction of Subordinate Judge to hear appeal.

A suit was filed in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, but was subsequently transferred to the Court of the Munsif who heard and decided it. On appeal the District Judge transferred the case to the Subordinate Judge to hear the appeal:

Held, that the Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear the appeal.

Second appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Farrukhabad, dated the 25th of July 1913.

Dr. S. N. Sen, for the Appellants.

Mr. Gulzari Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The first contention raised in this appeal is that the learned Subordinate Judge who heard the appeal was not competent to do so. The basis of this contention is that the suit when originally filed was filed in the Court of the Subordinate Judge having regard to its valuation. Subsequently the jurisdiction of the Munsif to hear suits of that value was extended and the suit was accordingly transferred to the file of the Munsif. It is admitted that the case was never tried by the Subordinate Judge. An appeal from the decision of the Munsif was presented in the Court of the District Judge who transferred it to the Subordinate Judge, and the learned Subordinate Judge heard the appeal. There can be no doubt that the appeal from the Munsif's decree lay to the Court of the District Judge and that the District Judge was competent to transfer it to the Subordinate Judge. Upon such transfer being made the learned Subordinate Judge had full jurisdiction to hear the appeal. There was nothing to preclude the Subordinate Judge from hearing the appeal and the mere fact that at one time the plaint had been presented in his Court does not take away his jurisdiction to hear the appeal.

The next point urged raises a question of fact which is concluded by the finding of the Court below.

The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs, including in this Court fees on the higher scale

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 889 OF 1914.

January 6, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

SIVAGNANA DESIKA GNANA-SAMBANDA PANDARASANNADHY—PETITIONER

versus

THE HONOURABLE THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL OF MADRAS—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 92—Scheme, suit for framing and for appointment of a committee of supervision, after removal of trustee—Death of trustee—Cause of action, if survives against successor-in-office.

Where, during the pendency of a suit instituted by the Advocate-General against the trustee of certain devastanams for his removal on the ground of 'mismanagement and breach of trust and for the settlement of a scheme and the appointment of a committee of supervision, the defendant died:

Held, that the cause of action survived against the successor-in-office of the deceased defendant and that he was rightly brought on record, inasmuch as the plaint contained averments to the effect that there had been systematic mismanagement of the funds of the trust, that there was no means of checking what was depositedin the hundials, that the servants of the temple were making fortunes out of it, that there was a large surplus income every year which had to be properly employed and that the new defendant, the present trustee, had also contributed to the previous mismanagement in his character of agent of the deceased trustee—facts which would by themselves be sufficient to found a suit for the framing of a scheme.

Per Sesha giri Aiyar, J.—In considering whether the prayer for the settlement of a scheme is only ancillary to the prayer for the removal of the trustee or is the principal relief claimed in the suit, the fact that the person who is said to have contributed to the prior mismanagement has succeeded to the trusteeship is a factor to be taken into account.

When the income of a temple is in excess of its expenditure, the Advocate-General will be well-advised in seeking the aid of the Court for the framing of a scheme for the proper application of the surplus.

In re Campden Charities, 18 Ch. D 310, 50 L. J. Ch. 646; 45 L. T. 152, 30 W. R 496, followed.

The relief by way of settlement of a scheme need not depend upon charges against the trustee-in-office. It is sufficient if mismanagement is averred and it is alleged that a proper scheme is necessary to render the recurrence of the state of affairs impracticable.

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Mayavaram, in Interlocutory Appeal No. 304 of 1914, in Original Suit No. 10 of 1911.

FACTS.—This civil revision petition arose out of a suit instituted by the Advocate-General of Madras in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Mayavaram for the removal of the Pandarasannathi of the Dharmapuram Adhinam from the trusteeship of the devastanams attached to the said adhinam on the ground of mismanagement, for the framing of a scheme for the efficient managment of the said devastanams and for the appointment of a committee of supervision. During the pendency of this suit, the defendant died and his successor in office, the petitioner, was brought on record by the Subordinate Judge in the room of the deceased. Against the order so bringing him on record the petitioner preferred this civil revision petition to the High Court.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar and Nallasivan Pillai, for the Petitioner:—The cause of action did not survive against the present pettioner. The acts of the petitioner as agent could not be charged against him as trustee. The relief regarding the framing of a scheme must depend on charges against the trustee in office and as there are no such charges against the present trustee and as the last incumbent is dead, there is no cause of action as against the present trustee.

Messrs. M. O. Parthasarathi Iyengar and S. Muthi Mudaliar, for the Respondent:—Presence of a large surplus income is by itself sufficient cause of action for a suit to frame a scheme. Here, however, various charges of mismanagement are brought forward and necessity is shown for a scheme: In re Campden Charities (1). Upon the allegations in the plaint the cause of action did survive against the petitioner and he was properly brought on record.

JUDGMENT.

SPENCER, J.—The suit was brought by the Advocate-General under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure against the petitioner's predecessor-in-office and one of the reliefs asked for was the settlement of a scheme for the efficient management of the devastanams and the appointment of a commitee of supervision as a check upon the trustee.

I am satisfied that in making the petitioner a party to the suit the lower Court committed no illegality or material irregularity and that there was no defective exercise of jurisdiction in its order so as to call for our interference in revision. It is further clear from paragaph 3 of the plaintiff's statement of 20th August 1911 and from paragraphs 8, 9, 13 (g), 15, 20 and 22 of the plaint that this suit was not brought solely on account of the personal mismanagement of the petitioner's predecessor.

The petition is dismissed with costs.

SESHAGIRI AIYAR, J.—I agree. Before dealing with the question raised by Mr. T. Rangachariar that the cause of action against the deceased trustee does not survive against his successor-in-office, it has to be noted that certain specific allegations of misfeasance and breach of trust are made in the plaint against the petitioner, while he was acting as agent of the deceased trustee in respect of the suit temple. It may be, as contended for by the learned Vakil, that the petitioner's conduct as agent should not be charged against him as trustee." At the same time, in considering whether the prayer for the settlement of a scheme is only ancillary to the one for the removal of the original defendant or was the principal relief claimed in the suit, the fact that the person who is said to have contributed to the prior mismanagement of the devastanam has now become the trustee, is a factor to be taken into account. Apart from this, I am satisfied that the cause of action as stated in the plaint does survive against the petitioner. In the earlier portion of the plaint there is a general allegation that the funds of the temple have been misappropriated. In paragraph 9, it is stated that since the assumption of trusteeship by the original defendant "the affairs of the devastanam have been drifting rapidly from bad to worse." This statement is intended to show that a general scheme is necessary to stop further malversation of the temple funds. Paragraph 12 says that the temple has a surplus of Rs. 26,000 annually. If the Advocate-General came to Court with this one allegation and asked for the settlement of a scheme for the utilisation of the surplus income, he will be within his rights under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure. In In re Campden Charities (1), the Court of Appeal pointed out that the fact that the surplus income was being applied in a particular manner was not a reason for not framing a proper scheme regarding its appropriation. The same rule must hold good in this country. When the income of a temple is in excess of its expenditure, the Advocate-General will be well advised in seeking the aid of the Court for a scheme for its proper employment. Consequently in so far as the allegation in paragraph 12 of the plaint is concerned, the relief for the settling of a scheme will survive against the successors of the original defendant. The statement in paragraph 13 (g) was supplemented by the plaintiff on the 20th August 1911. This is undoubtedly a part of the plaint. In the subsequent statement, there is a distinct allegation that the specific instance is only "an illustration of the systematic mismanagement which calls for the settlement of the scheme." On this averment, it is impossible to argue that the cause of action does not survive against the petitioner. Paragraph 15 of the plaint is even stronger. It complains of the want of means "for checking what is deposited in the hundials." That can only be done in a properly framed scheme. In another place, the plaint charges that other servants of the temple "are also making fortunes out of the devastanam." This allegation is made with a view to the framing of a scheme. I have, therefore, no hesitation in holding that the cause of action at least in regard to the relief claimed in paragraph 25 (e) survives against the petitioner. The prayer for the removal of the original defendant must be struck out. I cannot accede to the contention of Mr. Rangachariar that the relief by way of setting a scheme must depend upon charges against the trustee-in-office. If the Advocate-General alleged that the affairs of the temple were mismanaged by a deceased trustee and that in order to render the recurrence of such a state of affairs impracticable it is necessary to have a proper scheme, he is entitled under the Code of Civil Procedure to seek the aid of the Court. That I take, in substance, is what he asks the Court to do by bringing the petitioner on record in place of the deceased trustee.

(1) 18 Ch. D. 310; 50 L. J. Ch. 646; 45 L. T. 152; 30 W. R. 496.

I am, therefore, of opinion that the order of the Subordinate Judge is right. The petition must be dismissed with costs.

Petition dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 420 OF 1913.

May 27, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir George Knox, KT.

RAM NARAIN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

BEHARI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), s. 20, cl. (d) —Insolvent, whether can sue to set aside decrees against him.

An insolvent is not prevented by reason of section 20, clause (d), of Act III of 1907, from instituting, defending or continuing any suit or other legal proceeding relating to a decree against him.

Second appeal from a decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Cawnpore, confirming that of the Munsif of that place.

FACTS.—Ram Narain, appellant, obtained an ex parte decree against the respondent, Behari, on the basis of a promissory note on the 16th of August 1910. In execution of the decree, Ram Narain arrested Behari, who, in order to obtain his release, made an application to the District Judge to be declared insolvent. He was declared insolvent on the 19th of November 1910. Subsequently he instituted the present suit to have it declared that the ex parte decree obtained against him was fraudulent and the promissory note on which it had been obtained was a forgery. The defendant pleaded that the promissory note was a genuine transaction and the decree was not tainted with fraud. He, further, pleaded that the plaintiffs having been declared insolvents were not entitled to maintain the suit. The Munsif decided both the points against the defendant and decreed the suit. On appeal the Subordinate Judge confirmed the decision of the Court of first instance and dismissed the appeal. The defendant thereupon appealed to the High Court.

Mr. W. Wallach (with him Messrs. Howard and G. L. Agarwala), for the Appellant.

Mr. R. Malcomson, for the Respondents.

JUDGMEMT.—The plea which has been argued before me is plea No 1. And it is to the effect that the plaintiff having been adjudged an insolvent has no right to maintain the present suit against the appellant. In support of this argument I am referred to section 20, clause (d), of Act III of 1907. I hold that that clause does in no way apply to the matter in dispute in the present case. The matter in dispute is a decree, the property of Ram Narain, and in no way the property of Behari and Dhokal. There is, therefore, nothing to prevent Behari and Dhokal from instituting, defending or continuing any suit, or other legal proceeding, relating to this decree. The plea fails. No other plea was argued before me. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL CIVIL SUIT No. 203 OF 1914.

January 25, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.

G. CUNNIAH CHETTI—PLAINTIFF

versus

C. ELAMANDA CHETTI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS.

Ejectment, suit in—Possession under oral lease for fixed term, if valid as defence.

It is not open to a purchaser of immoveable property to eject a tenant who is in possession under an oral agreement to lease for a fixed term which he can specifically enforce, if the purchaser had notice of the terms of the tenancy and he or his predecessor-in-title had accepted rent from the tenant on such a footing.

Ittappan v. Parangodan Nayar, 21 M. 291; 8 M. L. J. 137, Bibi Jawahir Kumari v. Chatterput Singh, 2 C. L. J 343 and Singheeram Poddar v. Bhagbat Chandar Nundi, 6 Ind. Cas. 632, 11 C. L. J. 543, followed.

Sonat Chandra Ghose v Sham Chand Singh Roy, 14 Ind Cas. 701, 39 C. 663; 16 C. L. J. 71, referred to.

Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Rapireddi, 20 M. 336; 1 M L. T. 153 (F. B); 16 M. L. J. 395, explained.

FACTS.—First defendant was the owner of the suit property, portions of which were held by the defendants Nos. 2 to 4 under oral leases from him. The plaintiff, having purchased the property and having been put into possession of only a portion of the same, sued the vendor and the tenants for recovery of possession of the remaining portion thereof and for mesne profits. The 1st defendant contended that he never agreed to hand over actual physical or vacant possession to the plaintiff, that the latter was entitled to collect the rents from the tenants in occupation and to eject them, they being only tenants-at-will, and that he had no cause of action as against him. Second defendant contended inter alia that in February 1914 the plaintiff's vendor agreed orally to lease the property in question to him for a term of five years, that he was in possession pursuant to the said agreement and that the plaintiff, having had notice of his title under the said arrangement, was not entitled to eject him. Kumaraswami Sastri, J., before whom the case came on the 25th September 1914, raised a preliminary issue whether the plea of the 2nd defendant disclosed any defence. Arguments were heard on this preliminary issue.

Mr. K. Ramachandran, for the Plaintiff:—An oral agreement to sell conveys no interest in the property agreed to be sold. Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi (1). By analogy an oral agreement to lease also conveys no interest in the property agreed to be demised. The suit in ejectment is maintainable and there is no valid defence thereto.

Mr. V. Raghunatha Sastriar, for the 2nd Defendant, relied on Singheeram Poddar v. Bhagbat Chunder Nundi (2), Ittappan v. Parangodan Nayar (3), Bibi Jawahir Kumari v. Chatterput Singh (4) and Sarat Chundro Ghose v. Sham Chand Singh Roy (5), and distinguished the case of Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi (1).

JUDGMENT.—The point raised by the preliminary issue is whether a person who is in possession of a certain property under an oral agreement to lease for a specific term can be ejected at the instance of the purchaser with notice of the oral agreement. I am of opinion that it is not open to such a purchaser to eject a person who is in possession under an agreement to lease which he can specifically enforce. The authorities seem to be clearly in support of this view. Although an agreement to lease, if reduced to writing, requires registration, the law does not prevent an oral agreement to lease properties. It has been held that a valid agreement to lease may be made by a verbal agreement which, though void as a lease, is capable of enforcement as an agreement for a lease. See Singheeram Poddar v. Bhagbat Chunder Nundi (2). It is also clear that a person in possession under an oral contract of lease which may be specifically enforced cannot be ejected by a party to the contract. Ittappan v. Parangodan Nayar (3), Bibi Jawahir Kumari v. Chatterput Singh (4) and Sarat Chandra Ghose v. Shayam Chand Singh Roy (5) are the authorities directly in point.

It is argued for the plaintiff that an agreement to lease does not convey any interest in immoveable property and that consequently on the analogy of Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi (1), it can afford no defence to a suit in ejectment by one having a legal title. But Kurri Veerareddi v Kurri Bapireddi (1) proceeds on section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, which contains an express provision that a contract to sell does not convey any interest in immoveable property. There is no such clause in the section relating to leases and having regard to section 91 of the Trusts Act which enacts that "Where a person acquires property with notice that another person has entered into an existing contract affecting that property, of which specific performance could be enforced, the former must hold the property for the benefit of the latter to the extent necessary to give effect to the contract", I do not think I can hold that, where there is no specific enactment providing that such an agreement does not convey any interest in the property as is provided in section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, the same principle should be applied to such cases. I do not think it necessary to extend the scope of the decision in Kurri Veerareddi v. Kurri Bapireddi (1) beyond the cases covered by section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act. To do so would be to enable the plaintiff to take advantage of his own wrong and breach of contract, and it is unnecessary to extend those provisions unless there is some specific legal enactment.

Following Ittappan v. Parangodan Nayar (3), Bibi Jawahir Kumari v. Chatterput Singh (4) and Singheeram Poddar v. Bhagbat Chunder Nundi (2), I am of opinion that it is open to the defendant to resist a suit in ejectment if he can prove that there was an oral contract to lease for a fixed term, that he was in possession in pursuance of that contract and that the plaintiff or his predecessor-in-title accepted rent from him on such footing. I find the preliminary issue against the plaintiff and frame the following additional issues:—

* * *

The suit again came on for final hearing before Kumaraswami Sastri, J., on the 25th January 1915 and was decreed with costs, the Judge holding that the contract set up by the 2nd defendant was not proved.

Suit decreed.

(1) 29 M. 336, 1 M. L. T. 153 (F. B.); 16 M. L. J. 395.
(2) 6 Ind Cas. 632; 11 C. L. J. 543.
(3) 21 M. 291, 8 M. L. J. 187.
(4) 2 C. L. J. 343.
(5) 14 Ind. Cas. 701, 39 C. 663; 16 C. L. J. 71.

EBRAHIM AHMED MEHTER v. S. ABDUL HUQ.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.
FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 12 OF 1913.
February 8, 1915.

Present:—Sir Charles Fox, KT., Chief Judge, and Mr. Justice Hartnoll.

EBRAHIM AHMED MEHTER—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus
S. ABDUL HUQ—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch I, Art. 85—"Mutual, open and current account," meaning of—Settled account, opening of.

For an account to be mutual, it is necessary not only that one of the parties has received money and paid on account of the other, but that each of the two parties has received and paid on the other's account: each party should be able to say to the other "I have an account against you."

Phillips v. Phillips, (1852) 9 Hare 471; 68 E. R. 596; Padwick v. Hurst, (1854) 18 Beav. 575; 52 E. R. 225; 23 L. J. Ch. 667; 18 Jur. 763; 104 R. R. 536; Hajee Syad Mahomed v. Musammat Ashufoonissa, 5 C. 759; 6 C. L. R. 112; Ram. Pershad v. Harbans Singh, 6 C. L. J. 158, referred to and followed.

Where an account has been settled up to a certain date, it lies on the party desiring to re-open that account to aver some specific error in the account and to prove it.

Parkinson v. Hanbury, (1867) 2 H. L. 1 at pp. 11, 19; 36 L. J. Ch. 292; 16 L. T. 243; 15 W. R. 642, referred to.

Mr. J. R. Das, for the Appellant.

Mr. N. N. Burjorji, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Fox, C. J.—The suit from the decree in which this appeal is made was instituted by Mohamed Salay Naikwara on the 21st August 1909 against the appellant, Ebrahim Ahmed Mehter, son and executor of Ahmed Kassim Ariff, who died on the 2nd June 1907. The respondent is the assignee of the decree in the suit. The plaintiff claimed Rs. 74,914-6-10 as being due on an agency account between him and Ariff, in the alternative he prayed for the account to be taken and for a decree for the amount found owing thereon. The plaint stated that the cause of action arose on the 1st July 1907 when the agency ceased. This date is admittedly wrong because the agency ceased on the 2nd June 1907 when Ariff died. Sums were advanced to the defendant executor for funeral expenses of the deceased after his death, and the plaintiff collected some rents of houses which had belonged to him. These should have gone into a separate account against the executor, and were not properly included in the account of Ariff.

In any case all sums received and paid after the death of Ariff should have been the subject of a separate suit and could not be allowed for in the present suit.

Further, the date of the death of Ariff affords no starting point for a limitation period under any article in the first Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908.

If Article 85 of the first Schedule does no apply, it has not been contended that the plaintiff can recover amounts in respect of matters except such as occurred between the 21st August 1906 and the 21st August 1909 i.e. the period of three years before the suit was filed. No detailed statement is before us of the amounts of receipts and payments of the plaintiff between the 21st August 1906 and the 2nd June 1907, after which interest on the amount then due could be the only charge, but it may be taken that the amounts do not exceed the sum of Rs. 16,941-2-6, which the defendant admitted in his written statement to be due and for which a decree was given on the 1st August 1910. This decree was made by consent, and by it it was also ordered that an account be taken of the plaintiff's agency. The Rs. 16,941-2-6 was paid in September 1910. The taking of the account extended over a very long time, notwithstanding the fact that the Commissioner knew the language in which the accounts are written and translation of them was not necessary, he submitted his report on the 1st May 1912. The proceedings might possibly have been very much shortened and large expense might have been saved if before the taking of the account had commenced, allegations in the plaint which amounted to statements that the account between the plaintiff and Ariff had been settled between them year by year had been gone into and decided. No account signed by Ariff could be produced; consequently Article 64 could not be relied on. The plaintiff, however, was in a position to show that Ariff had from time to time examined his accounts and had acknowledged them to be correct. If the Court had held that the account had been settled up to the end of 1904, it would have laid on the defendant to aver some specific error in the account upto that time to entitle him to have the account before that time opened up [see Parkinson v. Hanbury (1). On the taking of the account the defendant insisted on every item being proved strictly, and contended, and still contends in appeal that no items should be allowed as proved which were not supported by vouchers. On the plaintiff's evidence before the Commissioner I am of opinion that his accounts even up to the end of 1906 were agreed to as being correct, and the defendant was not entitled to have it before that time vouched for, and consequently that this objection on appeal is of no force except as regards items between the 1st January and the 2nd June 1907. It does not seem necessary to enter into whether such last mentioned items have been proved or not.

The substantial ground of appeal was that the claim was barred by limitation. The plaint was not framed on the basis of the suit being one "for the balance due on a mutual, open and current account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties," nor, until the further hearing of this appeal, was there anything before the Court to show which was the last item in the account which was admitted or proved. In going through the case after the first argument of the appeal, I found that the account in English which had been referred to in the argument was on the face of it merely a synopsis, and that it could not be a current account or a translation of anything entered in the plaintiff's books. The Advocate for the respondent was consequently asked to have sufficient of the plaintiff's books, which had been before the Commissioner, translated to show what he relied on as proving that there was a mutual, open and current account, and the item he relied on as the last item admitted or proved. This has been done, and I am satisfied that the plaintiff kept regular books of account in the Guzerati language; and that he all along kept a current account of all transactions with or done on behalf of Ariff, and that such account was still open when Ariff died. An item of Rs. 32 entered in his cash book on the 22nd May 1907 as a debit against Ariff for sundry small repairs to his houses or an item of Rs. 504 credited to him on the 1st June 1907 is the last item previous to his death entered in the cash book and carried to his ledger account. Even if the item of Rs. 32 was not strictly proved, the item of Rs. 504 is not disputed, and consequenity may be held to be admitted.

The question, however, is whether the account was a "mutual account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties" within the meaning of the Article relied on.

The meaning of the Article and of Articles in previous Indian Limitation Acts dealing with mutual accounts has been the subject of much discussion in the Indian High Courts, and we have been referred to all the reported decisions. The views expressed are not unanimous; the application of the Article to a particular case must be often a matter of difficulty. In regard to the words "where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties," Sir Charles Sargent in Narrandas Hemraj v. Vissandas Hemraj (2) said that literally construed, they would confine the clause to those cases only in which both parties have, in the course of their dealings, made actual demands on one another, but he thought that it could not have been intended to restrict it to such cases. The words "mutual account," however, have given rise to the greatest difficulty.

It appears to me that light upon the meaning of the Article is to be sought from the provisions of previous Indian Acts dealing with the subject. The first was Act XIV of 1859, section VIII of which enacted that "in suits for balances of accounts current between merchants and traders who have had mutual dealings, the cause of action shall be deemed to have arisen at, and the period of limitation shall be computed from, the close of the year in the accounts of which there is the last item admitted or proved indicating the continuance of mutual dealings; such year to be reckoned in the accounts." It will be observed that this provision dealt with accounts current between merchants and traders only. In Hirada Basappa v. Gadigi Muddapa (3), Holloway, C. J., commented upon a provision having been adopted in India when a similar provision in an old English Statute which had been found mischievous had been repealed, by the 9th section of the Merchantile Law Amendment Act 1856, a few years previous to the Indian Act. Act IX of 1871 repealed in India the old English Statute of 21 James the First, Chapter 16, but Article 87 of the second Schedule again made provision for one kind of open and current account in the following words: "37: For the balance due on a mutual open and current account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties," the period of limitation was made three years from the time of the last item admitted or proved in the account.

(1) (1867) 2 H. L. 1 at pp. 11, 19; 36 L. J. Ch. 292; 16 L. T. 243; 15 W. R. 642.

(2) 6 B. 134.

(3) 6 M. H. C. R. 142.

The provision in the Act of 1859 seems to clearly point to cases in which two merchants or traders, who are all supposed to keep accounts, had accounts against one another. The Act of 1871 refers to one account only which must be that of the plaintiff who sues, but this does not necessarily exclude the view that the Article applied only to cases in which each party has kept an account against the other. This Act extended a provision, which had previously applied to accounts between merchants and traders, to accounts between every description of persons, but the phraseology which has given rise to so much discussion was adopted. The source of the phraseology must, I think, have been the English Law; the words "mutual" and "reciprocal demands" are those used by Mr. Justice Denison in a case referred to in Sergeant Williams' Notes, to the old case of Webber v. Tivill (4). * * * *

The fact that there were mutual accounts between the parties was one of the grounds on which Chancery Courts exercised their equitable jurisdiction in regard to decrees for accounts to be taken, and in connection with the exercise of this jurisdiction it had to be decided what mutual accounts were. In Phillips v. Phillips (5), Vice-Chancellor Sir G. J. Turner said: "I understand a mutual account to mean, not merely where one of two parties has received money and paid it on account of the other, but where each of two parties has received and paid on the other's account."

In Padwick v. Hurst (6), a case not unlike the present case, the Master of the Rolls, Sir John Romilly, said: "Mutual accounts appear to me to be accurately defined by Sir George Turner in Phillips v. Phillips (5). They are not constituted by a person receiving moneys for and paying and lending moneys to his principal, or where the accounts simply consist in receipts and payments by the agent on behalf of and to the principal. If the principal were also on his side, paying moneys on behalf of the agent, so that there would be accounts to be taken on both sides, then there would be cross-demands or a case of mutual accounts, but the fact relied on, that money was lent by the plaintiff to the defendant (in addition to the plaintiff having done various business for him) does not constitute any case of mutual accounts. There is no allegation in this bill (in equity) that the defendant principal transacted any business for the plaintiff (agent) or paid any sums of money on his account. If the case alleged had been that besides money being paid to the defendant, the defendant had paid various sums of money on behalf of the plaintiff, for which the latter was accountable to the defendant, then the case of cross-payments and of mutual accounts would have arisen, but this is not alleged on the face of this bill."

These decisions show very clearly what sort of accounts were considered to be "mutual accounts" in English Law: I cannot find that the correctness of the decisions has ever been questioned in the English Courts. The remarks of Pontifex, J., in Hajee Syud Mahomed v. Musammat Ashrufoonissa (7), "unless each party could have said to the other 'I have an account against you,' I do not see how these could be 'mutual accounts,'" appear to me to be in accord with these decisions, and to have been intended to express what they express. Sir Ashutosh Mookerjee's judgment in Ram Pershad v. Harbans Singh (8) is founded on them.

I would hold that for an account to be "mutual" it must come within the definition given by Vice-Chancellor Turner in (4) (1863) 2 Wms. Saund 124; 85 E. R. 843 at p. 846.

(5) (1852) 9 Hare 471 at p. 473; 68 E. R. 596.

(6) (1854) 18 Beav. 575; 52 E. R. 225; 23 L. J. Ch. 857, 18 Jur. 763; 104 R. R. 536.

(7) 5 C. 759, 6 C. L. R. 112.

(8) 6 C. L. J. 168.

Phillips v. Phillips (5). In the present case I cannot find that there was any mutual account, or that the plaintiff's was a mutual account. He was an agent who collected the rents of his principal's houses, attended to and paid the expenses in connection with them, advanced him money, looked after business in which he was interested, and in fact he appears to have done all business matters for Ariff, but I cannot find that Ariff ever did anything for the plaintiff; it is not alleged that he transacted any business for him or that he paid any sums on his account. Ariff was not then in a position to say to the plaintiff "I have an account against you to be set off against your account against me."

For these reasons I am of opinion that Article 85 of the first division of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act does not apply to the account on which the plaintiff sued, and consequently that the appeal must be allowed on the 1st ground of appeal.

In his written statement the defendant executor admits that he is executor of his father, or in other words that his father's estate was liable for Rs. 16,941-2-6, consequently the part of the decree dated the 15th July 1910 which ordered him to pay the plaintiff that amount should stand, but the rest of that decree and the decree of the 30th August 1912 should, in my opinion, be set aside.

The appellant asks for his costs of the suit. I do not think he should be allowed them; he did not pay the Rs. 16,941-2-6 which he admitted that his father's estate owed the plaintiff, and the latter was forced to bring a suit. The large expense incurred in the suit was chiefly due to the line he took in requiring every item in the plaintiff's account to be strictly proved. I would make no order as to the costs of the suit.

The appellant is, I think, entitled to receive from the respondent his costs of the appeal to be calculated on the difference between Rs. 16,941-2-6 and Rs. 67,912-14-2.

HARTNOLL, J.—I concur.

Decree modified.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 413 OF 1913.

August 28, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

MAJETI NAGARATNAM—DEFENDANT—PETITIONER

versus

PACHIGOLLA RAMAYYA AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. IX, r. 13 and O. XVII, r. 3, scope of—Court's direction to be present—Defendant's default and Pleader's representation of "no instructions," effect of—Affidavit uncontradicted, reliability of.

A decree passed on defendant's default of appearance inspite of the Court's direction to appear and after his Pleader's representation that he had no instructions, amounts to an ex parte decree within the meaning of Order IX, rule 13, of the Civil Procedure Code.

Chandramathi Ammal v. Narayanaswami Iyer, 5 Ind. Cas. 23; 9 M. L. J. 700; 7 M. L. T. 369; 33 M. 241, followed.

Order XVII, rule 3, Civil Procedure Code, applies only to cases of a party's failure to do an act for which time had been granted on his application.

An affidavit uncontradicted is prima facie reliable.

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kistna at Ellore, in Miscellaneous Petition No. 3662 of 1912 in Small Cause Suit No. 2073 of 1911.

FACTS.—The lower Court directed the defendant to be present on a particular date, to which the case was adjourned for final hearing. On that date the defendant was not present, but his Pleader prayed for an adjournment and on the Court refusing the same represented he had no instructions. The Court then examined a witness for the plaintiff and passed a decree. Thereupon the defendant moved the Court by petition to set aside the decree and filed an affidavit stating that on adjournment being refused his Vakil had represented to the Court that he had no instructions. The lower Court passed an order refusing to set aside the deree, holding that there was a decision on the merits and that the case was governed by Order XVII, rule 3, of the Civil Procedure Code. The defendant then filed this civil revision petition against the said order.

Mr. M. Purushotham Naidu, for the Petitioner:—The defendant must be held to have been ex parte as he was not present and his Pleader said he had no instructions. See Chandramathi Ammal v. Narayanasami Iyer (1).

Mr. P. Nagabhushanam, for the Respondents :—The Court directed the defendant to be present for being examined on the adjourned date. The defendant failed to do so. Order XVII, rule 3, applied to the case.

JUDGMENT.—In this case the final hearing was adjourned to the 30th September 1912 and the Subordinate Judge directed that the defendant should be present to be examined on that date. When the case came on to be heard his Pleader, according to the Subordinate Judge, represented that he wanted an adjournment and that he was not prepared to go on with the examination of witnesses.

The affidavit filed in the lower Court by the party contains this averment, namely, "As your Court did not grant an adjournment, my Vakil said that he had no instructions to proceed with the case."

This was uncontradicted and I must take it that it correctly states the facts. The Subordinate Judge, thereupon, proceeded to dispose of the suit by examining one of the witnesses for the plaintiff. The defendant applied to set aside that decree on the ground that he must be deemed to have been ex parte at the adjourned hearing and that Order IX, rule 13, Civil Procedure Code, applied to this case.

The Subordinate Judge is of opinion that as he disposed of the case on the merits, the proper rule applicable is rule 3, Order XVII. I cannot agree with this conclusion. Order XVII, rule 3, only applies where, on the application of one of the parties, the Judge directs a particular act to be done on the adjourned hearing and the party is unable to perform that act. In this case, as I have already mentioned, the Judge directed the defendant to appear for examination before he gave judgment in the case, Rule 2, Order XVII, applies to this case.

The question for consideration under that rule is whether the defendant can be regarded as having been ex parte because his Pleader intimated to the Court that he had no instructions to go on with the hearing. Having regard to the recent judgment of their Lordships Justice Wallis and Justice Krishnaswamy Iyer in Chandramathi Ammal v. Narayanasami Iyer (1), I must hold that the defendant must be deemed to have been ex parte on the adjourned date and that the Subordinate Judge was bound to proceed to dispose of the application under Order IX. The intimation by the Pleader that he had no instructions, coupled with the affidavit filed by his client, must be read as meaning that he had only instructions to apply for adjournment and that he was not prepared to conduct the case. Under these circumstances it must be taken that neither the Pleader nor the party appeared.

The Subordinate Judge has not considered the question whether on the affidavit a proper explanation has been given for non-appearance on the adjourned date. He will do this now. I reverse his order and direct him to take the application on his file and dispose of it according to law. Costs to abide.

Petition allowed.

(1) 5 Ind. Cas. 23; 33 M. 241; 19 M. L. J. 760. 7 M. L. T. 309.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 727 TO 733 OF 1912.

January 28, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice N. Chatterjea and Mr. Justice Greaves.

PRAN KRISHNA SAHA AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

TRAILAKHYA NATH CHOWDHURY AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 106, suit under—Question of title, whether determined in suit under s. 106—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

A person who is not in possession of land which is claimed as rent-free at the date of the Record of Rights, cannot have the mere question of his title to hold the land rent-free tried in a suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), nor can he obtain possession of the land in a suit under that section.

Nilmoni Kumar v. Kedar Nath Ghosh, 20 Ind. Cas. 151; 17 C. W. N. 750, referred to.

Where, however, the plaintiff has a title and his claim is not barred by limitation he is entitled to possession, but he cannot get all the reliefs in a suit under section 106, whereas he can get a complete remedy by a suit in the Civil Court.

PRAN KRISHNA SAHA v. TRAILAKHYANATH CHOWDHURY.

Second civil appeals from the decisions of the District Judge, Pabna, dated the 14th September 1911, confirming that of the Assistant Settlement Officer, Pabna, dated the 31st March 1911.

In No. 727

Babus Jogesh Chandra Roy and Upendra Lal Roy, for the Appellants.

Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitra and Babu Purno Chandra Roy, for the Respondents.

In No. 728

Babu Jogendra Chandra Dutta, for the Appellants.

Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitra and Babu Purno Chandra Roy, for the Respondents.

In No. 729 to 731.

Babu Jogendra Chandra Dutta, for the Appellants.

Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitra, for the Respondents.

In Nos. 732 and 733.

Babu Jogendra Chandra Dutta, for the Appellants.

Babu Jnanendra Nath Sarkar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

In No. 727 of 1912.

This appeal arises out of a suit instituted under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It appears that in the Record of Rights prepared under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the land in suit was entered as the mal land of the patnidar defendants and as constituting the holding of the other defendants under the former. The plaintiffs thereupon instituted this suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for a declaration that the land formed the rent-free (brohmatter) tenure of the plaintiff No. 1, under whom the other plaintiffs held as tenants, and for correction of the entry in the Record of Rights accordingly. The Courts below have found in favour of the plaintiffs and the defendants have appealed to this Court.

It is contended on behalf of the appellants that the Revenue Officer in deciding disputes in suits under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is confined to a consideration of the question of possession alone, and cannot try any question of title, and that the plaintiffs having been found to have been out of possession at the date of the final publication of the Record of Rights, and also at the date of the suit, the suit ought to have been dismissed. The appellants rely on the cases of Padmalav v. Lukmi Rani (1), Kali Sundari Debya v. Girija Sankar Sanyal (2) and Ram Chandra v. Nanda Nandananandi Deb (3) in support of their contention.

It is contended on behalf of the respondents, that these cases were between rival proprietors, and are, therefore, distinguishable. The reason why in a case between rival proprietors, the Court is confined to a consideration of the question of possession, as was pointed out by Coxe, J., in Mohunt Padmalav v. Lukmi Rani (1), is that the khewat recording proprietary interests is drawn up with reference to the registers kept by the Collector under the Land Registration Act, which are prepared according to possession and possession alone, and have no concern with title unaccompanied by possession, and in that very case it was observed by the learned Judge that in a suit between tenant and tenant, or between a landlord and tenant, questions other than that of possession may legitimately arise.

The present case is not between rival proprietors. The defendants (or some of them) are patnidars and durpatnidars of the mouza in which the lands are situated, and the plaintiff No. 1 claims to hold the lands in the mouza in rent-free right derived from the zemindars under whom the defendants hold the mouza in patni and durpatni. The cases, therefore, relating to rival proprietors may be distinguished from the present case.

The learned Pleader for the respondents contends that the case comes under clause (j) of section 102 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, under which the Revenue Officer may, if the land is claimed to be held rent-free, record "whether or not rent is actually paid, and if not paid, whether or not the occupant is entitled to hold the land without payment of rent, and if so, entitled under what authority," and that under section 106 the Revenue Officer may decide a dispute

(1) 12 C. W. N. 8.
(2) 11 Ind. Cas. 184; 15 C. W. N. 974.
(3) 20 Ind. Cas. 298; 18 C. W. N. 988; 19 C. L. J. 197.

regarding any entry which a Revenue Officer has made in, or any omission which the said officer has made from, the record when such dispute is (among other matters) as to whether land held rent-free is properly so held or "as to any other matter."

The words "entitled to hold" in section 102, clause (j), indicate that the question of title may be gone into, but then the words in section 06 "as to whether land held rent-free is properly so held" and those in section 102, clause (j), "if the land is claimed to be held rent-free," taken with the other words, in that section viz., whether or not the occupant is entitled to hold the land without payment of rent, go to show that the land must be in the occupation of the person who claims to hold it rent-free at the time the Record of Rights is made and published. It is found that the plaintiffs were dispossessed before the Settlement proceedings were commenced. That being so, the plaintiffs were not the occupant of the land. The words "or as to any other matter" in section 106 are no doubt very comprehensive, but it seems to us that they must have reference to the matters indicated in section 102, and that section 106, in so far as it relates to the decision of disputes with respect to land claimed to be held rent-free, contemplates a suit by a person who is in possession of land, which he claims to hold rent-fee, to have an entry or omission in the record with respect to it corrected.

We are of opinion that a person who is not in possession of land which is claimed as rent-free at the date of the Record of Rights, cannot have the mere question of his title to hold the land rent-free tried in a suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Moreover, the plaintiffs were admittedly out of possession at the date of the suit under section 106. They cannot obtain possession of lands in a suit under section 106 [See Nilmoni Kumar v. Kedar Nath Ghosh, (4)] and they do not claim possession in the suit, though a declaration has been made that they are entitled to get possession. It is conceded that that portion of the order cannot stand, but it is contended that they are entitled to have the entry as to mal land corrected in this suit, and that they may obtain possession by a suit in the Civil Court. If, however, the plaintiffs have a title and their claim is not barred by limitation, as found by the Courts below, they are entitled to possession. But they cannot get all the reliefs in a suit under section 106, whereas they can get a complete remedy by a suit in the Civil Court.

The appeal is, therefore, allowed, but having regard to the fact that the ground upon which the appeal succeeds was not specifically taken in the Courts below, we direct that each party will bear his own costs in all the Court.

This judgment will govern Appeals Nos 728, 729 to 731, 732 and 733 of 1912.

Appeals allowed.

(4) 20 Ind. Cas. 151; 17 C. W. N. 750.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 9 OF 1914.

February 12, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Twomey.

MAUNG THA—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

SHWE ZAN—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Revision—Material irregularity in assessing damages—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 74, disregarding provisions of.

To disregard the provisions of section 74 of the Indian Contract Act in assessing the damages is a material irregularity within the meaning of section 115, Civil Procedure Code.

Mr. Hancock, for the Applicant.

Mr. Lambert (Senior), for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case the plaintiff claimed Rs. 400 as compensation for the damage suffered by his sailing boat which the defendant hired. The Township Court found against the plaintiff, but the District Court on appeal decided that there was an agreement by the defendant to pay Rs. 400 if the boat was "wrecked," that owing to the carelessness and cowardice of the defendant the boat was driven on to the rocks and suffered serious damage, and that the defendant was liable to pay Rs. 400, the sum agreed upon.

No second appeal lies, but the plaintiff's appeal was admitted as an application for revision. His Counsel abandons the grounds set out in paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 (which are, 1*st*, that there was no contract, 2*nd*, that there was no bailment and 3*rd*, that the accident was not due to the plaintiff's negligence). It is quite clear that these grounds are unsustainable. There remains the 4th paragraph, in which it is urged that the damages awarded are excessive.

The finding of the District Court as to the terms of the bailment cannot be disputed and I see no reason to dissent from it. A sum of Rs. 400 was agreed upon as damages in case the boat was "destroyed," (Pyet Si). But the boat was not destroyed. She was badly holed by the rocks, but was patched up and was brought into port. She is capable of repair. In these circumstances the plaintiff is clearly not entitled to the amount stipulated, namely, Rs. 400, the full value of the boat. He can only get reasonable compensation under section 74, Contract Act. Even if the agreement was that, however slight the damage, the hirer should pay Rs. 400, such a stipulation would be by way of penalty and would be construed by the Court only as fixing a maximum amount, and the Court would have to decide what would be reasonable compensation in the circumstances. There is evidence that the boat was valued at Rs. 400 when hired, and that in her damaged condition she was worth only Rs. 100. Looking to the statements of the witnesses on both sides as to the serious extent of the injuries suffered by the boat, I think the estimate of Rs. 100 as her value at the end of the trip is probably correct.

It must be held that the learned Judge of the District Court acted with material irregularity in disregarding the provisions of section 74, Contract Act. The decree is altered, so as to allow a sum of Rs. 300 only as damages with costs on that amount in all Courts.

Decree modified.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 864 OF 1913.

November 24, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Hannay.

AMRITHESWARA PANDITHAR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

MURUGAPPA CHETTIAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu temple—Muraikar or turn archaka and miras archaka, rights of, to perform new pujas—Navavarana puja, what is—Trustee, right of, to have new pujas and archanas performed by miras archaka.

Trustees of Hindu temples will be acting contrary to their duty if they refuse to accept voluntary contributions offered by devotees for the performance of new pujas and festivals, provided they are not inconsistent with the object of the institution and the necessary funds are forthcoming from the devotees.

Elayalvar Reddiar v. Namberumal Chettiar, 23 M. 296; 10 M. L. J. 86, followed.

Non-muraikar (non-turn-holder) archakas are entitled to perform for their clients special acts of worship, such as navavarana puja, without prejudice to the mamool worship being performed during the usual hours by the muraikars or the turn-holders.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—Archana is not distinct from puja and is a portion of it; the latter is a general term meaning ceremonial worship, the former term being applied to the placing of pure leaves or flowers on the idol during the course of recitation of the names of the god or goddess, as the case may be. Archanam is connected more with vocal respect and praise and pujanam with mental attitude.

Navavarana puja is one in which the saktis of the five ordinary aspects of the god (Brahma, Vishnu, Rudra, Iswara and Sadasiva) and the four higher aspects (Bindu, Nadda, Sakti and Sira) are worshipped.

Second appeal against the decree of the Distict Court of Trichinopoly, in Appeal Suit No. 123 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Srirangam in Original Suit No. 452 of 1910.

FACTS.—Plaintiffs and defendants Nos. 3 and 4 are the miras archakas of the Akhilandeswari temple at Tiruvanaikaval, near Trichinopoly, of which the 1st and 2nd defendants are the trustees. The plaintiffs, alleging that during the navarathri festival, when it was their turn to perform all the pujas in the temple and enjoy the emoluments thereof, 1st and 2nd defendants had, at the instance of the 5th defendant, a devotee, and contrary to mamool, introduced a new puja, called navavarana puja, and had the same performed by defendants No. 3 and 4, that the said puja was opposed to the Shastras and to the exercise of the plaintiffs' rights and that it was provocative of disturbance, sued for a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the plaintiffs' right to perform the puja and from introducing the new puja or in the alternative restraining the defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 5 from having the said puja performed by defendants Nos. 3 and 4. The District Judge held that defendants Nos. 3 and 4 might be employed by the 5th defendant to perform navavarana archana, but not navavarana puja, and restrained the defendants from interfering with the performance of the mamool puja by the plaintiffs during the navarathri festival from uchikala puja to ardhajama puja and from holding possession of the keys of the sannidhi doors and from performing the navavarana puja as distinct from navavarana archana. The plaintiffs appealed to the High Court against so much of the decree as refused them the further reliefs sought.

AMRITHESWAR PANDITHAR v. MURUGAPPA CHETTIAR.

Mr. V. Visvanatha Sastri, for the Appellants:- The plaintiffs as turn-holders are entitled to perfrom every kind of puja and archana during the nine days of the navarathri festival and to receive the emoluments thereof. The trustees are not entitled to depute defendants Nos. 3 and 4 to perform any puja during that period so as to interfere with the exercise of the plaintiffs' rights. Further, the navavarana puja is unauthorised by the Shastras and is an innovation which ought not to be permitted as it is likely to desecrate the deity and create a disturbance.

Messrs. T. Rangaramanujachariar and N. Rajagopalchariar, for the Respondents:—It is quite competent to the trustees to have non-mamool puja and archanas performed by any miras archaka, the right of the turn-holders being only confined to the performance of the mamool pujas. Navavarana puja is quite Shastraic and a trustee cannot with impunity refuse to accept voluntary contributions for perfomance of pujas, provided such pujas are not repugnant to the usages of the institution.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The plaintiffs are the appellants. They are some of the archakas in the famous Siva Temple in Tiruvanaikaval near Trichinopoly. They brought this suit against the trustees of the temple (defendants Nos. 1 and 2) and against two other archakas who had been employed to perform a special puja, called navavarana puja, during the nine days of the navarathri festival by a rich devotee, the 5th defendant. The plaintiffs' contentions are: (1) during those nine days it is the plaintiffs' turn to perform all the pujas in the temple; and (2) this new navavarana puja has not been in existence from time immemorial, is opposed to the Shastras, is provocative of disturbance and is directly opposed to the plaintiffs' right (See paragraph 7 of the plaint).

On these allegations, they sued for a permanent injunction to issue to the defendants restraining them from interfering with the pujas which the plaintiffs should perform, restraining the defendants from performing the new puja and in case the Court should hold that the preformance of the navavarana puja is not illegal, restraining the defendants from preventing the plaintiffs' performing the puja and from receiving the incomes and honours from the defendants Nos. 1, 2 and 5, who should be further prevented from getting the puja done through the defendants Nos. 3 and 4.

The learned District Judge in his judgment divided the navavarana puja into two parts, puja and archana. Then he held that the defendants Nos. 3 and 4 might be employed by the 5th defendant to perform the archana, but cannot be allowed to perform the puja. He then gave a decree to the plaintiffs for the following reliefs:—

(1) An injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the performance by the plaintiffs, during the navarathri, of the mamool pujas in Akhilandeswari temple from uchikala puja to ardhajama puja and the retention by them of the keys of the sannidhi doors;

(2) an injunction restraining the defendants from performing the navavarana puja during the navarathri festival as described in the Agama Book, Exhibit III, but the defendants to be entitled to perform what is described as the navavarana archana in the last sentence of Exhibit III, namely, the mere recitation of the names of goddess, offering of food, perfumes, lights, neeranjana (mangalaharathi) and ringing of bell.

The plaintiffs are not satisfied with the injunction granted in the above terms and they want that even as regards what is called the navavarana archanai, the defendants Nos. 3 and 4 should not be employed by the 5th defendant to perform this archanai and that it is only the plaintiffs who could be deputed by the 5th defendant to perform the archanai.

There are 16 grounds mentioned in the memorandum of second appeal, but the arguments were confined to two grounds, those grounds being the 3rd and 5th which are as follows:—

"(3) Because it being admitted that this navavarana puja or archanai, whatever view be taken of its nature, is not an old and mamool-conducted form of worship, but is a new introduction into the suit temple, the Courts below ought to have granted the injunction sought for."

"(4) * * * *

"(5) Because in any case the admission of the Vakil, contrary to the evidence and without instructions from the plaintiffs, on a point of ritualistic law in a particular institution is not binding upon the plaintiffs and the admission, even so far as it goes, will not authorise the introduction of all new pujas and archanas into the temple."

I must unhesitatingly reject the contention put forward in the 3rd ground. Sir S. Subrahmania Aiyar, J., said in the case of Elayalvar Reddiar v. Namberumal Chettiar (1) that voluntary contributions are usually offered for performing new pujas or new festivals by rich devotees to famous temples and that provided the festivals and worships are not inconsistent with the object of the institution, the trustees would act in contravention of their duty if they refused to celebrate these new festivals or to have these new pujas performed, provided the requisite funds were forthcoming from the devotees. It is in fact part of the trustees' functions to make the institutions richer and to promote the interests of public worship by accepting such offers of wealthy devotees. It is idle to contend that the institution of a sacred puja like the navavarana puja, in which not only sakthis of the five ordinary aspects of God, (Brahma, Vishnu, Rudra, Eswara and Sadasiva) are worshipped, but even the four higher aspects (Bindu, Nada, Sakti and Siva), is a worship which will cause pujalopam or loss of spiritual benefit in the temple, as previously stated by the plaintiffs in their plaint. As regards the 5th contention in the memorandum of appeal, apart from any admission of the Vakil, the evidence is clear that non-muraikars are entitled to perform for their clients special acts of worship without prejudice to the mamool worship being performed during the usual hours by the muraikars. There is, therefore, nothing in the 5th ground.

(1) 23 M. 298; 10 M. L. J. 86.

Speaking for myself, I wish to guard myself from being understood as agreeing with the learned District Judge that the archanai is distinct from the puja. Puja is a general terms meaning ceremonial worship, while archanai, as ordinarily understood, is the placing of pure leaves or flowers on the idol during the course of the recitation of the god's (or goddess's) names in the ceremonial worship. Archanai is, in fact, a part of the puja. I do not see any reason why the trustees should not encourage devotees to have as elaborate ceremonial puja as they like performed to the sacred idols, without prejudice to the performance of the mamool pujas, or why only the archanai portion of the puja could be allowed to be so performed. In Exhibit III, a very illogical dual classification is made of the puja, the pujanam being stated to consist of abhishakam, sandal, throwing of flowers, cloth, etc., while archanam is said to consist of the mentioning of god's names and the dedication of food, incense, light, bell sound, camphor light and mathuparkam. I might be permitted to state, with great respect to the cadjan leaf, Exhibit III, that the mention of archanam as quite apart from the pujanam and the omission of offering flowers, etc., from the actions coming under archanam and the inclusion of it under the head of pujanam, as distinct from archanam, are not compatible with either the etymological or colloquial use of those terms. As Apte says in his dictionary, punjanam means worshipping, honouring, adoring, treating with respect, entertaining, hospitality; and archanam means worshipping, reverence or respect paid to superiors. There is really no difference in the root meaning of the two terms except probably that archanam is connected more with vocal respect and praise and pujanam with the mental attitude. In colloquial usage, archanam is used to signify the throwing of flowers or sacred leaves on the idol, with the recitation of one of the names of God represented by the idol at each act of throwing. As this is considered the most important part of the whole puja or worship, those who do not wish to worship with elaborate ceremonial content themselves with this principal portion, namely, archanam accompanied usually by the showing of camphor light and the dedication of naivedyam. It does not follow from this that the trustees and devotees are entitled to develop the importance and sanctity of the temple by introducing only archanais and ought not to introduce any of the other ceremonies included in the complete puja. As, however, the trustees (the defendants Nos. 1 and 2), the devotee-client (the 5th defendant) and the non-murai archakas (defendants Nos. 3 and 4), of whom the defendant No. 5 is the client, have not put in any cross-appeals or memorandum of objections, it is unnecessary to elaborate this matter further.

In the result, the second appeal is dismissed with costs, two sets (one set to the trustees-respondents and the other set to the other respondents).

HANNAY, J.—I agree with my learned brother that, for the reasons given by him, the contentions raised by the 3rd and 5th grounds in the memorandum of second appeal must be rejected and that consequently this second appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 190 OF 1914.

January 4, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling.

VATAKKA CHATHILINGATH TAVAZHI—DEFENDANT—PETITIONER

versus

RAMASWAMI PATTER AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 55 (2)—Implied covenant for title—Vendee's knowledge of defect in vendor's title—Difference between cases of conveyances of full title and conveyances of qualified title—Karamkari tenure

The rule that in spite of his knowledge of a defect in the title of the vendor, a vendee is in case of dispossession entitled to sue his vendor on the implied covenant for title under section 55 (2) of the Transfer of Property Act, applies only to cases of conveyances of absolute or full title. If, however, what is conveyed is not an absolute title, as in the case of a conveyance of lands held on Karamkari tenure (which, by their very nature, are inalienable) and the vendee is evicted by the superior landlord, the vendor is not liable to the vendee on any implied covenant for title.

Subbaraya Reddiar v. Rajagopala Reddiar, 23 Ind. Cas. 570; (1914) M. W. N. 376; 15 M. L. T. 240 and Arunachala Aiyar v. Ramasami Aiyar, 25 Ind. Cas. 618, 27 M. L. J. 517; 1 L. W. 849; 16 M. L. T. 397, distinguished Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Palghat, in Small Cause Suit No. 963 of 1913.

FACTS.—Certain lands held on karamkari tenure were alienated by the plaintiffs to the defendant. The superior landlord thereupon filed a suit and ejected the defendant The plaintiffs, who had not been paid the sale consideration, subsequently sued the defendant for the same and the latter contended that he was not liable to pay it, as there was failure of consideration owing to the breach of the implied covenant for title. The Subordinate Judge gave the plaintiffs a decree. The defendant then preferred this civil revision petition.

Mr. C. Madhavan Nair, for the Petitioner :—The mere knowledge of a defect in the title of the vendor does not affect the right of the vendee to sue the vendor on the implied convenant for title. Subbaraya Reddiar v. Rajagopala Reddiar (1) and Arunachala Aiyar v. Ramasami Aiyar (2). The vendor must be taken to have assured the vendee a karamkari holder's right to the land, which meant that so long as he paid the rent reserved he could not be evicted. By the eviction there has been a breach of this convenant and consequently there has been a failure of consideration.

Mr. P. S. Narayanaswami Iyer, for Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna Iyer, for the Respondents :—The cases quoted by the other side are distinguishable as being cases of conveyance of full title. If from the very nature of the lands conveyed they are inalienable (as karamkari tenure lands are), the vendee is not entitled to any remedy. What he bargained for was karamkari lands and he got them. So there has been no failure of consideration.

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 570; (1914) M. W. N 376; 15 M. L. T. 240.

(2) 25 Ind Cas. 618; 27 M. L. J. 517; 1 L. W. 849; 16 M. L. T. 397.

BIBI SALIMAN v. UDHORAN SAHI.

JUDGMENT.—The only question is whether the Subordinate Judge was right in holding that there was no implied guarantee of title under Exhibit I. Mr. Madhavan Nair for the petitioner relies on the recent decisions in Subbaraya Reddiar v. Rajagopala Reddiar (1) and Arunachala Aiyar v. Ramasami Iyer (2), as authority for holding that section 55 (2) of the Transfer of Property Act will apply even where the vendee has knowledge that the vendor's title is defective, so long as there is no contract to the contrary. But in both these cases, so far as I can see, the title purported to be conveyed was on the face of the document of conveyance a full title. In the present case Exhibit I clearly recites that the plaintiffs only held the land on karamkari right, the incidents of which are as defined in Achutha Menon v. Sankaran Nair (3): and I do not think section 55 would warrant a Court in implying a guarantee of any larger title. The rulings above quoted seem, therefore, to have no application to the present case: and there appears to be no ground for interfering with the decree of the Small Cause Court.

The petition is dismissed with costs.

Petition dismissed.

(3) 12 Ind. Cas. 1007; 36 M. 380, (1911) 2 M. W. N. 529, 22 M. L. J. 118; 10 M. L. T. 521.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 3015 OF 1909.

January 5, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sharfuddin and Mr. Justice Coxe.

Musammat BIBI SALIMAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

UDHORAN SAHI—PLAINTIFF AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Rent-decree, setting aside of—Fraud, allegation of—Rent, exaggeration of—Burden of proof—Entry in Record of Rights, mistake due to, effect of

A rent-decree cannot be set aside on the ground of an act of fraud which is not clearly and precisely alleged in the plaint at all.

Ganga Narain Gupta v. Tilakram Chowdhry, 15 C. 583; 15 I. A. 119, 12 Ind. Jur. 254, 5 Sar. P. C. J. 168, referred to.

In a suit to set aside a rent-decree on the ground that the rent claimed was greatly exaggerated, it is for the plaintiff to prove affirmatively that the rent sued for was more than the rent due and he must also prove that the exaggerated rent was claimed in order to defraud him.

A mistake on the part of the claimant arising out of an entry in the Record of Rights will not be fraud.

Appeal against the decree of the Second Sub-Judge, Mozaffarpore, dated the 7th of July 1909, reversing that of the Additional Munsif, Mozaffarpore, dated the 18th of January 1909.

Mr. Muhammad Mustafa Khan, for the Appellant.

Babu Baidyanath Narain Singh, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

COXE, J.—This appeal arises out of a suit for a declaration that a rent-decree obtained by the defendant No. 1 against the defendant No. 2 was fraudulent. The suit, which is said to have been fraudulent, was instituted on the 16th December 1907. About a month before that, the plaintiff had applied for execution of a mortgage decree, which he held against the defendant No. 2 with respect to some lands included in the defendant No. 2's holding. This land he subsequently purchased in execution of his mortgage decree. The date of his purchase is not known to us, but it is hardly possible that it can have taken place before the institution of the rent suit.

I find it extremely difficut to appreciate what precise fraud is alleged in this case. But as I understand from the learned Pleader for the respondents, two acts of fraud are pleaded. The first is that the defendant No. 1 sued the defendant No. 2 for the rent of the holding, although the defendant No. 1 himself was in possession of it and the defendant No. 2 was not the tenant at the time of the suit. I cannot find, however, that this fraud is alleged in the plaint at all. In paragraph 2 it is stated that the defendants, in a former suit, alleged that the defendant No. 1 was in possession of the land and that the defendant No. 2 had no connection therewith, but the paragraph concludes by asserting that these statements of the defendants were found to be false and it is nowhere suggested in the plaint that that finding was wrong.

It is quite clear that the former decree cannot be set aside on the grounds of an act of fraud which is not clearly and precisely alleged, and in this connection I may refer to the well-known case of Ginga Narain Gupta v. Tiluckram Chowdhry (1). In my opinion, therefore, the plaintiff cannot rely on the first allegation of fraud mentioned above.

The second allegation is that the rent claimed in the suit was greatly exaggerated, that the rent of the holding is Rs. 5 odd whereas the suit was brought for rent at the rate of Rs. 5 odd in cash and 4½ maunds of produce. It is clear, therefore, that to succeed in this suit the plaintiff is bound to prove that the rent was not Rs. 5 odd and 4½ maunds in produce and that the defendant No. 1 alleged that the rent was so much, in order to defraud the plaintiff. But these facts have not been found. The learned Subordinate Judge appears to have imagined, as indeed is not unusual, that when fraud was alleged by the plaintiff, it was incumbent on the defendant to prove the whole of the former case over again. He says: "The onus lay heavily on the defendant No. 1 to prove not only that the disputed lands are mankhassa but that the arrears decreed were justly due by the defendant No. 2." This, in my opinion, is an entire misapprehension. It is for the plaintiff to prove affirmatively that the rent sued for was more than the rent due, and even that is not sufficient. He must prove also that the exaggerated rent was claimed in order to defraud him.

It appears from the Record of Rights that the amount of 4½ maunds of produce is entered in some way against this holding. The learned Subordinate Judge regards this as not amounting to proof that that amount of rent was due from the holding, as of course he is perfectly entitled to do; but he has not considered the possibility that this entry in the Record of Rights may have misled the defendant No. 1 into claiming rent which may perhaps not have been due. A mistake of this kind, if it were a mistake, would not be fraud.

(1) 15 C. 533; 15 I. A. 119; 12 Ind. Jur. 244; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 168.

In my opinion, therefore, the case must go back to the learned Subordinate Judge for re-hearing of the appeal. He must come to affirmative findings on these two questions, firstly, whether the plaintiff has succeeded in proving that the defendant No. 1 sued the defendant No. 2 for more rent than was due from the holding, and secondly, if the defendant No. 1 did so, whether he did so with the intention of defrauding the plaintiff. If he finds these issues in the affirmative, his decision will stand; but if otherwise, it will be his duty to dismiss the appeal.

Costs will abide the result.

SHARFUDDIN, J.—I agree.

Case remanded.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 22 OF 1914.

October 29, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

KUPPUSAWMY AIYAR—PETITIONER—APPELLANT

versus

MUTHUSAMY AIYAR AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIII, rr. 2, 5 (a)—Application for permission to sue as pauper, how framed—Omission of one item in schedule—Dismissal of application—Revision.

The word "framed" in Order XXXIII, rule 5 (a), is of special importance. It is appropriate to secure the inclusion in the petition of pauperism the various requisites specified in rule (2), and not the correctness of the particular statements of fact involved in them.

The provision for dismissal of defective petitions is not intended to be punitive.

The mere fact that the schedule to the petition does not include one item of the property is not enough ground for dismissal and the High Court can interfere in revision.

Appeal, under section 15 of the Letters Patent, against the judgment of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Ayling in Civil Revision Petition No. 827 of 1911, preferred against that of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Trichinopoly, in Original Petition No. 443 of 1911.

Mr. R. Kuppusawmy Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Messrs. L. A. Govindaraghava Aiyar and L. S. Veeraraghava Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—We deal first with the point on which the learned District Judge dismissed the civil revision petition, that the petition was dismissed rightly by the Subordinate Judge because it offended against Order XXXIII, rule 5 (a), of the Code of Civil Procedure. Schedule to the petition was, it is not disputed, defective, because it did not include one item of property and the petition was dismissed on account of this defect. In interpreting rules 5 and 7 we attach importance, firstly, to the use of the word "framed" in rule 5 (a), regarding it as appropriate to secure the inclusion in the petition of the various requisites specified in rule 2 and not the correctness of the particular statements of fact involved in them. And next, the construction adopted by the learned Judge would, in our opinion, work oppression in a manner which has not been justified by the suggestion for the respondents, that the purpose of the provision for dismissal of defective petitions is punitive. For this alleged punitive character is not supported by anything in the Order or by authority, and it cannot be contended that the total failure of the petition would be a proper or necessary penalty for the omission (it might be inadvertent) of an item, which would not necessarily have affected the decision. We, therefore, hold that the Subordinate Judge failed to deal with the question of the appellant's pauperism owing to a fundamental mistake of law and that the learned Judge's decision is, therefore, unsustainable.

Taking this view, we consider next the other ground on which the Subordinate Judge's decision is based and which the learned Judge of this Court, of course, did not find it necessary to consider, that the petition was liable to rejection with reference to rule 5 (d). The suit was one for accounts and for money due in connection with an arrangement between the parties for the joint enjoyment of certain property and the appropriation of its profits. The Subordinate Judge held that the appellant had no cause of action, because after reference to the documents embodying that arrangement, he found that they reserved no right to any money to the appellant. In this he was clearly wrong, vide Exhibit III(2). He, moreover, overlooked the claim to accounts provided for in Exhibit III (5) These provisions in Exhibit III are, as they stand, unambiguous, and no attempt has been made for the respondents to explain them otherwise. In the circumstances, we cannot hold that the Subordinate Judge ever applied his mind to them judicially. The failure to do so, when (as here) it has involved substantial prejudice to the appellant, justified our interference in revision apart from the other reason urged by the appellant, with which we need not deal, that the Subordinate Judge was not entitled to refer to Exhibits II and III at all.

The two grounds stated by the Subordinate Judge as justifying his order failing, it must be set aside, the Letters Patent Appeal being allowed. The case must be remanded for re-admission and disposal according to law with reference to the other prohibitions contained in Order XXXIII, rule 5. The Subordinate Judge will also be at liberty to consider the points raised by the respondents' affidavits as to the appellant's present position, which have been filed in this Court. Costs will be costs in the case.

Appeal allowed; Case remanded.

PRIVY COUNCIL.

APPEAL FROM THE ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

October 23, 1914.

Present:—Lord Dunedin, Lord Shaw, Sir John Edge and Mr. Ameer Ali.

JHANDU—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

TARIF AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Widow—Alienation by widow—Suit by remote reversioner for declaration that it was not binding on reversioners—Extent of reversionary heir's right to bring such suit—Reversionary heir's failure in one suit does not preclude him from suing again in respect of subsequent alienation.

The right to bring a suit for a declaration that a conveyance by a Hindu widow is only good for her life but is not good as an absolute conveyance of the property thereby dealt with against the reversioners of her deceased husband, is limited, and, as a general rule, belongs to the presumptive reversionary heir. But if the nearest reversionary heir has precluded himself in some way by his own act or conduct from suing—as by collusive action with the widow—a reversioner in a more remote degree may be allowed to prosecute such a suit.

Rani Anund Kunwar v. The Court of Wards, 8 I. A. 14; 6 C. 764, 8 C. L. R. 381 (P. C.); 4 Shome L. R. 78; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 195; 5 Ind. Jur. 161, Rafique and Jackson's P. C. No 63, followed.

The presumptive reversionary heir of a deceased Hindu, who has failed in his action against the alleged widow of the deceased for possession of the property left by him, has not thereby precluded himself from again suing the widow for a declaration that a conveyance made by her after the former suit was only binding for the period of her life, and, consequently, a reversioner in a more remote degree has no right to bring such a declaratory suit

Appeal from a judgment and decree of the High Court at Allahabad, dated the 8th June 1911, reversing those of the Court of the Additional Subordinate Judge of Meerut, dated the 16th February 1910.

FACTS.—One Sukh Ram was the owner of the property in suit. He died childless early in 1903, and in the month of November of that year the name of Musammat Imirti, who alleged that she was his widow, was entered in the revenue papers in place of that of the deceased in respect of the property left by him.

On or about the 1st August 1904, four persons, namely, Nihal, Mir Singh, Kallu and Kehari brought a suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Saharanpur against Musammat Imirti. They alleged that she was not lawfully married to Sukh Ram and set up a pedigree, and on the basis of that pedigree they contended that they were next reversioners of Sukh Ram and consequently his heirs. They, therefore, claimed that they were entitled to the property in suit. The Subordinate Judge decreed the suit, but on appeal the District Judge of Saharanpur held that the pedigree set up was not proved and made a decree on the 17th August 1905 dismissing the suit with costs. Thereafter by two deeds (registered), dated the 2nd March 1909, Musammat Imirti conveyed the property in suit to the respondents.

The suit giving rise to this appeal was instituted on the 8th October 1909 in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Meerut by the appellant, as plaintiff, against Musammat Imirti (defendant) No. 1 and her vendees, the respondents (defendants Nos. 2 to 10) for the recovery of possession from the respondents of the said property which belonged to Sukh Ram and was detailed in the plaint. He alleged that Musammat Imirti was not the lawful wife of Sukh Ram, and that, therefore, the respondents acquired no title in the suit property which was conveyed to them by her. He set up a pedigree to show that he was the next reversioner of Sukh Ram and consequently claimed that he was the heir of Sukh Ram and as such entitled to succeed to the property left by him.

He asked for the following reliefs:—

"(a) The defendants may be dispossessed and the plaintiff may be put in possession of the property specified below, situate in Mauza Alipur Kalan, Pargna Baghra, District Muzaffarnagar.

"(b) If the Court finds that Musammat Imirti, defendant No. 1, was married to Sukh Ram in the karao form of marriage and that the said karao is legally valid, then a decree may be passed in favour of the plaintiff declaring that the transfer of the property, specified below, made under the sale-deed, dated the 2nd and registered on the 17th March 1909, is void and ineffectual as against the plaintiff who is the rightful person."

The respondents by their written statements pleaded that Musammat Imirti was the lawful wife of Sukh Ram and denied that the appellant was the next reversioner of Sukh Ram.

The Additional Subordinate Judge found that Musammat Imirti was not the lawful wife of Sukh Ram, that the pedigree set up was not correct, and that Nihal, Kehari and Mir Singh were "one degree higher than the plaintiff." He was, however, of opinion that because those persons, who were "the nearer reversioners, had already brought a similar suit and failed, and thus have precluded themselves from bringing another suit," the appellant was "entitled to maintain the suit" and succeed to the property in suit as the heir of Sukh Ram. His reasons were as follows:—

"It is contended that the plaintiff, being a remote reversioner, cannot maintain this suit in the life-time of the nearer reversioners, namely, Mir Singh, Nihal, Kehari and Kallu.

"I do not think that this contention is sound when the nearer reversioners had already brought a similar suit and failed and thus have precluded themselves from bringing another suit. I allude to the Original Suit No. 160 of 1904, instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Saharanpur, which, though decreed by the Court of the first instance, was dismissed by the Appellate Court. Under these circumstances plaintiff is entitled to maintain this suit [See Gurulingaswami v. Ramalakshmamma (1), Champa Kuar v. Mina Mal (2), Sheomurat Singh v. Ram Autar (3)]."

He accordingly made a decree for possession in favour of the appellant.

On appeal the High Court set aside the decree of the Court below and dismissed the suit with costs for the following reasons:

"It appears that after the death of Sukh Ram a suit was brought for the possession of the property by four persons, Kehari, Kallu, Nihal and Mir Singh. That suit was dismissed as the plaintiffs failed to prove the pedigree propounded by them. Mir Singh, who is the uncle of the respondent, is one degree nearer to Sukh Ram than the respondent is. So also are Kehari, Kallu and Nihal. Further, in the presence of Mir Singh, the respondent can have no right to the property of Sukh Ram. The only descendant of Prem Sukh, who could possibly take a share in the property, is Mir Singh, who is admittedly alive. But at the death of Sukh Ram, Mir Singh brought his suit and failed. It is quite clear that the respondent cannot take the place of Mir Singh. The decision of the Court below cannot possibly be supported. We allow the appeal, set aside the decree of the Court below and dismiss the suit with costs in both Courts."

The appellant thereupon appealed to His Majesty in Council.

Mr. Dube, for the Appellant, contended that a remote reversioner could bring a suit in the life-time of the nearer reversioner, when the latter had already brought a similar suit and failed and thus precluded himself from bringing another suit. The remote reversioner derived his title from the last full owner and, therefore, a decree against other reversioners could not operate as res judicata against him. Although the suit could not really be maintained for possession, it could be properly sustained for a declaration that the sale by the widow was only of her life-interest.

[MR. AMEER ALI.—That is a matter of pure discretion. The suit was originally for possession.]

[SIR JOHN EDGE.—Your first claim is to get possession and the 2nd claim to have the transfer set aside.]

[LORD SHAW.—We assume you are in the second generation. You cannot sue unless you show that the preceding generation is in collusion with the widow.]

[MR. AMEER ALI.—You want to make out nearer than you are.]

LORD DUNEDIN.—Your claim is for possession.]

Reference was made to Gurulingaswami v. Ramalakshmamma (1) and Specific Relief Act, section 42.

Mr. Parekh, appeared for the Respondents but was not called upon.

JUDGMENT.

LORD DUNEDIN.—One Sukh Ram was an owner of property and died. He left behind him a lady named Musammat Imirti, who was supposed to be his legal widow, having been married in the karao form of marriage. If she was his legal widow, she was entitled to the life enjoyment of the property which Sukh Ram left.

In 1904 four persons called Kehri, Kallu, Nihal, and Mir Singh raised an action against this lady, alleging that they were the representatives of Sukh Ram. They further alleged that she was not a legal widow at all, and that accordingly they were entitled to possession of Sukh Ram's property. They were cast in that action, because they failed to produce a proper pedigree which showed that they were in the degree of relationship which would entitle them to succeed even if their allegations against the lady were true. The present plaintiff is a person of the name of Jhandu who, admittedly, in the pedigree is one degree further off from Sukh Ram than Mir Singh, who is still alive. He raised the present action on precisely the same averments as Mir Singh and the others raised their action in 1904, that is to say, he

(1) 18 M. 53; 4 M. L. J. 287.
(2) A. W. N. (1887) 1.
(3) A. W. N. (1888) 178.

averred that Musammat Imirti was not a real widow, but was, as he described it, a Bhatni widow with whom Sukh Ram had illicit connection and who lived with him as a kept woman. He, therefore, asked for possession of the property. It seems that after 1904, but before the institution of the present suit, Musammat Imirti made a conveyance of part of the lands to certain third parties. The Subordinate Judge gave judgment in the plaintiff's favour, disregarding the fact that in no supposition could the plaintiff ever be entitled to immediate possession for which he asked, owing to the fact that Mir Singh was still alive and was a degree nearer than the plaintiff.

The High Court set aside that judgment and dismissed the suit holding that it was impossible for the plaintiff to get what he asked, because in any event Mir Singh, under the present circumstances, would out him out.

An appeal has been taken to their Lordships' Board and the learned Counsel for the appellant really gave up at once any idea of insisting on the relief which the plaintiff asked for and which he got from the Subordinate Judge, because he admitted that the widow being alive he could not possibly get possession. That of course is tantamount to an admission that she is a real widow and not, as put in the plaint, a kept woman. But he has pressed their Lordships to turn the pleadings round and to give him a declaration that this conveyance by the widow to these third persons was bad as an absolute conveyance, and was only given as for the period of her own life.

Now it is the fact that a reversioner in India may have a declaration from a Court to the effect that a conveyance by the person presently in possession is only good for the life of that person and is not good as an absolute conveyance of the property against the reversioners. But it is perfectly well settled that that declaration will only be given to persons who stand in a certain relationship. It was laid down by this Board in the case which has been quoted of, Rani Anund Kunwar v. The Court of Wards (4), "that the right to bring such a suit is limited, and, as a general rule, belongs to the presumptive reversionary heir." It is quite true that the Board indicated that, in certain cases, the nearest reversionary heir might have precluded himself in some way by his own act or conduct from suing—as by collusive action with the widow—and in that case a reversioner in a more remote degree might be allowed to prosecute the suit. The argument that was addressed to the Board was that this was such a case, because Mir Singh having brought the suit in 1904 and failed through producing a false pedigree, he never could sue again.

There are two reasons either of which is sufficient to prevent that argument prevailing. The first has already been indicated, namely, that the relief asked for here was possession of the property, and that the declaration now sought for can scarcely be spelt out of the pleadings at all. But there is another objection which is equally fatal and it is this. In 1904, when Mir Singh brought his suit, this deed of conveyance by the widow was not in existence and, therefore, it is impossible to say that Mir Singh has, by his conduct in raising an action in 1904, precluded himself from challenging by way of declaration the deed which at that time was not in existence.

Their Lordships will, therefore, humbly advise His Majesty to dismiss the appeal with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellants: Messrs. Barfeild & Barfeild.

Solicitors for the Respondents: Mr. E. Dalgado.

(4) 8 I. A. 14, 6 C. 764; 8 C. L. R. 381 (P. C.); 4 Shome L. R. 78; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 195, 5 Ind. Jur. 161; Rafique and Jackson's P. C. No. 68.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 918 OF 1914.

January 23, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir P. C. Banerji, KT.

RAGHUNANDAN PRASAD—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

CHEM RAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu law- Son's liability to pay money due under indemnity bond of his father—Debt not tainted with immorality—Liability of ancestral property in hands of son.

MAUNG THA v. N. C. CHATTERJEE.

It is the pious duty of a Hindu son to pay the money due under an indemnity clause provided in a sale-deed, not tainted with immorality, executed by his father. The ancestral property in the hands of the son is liable to discharge the debt.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge of Budaun, dated the 30th of March 1914

Mr. B. E. O'Conor, for the Appellant.

Mr. Sital Prasad Ghose, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit in which the plaintiffs sought to recover money payable to them under an indemnity given to their predecessor-in-title by the father of the appellant. It appears that Murli Manohar and two others executed a sale-deed in favour of the father of the plaintiffs. That sale-deed contained a provision to the effect that in the event of any claim being asserted and proved, and in the event of any defect being found in the title of the vendors, the purchaser shall have a right to realise the consideration money from the vendors or their heirs and legal representatives together with damages. In subsequent litigation it was held that two of the vendors were not competent to sell the property beyond the term of their lives and in consequence of this the purchaser was deprived of a part of the property. The plaintiffs thereupon brought the present suit.

The only question is whether the defendant-appellant, the son of Murli Manohur, is liable to discharge the liability created by his father by the indemnity clause, and whether that debt can be realised from the ancestral property in the hands of the appellant. It cannot be said that the debt incurred by Murli Manohar was tainted with immorality. Consequently it is the pious duty of his son to pay that debt, and for the discharge of this pious duty the ancestral property in his hands is liable. The view of the Court below is, therefore, right. We dismiss the appeal with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 231 OF 1913

February 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Twomey.

MAUNG THA—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

N. C. CHATTERJEE—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 8—Assignment of debt, whether arrears of interest on debt are included in assignment

The arrears of interest of an assigned debt form part of the interest which the transferor is capable of passing by assignment and must be held to have been transferred in the absence of any words restricting the interest transferred.

Mr. Wiltshire, for the Appellant.

Mr. D. N. Palit, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The arrears of interest accrued before the assignment formed part of the interest which the transferor was capable of passing in the property, and in the absence of any words restricting the interest transferred it must be held, under section 8, Transfer of Property Act, that the assignment was intended to exhaust the transferor's interest in the property. Section 8 expressly provides that the arrears of interest due on a debt are not included in the legal incidents of the property in the debt. They are part of the debt itself, and pass as a matter of course to the transferee in the absence of words to show a contrary intention.

As regards the interest allowed by the Divisional Court from the date of suit to the date of the Divisional Court's decree, I see no good reason for excusing the appellant who set up a false defence to the suit.

On the 11th November, i. e., just before the appeal came on for hearing in this Court, the appellant filed an additional ground of appeal, namely, that the original suit was time-barred by one day. But it is clear from the record that the plaint was really presented on the 26th September 1910, and not on 27th September 1910 as contended by the appellant.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 1211 OF 1914.

October 5, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Johnstone.

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, JHANG—PETITIONER

versus

MUHAMMAD HAYAT—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 94, 96—Document in possession of accused—Search warrant, Magistrate, power of, to issue—'Person', meaning of—Document or thing, whether limited to document or thing, which is the subject of offence—Inspection of documents found in search.

Under section 96 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate is competent to issue a search warrant for documents in possession of the accused, and such documents can, after production, be inspected by the prosecution or by any experts appointed by the Court in this behalf.

The words 'a person' in sections 94, 96, Criminal Procedure Code, include the person accused in the case, and the words 'document or thing' in the sections are general and cover any document the production or inspection of which is 'necessary or desirable' or will serve the ends of justice. There is nothing in the sections to limit their provisions to the finding of such documents or things only in respect of which the alleged offence may have been committed.

In the matter of the petition of Ahmed Mahomed, 15 C. 109; Bajrangi Gope v. Emperor, 9 Ind. Cas. 64; 38 C. 304; 15 C. W. N. 343, 13 C. L. J. 639; 12 Cr. L. J. 8; Bisser Misser v. Emperor, 20 Ind. Cas 229, 41 C. 261; 14 Cr. L. J. 405; 17 C. W. N. 1209; Surey Kondareddi v. Emperor, 15 Ind. Cas. 493; 37 M. 112; 13 Cr. L. J. 493 and In re Lakhmidas, 5 Bom. L. R. 980, referred to.

Ishwar Chandra Ghoshal v. Emperor, 12 C. W. N. 1016; 8 C. L. J 320, 8 Cr. L. J. 224 and Raj Chandra Chakravarti v. Hara Kishore Chakravarti, 9 Ind. Cas. 564, 12 Cr. L. J. 98, dissented from.

Case reported by the District Magistrate, Jhang, with his No. 1012, dated the 11th of June 1914, under section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

FACTS.—The accused is prosecuted by the Municipal Committee for evasion of octroi. On February 21st, 1914, a commission was appointed by the Magistrate for the examination of the account books of the accused. On March 9th the accused filed an objection that such an order appointing a commission was illegal. The Magistrate agreed and cancelled the order appointing the commission by order, dated April 8th. Against this order that the Court was not authorised to appoint Commissioners to examine the account books of the accused, the Municipal Committee filed an application for revision in the Court of the District Magistrate. The District Magistrate (Mr. Lumsden) by his order, dated April 23rd, 1914, rejected the application on the ground that the Criminal Procedure Code contained no provision for the appointment of Commissioners, but held that the applicant's proper course was to apply for a search warrant under section 96, Criminal Procedure Code, and thereafter for inspection. Such an application was filed in the Magistrate's Court, but the Magistrate rejected the application on the ground that it had no authority to issue such a warrant under section 96.

The proceedings are forwarded for revision on the following grounds:—

The point raised is a legal point of some interest. There have been several rulings of the Calcutta High Court and one recent ruling of the Madras High Court, but apparently there has never been a ruling of the Punjab Chief Court on this question.

After the date of the order of the Magistrate rejecting the application for the issue of a warrant under section 96, Criminal Procedure Code, there have been two published rulings: Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1) and Surey Kondareddi v. Emperor (2). In the Madras ruling it is laid down that the Magistrate always has the power to issue a search warrant to obtain the production of a document or other thing in the possession of the accused. "The issue of a summons is a milder means of attaining the same, and I am of opinion that the ruling in In the matter of the petition of Ahmed Mahomed (3) should be followed." Reference was also made to Ishwar Chandra Ghoshal v. Emperor (4), in which a contrary view was taken, but this was dissented from.

Previous to the recent Calcutta case, Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1), there was a ruling of the Calcutta High Court, quoted in Raj Chandra Chakravarti v. Hara Kishore Chakravarti (5), in which it was held that a search warrant under section 96 cannot be addressed to an accused person on his trial and he cannot be prosecuted under section 175 because of his failure to produce

(1) 20 Ind. Cas. 229; 41 C. 261; 14 Cr. L. J. 405; 17 C. W. N. 1209.
(2) 15 Ind. Cas. 493; 37 M. 112, 13 Cr. L. J. 493.
(3) 15 C. 109.
(4) 12 C. W. N. 1016; 8 C. L. J. 320, 8 Cr. L. J. 224.
(5) 9 Ind. Cas. 564; 12 Cr L. J. 98.

the document mentioned in the warrant. I mention this case specially because it is not referred to in Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1).

All the other previous rulings of the Calcutta High Court are referred to and discussed in Bissar Misser v. Emperor (1). The Counsel for the accused has argued that the previous rulings have only been explained, but they have not been overruled and, therefore, they are still in force if applicable to any particular case. But the finding of the more recent ruling is equally applicable to this particular case. With reference to Bajrangi Gope v. Emperor (6), it was held in Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1) that the wide proposition laid down in that case was not supported by the case to which reference was made, Ishwar Chandra Ghoshal v. Emperor (4), and, secondly, that the meaning of the learned Judges was, not that search was prohibited altogether, but that it must be a search for a particular document or thing. The old ruling in In the matter of the petition of Ahmed Mahomed (3) was also referred to, in which it had been held that a search warrant could be issued for documents in possession of the accused and that such documents could, after production, be inspected by the prosecution. In the light of these rulings, there appears to be no reason why a summons should not be issued under section 94 or a search warrant under section 96 for the production of the account books of the accused.

I may note here one argument of the Counsel of the accused, namely, that it has been held that a commission is not allowed by the Criminal Procedure Code, but if the account books are produced in Court, a man versed in Hindi accounts will have to be appointed to examine the books, and this will be the same as a commission. In my opinion this argument cannot hold good, because once a document is in Court, if it is in a language which the presiding Magistrate does not understand, he must have it translated. This is very different to appointing Commissioners for the examination of the books outside the Court. After consideration of the rulings, I have formed the opinion that in this case summons can legally be issued under section 94 to the accused for the production of his account books, or under section 96 a search warrant can be issued, and that, after the production of the account books in Court, they may be examined by the prosecution, and I, therefore, forward the proceedings for revision of the order of the Magistrate, dated April 27th 1914, rejecting the application of the complainant for the issue of a search warrant for the account books of the accused and the subsequent inspection of those books by the prosecution.

Mehta Bahadur Chand, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Fasl-i-Husain, for the Opposite Party.

ORDER.—I have taken time to consider the question raised in this case and have consulted the following authorities :— In the matter of the petition of Ahmed Mahomed (3); Bajrangi Gope v. Emperor (6); Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1); Surey Kondareddi v. Emperor (2); Ishwar Chandra Ghoshal v. Emperor (4); Raj Chandra Chakravarti v. Hara Kishore Chakravarti (5); In re Lakhmidas (7); with the result that I am in entire agreement with the learned District Magistrate. The greater weight of authority is on his side, and Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1) explains and distinguishes Bajrangi Gope v. Emperor (6), which is quoted to one as against the District Magistrate. With the exception of Ishwar Chandra Ghoshal v. Emperor (4) and Raj Chandra Chakravarti v. Hara Kishore Chakravarti (5), there is thus nothing against the District Magistrate's view. There are apparently no Punjab cases in point and I will, therefore, discuss the point on its merits.

Section 94, Criminal Procedure Code, authorizes a Criminal Court, which considers that the production of any document or other thing is "necessary or desirable" for the purposes of any investigation, inquiry, trial or other proceeding under the Code, to issue, to the person in whose possession or power the document or thing is believed to be, a summons to produce it. Section 96 of the Code goes a step further. If the Court thinks the person in possession or having power over the document or thing will not voluntarily produce it upon a summons or notice, or if it does not know in whose possession or power the document or thing is, or if it thinks that the purposes of justice will be served by a general search or inspection, it may issue a search warrant.

(6) 9 Ind. Cas. 64; 38 C. 304; 15 C. W. N. 343; 13 C. L. J. 689; 12 Cr. L. J. 8.

(7) 5 Bom. L. R. 980.

The facts are stated in the reference and need not be repeated here. The learned District Magistrate's request is that a search warrant be issued under section 96, Criminal Procedure Code, to be followed by inspection by the prosecution of the books found. Against this, accused's Counsel urges that sections 94 and 96, Criminal Procedure Code, cannot be used directly against an accused person, who must not be asked or compelled to produce matter which would incriminate himself. But I can find no such limitations in those sections. No doubt in Bajrangi Gope v. Emperor (6), it was ruled that an accused person cannot be prosecuted under section 175, Indian Penal Code, for disobeying a summons under section 94, Criminal Procedure Code, but, as pointed out in Bisser Misser v. Emperor (1), this is not the same as saying that a search warrant to find things likely to throw light on the case against an accused person cannot be issued for the search of his premises. There is nothing in the wording of section 96 to warrant such an idea, and it is immaterial what may be the law of England on the subject. The learned Counsel affirms that the law of England is against the District Magistrate: it may be so, but what we have to do is to administer the law of British India.

Raj Chandra Chakravarti v. Hara Kishore Chakravarti (5) seems to me an incorrect exposition of that law. It quotes no authority, and while it is oracular, it is brief and contains no explanation how and where the supposed limitation of the powers of the Courts comes into the section. The head note is defective, inasmuch as it confounds the question of a warrant addressed to the accused with that of a warrant against the accused; and altogether I am not disposed to look upon this ruling as a valuable authority. Ishwar Chandra Ghoshal v. Emperor (4), on the other hand, seems to me, with all deference, to be based on a misunderstanding of sections 342 and 343 of the Code. The argument used therein, which is also pressed upon me here, is that these sections show that the Legislature was anxious that an accused person should under no circumstances be compelled or unfairly induced to incriminate himself, and that calling upon an accused person to produce, or searching his house in order to procure documents, etc., which the prosecution say would prove his guilt, would be an infringement of the spirit of the law. This argument does not appear to me to possess any force whatever.

No doubt section 342 and section 343, Criminal Procedure Code, are so framed as to prohibit all efforts on the part of the Court, by pressure or by cleverly designed questions, to entrap the prisoner into making admissions against himself. An accused person is in a position of great danger and difficulty. He is usually an uneducated man of no very keen intelligence, and there is always a risk that, if he is searchingly and unfairly cross-examined, he may, even if innocent, in his efforts to find a way of escape from the charge against him, make statements, which are not in accordance with the facts but which in his clouded and perturbed mind may appear as being hopeful methods of evasion. This policy of the Legislature we can readily understand, we do not want in this country the procedure followed by the French juge d'instruction. But the issue of a search warrant, such as that asked for in the present case, is not in line with such procedure as that. The Court is bound by all the means in its power to find out the truth. The truth here will very likely be ascertained with certainty by an examination of accused's books. He has no reasonable right to complain of such an examination. If he is innocent, his books will clear him. If he is guilty, why should the Court be debarred from seeing the best evidence of his guilt? Under section 342 the Court can ask him questions. He is not bound to answer, and if he answers falsely, he is not punishable therefor, though the Court may draw such inferences as it thinks just from his refusal or his answers. Here the Court is allowed to go as far as it is possible to go in the search for the truth. Similarly, in taking action under section 96, Criminal Procedure Code, the Court is authorised to go as far as is physically possible in that search. The accused can perhaps defeat the Court by concealing or destroying the document, etc., or by having it concealed or destroyed, taking, of course, the consequences of such action, just as the accused in the dock can, when questioned under section 342, thwart the Court in its search for the truth by answering falsely or refusing to answer. But the mere fact that the accused can so defeat or thwart the Court is no reason for holding that the Court is debarred from going as far as the sections specifically allow.

In re SINGRI BHIMA.

In short, to my mind the provisions of section 96, Criminal Procedure Code, are clear and simple, and I can see no reason for holding that the words "a person" in that section do not include the person accused in the case. Nor can I assent to the further contention that when the premises to be searched are those of the accused person, the warrant can only be for the finding of the document, etc., in respect of which the alleged offence has been committed, e. g., the forged cheque or deed or the original of the libel. The words "document or thing" in the section are general and seem to me to cover any document, the production and inspection of which are "necessary or desirable" or will serve the ends of justice.

For these reasons I allow this revision, set aside the order of the first Class Magistrate and direct that a search warrant be issued as asked for by the District Magistrate and that thereafter the books, etc., found be open to inspection by the prosecution or by any experts appointed by the Court in this behalf. The first Class Magistrate's difficulty about appointing Commissioners to examine the books is an imaginary difficulty. The Court, of course, has the power to invoke the aid of persons capable of helping it to read and understand the contents of the books.

Petition allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 689 OF 1914.

February 23, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

In re SINGRI BHIMA AND OTHERS—PRISONERS—APPELLANTS.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 82—Thumb impression as executant while presenting document for registration—Similarity of thumb impression, how far sufficient for conviction.

The identity of a person as the executant or presenter of a document for registration though not conclusively proved by similarity of the thumb impression taken at the time of presentation, is sufficient for conviction when supported also by other evidence in the case.

Emperor v. Abdul Hamid, 32 C. 759; 9 C. W. N. 520; 2 Cr. L. J. 259, Panchu Mandal v. Emperor, 2 Cr. L. J. 311; 1 C. L. J. 385, followed.

Appeal against the order of the Court of Session of the Bellary Division in Case No. 70 of the Calendar for 1914.

Mr. K. Pandalai, for the Appellants.

Mr. R. M. Palat, for the Public Prosecutor, for the Government.

JUDGMENT.

SPENCER, J.—It has been argued that the evidence of prosecution witness No. 3, that the finger print on the forged document is by comparison that of first accused, by itself is not sufficient to prove that none else could have made a similar impression and to convict him of the offence.

In think in this case, it is sufficient. There can be no doubt that prosecution witness No. 3 was an experienced expert and although he mentioned only six points of similarity in the finger points which he compared, it must not be concluded that he could not have mentioned others if he had been asked to do so. Moreover prosecution witness No. 4 says, he saw first accused at the time of the execution and although he was not positive as to his identity, his evidence may be taken as reducing the possibility of error. The chances of another man having lines like the accused living in that locality (for villagers are not likely to have gone far afield to find a substitute for the supposed executant) are so infinitesimal that in my opinion the Court was justified in acting on the supposition that the first accused was identical with the person who put his mark as executant of Exhibit A. Secondly, it is urged that the offence, if any, committed by the accused was not forgery, as the mark which he put did not denote the execution of the document but its presentation for registration. We alter the conviction accordingly to one under section 82 of the Registration Act, and retain the sentence already imposed.

EMPEROR v. KHUDA BAKHSH.

Against the third accused there is the evidence of prosecution witnesses Nos. 4 and 6, which we think was rightly believed. Prosecution witness No. 4 also speaks to the presence of accused No. 2 at the execution and to his having put forward the first accused as Sugappa. The suggestion that this witness having as his purohit a relation of prosecution witness No. 7 is likely to have been influenced to get up a false case against a protege of third accused, depends on an allegation as to past enmity which we consider unsubstantial and remote. The document was in this accused's favour and it is unlikely that it could have been got up by others merely in order to get these accused into trouble.

We confirm the convictions with the modification above referred to in the case of first accused and dismiss the appeals.

SESHAGIRI AIYAR, J.—I do not wish to differ from my learned colleague who has had considerable experience regarding the value to be attached to the proof of thumb impressions. At the same time I wish to state that I share the doubts of the learned Judges who decided Emperor v. Abdul Hamid (1) and Panchu Mondal v. Emperor (2), that it is not safe to convict an accused on the bare proof of identity of thumb impressions. Sir Edward Henry points out that two out of four persons will have one distinguishing mark of the impression in common. In the present case six such marks are spoken to by the expert whose credentials seem to be strong for giving evidence on the subject. Applying Sir Edward Henry's test, there will be two persons from out of 46 men who will have all the six marks in common, that is to say, out of 4,096 persons, two persons would possess the marks spoken to by the expert. Having regard to the fact that suspicion rested on the first accused and that he was complained against, I am not prepared to say that the evidence is not sufficient to convict the accused. No motive for implicating him falsely has been alleged against the complainant. I agree with my learned brother that the case against second and third accused has been fully made out.

Appeal dismissed; Convictions affirmed.

(1) 32 C. 759; 9 C. W. N. 520; 2 Cr. L. J. 259.
(2) 2 Cr. L. J. 311; 1 C. L. J. 385.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 1424 OF 1914.

October 21, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shadi Lal.

EMPEROR—APPELLANT

versus

KHUDA BAKHSH—RESPONDENT.

Workman's Breach of Contract Act (XIII of 1859)—Contract to perform agricultural service, whether within the Act—Provision of penalty for its breach.

The Workman's Breach of Contract Act (XIII of 1859) was not intended to apply to a contract to perform agricultural service.

Empress v. Bhagwan Bhirdi, 7 B 379, followed.

Where a contract prescribes a penalty for its breach, the remedy prescribed by the Act cannot be availed of.

Emperor v. Muhammad Din, 22 Ind. Cas. 742; 96 P. L. R. 1914; 23 P. R. 1913 Cr.; 15 Cr. L. J. 166, followed.

Case reported by the Sessions Judge, Multan Division, with his No. 199-J, dated the 16th July 1914, under section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

FACTS.—It is alleged that the complainant made an advance of Rs. 110 to Khuda Bakhsh, accused, to perform agricultural work on a certain well and got a bond written from him. The accused neither worked for him for a single day nor re-paid him the advance money.

The accused, on conviction by Mirza Nawazish Ali, exercising the powers of a Magistrate of the first Class in the Muzaffargarh District, was sentenced, by order, dated 9th June 1914, under section 12 of Act XIII of 1859, to three months' rigorous imprisonment.

The proceedings are forwarded for revision on the following grounds:—

1. The Magistrate recorded the statement of Murad, complainant, when the complaint was instituted and thereafter summoned Khuda Bakhsh. On the appearance of the latter the Magistrate recorded his statement and, at once passed the order which is under revision, sentencing Khuda Bakhsh to three months' rigorous imprisonment. The Magistrate did not ask the complainant what his wishes were and did not order Khuda Bakhsh to re-pay the advance made or to perform the work according to the terms of the contract, as required by section 2 of Act XIII of 1859.

The order of the Magistrate is, therefore, not according to law.

2. The contract provides a penalty of Rs. 50 for non-performance of the contract, the employer, therefore, could not adopt an alternative remedy by proceeding under Act XIII of 1859 [See Emperor v. Muhammad Din (1)].

3. The contract is to perform agricultural duties, such a contract does not come under Act XIII of 1859 [See Emperor v. Bhagwan Bhivsan (2)].

For the above reasons I recommend that the order of the Magistrate be set aside and that Khuda Bakhsh be discharged from his bail bond, on which he has been released pending the orders of the Chief Court.

ORDER.—The accused entered into a contract with the complainant to perform agricultural work for the latter, received an advance of Rs. 110 and stipulated to pay a penalty of Rs. 50 in the event of the non-performance of the service. On these facts, it is quite clear that the provisions of Act XIII of 1859 do not apply to the case. In the first place, the preamble and other provisions of the Act show that it was not intended to apply to a contract to perform agricultural service [vide Empress v. Bhagwan Bhivsan (2)].

In the second place, the judgment of this Court in Emperor v. Muhammad Din (1) is an authority for the view that where a contract prescribes a penalty for its breach, the remedy prescribed by Act XIII of 1859 cannot be availed of.

For these reasons I accept the application for revision and set aside the order of the Magistrate.

Revision accepted.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 742; 96 P. L. R. 1914; 23 P. R. 1913 Cr.; 15 Cr. L. J. 166.
(2) 7 B. 379.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION APPLICATIONS NOS. 65 AND 69 OF 1914.

June 30, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Crouch, A. J. C., and Mr. Boyd, A. J. C.

LOKUMAL valad VALABDAS AND ANOTHER—APPLICANTS

versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 420, 482, 486—Trade-mark and property mark, distinction between—"National Bank of India" stamped on gold bars, whether trade-mark or property mark—Counterfeit trade-mark—Interference in revision—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439.

Where the object of stamping the words "National Bank of India" on gold bars is to inform the public that the bars are the merchandise of the Bank, imported, sold and guaranteed by it, the mark is a trade mark and not a property mark.

For the purposes of the Penal Code it is not essential that an imitation should be exact in order to be "counterfeit."

Where, therefore, the accused used marks on his bar likely to deceive an ignorant and unwary purchaser, but which would be obvious on ordinary observation by comparison with a genuine bar:

Held, that this was a case of using a false trade-mark and not a counterfeit one and the accused was not guilty of an offence under section 486, Indian Penal Code.

It is not usual for a High Court in revision, to interfere with any finding of fact, so far as it is a finding of fact pure and simple based on evidence on the record; but where the lower Courts have erred in their inferences from facts as found and have found applicants guilty of offences which are not constituted by such facts, the High Court will interfere in revision.

Application against the judgment Mr. Hayward, Judicial Commissioner.

Mr. T. G. Hlphinston, for Applicant No. 1.

Mr. Wadhumal Oodharam, for Applicant No. 2.

Mr. E. Raymond, Public Prosecutor, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—Applicants Lokumal and Topandas are, respectively, the owner and manager of a Shroff business carried on in Karachi.

The National Bank of India have, for many years, imported and sold gold in bars bearing the following marks:

NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA
(also in Gujerathi).
Touch 100 (in Gujerathi).
SAMUEL MONTAGUE & Co., BULLION MERCHANTS, LONDON.

It is alleged that Topandas, acting under instructions from Lokumal, sold to one Chutterbhuj the piece of gold, Exhibit 4, bearing the following marks:

AL BANK OF I
L Bank O I (in Gujerathi characters)
Nbr 100 (in Gujerathi characters)
MAL WALABDASS SHROI.

Exhibit 4 is one-fourth broader than Exhibit 5, and the letters of "Bank of" in Exhibit 4 are substantially bigger and deeper cut than in Exhibit 5.

It has been found by the Sessions Court that:—

(I) Lokumal was frequently at the place of business and was fully responsible for all the acts of his Manager.

(II) Chutterbhuj, acting under special instructions from the National Bank, went to the applicants' shop and asked for "National Bank Gold," and that the bar Exhibit 4 was sold and handed to him by Topandas.

(III) "National Bank of India" is the "property mark" of the Bank.

(IV) The marks on Exhibit 4 are an imitation of these, Exhibit 5, close enough to deceive casual purchasers.

The Court of Session has not found that the gold of Exhibit 4 is inferior to that of Exhibit 5, and the evidence was given to show that it was National Bank gold melted down and re-moulded. Its touch is approximately 100. It has not been proved that the whole bar of which Exhibit 4 forms part originally bore the word National.

The original Court found applicants guilty of using a false "property mark," of selling goods with a counterfeit "property mark" and of cheating, and convicted them under sections 482, 486, 420 and 109, Indian Penal Code, sentencing Lokumal to 18 months' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000, and Topandas to nine months' rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 300.

It is not usual for a High Court, in revision, to interfere with any finding of fact, so far as it is a finding of fact pure and simple based on evidence on the record; but we are of opinion that both lower Courts have, in certain of the charges, erred in their inferences from facts as found and have found applicants guilty of offences which are not constituted by such facts. A property mark is a mark used for denoting that moveable property belongs to a particular person, whereas a trade mark is a mark used for denoting that goods are the manufacture or merchandise of a particular person. The object of stamping gold bars with the words "National Bank of India" is not to inform the public that the gold belongs to the Bank, but to give the assurance that the gold, no matter to whom it for the time being may belong, was originally imported and sold and guaranteed by the Bank; that is, the mark is a "trade mark," not a "property mark."

Nor, in our opinion, is the mark on Exhibit 4 a counterfeit trade mark. A "counterfeit" is, strictly, an exact imitation, but, for the purposes of the Penal Code, it is not essential that the imitations should be exact. But a thing is not, ordinarily, said to be counterfeit unless it bears, on the face of it, the semblance of validity, and is such as to deceive the average person on ordinary observation. Having regard to the patent differences between Exhibit 4 and Exhibit 5, differences which would be obvious on ordinary observation even to an unintelligent person who could read either Gujerathi or English, and unless he could read one of the languages the inscription would convey nothing at all, the conviction under section 486 cannot, in our opinion, stand. It is a case of using a false trade mark, not a counterfeit one. Exhibit 4, on its very face, declares itself to be the merchandise of Lokumal Valabdas, though the imitation may be, as found by the lower Court, sufficiently close to deceive an ignorant and unwary purchaser who had no immediate opportunity of comparison with a genuine bar. Mr. Elphinston has contended that it has not been proved that the words "National Bank of India" constitute a trade mark, but this is a case in which "res ipsa loquitur"; there can be no doubt that the words are impressed on the gold bars to inform the world generally that the bars are the merchandise of the Bank. The conviction for cheating is really based not on the false trade mark, for it is not alleged that it was examined or that it actually deceived, but on the fact that when Topandas was asked for National Bank of India gold he gave Exhibit 4. The learned Judicial Commissioner was of opinion that a person who asks for National Bank of India gold means, not gold of a certain touch, but gold that bears the stamp and guarantee of the Bank, and that the offence of attempting to cheat consisted in passing off Exhibit 4 as a portion of a genuine and original bar of the National Bank. Mr. Carnegie says that their gold bars are known in the bazar as National Bank Gold. But no offence is committed under section 420 unless there is actual cheating and a dishonest inducing to deliver property by means of such cheating. But, as pointed out by the learned Judicial Commissioner, there was no cheating in this case, for Chaturbhuj expected to receive a bar marked as Exhibit 4; there was, at most, an attempt to cheat, an offence punishable under sections 417 and 511 only, and Lokumal could be punished only under section 116.

We consider, therefore, that the only charge on which the conviction could stand is that under section 482, which covers the case of using a false trade mark as well as a false property mark. We reverse the convictions under sections 486 and 420.

Having regard to the findings of fact of both Courts we are not prepared to interfere with the conviction of either applicant under section 482.

There remains the question of sentence. The offence is punishable with imprisonment which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both. It is a rare thing to punish a trade mark offence with imprisonment, but the lower Courts took a very serious view of the case and were of opinion that applicants had been using the false trade mark for the fraudulent purpose of selling, at a profit, inferior gold. There is evidence on the record to justify this view. But the original sentences cannot stand in view of the reversal of the conviction under section 420. We consider that the ends of justice will be met if we reduce the term of imprisonment in each case to that already served, namely 2½ months, and we reduce it accordingly. As regards the fine the sentences are confirmed.

Revision allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 408 OF 1913.

January 21, 1915.

Present:—Sir John Edward Power Wallis, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Hannay.

In re MANNAR CHETTI AND OTHERS—(PLAINTIFFS IN ORIGINAL SUIT No. 3 OF 1911 ON THE FILE OF THE COURT OF THE SUB-JUDGE OF KUMBAKONAM)—PETITIONERS.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 439, 476—Order of prosecution—Interference in revision.

The High Court has no power under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code to interfere in revision with an order made by a Civil Court under section 476, Criminal Procedure Code.

Petition under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the proceedings of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Kumbakonam, dated the 18th April 1913, in Original Suit No. 3 of 1911, on the file of the said Court.

Mr. T. S. Ramaswami Aiyar, for the Petitioners.

Messrs. S. T. Srinivasa Gopalachariar, K. Srinivasa Aiyangar, C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, K. Ramachandra Aiyar and S. Muthiah Mudliar, as Amicus Curiæ.

ORDER.—Following the decision of Bashyam Aiyangar, J., in In re Chennanagoud (1) and of the Full Benches of the Allahabad and Calcutta High Courts, In the matter of the petition of Bhup Kunwar (2) and in Har Prasad Das v. Emperor (3), we think it may now be taken as settled that we have no power under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code to interfere with an order made by a Civil Court under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code. There is no case for interference under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. The petition is dismissed.

Petition dismissed.

(1) 26 M. 180; 2 Weir 197.
(2) 26 A. 245; A. W. N. (1904) 15; 1 Cr. L. J. 73.
(3) 19 Ind. Cas. 197; 17 C. L. J. 245; 14 Cr. L. J. 197, 17 C. W. N. 647, 40 C. 477.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEALS NOS. 26 AND 30 OF 1914.

August 18, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Fawcett, J. C. and Mr. Crouch, A. J. C.

PUNHU valad HOTU AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS

versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Accomplice—Evidence before Committing Magistrate retracted in Sessions Court, admissibility and credibility of—Evidence of identification, value of.

The statement of an accomplice before the Committing Magistrate, though retracted in the Sessions Court, can be treated as substantial evidence, on the same footing as any other evidence on the record

Emperor v. Dwarka Kurmi, 28 A. 683; 3 A. L J. 852; 4 Cr. L. J. 61; A. W. N. (1906) 187, referred to.

But this evidence must be treated with caution in so far as it implicates any particular accused or assigns him a particular part in the actual crime

The value of the statement of any witness that he recognises a particular man depends ultimately on the opportunities he had of observing the man and on his personal veracity.

Appeal against the decision of the Additional Sessions Judge, Hyderabad.

Mr. Lalchand Hassomal, for Appellants Nos. 1 to 5.

Mr. E. Raymond, Public Prosecutor for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

FAWCETT, J. C.—The evidence against the appellants consists of (a) the direct evidence of the accomplice, Jaffer, given in the Committing Magistrate's Court, which implicates all of them, (b) evidence of witnesses who identify them as having taken part in the dacoity, and (c) against some of them evidence of their being in possession of part of the stolen property or arms used in the dacoity.

In judging of the admissibility and credibility of Jaffer's evidence, I think the proper rule to be followed is that the statement before the Magistrate, though retracted in the Sessions Court, can be treated as substantial evidence, on the same footing as any other evidence on the record, cf. Emperor v. Dwarka Kurmi (1). Its reliability is no doubt injuriously affected by the fact of its being retracted in the Sessions Court and the fact of Jaffer being a self-confessed accomplice, who had received a pardon, but it does not follow that it is not entitled to any weight or credibility at all.

(1) 28 A. 683; 3 A. L. J. 852; 4 Cr.L.J. 61; A. W. N. (1906) 187.

A perusal of his deposition before the Magistrate leaves no doubt on my mind as to his having taken part in the dacoity and as to the substantial truth of the incidents mentioned in it, most of which are corroborated by other evidence. I do not believe that he was merely tutored to give the account which he does, and it is, in my opinion, far more probable that he retracted in the Sessions Court through a desire to favour the accused than that he gave his previous deposition falsely through pressure, from which he became free in the Sessions Court. This is to some extent corroborated by his statement: "I was told that I would be set at liberty after I have given my evidence in the Sessions Court and that that is the law: now I am no more in fear of the Police and fearing God I tell the truth." He probably thought a retraction in the Sessions Court would not affect his personal liberty.

Points on which his evidence is corroborated are as to Punhu (accused No 2) carrying the ornaments, Naban (accused No. 1) carrying a gun and Gulu (accused No. 4) a pistol; as to their taking away Hotchand's gun; and as to their staying in a pit on a sand-hill. There are also other minor details on which corroboration is forthcoming. His deposition reads as a natural and not a tutored account of the affairs. None of the arguments advanced by Mr. Lalchand are, in my opinion, sufficient to justify me in holding that he did not really take part in the dacoity.

On the other hand, his evidence must of course be treated with caution, in so far as it implicates any particular accused or assigns him a particular part in the actual dacoity. Jaffer might easily introduce a wrong name to shield a friend, and would probably have a tendency to minimize his own part of the affair. To this extent, I do not think his evidence should be accepted without some reliable corroboration.

As regards the evidence of identification, I concur generally with the remarks of my learned colleague. I think there is no doubt that in this case the Police officers, who were conducting the investigation, did honestly try to have their identification tests held under conditions which would, as far as possible, ensure their reliability, and that there is no real basis for the allegations made against them by Mr. Lalchand. But it is of course possible that the identifying witnesses had opportunities of knowing beforehand that the persons they identified were actually suspected of having taken part in the dacoity; and this must to a certain extent detract from the reliability of such a test. In this case I think the weight to be given to a particular witness's identification of any of the accused depends more on the opportunities he had of being in a position to identify him and his general credibility than on any evidence that he actually picked out the accused from a number of other men, though of course this must also be taken into consideration and may entitle his identification to more credence on that account.

For the above reasons, we dismiss the appeals of all the appellants, except accused No. 5, Ramzan, who is acquitted and ordered forthwith to be set at liberty.

CROUCH, A. J. C.—I concur in the order of the learned Judicial Commissioner.

There is, prima facie, abundant evidence against all appellants, but Mr. Lalchand has, with much skill and industry, analysed the evidence, and has endeavoured to convince us that each several item of evidence affords but frail ground on which to base a conviction.

Jaffer, the informer, is admittedly a bad character and a confessed liar: his original statement must of course be accepted with much caution.

The identification of the appellants by the basia witnesses may have been, as Mr. Lalchand urges, a mere sham; but no identification ever held was entirely free from suspicion of Police collusion, and the value of the statement of any witness that he recognises a particular man depends ultimately on the opportunities he had of observing the man and on his personal veracity. When a man of respectable position states positively, on oath, that one of the accused was seen by him, at close quarters, taking part in the dacoity, that statement has evidentiary value. If there be good grounds for suspecting that, at the first formal identification, the witness was assisted in picking out this particular accused, then the formal identification itself must be assessed low; but the evidentiary value of the sworn statement is by no means altogether destroyed by discounting the value of the incident which the prosecution rely on as corroborative. Even if we make full allowance for police overzeal, for inaccuracy of perception, for exaggeration, and even for deliberate lying on the part of the witnesses, we still have a sufficient body of evidence to justify the conviction of, at any rate, six of the seven appellants. All that the Court can do in such a case as the present is to conscientiously peruse the evidence, and after carefully considering the arguments both for the prosecution and for the defence, which affect its credibility, to say whether or not it believes that the accused are guilty. A perusal of the whole record convinces me that the Police investigation was honestly directed towards the discovery of the real offenders, and that the witnesses were desirous of bringing the real offenders to justice.

Appeal accepted in part.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 603 OF 1914.

January 12, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer, and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

In re MADIGA POTHUGADU—PRISONER —APPELLANT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 339—Forfeiture of pardon—Practice

Where an accomplice forfeits the pardon offered to him, it is the duty of the Sessions Judge to record a finding as to the forfeiture. It is not enough that the Committing Magistrate does so Appeal against the order of the Court of Session of the Cuddapah Division, in Case No. 45 of the Calendar for 1914.

Mr. P. R. Grant, for the Government.

JUDGMENT.—The Sessions Judge has not asked the prisoner whether he relies on the pardon granted to him and has not tried the issue whether the pardon has been forfeited. Kullan v. Emperor (1).

It is not enough that the Committing

(1) 2 Ind. Cas. 343; 32 M. 173; 9 Cr. L. J. 571.

ceedings under section 145 and to act against both opposing parties in the same proceedings under section 107, cf. the cases of Queen-Empress v. Nathu (7), Queen-Empress v. Abdul Kadir (8), Mahadeo Kunwar v. Bisu (3), Pran Krishna v. Emperor (9), Kamal Narain Chowdhry v. Emperor (10). If the Magistrate thinks it desirable to proceed against either of the parties concerned under section 107, this should be by separate proceedings against each in accordance with the provisions of sections 112 to 118 of the Code. It also appears that there was no information before the Magistrate, at the time that he passed his order, that the two Mirs, to whom notices have been issued, were likely personally to commit a breach of the peace or disturb the public tranquillity, as charged against them in the order. Even the subsequent application of the 8th July 1914 by certain haris of the Mirs does not allege this against them. They might no doubt be proceeded against as instigators, but if so, the information as to this should be clearly alleged in the order in accordance with section 112. As that section obviously implies and as ruled in In the matter of the petition of Jai Prakash Lal (11), the information must be of a clear and definite kind directly affecting the person against whom process is issued, and it should disclose tangible facts and details, so that it may afford notice to such person of what he is to come prepared to meet. I am not prepared to go so far as to say that these objections render this Magistrate's order absolutely illegal, and it may be remarked that, though the order in question was passed against the two parties jointly, it does not follow that the Magistrate has taken or intended to take proceedings under Chapter VIII against all together, instead of having separate proceedings in the case of each party or person. But I think this is a case where it is better to interfere with the contemplated proceedings at the beginning than at the end, when they might have to be upset as being irregular or illegal; and we are also assured that the danger of a breach of the peace on account of the alleged action of the Mirs in closing the canals or preventing cultivation is, at any rate for the present, now past. We, therefore, quash the latter part of the Magistrate's order, which he passed under section 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

CROUCH, A. J. C.—I concur in the proposed order. Section 435 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code must be strictly followed right up to its obvious limits. Once the local Magistrate is satisfied that a dispute likely to cause a breach of peace exists concerning any land or water or the boundaries thereof, he is bound to proceed under Chapter XII. But, as held by this Court in Criminal Revision Application No. 113 of 1906, the proceedings under Chapter XII referred to in section 435 (3) are proceedings "in a lawful and right sense," and, where the Magistrate purports to proceed under Chapter XII with reference to a dispute as to moveables only (Sadar Court Criminal Revision Application No. 43 of 1900), or mixes up several inquiries and purports to hold them all under Chapter XII, the High Court has power to interfere in order to limit the proceedings under Chapter XII to their proper scope.

Revision allowed in part.

(7) 6 A. 214.
(8) 9 A. 452, A.-W. N. (1887) 111.
(9) 8 C. W. N. 180; 1 Cr. L. J. 58.
(10) 11 C. W. N. 472; 5 C. L. J. 231; 5 Cr. L. J. 197.
(11) 6 A. 20.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 625 OF 1914.

January 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar.

In re NATESA PADAYACHI—PRISONER—APPELLANT.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 366—Kidnapping girl from lawful guardianship—Child temporarily in custody of maternal uncle—Mother resuming custody—Taking with mother's consent, whether amounts to offence.

Where the accused was charged with kidnapping a girl from the lawful guardianship of her maternal uncle and it appeared that the mother of the girl was present with the accused when he was leading the girl to a railway station, and consented to the girl's being so taken:

Held, (1) that the maternal uncle had ceased to have the girl under his guardianship and the mother had again taken custody of the girl as her guardian;

(2) that taking with her consent did not amount to an offence under section 366 of the Penal Code.

EMPEROR v. ASLUM.

Appeal against the order of the Court of Session of the Tanjore Division, in Case No. 45 of the Calendar for 1914.

The Hon'ble Mr. T. Richmond, for the Appellant.

The Public Prosecutor, for the Government.

JUDGMENT.—The appellant has been convicted under section 366 of the Indian Penal Code of having kidnapped a girl named Gnanambal on the 2nd day of June 1914 at Rajagiri from the lawful guardianship of her uncle, Venkatachala Padayachi, with intent or knowing it to be likely that she may be compelled to marry against her will The charge does not make it clear that she was to be compelled to marry against her will. The suggestion of the prosecution seems to be that she was to be compelled to marry the prisoner himself against her will, because the allegation is that he tied a tali round her neck after abducting her. This suggestion is prima facie rather improbable. The prisoner has got his wife living with him and there is also the evidence on the side of the defence indicating that the girl had been promised in marriage to the prisonser's brother and that the father of the girl had been given parisam and jewels in connection with that contemplated marriage. There is also a rival candidate for the hand of the girl, namely, the brother of P. W. No. 1, who is her maternal uncle, and who is said to have had the girl in his guardianship at the time of the alleged offence. It is a curious fact (admitted by the prosecution) that both on the day previous to the date of the alleged offence and also on the day subsequent to the date of the alleged offence, the girl's mother, P. W. No. 8, was at the village of Rajagiri where the alleged offence took place. The story that P. W. No. 8 had gone to that village before the date of the offence from her own village (about 18 miles distant from Rajagiri) in order to see if she could secure a wife for P. W. No. 1 is not worth a moment's belief. Her story that, though she was in Rajagiri on the previous day, she left for some other village eight miles off before the hour of the alleged offence and then returned next day to Rajagiri is, again, very improbable. The prisoner's statement corroborated by the evidence on the side of the defence that the prisoner and the girl's mother went to Rajagiri from their own village of Thiruvesanallur to take the girl from Rajagiri to the prisoner's village in order to have the marriage with the prisoner's brother celebrated in accordance with the previous contract entered into between the prisoner and the girl's parents, is much more probable. The evidence of P. W. No. 4 also shows that at the time of the alleged offence, the girl's mother was at the place of the offence and that her story that she was absent is, in all probability, a falsehood. I think that the evidence as to the tying of tali is not true. If (as I find) the mother was present with the accused when the accused was leading the girl in broad daylight towards the railway station at Rajagiri and consented to the girl's being so taken, P. W. No. 1 had ceased to have the girl under his guardianship and the mother had again taken custody of the girl as her guardian. This case brought on the footing that P. W. No. 1 continued to be the girl's guardian at the time of the offence cannot, therefore, stand. I, therefore, reverse the conviction and sentence and direct the bail bond to be cancelled.

Conviction set aside.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 61 OF 1914.

August 27, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Fawcett, J. C., and Mr. Crump, A. J. C.

EMPEROR—APPELLANT

versus

ASLUM valad GUL MAHOMED—AND OTHERS—ACCUSED—RESPONDENTS.

Bombay Gambling Act (IV of 1887), ss. 5, 6—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 1 (2), 103, 243—Search under Gambling Act—Mashira, absence of, effect of—Accused pleading guilty—Magistrate, duty of, to convict.

THUMBALABED HAMPANNA v. PARISI GANGAMMA.

All searches under a special or local law are not to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code and, therefore, the absence of Mashirs at a search held under the Bombay Gambling Act, 1887, does not make the search illegal.

Where an accused pleads guilty but shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate should not acquit him.

Appeal against the order of the City Magistrate, Karachi.

Mr. E. Raymond, Public Prosecutor, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal made by the Public Prosecutor on behalf of the Local Government from an order of the City Magistrate, Karachi, acquitting the 10 accused of the offence of gaming in a common gaming house under section 5 of Bombay Act IV of 1887. Accused No. 10 was also accused of an offence under section 4.

The accused Nos. 9 and 10 are recorded to have pleaded guilty to the offence under section 5, but the Magistrate refused to accept it, being of opinion that it was not a genuine plea and that they only did so because they thought they might thereby gain an advantage in certain other Police proceedings against them. No statement of this kind is, however, recorded as having been made by either of these two accused, as should have been done if any such statement were made under sections 243 and 263 (g) of the Criminal Procedure Code, and we must presume that the plea was an unreserved and voluntary one. As the two accused showed no sufficient cause why they should not be convicted, the Magistrate should have convicted them accordingly under section 243.

The Magistrate acquitted the other accused on the ground that no Mashirs were present at the search, and in his opinion all searches must be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. This opinion is clearly erroneous (as already ruled by this Court in Criminal Revision Application No. 22 of 1902 of 16th July 1902) in view of the provisions of section 6 (d) of Bombay Act IV of 1887, and sections 1 (2) and 103 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

The evidence against the accused, coupled with the presumption arising against them under section 7 of the Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act, clearly proves their guilt, and we accordingly convict all the accused (except No. 8 who has not been served) and sentence each of accused Nos. 1 to 7 and 9 to pay a fine of Rs. 5, in default to suffer five days' rigorous imprisonment, and accused No. 10 to pay a fine of Rs. 10, in default to suffer rigorous imprisonment for seven days.

Order reversed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 321 OF 1914.

February 10, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

THUMBALABED HAMPANNA—APPELLANT

versus

PARISI GANGAMMA AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENTS.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 145, 146—Magistrate, duty of, to find who is in possession on date of his order—Previous possession, effect of—Order under s. 146, when ultra vires.

Under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure a Magistrate should find as to who is in actual possession of the property in dispute on the date of his order, not on any date anterior to that, although previous possession may be a guide to his finding peaceful and actual possession on the date.

An order under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, would be ultra vires, unless the Magistrate records a finding that he is unable to find which party is in actual possession under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code.

Appeal, under section 15 of the Letters Patent, against the decision of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Ayling in Criminal Revision Case No. 416 of 1914, preferred to the High Court to revise the order of the Deputy Magistrate of Adoni in Miscellaneous Case No. 3 of 1914.

FACTS.—After the death of one Narasinga and his wife, a dispute arose as to the possession of the property between Narasamma, mother-in-law of Narasinga, and Gangamma, the widow of a brother of Narasinga. The Magistrate of Adoni found Gangamma in possession of the property and he found also that Narasamma's alienees had harvested the crops without disturbance. The Magistrate issued an order attaching the property under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, holding that he was unable to find who was in possession of the property when he passed the order. The revision petition to the High Court is against that order passed by the Magistrate.

Mr. R. Kuppusami Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Dr. S. Swaminadhan, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary objection was taken that no Letters Patent Appeal lies, as there was no judgment by the learned Judge. We overrule this objection.

The property in dispute in these proceedings originally belonged to Narasamma. She is said to have made a gift of it to her son-in-law, Narasinga, and to her daughter, Basamma. Both these latter died in September 1913 within a few days of each other. The petitioner in the Court below and the respondent in this Court obtained a sale-deed of the property from one Gangamma, the widow of the divided brother of Narasinga. The appellant purchased the property from the original owner, Narasamma, and from a dayadhi of the deceased Narasinga on the 27th January 1914. On the death of the last owner Narasinga, disputes as to the possession of the properties arose between Gangamma, the brother's widow, on the one hand and Narasamma, the mother-in-law, on the other. The respondent complained to the Magistrate that on the 4th of February 1914, the appellant unlawfully trespassed upon property in his possession and that he has been creating disturbance. He further stated that he apprehended a disturbance of the peace in consequence of the wrongful acts of the appellant and another who was the second counter-petitioner in the Court below. The Magistrate passed an order on the 22nd February 1914, to the effect that he was satisfied that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace existed and called upon the parties to produce evidence regarding possession. He found that the evidence regarding the enjoyment of the property by Gangamma "up to date" is very doubtful and held that the possession of her alleged vendee was also not established. As regards the appellant he found against the forcible entry on the 4th of February, as alleged in the petition by the other party, and said that "it is difficult to say in whose possession the lands were in the interval", that is, between the 27th January 1914, which was the date of the sale, and the 4th February 1914, which was the date on which he found that the appellant was peacefully picking the cotton on the land. Nowhere in his judgment does he make any reference to the 20th February 1914, which was the date of his order and on which date under section 145, clause 4, he had to find who was in actual possession. It was no doubt open to him to say that, notwithstanding that the appellant was in possession on the 4th February 1914, he has not been shown to have been in possession on the later date, namely, 20th February 1914. But under the Code of Criminal Procedure he has to find as to who was in possession on the date of his order, not on any date anterior to that, although previous possession may be a guide to his finding as to peaceful and actual possession on the date of his order.

We must hold that he failed to exercise his jurisdiction, as he has failed to give a finding as required by law regarding possession of both or either of the counter-petitioners on the date of the order. Section 146, which refers back to possession under section 145, should not have been applied until a finding had been arrived at that the Magistrate was unable to find which of the disputing parties was in possession of the property on the date of his preliminary order. His order attaching the property under section 146 is, therefore, ultra vires and illegal. We must set it aside without prejudice, if he thinks desirable, to his taking such further action as he thinks fit in the matter. We will make no order as to costs.

Order set aside.

KANHI RAM v. DURGA PRASAD.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 62 OF 1914.

January 22, 1915.

Present:—Sir Henry Richards, KT., Chief Justice, and Justice Sir P. C. Banerji, KT.

KANHI RAM—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

DURGA PRASAD AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 95—Suit between rival claimants to tenancy—Cognisable by Civil Court—Jurisdiction—Res judicata.

Section 95 of the Agra Tenancy Act deals with questions arising between landlord and tenant, and not between rival claimants to a tenancy.

Therefore, a suit between rival claimants to a tenancy that the plaintiff is entitled to it is cognisable by a Civil Court.

A decree of a Revenue Court in a previous suit, holding that the plaintiff was the sub-tenant of the defendant in respect of the holding, does not operate as res judicata in the plaintiff's suit in the Civil Court to establish his claim to the holding.

Jagar Nath v. Ajudhya Singh, 17 Ind. Cas. 876; 10 A L. J 408; 35 A. 14, Dewan Singh v. Randhera, 26 Ind Cas 718; 12 A. L. J. 1322, referred to.

Letters Patent Appeal against the decision of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Sundar Lal, in Second Appeal No. 1377 of 1913, dated 16th of July 1914.

FACTS.—The defendant in the present suit brought a suit in the Revenue Court for ejectment of the present plaintiff, on the allegation that he was his sub-tenant, and obtained a decree. Thereupon the plaintiff instituted a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that he was the occupancy tenant and the defendant was a mere trespasser. Both the Courts below dismissed the suit on the ground that the decision of the Revenue Court was inter partes and operated as res judicata. In second appeal, Mr. Justice Sundar Lal set aside the decision of the Courts below and remanded the case for trial on the merits.

The defendant went up in appeal under section 10 of the Letters Patent.

Mr. Lakshmi Narayan, for the Appellant, contended that the present suit was not maintainable, by reason of the fact that the status of the parties had been determined by the Revenue Court which was competent to decide that question. The decision had become final and was binding on the Civil Court.

He relied on Maharaja Vizianagram v. Ohhango Kurmi (1), Ram Dei Kuari v. Bindesri Upadhaya (2), Sheo Prakash v. Karna (3) and Asad Ali v. Anand Sarup (4), Second Appeal No. 1001 of 1911 decided by Chamier, J.

Moreover the granting of a declaration by the Civil Court will be wholly infructuous as the Revenue Court cannot go behind its own decree.

That a suit between rival tenants is maintainable in the Civil Court is no doubt true; but it has to be proved in the present suit that the plaintiff is a tenant. This cannot be proved, as the Revenue Court has held that he is not a tenant.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit which was brought under the following circumstances:—

The defendant in the present suit brought a suit in the Revenue Court against the plaintiff in the present suit, alleging that he was his sub-tenant and seeking to eject him. The Revenue Court granted him a decree. The defendant in the Revenue Court then brought the present suit, in which he claimed that he was entitled to a certain occupancy holding and for possession if he was found not to be in possession. There are other claims which may be disregarded for the purpose of our present judgment. Both the Courts below dismissed the plaintiff's claim, on the ground that the suit was not maintainable. It was contended that the decision of the Revenue Court operated as res judicata and that in any event the present suit was one which could not be maintained in a Civil Court.

On second appeal a learned Judge of this Court held with some reluctance that having regard to the rulings of this Court, the decision of the Court below was wrong and he accordingly allowed the appeal and remanded the suit for disposal on the merits. It seems to us that the decision of the learned Judge of this Court was correct.

(1) 6 Ind Cas 834; 7 A L. J. 555.
(2) 11 Ind Cas 287; 8 A. L J. 940.
(3) 21 Ind. Cas 2; 11 A L J 671; 35 A. 464
(4) 27 Ind Cas. 35; 12 A L. J. 1238.

The plaintiff in the present suit does not allege the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant between himself and the defendant. His claim is that he is the owner of a certain occupancy tenancy and that the defendant is a trespasser. True it is that if the plaintiff in the present suit is successful, the decision in his favour will be inconsistent with the decision of the Revenue Court in favour of the defendant. It seems to us, however, quite clear that the decision of the Revenue Court cannot be relied upon as res judicata, because the Revenue Court was not competent to try the present suit. If the decision of the Revenue Court cannot be successfully pleaded as res judicata, then that decision does not render the present suit unmaintainable.

It is next contended that the existing relation between the plaintiff and defendant is one of the matters which could be decided under section 95 of the Tenancy Act. In our opinion this section deals with questions arising between landlord and tenant and not between rival claimants to a tenancy. We have already decided the very point in the case of Jagar Nath v. Ajudhya Singh (5).

The decision in the case of Dewan Singh v. Randhera (6) is relied upon by the appellant. The learned Judge in that case seems to have been of opinion that the question of title to an occupancy holding arising between rival claimants could be dealt with by the Revenue Court under section 95 of the Tenancy Act. The attention of the learned Judge does not appear to have been drawn to the decision in Jagar Nath v. Ajudhya Singh (5) and it is certainly inconsistent with it. We dismiss the appeal, but without costs as no one appears for the other side.

Appeal dismissed.

(5) 17 Ind. Cas. 376; 10 A. L. J. 408; 35 A. 14.
(6) 26 Ind. Cas. 718; 12 A. L. J. 1322.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 273 OF 1914.
February 5, 1915.

Present:—Justice Sir P. C. Banerji, KT.

BALBHADDAR CHAUBEY—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

SOMAROO RAI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 190), ss. 79, 81—Dispossession of tenant by zemindar through another tenant—Limitation—Rival claimants to tenancy, suit between—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court—Res judicata.

A suit between rival claimants to a tenancy can only be brought in a Civil Court, and not in a Revenue Court. Therefore, a decision of the Revenue Court in a suit for rent between rival claimants to a tenancy would not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit in the Civil Court between the same parties.

Where a lessee from the zemindar dispossess a previous lessee, the dispossession of the latter must be deemed to be a dispossession by the zemindar through his tenant. The remedy of the dispossessed lessee is a suit under section 79 of the Tenancy Act within six months of the dispossession.

Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal, 27 A. 372; 2 A. L. J. 69; A. W. N. (1904) 148; Sokhni v. Ram Persad, 7 Ind. Cas. 486, referred to.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge of Ghazipur, dated the 15th November 1913.

FACTS.—The plaintiff brought a suit for possession of certain plots of land in the Civil Court, on the allegation that he had been dispossessed by the defendants in 1909. The plaintiff had been put in possession of the plots in 1904 as a lessee by defendant No. 2, who subsequently gave another lease to defendant No. 1 in 1906. Defendant No. 2 sold the zemindari to defendants Nos. 3 to 7 in the year 1908. Defendant No. 1, the subsequent lessee, contested the suit on the ground, among others, that the suit was not cognizable by the Civil Court; that section 79 of Act II of 1901 barred the suit; and that the suit in respect of certain plots was barred by res judicata, by reason of the fact that the contesting defendant had obtained a decree against the plaintiff for arrears of rent and the present plaintiff's status had been determined by the Revenue Court to be that of a shikmi tenant. The Court of first instance held that section 79 did not apply, but that the suit in respect of certain plots was barred by res judicata, BALBHADDAR CHAUBEY v. SOMAROO RAI.

Both the parties appealed and the lower Appellate Court decreed the whole claim. The defendant No. 1 appealed to the High Court.

Mr. Parmeshwar Dyal, for the Appellant:—On the plaintiff's own allegation, he was dispossessed by the semindar. In any event, the semindar having given a second lease to the defendant and the latter having admittedly dispossessed the plaintiff, it must be taken that the plaintiff was dispossessed by the semindar through the subsequent lessee. The cause of action as alleged by the plaintiff himself arose in 1909. The plaintiff ought to have brought his suit within six months of his dispossession. He relied on Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal (1). This case he submitted had been followed in Sokhai v. Ram Pershad (2). The plaintiff not having brought his suit within six months. his right to the holding became extinguished. He referred to Dalip Rai v. Deoki Rai (3). He further referred to Bani Bai v. Parbati (4), Maula v. Bahala (5), Sri Mahant Bramha Khushal v. Sumera (6), Hoymobutty Dossee v. Sreekishen Nundee (7), Bissessur Kurmokar v. Juggobundoo Kurmokar (8).

The suit in respect of three plots, viz., Nos. 116, 2939 and 165, was barred by res judicata, because the Revenue Court in a previous litigation between the parties had decided that the plaintiff was the shikmi tenant of the present defendant. The status of the parties having been once determined by a competent Court, it was not open to the plaintiff to question that decision in the Civil Court. In fact the Civil Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit.

Mr. Lakshmi Narayan, for the Respondent:—The real question is as to whether the Civil Court has jurisdiction or not. He submitted that the dispute being one between rival claimants to a holding, such a suit was exclusively cognisable by the Civil Court. The latest case on the point was the case of Kanhi Ram v. Durga Prasad (9). As to the question of limitation, he submitted, that the suit being cognisable by the Civil Court and being for possession of immoveable property, 12 years' limitation ought to apply. Section 79 of Act II of 1901 was intended to protect the rights of the semindar. In this case two of the semindars actually came forward and supported the plaintiff's claim, while the rest did not contest it. It was not open to the subsequent lessee to take advantage of the provisions of section 79 of Act II of 1901.

In Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal (1) there was an actual ouster of the tenant by the semindar, while in the present case there is no direct dispossession. The semindars in the present suit are, merely pro forma defendants and no relief is sought against them. It is the semindars alone who can raise the defence of limitation.

JUDGMENT.—This and the connected Appeal No. 274 of 1914 arise out of a suit brought by the plaintiff Somaroo Rai for possession of nine plots of land under the following circumstances. The land in dispute lies in the semindari of Lachhmi Narain, who granted him a lease of the said plots for a term of 16 years on the 11th of January 1904. On February 12th, 1906, the same Lachhmi Narain granted a perpetual lease to the appellant, Balbhaddar Chanbe, in respect of the said lands and other property and he got mutation of names effected in favour of Balbhaddar. Subsequently in 1908 he sold his semindari to the other defendants. Balbhaddar brought a suit in the Revenue Court against the present plaintiff for arrears of rent in respect of three out of the disputed plots, namely, Nos. 116, 165 and 2939, on the allegation that the plaintiff was his sub-tenant. He obtained a decree on the 13th of January 1913. It is stated in the plaint that suits were brought for arrears of rent in respect of some of the other plots against shikmi tenants holding those plots and decrees were obtained against them. All this, according to the allegations in the plaint, took place before 1909. The plaintiff states that these acts amounted to his dispossession and he accordingly brought the present suit for recovery of possession and damages in the Civil Court. The defend-

(1) 27 A. 372; 2 A. L. J. 69; A. W. N. (1904) 281.
(2) 7 Ind. Cas. 486.
(3) 21 A. 204; A. W. N. (1899) 38.
(4) A. W. N. (1893) 196.
(5) 19 A. 34; A. W. N. (1896) 169.
(6) 18 Ind. 967; 11 A. L. J. 310, 35 A. 290.
(7) 14 W. R. 58 at p 59.
(8) 14 W. R. 183.
(9) 27 Ind. Cas. 913; 13 A. L. J. 278.

ants to the suit are Balbhaddar, the subsequent lessee, Lachhmi Narain, the former zemindar, and the purchasers of the zemindari from Lachhmi Narain. The Court of first instance dismissed the claim in respect of the three plots Nos. 116, 165 and 2939 and decreed it in regard to the remaining plots. The claim for damages was dismissed. The plaintiff filed an appeal as regards the portion of the claim dismissed and Balbhaddar appealed against that portion of the decree which decreed the claim in respect of the plots other than the three plots mentioned above. The learned Judge allowed the appeal of the plaintiff and dismissed the appeal preferred by Balbhaddar; so that it decreed the plaintiff's claim for possession of all the nine plots. The defendant Balbhaddar has preferred these appeals. As regards the three plots Nos. 116, 165 and 2939, the contention put forward on his behalf is that the decision of the Revenue Court in the suit for arrears of rent operates as res judicata between the appellant, Balbhaddar, and the plaintiff, Somaroo. This contention has, in my opinion, been rightly disallowed by the Court below. So far as these plots are concerned, the claim is between rival claimants to the tenancy and such a claim could only be brought in the Civil Court and not in the Revenue Court. This has been held in several cases to which I need not refer. The subsequent suit now brought could not be brought in a Court of Revenue and consequently the decision of that Court in the previous suit was not the decision of a Court competent to try the subsequent suit. As regards the remaining plots, the main contention is that the plaintiff has lost his title to the tenancy created in his favour under the lease granted to him on the 11th of January 1904 by reason of lapse of time. It is urged that the plaintiff was dispossessed from these plots so far back as 1906 and as he did not bring a suit to recover possession as against his landlord and the lessee from the landlord under section 79 of the Tenancy Act within six months from the date of his dispossession, his right to the tenancy no longer subsists. It was admitted by the Pleader for the plaintiff in the Court of first instance in a statement recorded on the 4th of June 1913 that the three plots Nos. 116, 165 and 2939 were in the actual cultivation of the plaintiff and that the remaining plots were cultivated by sub-tenants. It was stated that the plaintiff received rent from these tenants for two years, i.e., from 1904 to 1906, and that since the year 1906 the rent payable by the sub-tenants holding the six plots has been realized by the appellant Balbhaddar. It is contended, as I have said above, that the realization of rent by Balbhaddar amounted to a dispossession by the landholder and as this took place long before the institution of the present suit, the plaintiff's right has become extinguished. This contention is supported by the ruling of this Court in Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal (1). In that case the learned Judge who decided it held as follows:—"When a landholder lets land in the occupation of a tenant to a third party and that third party, acting under the land-holders' authority, takes possession of the land, then in my opinion the tenant must be deemed to have been ousted by the land-holder, and his remedy is a suit under section 79 of Act II of 1901, the person claiming through the land-holder being joined as a defendant to the suit under the provisions of section 81 of the Act. Such a suit must be brought within six months of the date of dispossession." This view appears to have been accepted by Mr. Justice Chamier in a case reported in 7 Indian Cases, page 486 [Sokhai v. Ram Pershad (2), Second Appeal No. 1139 of 1909, decided on July 11th, 1910]. The fact that on the plaintiff's own showing the rent payable by the tenants occupying the six plots mentioned above has been realized by Balbhaddar since the year 1906 by virtue of the lease granted to him by the zemindar, shows that the plaintiff was dispossessed so far back as 1906 and this dispossession must be deemed to be a dispossession by the zemindar through his tenant. It appears from the provisions of section 81 of the Tenancy Act that when a tenant is dispossessed by a person claiming through the zemindar, the tenant's remedy is a suit under the Tenancy Act for recovery of possession against the zemindar and the person claiming through him. Therefore the plaintiff's right to recover possession of the six plots having accrued long prior to six months antecedent to the date of the suit, the right to bring such a suit for recovery of possession has become time-barred. This circumstance not only barred his remedy but extinguished his right, as held in Dalip Rai v. Deoki Rai (3). That the dispossession of the plaintiff was a dispossession by the zemindar is also manifest from the fact that in the plaint itself it is stated that the zemindar brought suits for rent against some of the tenants holding the plots in question and obtained decrees and that the plaintiff himself regarded this as amounting to his dispossession. Furthermore, he has claimed relief not only against Balbhaddar but also against the zemindars, defendants. The plaintiff has thus ceased to have any right to the six plots other than the three plots numbered 116, 165 and 2939. The claim as regards those three plots has been rightly decreed and this appeal must fail. The connected appeal must prevail. I accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

Appeal No. 273 dismissed;
Appeal No. 274 allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.
CIVIL RULE No. 1302 OF 1914.
February 2, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice D. Chatterjee and Mr. Justice Chapman.

SIVAPROSAD RAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—PETITIONERS

versus

TRICOMDAS COVERJE BHOJA—DEFENDANT No. 1—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 10, scope of—Jurisdiction—Res judicata—Title—Issue—Parties—Charter Act, 1861, s. 15.

Section 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, requires, among other things, that the suit should be between parties litigating under the same title and the issue should be the same in both suits.

A Court has no jurisdiction to decide the question of res judicata in a proceeding under section 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Its only jurisdiction in the proceeding is to stop the new suit if it finds the existence of the circumstances mentioned in the section as conditions precedent to the passing of the order.

A High Court can interfere under section 15 of the Charter Act with interlocutory orders when they might lead to failure of justice or irreparable injury.

Dhapi v. Ram Pershad, 14 C. 768; Gobinda Mohun v. Kunja Behari, 4 Ind. Cas. 364, 10 C. L. J. 407; 14 C. W. N 147 and Amjad Ali v. Ali Hussain Johar, 6 Ind. Cas. 574, 15 C. W. N. 353; 12 C. L. J. 519, followed.

Civil Rule against an order of the Subordinate Judge, Burdwan, dated the 17th December 1914.

Babus Bipin Behary Ghose and Mohini Nath Bose, for the Petitioners.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose, Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitter and Babu Tarakeswar Pal Chowdhury, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.

D. CHATTERJEE, J.—The petitioners and the opposite party hold two contiguous collieries under the Maharaja of Pachoti. The Maharaja brought a suit, No. 391 of 1910, in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Burdwan against the opposite party for the recovery of extra royalty for coal said to have been appropriated by him by encroaching on the lands of the colliery of the petitioners who were made pro forma defendants. The claim was based on the terms of the contract entered into by the opposite party with the Maharaja. In that suit the opposite party pleaded that the encroachment, if any, was made not by him, but by his vendor who was not a party to the said suit. One of the issues in that suit was whether the opposite party had made any encroachment on the lands of the petitioners and the Court found that they had. Pending the decision of that suit, the petitioners brought the present suit in the same Court against the opposite party as defendant No. 1 and his vendor as defendant No. 2 for damages for the encroachment found in the previous suit as well as further encroachment and loss caused by flooding the petitioners' mine and other reliefs. The opposite party also filed a suit against the petitioners making counter-charges of encroachment. These two fresh counter-suits were ordered to be tried together. The opposite party then made an application under section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code for stopping the suit of the petitioners and the learned Subordinate Judge has passed an order which has the effect of stopping the trial of the petitioners' suit for an indefinite time, whilst the opposite party is at liberty to proceed with his suit against the petitioners. The petitioners obtained this Rule on the ground that the order was incompetent, illegal and irregular. I think that the order made by the learned Subordinate Judge ought not to stand. Section 10 of the Civil Procedure

Code requires among other things that the suits should be between parties litigating under the same title. The Maharaja was suing in the previous suit as landlord for royalty under contract and the present suit is by one tenant of the Maharaja against another and based on tort. Then again the issue can hardly be said to be the same, as the encroachment charged in this suit covers a larger area than that found in the prior suit. This is quite sufficient to take the case out of the purview of section 10, but the learned Subordinate Judge says he is clearly of opinion that the decision in the previous suit would operate as res judicata between the two defendants in that case and would, therefore, bar this suit. I do not think it proper to express any opinion on this point at this stage of the case and the learned Subordinate Judge was not called upon to express the opinion that he has expressed in this connection in a proceeding under section 10.

It is contended by the learned Vakil for the opposite party that we cannot interfere with the order of the Court below, as it does not violate any rule of jurisdiction. Reliance is placed on the decision of the Privy Council in the case of Amir Hussan Khan v. Sheo Baksh Singh (1). It is also contended that the case has not been decided and we have no jurisdiction to interfere with an interlocutory order.

As regards the question of jurisdiction I feel difficulty. The learned Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to decide the question of res judicata in a proceeding under section 10. His only jurisdiction in this proceeding was to stop the new suit if he found the existence of the circumstances mentioned in the section as conditions precedent to the passing of the order. He has come to no finding as to whether the parties were litigating under the same title. If he had come to a finding, right or wrong, that would have been another matter, but he has come to none and I think he had no jurisdiction to pass the order: but supposing he had the jurisdiction, he has exercised it in violation of the provisions of the law and under a misapprehension of the question at issue and has, therefore, acted with material irregularity in the exercise of his jurisdiction. See Venkubai v. Lakshman (2), Sew Bux Bogla v. Shib Chunder Sen (3), Jugobundhu Pattuck v. Jadu Ghose Alkushi (4), Tarini Charan v. Chandra Kumar Dey (5).

As regards the second objection there is ample authority in this Court for our interference with interlocutory orders when they might lead to failure of justice or irreparable injury. See Dhapi v. Ram Pershad (6), Gobinda Mohan v. Kunja Behari (7), Amjad Ali v. Ali Hussain Johar (8). Even if it were doubtful whether section 115 does empower us to interfere in a case of this kind, I think that our powers under section 15 of the Charter Act are wide enough to enable us to do justice. In this case the opposite party may go on encroaching on the petitioners' land, he may flood the petitioners' mine or even let down the surface and make investigation impossible and yet the petitioners would not have a word to say until the previous suit is finally decided years later when investigation may be impossible, when evidence may have disappeared and when a decree may be nugatory; and while the petitioners are thus handicapped by the order of the Court, the opposite party may run his own suit against the petitioners unhampered by either the suit of the Maharaja or the suit of the petitioners. I cannot conceive of a greater injustice and I have no hesitation in setting aside the order of the learned Subordinate Judge and making the Rule absolute with costs, five gold mohurs.

CHAPMAN, J.—I agree.

Rule made absolute.

(1) 11 C. 6; 11 I. A. 237; 4 Sar. P. C. J 559; Rafique and Jackson's P. C. No. 83.

(2) 12 B. 617.
(3) 13 C. 225.
(4) 15 C 47.
(5) 6 Ind. Cas. 193; 14 C. W. N 788; 12 C. L. J. 1.
(6) 14 C 768.
(7) 4 Ind. Cas 364; 14 C. W. N. 147; 10 C. L. J. 407
(8) 6 Ind. Cas. 574, 15 C. W. N. 853; 12 C. L. J. 519.

SADINI KONDAYYA v. KOSAGANI PEDASWAMY.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 71 OF 1914.

November 4, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield.

SADINI KONDAYYA—PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER

versus

KOSAGANI PEDASWAMY AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886), s. 22—License to sell toddy, transfer of—Promissory note given in consideration, legality of.

A promissory note given in consideration of the transfer of a right to sell toddy prohibited under section 21 of the Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886) is unenforceable, as being for an illegal consideration.

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the decree of the Court of the District Munsif of Kovur, in Small Cause Suit No. 20 of 1913.

Mr. B. Narasimha Rao, for the Petitioner.

Mr. V. Ramadoss, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The lower Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the suit promissory note was not enforceable, being given as part of a contract forbidden by Act I of 1886.

There is no doubt that the note was given as consideration for the transfer to the defendant of the plaintiff's rights under a toddy lease. It is urged that such a transfer is permitted by section 22 of the Act and that the question whether the plaintiff obtained a license from the defendant does not arise in this connection, but could arise only in connection with the latter's enjoyment of the right transferred to him. It is clear that in this case the transfer to the defendant was intended to be absolute and that it was not conditional on any further license in his name being obtained. The lower Court has found this and it appears from the terms of Exhibit I and the plaintiff's statement made after the lease had terminated. In these circumstances there can be no doubt as to the character of the transaction between the parties or as to the correctness of the lower Court's finding that the consideration for Exhibit A was illegal. The civil revision petition fails and is dismissed with costs.

Petition dismissed.

Musammat BAYABAI v. PURSHOTTAM.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 41B OF 1913.

November 12, 1913.

Present:—Mr. Mittra, Offg. A. J. C.

Musammat BAYABAI—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

PURSHOTTAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r 2, 5—Payment made out of Court—Certified in Court by decree-holder on application by judgment-debtor—Payment in Court.

Where an application is made to Court within the period allowed by Article 174 of the Limitation Act to compel the decree-holder to certify the payment made out of Court in satisfaction of a mortgage-decree, the payment, if proved, must be recorded and then it will in law be treated as a payment in Court within the meaning of Order XXXIV, rule 2 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Appeal against the decree of the Additional District Judge, East Berar, dated the 23rd October 1912, confirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Amraoti, dated the 14th October 1911.

Dr. H. S. Gour, for the Appellant.

The Hon'ble Sir Bipin Krishna Bose and Mr. K. W. Brahma, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a second appeal against a decree absolute for foreclosure. Both the lower Courts have refused to extend time for payment of the decretal amount. It is contended on behalf of the respondents that the law contemplates only one appeal from an order refusing to extend time and that it is not competent to the appellant to challenge the order passed by the lower Appellate Court by way of appeal, even though in point of form this is an appeal from the final decree. The appellant points out some verbal changes made in the new Code. His Counsel relies on the wording of section 104 (2):—"No appeal shall lie from an order passed in appeal under this section", whereas the Code of 1882, section 588, declared that orders passed in appeals shall be final. A similar alteration in the language has been made in the Chapter relating to review (cf. section 629 of the old Code with Order XLVII, rule 7). I do not think it necessary to decide this question, as, assuming that I have the power under my appellate or revisional jurisdiction to interfere with the orders passed by the Courts below, no case has been made out for such interference.

The appellant's application to have the ex parte decree nisi set aside was dismissed on the 21st March 1911 and there is no explanation of any kind on the record for the delay till the 27th July 1911. In this view the appeal would have failed, but there is another point raised on which I think the appellant is entitled to a remand. It is alleged that Rs. 1,800 (more than the amount due under the decree) was paid to the mortgagees on the 28th July 1911 in satisfaction of the mortgage-decree. On the 16th August 1911 the appellant's son, the first defendant, applied to the Court to have an inquiry made into this alleged payment of Rs. 1,800 to the decree-holders. On the 14th October 1911 the Subordinate Judge held that "a payment out of Court is no payment at all and that it could not be recognised by the Court (vide Order XXXIV, rule 5, Civil Procedure Code)." The Court then refused to make an inquiry, and it would appear that the parties and their Pleaders acquiesced in this decision as correct. It has now been challenged before me, and I think the parties are not bound by an admission on a point of law, if the admission is erroneous. Assuming that the interpretation put by the Subordinate Judge on the wording of Order XXXIV, rule 5, is correct, an application was made to the Court on the 16th August 1911 within the period allowed by Article 174 of the Limitation Act to compel the decree-holders to certify the payment. This was an application under Order XXI, rule 2, which applies to a decree of any kind including a mortgage-decree. If the alleged payment is proved, the Court is bound to record the same and upon such a record being made, the payment will in law be treated as a payment in Court. If such a payment out of Court is accepted by a decree-holder, he must be taken to have condoned the delay and the Court will not pass a decree absolute for foreclosure. This view appears to me to be in accordance with the Civil Procedure Code, for it is difficult to believe that the Legislature meant to prohibit altogether payment out of Court. I need not say what equities may arise when no such application is made by the debtor within the period allowed by Article 174 of the Limitation Act. If no payment as alleged is proved, the appeal will be dismissed, and if the payment is proved, the appellant has a right to take advantage of a payment made by her co-mortgagor. The lower Appellate Court will now frame an issue as to whether Rs. 1,800 was paid to the decree-holders in satisfaction of the mortgage-decree on the 28th July 1911. Evidence may be taken in the first Court if found more convenient. The finding on this issue together with the evidence is to be returned by the 15th January 1914. One week will be allowed for filing objections and the case will be finally disposed of on the 26th January 1914.

Case remanded.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1626 OF 1913.

November 25, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Hannay.

CHENGALAVALA GURRAZU AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

MADAPATI VENKATESWARA ROW PANTHULU GARU AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 4—Consideration paid, nonetheless an easement.

The mere fact that the owner of the dominant tenement paid something to the owner of the servient tenement periodically for the enjoyment of the right to do something upon the servient tenement is not inconsistent with the right claimed coming under the definition of "easement". An easement right can be conferred by the owner of the servient tenement for cash consideration and whether that cash consideration takes the shape of a sum paid once for all or paid from time to time cannot make any difference in the legal nature of the right conferred on the dominant tenement.

Second appeal against the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Masulipatam, in Appeal Suit No. 6 of 1913, preferred against that of the Additional District Munsif of Masulipatam, in Original Suit No. 561 of 1909.

FACTS.—Exhibit A, the rasinamah decree, gave the plaintiffs right to take water from the plaint tank for irrigating their lands in consideration of a recurring payment. It was entered into with a predecessor-in-title of the defendants. The plaintiffs claim an irrevocable right to take water on payment by virtue of the easement granted. The defendants contended it was only a license to use water and was revokeable.

Messrs. V. Ramesam and V. Ramadoss, for the Appellants.

Mr. A. Krishnasamy Iyer, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The only question in this case is whether the plaintiffs by the terms of the rasinamah decree (Exhibit A) obtained an irrevocable right to take water from the plaint tanks for the irrigation of the three lands mentioned in the said rasinamah, a right irrevocable not only by the then owner of the tanks, but by the subsequent assignees of the ownership of the tanks from that owner.

Having heard the terms of Exhibit A, fully analysed and commented upon by both sides, we are clearly of opinion that a right of easement was created and declared in favour of the defendants' three lands (which became dominant tenements) to take water from the plaint tanks (which became the servient tenements in relation to the defendants' lands).

In this view it is unnecessary to consider the question whether if the grant to the defendants under Exhibit A was merely the grant of a license, it could be revoked by the grantor himself (section 60 of the Easements Act) or at least by the grantor's assignee or whether the provisions of section 40 of the Transfer of Property Act, paragraph II (which deals with the benefit of an obligation not amounting to an interest in land or an easement in land), apply to this case.

The mere fact that the owner of the dominant tenement has to pay something to the owner of the servient tenement. periodically for the enjoyment of the right to do something upon the servient tenement is not inconsistent with the right claimed coming under the definition of "easement." An easement right can be conferred by the owner of the servient tenement for cash consideration and whether that cash consideration takes the shape of a sum paid in cash once for all or paid from time to time cannot, in our opinion, make any difference in the legal nature of the right conferred on the dominant tenement.

We, therefore, reverse the decrees of the lower Courts and give a decree for the plaintiffs for the reliefs claimed by them with costs throughout on the defendants.

Decree reversed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST ORDER No. 59 OF 1914.

December 16, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Napier

GOPAMMAL—RESPONDENT No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

V. SREENIVASA IYENGAR AND ANOTHER—RESPONDENTS.

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 34, 47—Order fixing amount of maintenance etc. of ward, whether appealable—Statute, interpretation of.

No appeal lies from an order under section 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act fixing the amount to be applied for the maintenance, education and advancement of the ward and of the persons depending on him.

Where the Legislature has specifically omitted a certain section in providing for appeals, a High Court cannot allow an appeal from that section by giving a wide effect to the general words in an another section or because appeals have been allowed from certain minor matters.

Appeal from an order of the District Court of Ramnad at Madura, in Original Petition No. 437 of 1912, dated 19th January 1914.

Mr. J. L. Rosario, for the Appellant.

Messrs. T. Rangachariar, C. S. Venkatachariar and P. S. Vaidhiasatha Iyer, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Adequate reason has not been shown for dissent from the lower Court's appointment of Mr. V. Sreenivasa Iyengar as the guardian of the property of the ward.

On the memorandum of objections taking objection to the amount which has been directed to be applied for the maintenance, education and advancement of the ward and of the persons dependent on him under section 34 of the Act, a preliminary point is taken that the Act gives no right of appeal. It is clear that section 47, under which appeals lie, does not provide specifically for an appeal. But it is contended that these directions, although given under section 34, are given under powers vested in the Court by section 32 of the Act; and that as orders under section 32 are by section 47 (f) appealable, this Court has power to hear this memorandum of objections. In our opinion, this contention is not sound. Section 47, in providing for appeals, specifies the sections from which an appeal shall lie in order and it is clear that the Legislature must have examined each section for the purpose of deciding whether an appeal shall lie. The omission of section 34 must, therefore, be intentional. And we cannot accept the proposition that, where the Legislature has specifically omitted a certain section in providing for appeals, we can, by giving a wide effect to the general words in another section, allow such an appeal. The words in section 32 are certainly wide. They are: "The Court may, from time to time, by order define, restrict or extend the powers of a guardian of the property of a ward," and if section 34 was not in the Act it might fairly be argued that an order may be made as to the amount to be applied for maintenance and education under the provisions of this section. But we are satisfied that where there is a specific section empowering the Court to give certain directions, we cannot look to the general words in any other section to find the powers. It is pointed out that under section 47 (i) there is an appeal from orders and directions passed under section 43; and it is argued that those orders "regulating the conduct or proceedings of a guardian" relate to very minor matters and yet an appeal is allowed; and that, therefore, the Legislature must have intended to allow an appeal in matters under section 34 (c). The answer to that is, that that is purely a matter for the Legislature. If the Legislature, with knowledge of what provisions are contained in the sections, provides for appeals from certain sections, we cannot, because it is arguable that an appeal is allowed in certain minor matters, assume that the Legislature intended that an appeal should lie in matters of great importance where it is not specifically provided.

Both the appeal and the memorandum of objections will be dismissed with costs. The respondents' costs in the appeal will be paid out of the estate.

Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 117 OF 1914.

November 25, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir George Knox, KT.

PAHLAD DAS AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPLICANTS

versus

THE COLLECTOR OF JAUNPUR AS MANAGER OF COURT OF WARDS AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Amendment of decree—Mistake as to costs—Pleader's fee—Arithmetical or clerical error—Revision.

Where in the preparation of a decree two sets of Pleader's fee were erroneously charged instead of one, and an application for amendment made nearly after a year was refused.

Held, that the High Court could not interfere in revision, as it was very doubtful whether the error could properly be considered either as a clerical or an arithmetical mistake.

Civil revision against the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Benares, dated 7th February 1914.

Mr. Kailas Nath Katju, for the Applicants.

Mr. H. A. Ryves (with him Mr. Jang Bahadur Lal and Mr. Kalindi Prasad), for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—Pahlad Das, the plaintiff, had brought two suits in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Benares. Another suit had been brought by Babu Girdhar Das. To all three suits the Collector of Jaunpur and certain other persons were made defendants. By consent of parties the suit which was fully heard out was Suit No. 90 of 1910 in which Babu Girdhar Das was plaintiff. Full judgment was recorded in that case by the Subordinate Judge of Benares, and in Suit No. 92 of 1910 he recorded the only order: "For the reasons given in my judgment in Suit No. 90 of 1910 the suit is dismissed with costs. The other issues need not be tried." I am told by the learned Vakil for the applicant that the concluding words of this judgment refer to additional issues which were raised in this case only and not in the other two cases. This decision was passed on the 23rd of September 1911. A decree was prepared and apparently no objection was taken to the minutes of the decree when they were drawn up as required by Order XX, rule 21, of the Code of Civil Procedure.* It is contended that into the decree thus prepared an error got in, namely, that in the schedule of costs drawn up two sets of Pleader's fees were charged, when only one set should have been charged if the rules prescribed by this Court for the guidance of subordinate Civil Courts in this matter had been followed. The special rules referred to by the learned Vakil for the applicant are rules 30 and 31 in Chapter XXI of the General Rules (Civil) of 19 1.* It was not until the 17th of August 1912, or nearly a year after, that the applicant discovered what he considered to be an error and went to the Subordinate Judge of Benares and asked him to correct the decree and amend it by substituting only one set of Pleader's fees instead of two sets. The Subordinate Judge refused to amend the decree. The reasons he gives are that the record before him did not show whether the defendants in Suit No. 92 had succeeded on a joint defence or on separate defences. He held that it was the duty of the applicant to send for the record or to file a copy of the judgment in the case, namely, the judgment in Suit No. 80. He was not satisfied from what was before him that there was anything wrong about the decree and he refused the application to amend. It is contended before me that there is a manifest error in the decree. The defendants had on a joint and common defence succeeded and were entitled in law as provided in the judgment, only to one set of costs. This being so, the lower Court acted illegally and with material irregularity in refusing to amend the decree so as to bring it in accordance with the judgment. In support of his contention the learned Vakil referred me to the case of Baijnath Prosad Singh v. Sham Sunder

*RULES FRAMED BY THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE N.-W. P., UNDER SECTION 122 OF THE CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, ACT V OF 1908

ORDER XX, RULE 21.

(1) Every decree and order as defined in section 2, other than a decree or order of a Court of Small Causes or of a Court in the exercise of the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, shall be drawn up in the Court vernacular. As soon as such decree or order has been drawn up, and before it is signed, the munsarim shall cause a notice to be posted on the notice board stating that the decree or order has been drawn up, and that any party or the Pleader of any party may, within six working days from the date of such notice, peruse the draft decree or order and may sign it, or may file with the munsarim an objection to it on the ground that there is in the judgment a verbal error or some accidental defect not affecting a material part of the case, or that such decree or order is at variance with the judgment or contains some clerical or arithmetical error. Such objection shall state clearly what is the error, defect, or variance alleged, and shall be signed and dated by the person making it.

(2) If any such objection be filed on or before the date specified in the notice, the munsarim shall enter the case in the earliest weekly list practicable, and shall, on the date fixed, put up the objection together with the record before the Judge who pronounced the judgment, or, if such Judge has ceased to be the Judge of the Court, before the Judge then presiding.

(3) If no objection has been filed on or before the date specified in the notice, or if an objection has been filed and disallowed, the munsarim shall date the decree as of the day on which the judgment was pronounced and shall lay it before the Judge for signature in accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8.

(4) If an objection has been duly filed and has been allowed, the correction or alteration directed by the Judge shall be made. Every such correction or alteration in the judgment shall be made by the Judge in his own handwriting. A decree amended in accordance with the correction or alteration directed by the Judge shall be drawn up and the munsarim shall date the decree as of the day on which the judgment was pronounced and shall lay it before the Judge for signature in accordance with the provisions of rules 7 and 8.

(5) When the Judge signs the decree he shall make an autograph note stating the date on which the decree was signed.

*GENERAL RULES (CIVIL) OF 1911 FOR CIVIL COURTS SUBORDINATE TO THE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE FOR THE N.-W. P.

Chapter XXI, rule 30—If several defendants, who have a joint or common interest, succeed upon a joint defence, or upon separate defences substantially the same, not more than one fee shall be allowed, unless the Courts shall otherwise order for a reason which shall be recorded in the judgment. If only one fee be allowed, the Court shall direct to which of the defendants it shall be paid, or shall apportion it among the several defendants in such manner as the Court shall think fit.

Rule 31—If several defendants, who have separate interests, set up separate or distinct defences and succeed thereon, a fee for one legal practitioner for each of the defendants who shall appear by a separate legal practitioner may be allowed in respect of his separate interest. Such fee, if allowed, shall be calculated with reference to the value of the separate interest of such defendant in the manner hereinbefore prescribed.

Kuer (1), also the case of Sankuratri Timmayya v. Sri Rajah Uppalapati Venkatavijaya Gopalaraju Bahadur Zemindar Garu (2), which is to be found in Indian Cases Volume 24, page 878. In the latter case the error put forward for correction was a patent arithmetical error in the calculation of Vakil's fees. The Calcutta case is more on all fours with the case before me, and there is no doubt that the learned Judges of the Calcutta High Court did act in revision and did calculate the fees on a different scale from that which the Court below had given. I was also referred to the case of Sheo Balak Pathak v. Sukhdei (3), in which the orders given were that a clerical error should be amended throughout the record beginning with the plaint down to the decree. Apparently the error had run through the whole case. So far as I know Order XX, rule 21, is not to be found in the rules made under the Civil Procedure Code either by the Calcutta or the Madras High Court. It may be so but it has not been pointed out to me. It is a rule which is now part of the procedure enjoined by law. So far as the subordinate Courts are concerned Order XX, rule 21, gives a special and particular mode of procedure when a decree has been drawn up by which the accuracy of the decree may, as far as possible, be ensured. As I have already pointed out, the Pleader connected with the case did not follow the rules there laid down, but has now come in very nearly a year after he got the decree and asks that that decree may be amended. I am not in favour of exercising the powers of revision even if I have them in this direction. I am also very doubtful whether the present error can properly be considered either as a clerical or an arithmetical mistake. I decline to grant the application and I dismiss it. I make no order as to costs.

Application dismissed.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 402; 41 C. 687; 18 C. L. J. 643.
(2) 24 Ind. Cas. 878.
(3) 23 Ind. Cas. 344; 12 A. L. J. 185.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL MISCELLANEOUS APPEAL No. 8 OF 1912.

September 10, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Fawcett, J. C., and Mr. Crouch, A. J. C.

USTO SAHEBDINO walad RATO—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

GHULAM KADIR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XVII, rr. 2, 3, O. IX, r. 9—Dismissal of suit for non-appearance at adjourned hearing—Application for restoration—Sufficient cause.

The Civil Procedure Code clearly intends that the parties should be in readiness to proceed on the dates of the hearing and that if they do not, their cases must suffer unless there was "sufficient cause" for their non-appearance or default.

Therefore, if a plaintiff does not want his case to go on and absents himself deliberately, he does so at his risk.

Where a case was originally fixed for the 6th September 1911 but the hearing was adjourned to the 11th October, and some of the plaintiff's witnesses were served and were even present on that date but because some important witnesses were not present, the plaintiff through a Pleader applied for an adjournment, which was refused, whereupon the Pleader withdrew saying he had no instructions, and the Court dismissed the suit:

Held, (i) that the order dismissing the suit fell under rule 2 and not rule 3 of Order XVII of the Civil Procedure Code;

(ii) that the plaintiff did not shown that there was "sufficient cause" for his non-appearance within the meaning of Order IX, rule 9.

Per Fawcett, J. C.—It is not within the province of a Court to disregard the strict letter of the law and to grant an application for the restoration of the suit on the ground that it discloses a just and reasonable cause even though "sufficient cause" is not shown.

Appeal against the order of the Joint Judge, Sukkur-Larkana.

Mr. Kimatrai Bhojraj, for the Appellant.

Mr. Lalchand Hassomal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

FAWCETT, J. C.—On the point of law raised in this appeal, I am of opinion that the order of the District Judge dismissing the plaintiff's suit must be held to fall under rule 2, and not rule 3, of Order XVII of the Civil Procedure Code. The main distinction between those rules is that the former rule applies to hearings adjourned at the instance of the Court, while the latter applies to hearings adjourned at the instance of a party to whom time has been allowed to do some act to further the progress of the suit, but who has defaulted, cf. case of Enatulla v. Jiban Mohan Roy [Reajuddin Basunia v. Jiban Mohan Roy (1)]. The hearing of the suit in this case had been adjourned to 11th October 1911 by the Court, and not at the instance of any party to whom time was specially granted. As also no evidence had been adduced in the suit, there were no materials on the record for the Court to proceed to decide the suit under rule 3, so that that rule cannot apply under the view taken in Mariammisa v. Ram Kalpa (2), which has been approved in the case of Fakir Mahomed v. Viran (3). I think, therefore, that the application for restoration of the suit under Order IX, rule 9, lay to the District Court.

The District Judge has, however, also held that if Order IX, rule 9, applies, there are not sufficient reasons to grant the application. In this view I think he is entirely right. The case had been specially fixed for the first taking of evidence on the 11th October 1911. Some of plaintiff's witnesses had been served and were present, but because some important witnesses were not present, plaintiff through a Pleader applied for an adjournment, which was refused, the Judge saying the case should proceed with the witnesses present. In my opinion this was the proper order to pass in the case. Thereupon plaintiff's Pleader withdrew saying he had no instructions, and the Court thereupon dismissed the suit. It is admitted also that plaintiff not only took no steps to secure the attendance of his Hyderabad Pleader, but actually wrote to him on the 10th October not to come, as the case would be postponed. It is impossible, in the circumstances, to hold that there was "sufficient cause" for plaintiff's non-appearance within the meaning of Order IX, rule 9, Civil Procedure Code.

But then it is argued that even if sufficient cause is not shown, the application may be made on any other ground and in that case the Court may restore the suit, if the application discloses a just and reasonable cause for restoring the suit. This position is no doubt accepted in the cases of Samayya v. Subbamma (4), Gopal Row v. Maria Susaya (5) and Lalta Parsad v. Ram Karan (6). But, with due deference, I would most strongly dissent from this view, which infringes the ordinary principle of construction, expressio unius est exclusio alterius and the ruling of the Privy Council that "the essence of a Code is to be exhaustive on the matters in respect of which it declares the law, and it is not the province of a Judge to disregard or go outside the letter of the enactment according to its true construction." See Gokul Mandar v. Padmanund Singh (7). This view has also, as pointed out by the District Judge, been dissented from in Esmail v. Haji Jan Mahomed (8) and other cases.

There may be some cases where section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code can be appealed to, though the case does not come within Order IX, rule 9. But the present is certainly not such a case. The plaintiff's absence in person or by Pleader was deliberate, because he did not want the case to go on, and if he chose to take this course he did so at his own risk, cf. Munilal v. Gulam Hussin (9). It is certainly not "necessary for the ends of justice" that, in spite of this, the suit should be restored to the file. The Code, in my opinion, clearly intends that parties should be in readiness to proceed on the dates of hearing, and that if they do not, their cases must suffer, as provided in Order IX or Order XVII, rule 3, unless there was "sufficient cause" for their non-appearance or default.

There is too much tendency on the part of litigants to think they are entitled to a postponement at their pleasure, and when a plaintiff who has witnesses present refuses to go on with the case though a postponement is refused, he has no claim to indulgence. To take the contrary view, even if appellant pays up all costs throughout up-to-date, would be to encourage litigants in the not uncommon belief that they can force a postponement on the Court.

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 769; 18 C. W. N. 775; 19 C. L. J. 535; 41 C. 956.
(2) 34 C 235; 5 C L. J. 260.
(3) 6 Ind. Cas 851, 3 S. L. R 208 at p 215.
(4) 26 M. 599.
(5) 30 M. 274; 17 M. L. J. 225.
(6) 14 Ind. Cas. 187; 34 A. 426; 9 A. L. J. 666.
(7) 29 C 707 at p. 715; 4 Bom. L. R. 793; 6 C. W. N 825, 29 I. A. 196 (P. C.).
(8) 10 Bom. L. R. 904.
(9) 13 B. 12.

The fact that there are pardanishin ladies, who were co-plaintiffs with plaintiff Hasso, makes no difference. They entrusted the conduct of the suit to him, and are bound by his action. In my opinion the District Judge rightly refused the application under Order IX, rule 9, and I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

CROUCH, A. J. C.—The order passed by the Court in this case was :—

"Plaintiffs and their Pleaders are absent. Defendants are present as shown above. Suit dismissed."

Now, the case had, originally, been fixed for the 6th September 1911, but the hearing had been adjourned to the 11th October, and it was on the latter date that the above order was passed.

Under Order XVII, rule 2, when at an adjourned hearing the parties or any of them fail to appear, the Court may proceed under Order IX, rule 8, and that rule states that "where the defendant appears and the plaintiff does not appear when the suit is called for hearing, the Court shall make an order that the suit be dismissed."

Prima facie the Court passed orders in this case under Order XVII, rule 2, and Order IX, rule 8.

Under Order XVII, rule 3, where any party to a suit to whom time has been granted fails to produce his evidence, or to cause the attendance of his witnesses or to perform any other act necessary to the further progress of the suit, for which time has been allowed, the Court may, notwithstanding such default, proceed to decide the suit forthwith.

Now, the foundation of the Court's jurisdiction under this rule is the failure of a party to produce evidence, etc., while the foundation for an order under rule 2 is the failure of a party to appear. As the order contains no reference whatever to the failure of plaintiff to do any of the things mentioned in rule 3, but does state, in perfectly clear terms, the facts which justify an order under rule 2, we are entitled to presume that the Court intended to pass an order under rule 2, and not under rule 3.

A Court, acting under rule 3, "proceeds to decide the suit forthwith," that is to say, the Court, instead of proceeding to hearing arguments and examination of witnesses under Order XVIII, may at once give judgment under Order XX, on such materials as are before it. And, when judgment is given, the Court must proceed in due form under Order XX, rules 4 and 5. To decide a suit is to give a concise statement of the case, the points for determination, and the decision thereon. There was no attempt in this case to give a decision; the Court did not even purport to give a decision.

As the Court had recorded that both plaintiffs and their Pleaders were absent, that is, had consented to treat them both as absent, it is, in my opinion, concluded from asserting that the order passed was not an ex parte order, and I would hold that the order was passed under rule 2 of Order XVII.

But I consider that plaintiffs have failed to show that they were prevented by sufficient cause from not appearing at the adjourned hearing. One of the plaintiffs and a duly authorised Pleader were, in fact, in the Court premises, and knew that the suit had been called on. The Pleader should have appeared and have asked for a postponement, and, on its being refused, should have done his best with the materials available; apparently some witnesses were present. If, after disposing of all evidence available, the Court had refused to grant an adjournment for taking the evidence of the important witnesses, who could not attend the Court for unavoidable reasons, relief would possibly have been obtained from this Court, but there is nothing on the record to lead us to infer that the lower Court would have unreasonably refused an adjournment, had the Pleader representing the plaintiffs appeared and done all that he could under the circumstances.

The appeal is, therefore, dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1671 OF 1914.

January 19, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Shah Din

AHMAD AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

SULTAN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 14—One suit for pre-emption of several properties sold on different occasions to separate vendees—Plaint restricted to one—Subsequent institution of other suits after time.

Where several portions of a property have been sold to separate vendees on different occasions, but the pre-emptor in good faith sues all the vendees jointly and the suit is restricted to only one of the sales, section 14 of the Indian Limitation Act IX of 1908 applies in computing the period of limitation for the other suits subsequently instituted in respect of the sales of rest of the property.

Second appeal from the order of the Additional Divisional Judge, Mianwali, dated the 17th March 1914, reversing that of the Munsif, second Class, Mianwali, dated the 12th November 1913, dismissing the claim.

Mr. Brij Lal, for the Appellants.

Mr. Nand Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal and Civil Appeal No. 1672 of 1914 are connected and both will be disposed of in one judgment. The facts are fully stated in the Additional Divisional Judge's order of remand, dated the 17th March 1914, and the sole question for decision in these appeals is whether the suits for pre-emption brought by the plaintiff-respondent against the defendants-appellants concerned in the two appeals were within limitation or not. As pointed out by the Additional Divisional Judge, the suit which the plaintiff had brought in the first instance against the three vendees jointly and which comprised the whole land sold by the vendor by the three different unregistered sale-deeds, dated the 5th of August 1911, was instituted within limitation. The Court of first instance held that the three separate sales in favour of the three separate vendees had furnished the plaintiff with three distinct causes of action and that he should have brought three separate suits against the three vendees. Accordingly the one suit brought by the plaintiff was restricted to one of the three sales, and he filed two separate plaints subsequently, each embodying a claim in respect of the subject-matter of each of the two remaining sales. These plaints were, however, filed after the period of limitation had expired. I entirely agree with the Divisional Judge that section 14, Explanation III, of the Indian Limitation Act fully applies to the facts of this case, and that under that section the two suits brought by the plaintiff subsequently must be held to have been brought within time. The appeals fail and are dismissed with costs.

Appeals dismissed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 948 OF 1910.

September 14, 1914.

Present:—Sir Basil Scott, KT., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Hayward.

ANTAJI VASUDEV KELKAR —DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

VINAYAK KESHAV BHISE AND OTHERS —PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871), s 6—Suit relating to grant of land revenue—Certificate of Collector—Procedure, where certificate not obtained.

A suit relating to a definite share in an inam, which consists in the enjoyment by the inamdars of 1rds of the revenue of a certain village, is a suit relating to a grant of land revenue and cannot be taken cognizance of without a certificate from the Collector under the Pensions Act.

Antaji v. Kashinath, 6 Bom. L. R. 423; distinguished.

Where the plaintiff has not obtained a certificate, the hearing of the appeal may be adjourned to enable him to procure the certificate.

Sardar Ganpat Rao Moharkar v. Sardar Anand Rao, Baji Sahib, 5 Ind Cas. 689; 12 Bom. L. R. 267 at p. 278; 14 C. W. N. 310; 7 M. L. T. 53; 7 A. L. J. 165; 11 C. L. J. 281 (P. C.); 20 M. L. J. 164; 32 A. 148; 37 I. A. 39; followed.

Second appeal from the decision of the first Class Subordinate Judge, Thana, in Appeal No. 87 of 1909, confirming the decree passed by the second Class Subordinate Judge at Mahad, in Civil Suit No. 574 of 1908.

Messrs. B. A. Khare and J. R. Gharpure, for the Appellant.

Mr. W. B. Pradhan, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The questions which have been argued in this appeal are questions raised by the defendant-appellant. He contends, first, that the plaintiff's claim is barred by limitation; secondly, that it is barred by the law of res judicata; and, thirdly, that the suit cannot be taken cognizance of by the Court unless a certificate under section 6 of the Pensions Act is produced. We have heard arguments upon all these points.

The first question which logically arises is, whether the objection under the Pensions Act is good or not. We are of opinion that it is a good objection. The suit relates to a definite share in an inam, which consisted in the enjoyment by the inamdars of 2/3rds of the revenue of a certain village. The plaintiff contended that he was entitled to the portion of the revenue in dispute between him and the defendant. The defendant contended that he was entitled, for various reasons, to receive that portion of the revenue from Government as a transferee of the inam rights, either by the purchase at the Court sale or by acquisition through adverse possession. It is not, therefore, a suit in which one who is admittedly the grantee of the Government revenue at the time of the institution of the suit, sues to recover from an inferior holder the amount of the revenue payable in respect of his holding, and it does not, therefore, fall under the exception provided by section 9 of the Pensions Act. In our opinion it is a suit relating to a grant of land revenue. Therefore, it should not be entertained or taken cognizance of without a certificate from the Collector that the case may be tried. It has, however, been contended that in relation to a similar suit against the same defendant regarding the inam it was held by a Bench of this Court that section 9, and not sections 6 and 4, of the Pensions Act were applicable.

There, however, were certain admissions from which the Court concluded that it was in effect a suit by an acknowledged grantee of the land revenue against his khatedar as an inferior holder, and, therefore, fell within the provisions of section 9.

We cannot, having regard to the pleadings and contentions of the parties in this suit, take the same view of this case. Therefore, we cannot follow the decision in Antaji v. Kashinath (1).

(1) 6 Bom. L. R. 423.

The case has been tried by the lower Courts on the assumption that no certificate is necessary, and, as already observed, the substantial points in the case have been argued in this Court before the question arising under the Pensions Act was taken up. Under the circumstances we think we should follow the procedure which was adopted in Ganpat Rao v. Ananda Rao (2), a procedure which was not disapproved of by the Privy Council in the final appeal in that case. The High Court there allowed the hearing of the appeal to be adjourned in order to enable the respondent to procure a certificate, and so avoid the necessity of disposing of the technical question raised in regard to it: Sardar Ganpat Rao Moharkar v. Sardar Anand Rao Baji Sahib (3).

Although we have come to a definite conclusion upon the other points which have been argued, we do not think that we ought, in view of the words of sections 4 and 6 of the Pensions Act, to express our opinion upon those questions before receiving a certificate from the Collector that the case may be tried. We, therefore, adjourn the case for three months in order that the plaintiff may produce to this Court a certificate from the Collector under section 6 of the Pensions Act.

(2) 28 A. 104; A. W. N. (1905) 206.
(3) 5 Ind. Cas. 689; 12 Bom. L. R. 267 at p. 273; 14 C. W. N. 310, 7 M. L. T. 53, 7 A. L. J. 165, 11 C. L. J. 281 (P. C.); 20 M. L. J. 164; 32 A. 148; 37 I. A. 39.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

APPEAL FROM APPELLATE DECREES NOS. 950 AND 1153 OF 1912.

January 7, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Holmwood and Mr. Justice Mullick.

M. G. MALACHI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

AHALAD MAHATO AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Putni, purchaser of—Merger—New tenancy, creation of—Transferee, right of—Bengal Rent Act (X of 1859)—Khudkasht right, nature of, before and after the passing of Act X of 1859.

MALACHI v. AHALAD MAHATO.

A purchaser under the Putni Regulation (VIII of 1819) is entitled to eject tenants from their holdings when they have no protected right.

There is no merger where the purchaser possesses the land as a third person wholly distinct from the putnidars, although he happens to be the son of one of them.

The purchaser cannot obtain the original holding before the patni was created, though he is in possession of the same holding.

Chandrabati Koeri v. Harrington, 18 C. 349 (P.C.); 18 I. A. 27, referred to and followed.

The effect of a transfer of such a holding with the consent of the landlord under Act X of 1859 can only be that the original tenant is considered to have relinquished the holding altogether and that a new tenancy is created in the transferee.

After the enactment of Act X of 1859 the original khudkasht raiyats continued to hold the same rights as they held before, but the khudkasht right ceased to exist as a right that can be acquired after the passing of the Act.

Appeal against the decrees of the District Judge of Manbhum, in Title Appeal No. 165 of 1911, dated the 23rd January 1912, affirming that of the Munsif, first Court, Purulia, in Suit No. 1287 of 1910, dated the 14th of June 1911.

Dr. D. N. Mitter, Babus N. N. Banerjee and B. N. Mitter, for the Appellant

Babu Satya Charan Sinha, for Babu Sarat Chandra Roy Chowdhury and Babu Govinda Chandra Chakravarti, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—These two appeals arise out of suits brought by the plaintiff to eject certain defendants from their holdings, on the grounds that he is the purchaser under the Putni Regulation VIII of 1819, and that they have no protected rights. The cases appear to have been based upon quite different circumstances and pleadings, and the learned Munsif tried them separately and passed separate judgments. Reading the judgment of the Court of Appeal below which professes to deal with both the cases in one judgment, we are unable to find that he has directed his attention to Suit No. 1288 at all. His judgment seems to apply exclusively to Suit No. 1287 out of which Appeal No. 950 arises.

As far as Appeal No. 950 is concerned two points have been raised in appeal, one that the purchase of Shibram can only have resulted in the merger of the jote with the putni, and the other that there being no transfer of a right of occupancy under Act X of 1859, Shibram cannot be considered to be holding the same tenancy which Khusal held before the creation of the putni and that his is a new tenancy created after the putni and is, therefore, in no way protected. On the findings of fact of the learned Judge in the Court below we cannot hold that there was any merger. He finds that Shibram purchased and possessed the land as a third person wholly distinct from the putnidars, although he happened to be the son of one of them. But as regards the question of his now being in possession of the same holding as Khusal had before the putni was created, we are of opinion that in view of the Privy Council decision in Chandrabati Koeri v. Harrington (1) it is impossible to hold that Shibram obtained the original holding of Khusal. The effect of a transfer of such a holding with the consent of the landlord under Act X of 1859 of can only be that the original tenant is considered to have relinquished the holding altogether and that a new tenancy is created in the transferee.

It has been argued before us by the learned Vakil for the respondent that Khusal was a khudkasht raiyat and that his khudkasht right may have been transferable; but this position does not seem to be tenable. After the enactment of Act X of 1859 the original khudkasht raiyats no doubt continued to hold the same rights as they held before, but the khudkasht right ceased to exist as a right that can be acquired after the passing of the Act.

We are, therefore, of opinion that Appeal No. 950 must be allowed and the judgments and decrees of both the lower Courts set aside and the plaintiff's suit decreed with costs in all Courts.

With regard to Appeal No. 1153 the case is different. There the Munsif decided that as far as the rights of Kanta Mahato were concerned there was no doubt that his tenancy was created after the putni and it was admitted that the defendant took a fresh settlement and did not step into the shoes of Kanta Mahato. But the learned Munsif said that the plaintiff's case must fail by reason of the fact that two separate holdings belonging to Khusal and Kanta have been mixed together in the plaint, and he found the description of these lands in one joint boundary was a fatal defect. This question has not been touched upon by the learned Judge in the Court below at all, and the parties are entitled to a decision from him upon the matter.

(1) 18 C. 349 (P. C.); 18 I. A. 27.

It is clear as far as Khusal is concerned that if any of the land in suit belongs to him, he being Khusal's raiyat cannot be ejected. But there does not prima facie seem to be any reason why the transferee from Kanta should not be ejected. But it is not clear whether the Munsif means that Khusal is now in actual occupation of a part of this holding, or whether the defendant is a transferee from Khusal. If he is a transferee from Khusal, then the same principle would apply to him as we have laid down in Appeal No. 950. The learned Judge must consider this objection and come to a decision whether the suit is bad for this reason or not. The case is, therefore, remanded to the lower Court and costs will abide the result.

Appeal No. 950 allowed;
Appeal No. 1153 remanded.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 711 OF 1913.
December 2, 1914.
Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Hannay.
VENKATARAMANACHARI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus
THIRUNARANACHARI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Construction of document—Mortgage executed by mother of minor for her husband's debt—Minor, liability of—Mortgagee having only incorporeal right, whether dispossessed by denial of such right—Adverse possession—Incorporeal right, whether can be adversely possessed.

Where a mortgage-deed executed by the mother of a minor mentions that the mortgage is made in order to discharge her husband's debts and also contains a reference to the property being in the enjoyment of herself and her minor son after her husband's death:

Held, that the mortgage-deed can be fairly construed to be one executed by the mother on behalf of her son.

Where a mortgagee has only an incorporeal right and is not entitled to possession of the mortgaged properties, the mortgagor's denial of the mortgagee's right cannot make him get possession of the incorporeal right nor can such incorporeal right be possessed adversely by the mortgagor by a mere denial.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of South Arcot, in Appeal Suit No. 199 of 1912, preferred against that of the Additional District Munsif of Villupuram, in Original Suit No. 104 of 1911.

FACTS.—In this case the plaintiff sued to recover from the representatives-in-interest of the original mortgagor a sum of money due on the footing of a mortgage executed in his deceased father's favour by the mother of the original mortgagor. The defendants contended inter alia that the present suit was barred by the principle of res judicata under section 11, Civil Procedure Code, and also by Order II, rule 2, Civil Procedure Code, by reason of two previous suits filed by the present plaintiff's father against the mother of the minor mortgagor in the first instance and afterwards against the minor mortgagor himself in the circumstances fully set out in the judgment of the High Court. They also contended that the mortgage bond, which was executed by the mother of the mortgagor without describing herself as the guardian of her minor son, was ineffectual to create a valid mortgage as against the minor's property. Both the lower Courts dismissed the plaintiff's suit, the lower Appellate Court holding that though the bond was executed by the mother in her own name, yet she intended to do so on behalf of her minor son for a debt binding on the minor, but that the suit was barred under Order II, rule 2, Civil Procedure Code, by reason of the first of the two suits above referred to.

Mr. L. S. Viraraghava Iyer, for the Appellant:—Order II, rule 2, has no application to this case as the parties are not identical, Ramaswami Ayyar v. Vythinatha Ayyar (1) (per Bhashyam Iyengar, J.)

Mr. B. Narasimha Rao, for the Respondent, while admitting that he could not support the judgment of the lower Appellate Court on the ground on which it was rested, contended that he was entitled to support it on other grounds, and argued that in the first place the finding of the lower Appellate Court that the mother executed the mortgage bond on behalf of her minor son was absolutely unsupported by evidence; secondly that the present suit was barred under section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code; and lastly that the mortgagor having been in possession of the property for over 12 years after the termination of the second of the above suits, in which the plaintiff's right to proceed against the property was negatived, he must be deemed to have acquired the mortgagee's interest by adverse possession and that the mortgage was extinguished by merger.

JUDGMENT.

SADASIVA AIYAR, J.—The plaintiff is the appellant. The plaintiff's claim as finally put forward is for the recovery of Rs. 1,100 due on a hypothecation bond of 25th June 1878 executed to the plaintiff's father by one Narasammal, who was on the date of that document the guardian and protector of her minor son, Venkataramanachari. Venkataramanachari sold the lands to his sister's husband (the 1st defendant) in 1900, the defendants Nos. 2 and 3 being the 1st defendant's sons. The suit was brought in August 1910 within the two years allowed by section 31 of the new Limitation Act.

The learned District Munsif in an exhaustive judgment dismissed the suit on the following ground. Narasammal did not purport to execute the document, Exhibit A, as guardian of her minor son to whom the mortgaged property belonged. Hence her mortgage document of 1878 was not binding on her minor son and, therefore, it is not binding on the vendee from her son, namely, the first defendant. (The sale by the son was made after he became a major).

On appeal, the learned District Judge held that having regard to the recitals in Exhibit A and to the nature of the transaction and to the fact that Exhibit A was executed by Narasammal with the intention of binding her husband's estate on behalf of her minor son in a legal manner, she must be deemed to have executed the document as guardian and manager of his property and hence it was binding upon the minor; he thus differed from the view of the learned District Munsif on this point. But he held that the plaintiff's father having brought a suit, Original Suit No. 355 of 1883, for certain reliefs against Narasammal on this same bond of 1878 and having omitted in that suit to pray for a relief against Narasammal's son's interest in the hypothecated property, the plaintiff's present suit is barred under Order II, rule 2 (old section 43), of the Civil Procedure Code. On this ground, therefore, he confirmed the District Munsif's decree dismissing the plaintiff's suit. We think that the learned District Judge's view that the present suit is barred by Order II, rule 2, cannot be supported. The cause of action on which Original Suit No. 353 of 1883 was based was one directed against Narasammal in her personal capacity and it was not a suit directed against her son and his interest in the mortgaged properties. In a subsequent suit, Original Suit No. 242 of 1886 brought by the plaintiff's father against Narasammal's son, it was decided by the District Court on appeal that the decree in the suit, Original Suit No. 355 of 1883, must be deemed to have been passed against Narasammal in her personal capacity and against any interest which she had in the mortgaged property, such interest being found to be nil. The present suit, however, is against the interest of her son, Venkataramanachari, in the mortgaged properties, the 1st defendant, who purchased from Venkataramanachari, being now the owner of such interest. As Sir V. Bhashyam Aiyangar, J., said in the case of Dampanaboyina Gangi v. Addala Ramaswami (2): "This clearly shows that the cause of action is not an abstraction, something independent of the defendant, but that the plaint should disclose a cause of action against the defendant. And section 43 only provides that every suit shall include the whole of the claim which the plaintiff is entitled to make in respect of the cause of action and that if a plaintiff omit to sue in respect of any portion of his claim arising from the cause of action for the enforcement of which the suit is brought, he shall not afterwards sue in respect of the portion so omitted." In the light of these observations, it is clear that the cause of action against Narasammal on which Original Suit No. 355 of 1883 was brought having been conclusively (as between the plaintiff and 1st defendant's vendor) decided in Original Suit No. 242 of 1886 to be only a cause of action directed against Narasammal personally and against her interest, if any, in the mortgaged property, the present suit based on a cause of action directed against her son's interest in the mortgaged property and against the purchaser from her son is not the same cause of action as that on which Original Suit No. 355 of 1883 was brought and hence Order II, rule 2, cannot be a bar. In fact Mr. Narasimha Rao, the learned Counsel for the respondent, did not argue that the present suit was barred under Order II, rule 2. But Mr. Narasimha Rao attempted to support the dismissal of the plaintiff's suit on several grounds decided against him by the lower Courts, which, of course he was entitled to do. He contended that this suit was barred by res judicata by reason of the decision in Original Suit No. 242 of 1886. To understand this plea of res judicata, it is necessary to give some details of that suit. The plaintiff's father having obtained an ex parte decree against Narasammal and her interest in the mortgaged property in Original Suit No. 355 of 1883, attached the said property (according to the old and mistaken and unnecessary procedure followed by Mofussil Vakils) in order to bring it to sale in execution of his mortgage decree. Then Venkataramanachari, Narasammal's minor son, through a guardian, put on a claim petition on the ground that his mother (the judgment-debtor) had no interest in the mortgaged property which was attached in execution. His claim was allowed. Thereupon the plaintiff's father brought the suit, Original Suit No. 242 of 1886 (within one year of the order in favour of the minor son, Venkataramanachari) for establishing his right to bring the property to sale in execution of the decree in the suit of 1883. The District Munsif decreed the plaintiff's father's suit, taking the view that Narasaimmal incurred the debt for the benefit of her minor son, that the decree debt in Original Suit No. 355 of 1883 was binding upon that son and that, therefore, the property including the son's interest could be brought to sale in execution of that decree. On appeal, the District Judge took the view that though the debt was incurred by Narasammal for her son's benefit, as she did not purport to execute the bond as her son's guardian and as the decree was passed against her alone without making her minor son a party, the plaintiff's father could not bring the property to sale in execution of the decree passed against the mother. He, therefore, dismissed that suit (Original Suit No. 242 of 1886). Mr. Narasimha Rao argued that that decision, which held that the minor son's interest in the property could not be brought to sale for the mortgage debt incurred by Narasammal, is res judicata in this suit. But I am of opinion that the District Judge in this case has given a sufficient answer to this contention. In the words of the learned District Judge, the only point raised in that suit (Original Suit No. 242 of 1883) was whether the decree obtained in Original Suit No. 355 of 1883 was a decree which could be executed against Narasammal's son and his property. The question whether a suit could be brought upon that mortgage bond against Narasammal's son and his interest in that property and whether a decree could be obtained in such a suit against Narasammal's son's interest in the property, was not put in issue in that Suit No. 242 of 1886 and was not decided by the Appellate judgment in that suit.

(1) 26 M. 760; 13 M. L. J. 448.

(2) 23 M. 736 at p. 740; 12 M. L. J. 103.

Mr. Narasimha Rao next contended that the lower Appellate Court was wrong in its view that the document, Exhibit A, executed by Narasammal could be treated as a document executed by her in her capacity as guardian of her minor son; on the true construction of Exhibit A, having read the document more than once carefully, I agree with the learned District Judge that it could be fairly construed, without any violence to the ordinarily accepted rules of construction, as one executed by her on behalf of her minor son. In Murari v. Tayana (3), the mother of a minor sold the property of her minor son to pay off her husband's debts. No reference whatever was made in the sale-deed to the existence of the minor son. Not only that, she said in the deed that she sold whatever interest she had in the property. And yet it was held that as she purported to sell the land itself and said that she sold the land to pay off her husband's debts, her intention was to use her authority as her minor son's guardian to sell the land in order to pay off her husband's debts, and that when she thus had the full authority and also the intention to so sell, her act effectually conveyed the property of her son, notwithstanding that it was not correctly described as property belonging to her son. In the present case the mortgage-deed, Exhibit A, executed by Narasammal not only mentions that the mortgage was made in order to discharge her husband's debts, but it also contains a reference to the property being in the enjoyment of herself and her minor son after her husband's death. A liberal interpretation of such documents is justified by the observations of the Privy Council in Hurooman Persaud Panday v. Musammat Babooee Munraj Koonweree (4) and by the opinion of Sir Barnes Peacock, C. J., in Judoonath Chuckerbutty v. James Tweedie (5).

(3) 20 B. 286.

Mr. Narasimha Rao finally argued that Narasammal's son's guardian having set up in 1886 in the suit, Original Suit No. 243 of 1886, that the mortgage executed by his mother did not affect his interest in the mortgaged property, there was a sort of adverse possession of the mortgagee's interest under Exhibit A, held by Narasammal's son from that date and that the mortgagee thereby lost his rights in the mortgaged property by adverse possession for twelve years in Narasammal's son and his alienees. I have found it somewhat difficult to understand this ingenious argument. The mortgagee had only an incorporeal right and he was not entitled to possession of the mortgaged property. How the mortgagor's denial of the mortgagee's right could make the mortgagor get possession of the incorporeal right of the mortgagee, or how such incorporeal right, which did not carry with it the right to physical possession of the mortgaged property and did not carry with it in favour of the mortgagee any right to get the rents or profits of the mortgaged property, could be possessed adversely by a mere denial of such incorporeal right, I am unable to see [See also the judgment in Lakshminarayana Aiyar v. Ulagammal (6) in which a similar contention as to adverse possession of an incorporeal right was negatived by us and which judgment was pronounced to-day].

In the result, in reversal of the decrees of the lower Courts, I am inclined to give the plaintiff a decree for the sum of Rs. 1,100 claimed as due under Exhibit A on the date of suit, with interest on the principal sum of Rs. 200 at 1¼ per cent. per mensem from the date of suit till the expiry of three months from this day and with other provisions usual in preliminary mortgage decrees mentioned in Order XXXIII, rule 4, Civil Procedure Code. Interest shall cease to run on the Rs. 200 after the expiry of the three months. Under the circumstances we order the parties to bear their respective costs throughout.

HANNAY, J.—I concur.

Appeal allowed.

(4) 6 M. I. A. 393, at pp. 411, 412; 18 W. R. 81; Sevestre 253 n.; 2 Suth. P. C. J. 29; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 552; 9 E. R. 147.

(5) 11 W. R. 20.

(6) 26 Ind. Cas. 528; 28 M. L. J. 256.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 34 OF 1912.

October 12, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Crouch, A. J. C., and Mr. Fawcett, A. J. C.

BHERUMAL TECKCHAND AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

DUHLANOMAL AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 100—Second appeal—Mixed question of law and fact.

The pleas of limitation or estoppel involving questions of fact which are not admitted or undisputed cannot be taken for the first time in appeal.

Per Crouch, A. J. C.—It is improper for a Court of Appeal to raise a fresh issue of fact and to proceed to decide it on such evidence which chances to be on record.

Second appeal against the decree of the Assistant Judge, Hyderabad.

Mr. Isardas Oodharam, for the Appellants.

Mr. Rupchand Bilaram, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

CROUCH, A. J. C.—The facts of this case are fully set out in the judgments of the two lower Courts.

Appellants in their memorandum of appeal attack the judgment of the lower Appellate Court on three grounds only :—

I. That the Court erred in holding that defendants could object to the validity of the award after the three years allowed by Article 91 of the Limitation Act.

II. That the Court erred in refusing to try a fresh issue: "Has the award been acted on ? If so, what is the result?"

III. That the Court erred in its findings in the first issue so far as they were in favour of defendant, Duhlanomal, and should not have entertained objections which were not specially raised in the written statement.

Now the first point was not raised at all in the original Court. Nor was the question of limitation mentioned in the memorandum of appeal filed in the lower Court ; but that Court permitted the following issue to be raised and discussed—"Can defendants be permitted to raise these objections more than three years after the award?" and, treating the issue as a purely legal one, found on it in the affirmative. But under Article 91, the three years runs not from the date of the award, but from the time when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or set aside became known to him.

Respondents have had no opportunity to show when the facts on which they relied became known to them, for the question of limitation had not been raised when evidence was being led and it is impossible for this Court to decide a mixed question of law and fact without any facts being on the record.

Whether or not the award has been acted on is obviously a question of fact and the lower Court had discretion to refuse to raise it. Mr. Isardas contends that there is ample evidence on record, consisting of defendants' own admissions, on which to come to a finding; but it would be wholly improper for a Court of Appeal to raise a fresh issue of fact and to proceed to decide it on evidence which chanced to be on record.

It was suggested that the case might be remanded for further evidence, but there is no formal application that this be done and there are no special circumstances, which in our opinion make this extraordinary course necessary in the interests of justice.

The third point raised deals with questions of fact exclusively. There was plenty of evidence on record on which the Court could reasonably come to the conclusion that the arbitrators had been guilty of misconduct.

The appeal is dismissed with costs.

FAWCETT, A. J. C.—I concur. If the plaintiff wanted to rely on the pleas of limitation and estoppel urged in the lower Appellate Court and this Court, he should have raised them at any rate at the time of framing issues; and as they involve questions of fact which are not admitted or undisputed, they cannot, in my opinion, be allowed to be taken for the first time in appeal. It is not a case where the alleged bars to respondents' objection to the award arise on the face of the proceedings, but where they necessitate further inquiry, and the rule applicable is that approved by the Privy Council in Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad Singh (1) as explained in the case of Ahsanulla Khan v. Haricharn Mozumdar (2).

In this Court appellant raised a further point which is not even contained in his memorandum of appeal, viz. that by the terms of the reference the respondents were precluded from disputing the validity of the award : but this plea also should have been raised in the Court of first instance and respondents would be unduly prejudiced by allowing it to be raised at this late stage.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 9 C. 656 (P. C.); 11 C. L. R. 494; 10 I. A. 23; 7 Ind. Jur 164, 4 Sar. P. C. J. 417; 4 Shome L. R. 285.

(2) 20 C. 86 at p 92, 19 I. A. 191.

COURT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE, UNITED PROVINCES.

REVENUE PETITION No. 44 OF 1912-13 OF SULTANPUR DISTRICT.

August 28, 1913.

Present:—Sir Duncan Colvin Baillie, S. M., and Mr. Tweedy, J. M.

JAGDAMBA SINGH—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

Raja BHAGWAN BAKHSH SINGH—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Occupancy rights, claim for—Claimant's relative under-proprietor, effect of—Ejectment case—Statutory tenant, status superior to that of, claimed—Inquiry to be complete.

Where a co-sharer in a holding has got a decree for under-proprietary rights, no occupancy rights shall be claimed in that holding; but a person can claim occupancy rights even though his relatives may have got under-proprietary rights in the village.

Ejectment cases in which rights superior to those of statutory tenants are claimed, should not be adjudicated upon without a complete inquiry being made.

Appeal from the decree of the Officiating Commissioner, Fyzabad, dated 22nd October 1912, upholding that of the Assistant Collector, Sultanpur, dated 15th April 1912.

Syed Ali Mohammad, for the Appellant.

Babu Rudra Dat Singh, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

BAILLIE, S. M. (August 8th, 1913.)—Appellant contests a notice of ejectment on the ground that he has rights superior to those of a statutory tenant. In one paragraph of his plaint he alleged that his relatives have obtained decrees for sir. In the last paragraph he himself claims occupancy rights. The Court of first instance found that it had been proved that plaintiff's ancestors were zemindars of the village in question and that his kinsmen had obtained under-proprietary rights during Settlement proceedings. He found it, however, not proved that appellant had possession in this land in 1866 and on that ground upheld the notice. The Commissioner called for a report as to whether appellant had occupancy rights. The reply was to the effect that appellant had proved possession of certain numbers in 1866. The question whether his ancestors had been zemindars in this village within the thirty years before annexation obviously remained unenquired into because of the finding of the Court of first instance on this subject. The Commissioner dismissed the appeal of the appellant, (1) on the ground that it had not been proved that the appellant's ancestors had been zemindars of the village and (2) on the ground that collaterals of the appellant had got decrees for under-proprietary rights. This latter finding is justified by no consideration of reason or law that I can imagine. The law provides that when a co-sharer in the holding has got a decree for under-proprietary rights, no occupancy rights shall be claimable in that holding, but it does not provide, and could not possibly provide, that because a relative of appellant had got under-proprietary rights appellant can have no rights at all. It cannot be permitted that cases of so vital importance to persons claiming rights superior to those of statutory tenants should be adjudicated upon without a complete inquiry being made and I consider it necessary, therefore, that the case be again returned for inquiry:—

(1) Whether the predecessors-in-interest of the appellant were proprietors in this village before annexation.

(2) At what date did they lose their proprietary rights?

(3) Is there anything to distinguish the case of the appellant from that of the persons in whose favour decrees for sir were given at Settlement?

Appellant will be allowed to produce evidence of his relationship to the persons who have already obtained decrees.

TWEEDY, J. M.—I concur.

Issues remitted.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 99 OF 1914.

October 2, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Stanyon, A. J. C.

MURLIDHAR—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MULU—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 29—

MURLIDHAR v. MULU.

Growing crops, whether moveable property—Wrongful attachment—Suit for damages.

The Law of Limitation must be strictly interpreted and applied. That is to say, no right or remedy is to be regarded as barred unless it is clearly shown to be shut out by the enactment.

Growing crops until severed from the soil are immoveable property within the meaning of the Limitation Act; the attachment of such crops is not a seizure of moveable property for the purposes of Article 29 of the Act and a suit for damages arising out of such seizure is not governed by that Article.

Pandah Gazi v. Jennaddi, 4 C. 665; 2 C. L. R. 526; 3 Ind. Jur 515; 2 Shome L. R 28; Surat Lall v. Unar Haji, 22 C. 877 at pp. 883, 887, 888, Mangun Jha v Dolhin Golab Koer, 25 C. 692; 2 C W. N. 285; Hari Charan v. Hari Kar, 32 C. 459, 9 C W. N. 376 and Jadu Nath v. Hari Kar, 1 Ind. Cas. 788; 36 C. 141; 9 C. L. J. 109; 12 C. W. N. 1090, followed.

Damaraju v. Thadinada, 31 M. 431; 4 M. L. T. 271; 18 M. L. J. 500, distinguished.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Saugor, dated the 28th November 1913, modifying that of the Subordinate Judge, Saugor, dated the 29th August 1913.

Dr. H. S. Gour, for the Appellant.

Mr. A. Bhagwant, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for damages for a wrongful attachment of growing crops. The attachment was effected on the 9th March 1912: it was raised on the 4th July 1912: and the suit for damages was filed on the 2nd May 1913. The Courts below have concurred in holding that the suit is not time-barred, and the first Court gave the plaintiff a decree for Rs. 426, which the lower Appellate Court reduced to Rs. 350 with an appropriate order as to costs. The defendant has made this second appeal on the single ground that growing crops being defined as moveable property in section 2, clause 13, of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, the wrongful attachment of them was a "wrongful seizure of moveable property under legal process" for the purposes of Article 29 of the Limitation Schedule, 1908, and the suit, having been brought more than one year after the date of the seizure, is barred by time.

At the first glance this argument appears to be unanswerable. An attachment of growing crops in execution of a decree is undoubtedly a seizure of property under legal process. For all the purposes of the Code it is undoubtedly an attachment of moveable property, and any execution-sale of such crops would have to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Code for the sale of moveable property. It is at least a plausible argument that since the Civil Procedure Code and the Limitation Act appertain to the same branch of law, viz., the Adjective Law, the Legislature must be deemed to have employed the words 'moveable property' to convey the same meaning in both enactments. Indeed, if there was nothing else to assist interpretation, this argument would prevail. But, as the law stands, the contention is demonstrably unsound.

It is a settled principle that the Law of Limitation must be strictly interpreted and applied. That is to say, no right or remedy is to be regarded as barred, unless it is clearly shown to be shut out by the enactment. Therefore, Article 29 of the Limitation Schedule, which the appellant seeks to apply in this case, will only be applied where the property illegally seized under legal process is beyond all doubt and dispute such property as is regarded as moveable, not for attachment under the Civil Procedure Code, but for computing limitation under the Limitation Act. That Act itself contains no definition of the term 'moveable property.' Therefore its definition is governed by section 3, clause (34), read with clause (25), of the General Clauses Act, 1897. These imperative provisions exclude any interpretation by analogy from the Civil Procedure Code, the Transfer of Property Act, or any other enactment. Growing crops are undoubtedly "things attached to the earth." They come, therefore, within the definition of immoveable property, and, ipso facto, are excluded from the definition of moveable property for the purposes of all Acts of the Governor-General in Council—and the Limitation Act is one such enactment—which do not contain anything repugnant thereto in the subject or context. The Indian Limitation Act, Bill No. 1 of 1908, proposed to define 'moveable property' as including growing crops, in accordance with the amendment in the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, but the definition was objected to and the Select Committee omitted it.

Growing crops, until severed from the soil, have consistently been held by the Calcutta High Court to be immoveable property within the meaning of the Limitation Act: Panda'i Gari v. Jennuddi (1), Surat Lall v. Umar Haji (2) where five earlier cases are cited, Mangun Jha v. Dolhin Golab Koer (3), Hari Charan v. Hari Kar (4) and Jadu Nath v. Hari Kar (5). The same view was taken by this Court in Khem Balaram v. Narhar Ganesh (6), and I do not think that the peculiar case of Murtazakhan v. Gajraj Singh (7) in any way contradicts that view. I can find nothing to help the appellant in the perfectly correct dicta in Nagoba v. Madholala (8). Stress was laid on Damaraju v. Thadinada (9), but the relevancy of that case is not apparent, because there was no attachment of any standing crop, but of some paddy which had apparently become moveable before attachment.

For the reasons given, I am of opinion that the attachment of the crop in execution of a decree, while such crop was still standing, was not a seizure of moveable property within the meaning of Article 29 of the Limitation Schedule, and that this suit for damages, arising as a result of such seizure, is not governed by that Article, or by any other Article of that Schedule requiring the institution of the suit within one year of the seizure. It is not necessary to decide whether Article 36 applies to the trespass on the standing crop, or any other Article applies to injury caused by negligence or misappropriation subsequent to the reaping of the crop. In any view, the suit is within time. This appeal is, therefore, dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 4 C. 665, 2 C. L. R. 526; 3 Ind. Jur. 515; 2 Shome L. R. 28.
(2) 22 C. 877 at pp 883, 887, 888.
(3) 25 C. 602, 2 C. W. N. 265.
(4) 32 C. 459; 9 C. W. N. 376.
(5) 1 Ind. Cas. 788, 36 C. 141; 9 C. L. J. 109; 12 C. W. N. 1090.
(6) Ref. No 51, dated 29th August 1882, Dig. C. R. Part I, 20.
(7) 14 C. P. L. R. 89.
(8) 4 N. L. R. 40.
(9) 31 M. 431; 4 M. L. T. 271; 18 M. L. J. 590.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITIONS NOS. 76 TO 85 OF 1913.

January 6, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar.

G. NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU, RECEIVER, NIDADAVOLE AND MEDUR ESTATES, ELLORE—PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER

versus

BALIJEPALLI SUNDARARAMIAH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act (II of 1894), s. 18—Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865), s. 37—Kattubadi amounts, rate of interest payable on arrears of, whether 6 per cent. or 12 per cent.—Interpretation of Statute—One Act repealed and another enacted—Applicability of provisions of old and new Acts—Madras General Clauses Act (I of 1891), s. 18—Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 61—Custom, if can be proved by a single witness—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73, applicability of.

The rate of interest payable on arrears of kattubadi amounts is only 6 per cent. and not 12 per cent.

Section 18 of Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act, II of 1894, only extends the procedure enacted in section 37 of the Madras Act VIII of 1865 (Rent Recovery Act) to proceedings for the recovery of arrears of kattubadi. The substantial provision declaring the rate of interest claimable on arrears of rent has not been extended to arrears of kattubadi.

Gopisetti Narainsawmi Naidu v. Tallapraju Venkatasubrayudu, 9 Ind Cas 642; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 233; 9 M. L. T. 315, dissented from

In construing section 18 of Madras Act II of 1894, in respect of arrears of kattubadi which fell due after the repeal of Madras Act VIII of 1865, reference must, under section 18 of Madras General Clauses Act, I of 1891, be made to the corresponding provision of the Madras Estates Land Act, I of 1908, viz, section 61.

A recognised and enforceable custom cannot be proved by the evidence of a single witness as to the practice.

Quære:—Whether section 73 of the Indian Contract Act applied to the case?

Kamalammal v. Peeru Meera Levvai Brothers, 20 M. 481; 7 M. L. J. 263, referred to.

Petitions, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the decrees of the Court of the District Munsif of Tanuku, in Small Cause Suits Nos. 1146, 1148, 1193, 1197, 1198, 1166, 1165, 1167, 1261 and 1263 of 1912, respectively.

FACTS.—The suits were for the recovery of arrears of kattubadi amounts. The plaintiff claimed interest on arrears at 12 per cent. per annum. The District Munsif awarded only 6 per cent. The plaintiff, thereupon, preferred these civil revision petitions to the High Court.

Mr. M. Purushotham Naidu, for the Peti.

tioner:—The arrears of kattubadi being recoverable as if they were arrears of rent, under Madras Act VIII of 1865 (section 18, Madras Act II of 1894), the interest payable on such arrears is 12 per cent. Vide section 37 of Madras Act VIII of 1865.

Mr. P. Somasundaram, for the Respondents:—It is only the procedure laid down in Madras Act VIII of 1865 that has been extended to proceedings under Act II of 1894. The substantial provisions of the former Act have not been extended to the proceedings under the latter Act. In any event, Madras Act VIII of 1865 was repealed before the arrears claimed fell due, and under section 18 of the Madras General Clauses Act, I of 1891, only the 6 per cent. allowed by section 61 of the Madras Estates Land Act, I of 1908, can now be awarded.

JUDGMENT.—This and the nine connected civil revision petitions have been filed by the plaintiff, because the plaintiff was allowed interest on kattubadi amounts due for Fasli 1319 and subsequent Faslis at the rate of only 6 per cent. per annum and not at the rate of 12 per cent.

Plaintiff contends that because section 18 of Act II of 1894 empowered the zemindar to "recover quit rent, etc." as if it were an arrear of rent under Act VIII of 1865 and because section 37 of Act VIII of 1865 provides for interest at the rate of 12 per cent. being payable on arrears of rent, therefore, kattubadi amounts also carried 12 per cent. interest.

In the first place, I agree with the learned District Munsif that it was only the procedure enacted in Act VIII of 1865 for recovery of rent which was extended to proceedings taken for recovery of kattubadi and that the substantial provision declaring the rate of interest claimable on arrears of rent was not extended to arrears of kattubadi. The petitioner's learned Vakil quoted Gopisetti Narainsawmi Naidu v. Tallamraju Venkatasubrayudu (1) in support of his view that the provision in Act VIII of 1865 about the rate of interest also attached to kattubadi arrears by the strength of section 18 of Act II of 1894. With the greatest respect to the learned Judge who decided that case, I differ.

(1) 9 Ind. Cas. 642; 9 M. L. T. 315; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 237.

Even if that provision of the Rent Recovery Act did apply to kattubadi arrears, that Act had been repealed before the arrears in question fell due and under section 18 of the Madras General Clauses Act, I of 1891, the corresponding provision of the Estates Land Act must be referred to in construing section 18 of Act II of 1894. If so, the 6 per cent. interest allowed by the Munsif is correct (section 63 of the Estates Land Act).

It is doubtful whether the Munsif was right in applying section 73 of the Contract Act, having regard to the decision in Kamalammal v. Peeru Meera Levvai Rowthen (2).

The question of custom was not put in issue and a mere practice of collecting interest spoken to by one of the witnesses cannot prove a recognised and enforceable custom.

The petitions are dismissed. (Civil Revision Petition No. 80 of 1913 with costs).

Petitions dismissed.

(2) 20 M. 481; 7 M. L. J. 268.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 230 OF 1913.

November 11, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Lindsay, J. C.

RAM SARUP AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

BINDESHURI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17—Title, fresh, not conferred by document—Document declaring antecedent title by way of inheritance—Mutation proceedings—Compromise-deed, unregistered, filed in mutation case, whether enforceable.

Section 17 of the Registration Act, which renders compulsory the registration of certain documents, is aimed at those documents which operate by themselves to confer a fresh title, and not at those in which no new interest is created but simply a declaration is made as to an antecedent title of certain persons by way of inheritance.

Hence, where certain persons claim mutation by right of inheritance as heirs to the deceased and eventually a compromise is arrived at between them, under which they agree as to the respective shares of the deceased's property to be allotted to each of them, the deed of compromise does not amount to a transfer from one of them to the other, but merely to declaration by them that each of them has a right by way of inheritance and that by virtue of that right they are entitled to be put in possession of the said shares, and the agreement is binding upon them and enforceable as such, even though unregistered.

Khunni Lal v. Gobind Krishna Narain, 10 Ind. Cas. 477; 15 C. W. N. 545 (P. C.), 8 A. L. J. 552; 13 Bom. L. R. 427; 13 C. L. J. 575; 10 M. L. T. 25; 21 M. L. J. 645; (1911) 2 M.W. N. 432, 33 A. 356; 38 I. A. 87; Dilipat Singh v. Kanshi Nath, 24 Ind. Cas. 542; 17 O. C. 108; and Lalla Oudh Behares Lall v. Ranee Mewa Koonwar, 3 Agra H. C. R. 82, referred to.

Appeal from the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Partabgarh, dated 15th March 1913, modifying that of the Munsif, Partabgarh, dated 28th June 1913.

Mr. Mohammad Wasim, holding brief of Pandit Gokaran Nath Misra, for the Appellants.

Babu Ram Chandra, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Both these appeals are connected and may be disposed of by one judgment. The learned Counsel, who appears for the appellants, has admitted that if his Appeal No. 230 fails this will involve the dismissal of Appeal No. 231 also. The property in dispute in these cases belonged at one time to a man named Behari, who is said to have died more than 20 years ago, leaving a widow Musammat Surja. Surja died in the year 1903 and at the time of her decease there were living three collateral relatives of her deceased husband. Two of these, Ram Sarup and Ram Autar, are the appellants in these cases. They are nephews of Behari. The respondent Bindeshuri in Appeal No. 230 is a grand-nephew of Behari, being the grandson of Behari's brother, Durga. The property belonging to Behari consisted of some lands held under a perpetual lease and some under-proprietary tenure and certain groves. When Surja died in the year 1903, an application was made in the Revenue Court by the two nephews and the grand-nephew of Behari claiming that they were in possession of Behari's property by right of inheritance. There appears to have been some dispute between the parties, but that dispute was put an end to by a petition of compromise dated the 26th of August 1903. This was admittedly presented to the Revenue Court and mutation was effected in accordance with its terms. Since August 1903 the parties have been in possession according to the terms of the compromise and have been dealing with the property in various ways. Briefly put, the claim which Ram Sarup and and Ram Autar are trying to advance in the suits out of which these appeals have arisen, is that this compromise of the 26th of August 1903 is not binding upon them, that they were nearer heirs of Behari's at the time when the succession opened on the death of Musammat Surja, and that Bindeshuri had no right to any share in the property. They, therefore, claim to recover a one half share in the property left by Behari which is now in possession of Bindeshuri or of certain persons to whom Bindeshuri has made transfers. The principal question for consideration is the effect which ought to be given to the compromise which has been referred to above. It is quite true, as the learned Counsel for the appellants has argued, that this document is not registered and could not by itself operate to create any fresh title. It is also admitted that the order of the Revenue Court given in mutation proceedings could not operate to transfer the property from one of the parties to the other. But the learned Counsel for the respondents claims that this settlement ought to be supported on the ground that it is what is known as a family settlement or arrangement. Transactions of this nature are by no means uncommon and effect has been given to them by Courts of the highest authority. In this connection I need only refer to a ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council reported in Khunni Lal v. Gobind Krishna Narain (1). This ruling was followed in a judgment of my own which is reported in Dilipat Singh v. Kanshi Nath (2). The principle upon which arrangements of this kind have been upheld by Courts is that they do not create or confer any fresh title. They are in the nature of agreements by which an antecedent title in the parties is acknowledged and defined. To quote the words of the judgment in Lalla Oudh Behares Lall v. Ranee Mewa Koonwer (3), "The true character of the transaction appears to us to have been a settlement between the several members of the family of their disputes, each one relinquishing all claim in respect of all property in dispute other than that falling to his share, and recognising the right of the others, as they had previously asserted it to the portion allotted to them respectively. It was in this light, rather than as conferring a new distinct title on each other that the parties themselves seem to have regarded the arrangement, and we think that it is the duty of the Court to uphold and give full effect to such an arrangement."

(1) 10 Ind. Cas. 477; 33 A. 356; 15 C. W. N. 545 (P. C.); 8 A. L. J. 552; 13 Bom. L. R. 427; 13 C. L. J. 575; 10 M. L. T. 25; 21 M. L. J. 645; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 432, 38 I. A. 87.

(2) 24 Ind. Cas. 542; 17 O. C. 108.

(3) 3 Agra H. C. R. 82.

To turn now to this petition of compromise, dated the 26th August of 1903, it recites that the parties have come to terms and have agreed that the land which had been in possession of Musammat Sur'a, the widow of Behari, should be recorded half in the names of two brothers Ram Sarup and Ram Autar and the other half in the name of Bindeshuri. It was stated distinctly in this petition that Ram Autar, Bindeshuri and Ram Sarup were the heirs of Musammat Surja's, meaning of course that they were heirs of Surja's deceased husband. It was further stated clearly that mutation was to be made in favour of these parties by right of inheritance. The question then is, what interpretation should be put upon the arrangement which is evidenced by this document? The parties to it were the only persons interested in the property left by Behari. They were the only possible claimants and the contest between them in the Revenue Court was clearly one in which each side was asserting a right by way of inheritance. This deed is a declaration by the parties that each of them has a right by way of inheritance and that by virtue of that right they are entitled to be put in possesion in equal shares of the property left by Behari. The Court was asked to recognise the title of inheritance in Bindeshuri and it was on that footing that the entry in the Revenue Records was made. It cannot be said, I think, that this document in any way amounts to a transfer from one of these contesting parties to the other. It is I think merely an acknowledgment agreed to by both parties that both of them had a previous title as heirs of Surja's husband. Section 17 of the Registration Act, which renders compulsory the registration of certain documents, is aimed at those documents which operate by themselves to confer a fresh title. I do not think this section should be applied to a document of the present kind in which no new interest is created in favour of one or other of the parties. All that we have is a declaration that the parties have an antecedent title by way of inheritance. The property, therefore, came to them in virtue of that admitted right of inheritance and it cannot be said that their title to the property rests upon this petition of compromise dated the 26th of August 1903. For these reasons and following the principle laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council reported in Khunni Lal v. Gobind Krishna Narain (1), I am of opinion that the lower Court was right in deciding that this arrangement, which is evidenced by the document of the 26th of August 1903, should be upheld. The result, therefore, is that Appeal No. 230 fails and is dismissed with costs.

I have already mentioned that the learned Counsel admitted that the dismissal of this appeal involves the dismissal of Appeal No. 231 also. The order, therefore, is that Appeal No. 231 be also dismissed with costs.

Appeals dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 121 OF 1913.

April 29, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.

CHANDAN SINGH—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

FAKIRGIR—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 52, applicability of—Partition proceedings—Subsequent agricultural lease void.

Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act applies to an agricultural lease as well as to partition proceedings when they are contentious.

Narain Patil v. Abdul Majid Khan, 15 C. P. L. R. 6; and Dhiraj Singh v. Dina Nath, 8 Ind. Cas. 288, 6 N. L. R. 140, followed.

Khan Ali v. Pestonji Edulji Gaydar, 1 C. W. N. 62, distinguished.

An agricultural lease granted during the pendency of partition proceedings which are contentious in their origin and nature is void, even though summons had not been served on the opposite party at the time of the grant.

CHANDAN SIGNH v. FAKIRGIR.

Krishna Kamini Debi v. Dino Moni Chowdhurani, 31 C 658, distinguished.

Fayaz Husain Khan v Prag Narain, 29 A. 339 (P. C.); 11 C W N 561, 4 A L. J. 341; 5 C. L J. 563, 17 M. L. J. 263, 9 Bom. L. R 656; 2 M. L T. 191; 10 C. C. 314; 34 I. A. 102, followed.

Appeal against the decree of the Divisional Judge, Nerbudda Division, dated the 4th November 1912, confirming that of the District Judge, Chhindwara, dated the 15th May 1912.

Messrs. M. B. Dadabhoy, R. B. Gadgil and Atmaram Bhagwant, for the Appellant.

Messrs. V. Bose and J. C. Ghosh, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—One Chhuttan Singh is the lambardar of the village in which the fields in dispute are situated, and he and his son Ude Singh own a half share in it. The other half share belongs to the plaintiffs, Fakirgir and his brother Umedgir. On the 23rd of March 1901 these plaintiffs presented an application to the Deputy Commissioner for a partition of their share by metes and bounds. The other two co-owners of the village resisted the application in every possible way. In particular, they asserted that they had a right to remain in possession of the whole of the sir and the whole of the khudkasht, in which the fields now in dispute were included, on account of their undisturbed separate possession of them for 25 or 30 years. They managed to drag the proceedings on for ten years, so that there can be no doubt about their having been in every way contentious. Eventually a partition was made and the fields in suit fell in the patti allotted to he plaintiffs as their khudkasht. But when they attempted to take possession, they were resisted by the defendant Chandan Singh, son-in-law of Ude Singh, who said he had been made an ordinary tenant by a written lease executed in his favour by Chhuttan Singh on the 4th of May 1901. The plaintiffs, therefore, sued to eject him.

The finding in the Court of the District Judge in regard to the lease is that "a bona fide lease of khudkasht lands is no doubt within the powers of the village lambardar, but the lease in question is not of that nature." In appeal the learned Divisional Judge wrote: "The learned District Judge has given valid reasons for holding that this was a mischievous (sic) lease in favour of Ude Singh's own son-in-law in order that plaintiff might not be able to get khas possession of khudkasht lands allotted to his share at partition. I concur in the finding and the reasons therefor." If these findings had been clear and full statements of what they seem to mean, there would have been an end of the case. Both Courts would seem to have arrived at a finding that no real lease was ever given to the defendant at all, that the lambardar merely executed a deed in his favour and got his name entered as tenant of the land, but never intended to make him a tenant and never did in fact do so. Unfortunately there is no definite expression of such a finding in either judgment. If this very simple issue of fact had been worked out to an end, that would have probably given us a final and satisfactory decision of the whole case.

The Courts below have, however, preferred to examine the issues of law, and have decided that the lease is void under both section 52 and section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act. The defendant now urges in appeal:

(i) that section 52 does not apply to an agricultural lease;

(ii) that it does not apply to partition proceedings;

(iii) that in any case it does not apply to a transfer completed before the transferor was served with notice of the institution of the proceedings;

(iv) that section 53 does not apply to the case, because the consideration for the lease has not been shown to be inadequate.

The first two points must be decided against the appellant on the authority of the rulings of this Court in Narain Patel v. Abdul Majid Khan (1), and Dhiraj Singh v. Dina Nath (2). In support of the second, the appellant relies on the Calcutta case of Khan Ali v. Pestonji Edulji Guydar (3). There the section was held not to apply because the partition proceedings in question were not contentious. This distinction was drawn in Narain Patel v. Abdul Majid Khan (1) already quoted, and by the Calcutta Court itself in Jogendra Chunder Ghose v. Fulkumari Dasi (4). Apart, however, from judicial authority, I cannot see how either contention could stand for a moment in view of the plain words of section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act.

(1) 15 C. P. L. R. 6.
(2) 8 Ind. Cas. 288; 6 N. L. R. 140.
(3) 1 C. W. N. 62.

The third contention is also concluded by the authority of the Privy Council in Faiyaz Husain Khan v. Prag Narain (5) in these words: "Their Lordships are unable to agree in the view which seems to have obtained in India that a suit contentious in its origin and nature is not contentious within the meaning of section 52 of the Act of 1882 until a summons is served on the opposite party. There seems to be no warrant for that view in the Act, and it certainly would lead to very inconvenient results in a country where evasion of service is probably not unknown or a matter of any great difficulty." In the case of Krishna Kamini Debi v. Dino Moni Chowdhurani (6) cited by the appellant, the proceedings were not contentious in their origin and nature, but only became so after the transfer which it was sought to set aside under section 52.

Proof that the transfer was gratuitous or for a grossly inadequate consideration is merely one of the two grounds on which it may be presumed, without further evidence, that the transfer was of the kind declared voidable by section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act. That of course does not exclude proof of the same matter by entirely different evidence not including either of the points mentioned in the rule of evidence attached to section 53. As a matter of fact we have one of those two points in this case, that the effect of the transfer was to defraud and defeat the co-owners. We have further the facts that the lease was to Ude Singh's son-in-law, that it was made shortly after the institution of the proceedings in which the lambardar pleaded that the plaintiffs had no right to partition at all, that it was of khudkasht land which the lambardar himself pleaded had been khudkasht for more than a quarter of a century. These facts furnish quite sufficient ground for the finding of fact at which both the Courts below have arrived that the transfer was made with the intent mentioned in section 53, or, as they have put it, was not bona fide. The fact that Chhuttan Singh was lambardar and, therefore, presumably the agent of the proprietary body in all matters of this sort is not, in this case, any evidence to the contrary, because he himself demolished the presumption that he acted as agent for the plaintiffs in granting this lease, by his plea in the partition proceedings that the land was his own separate khudkasht in which the plaintiffs had no right to a share.

The appeal is, therefore, dismissed and the appellant is ordered to pay all the costs in all three Courts.

Appeal dismissed.

(4) 27 C. 77.
(5) 29 A. 339 (P. C.); 11 C. W. N. 561; 4 A. L. J. 44; 5 C. L. J. 563; 17 M. L. J. 263; 9 Bom. L. R. 356; 2 M. L. T. 191; 10 C. C. 314; 34 I. A. 102.
(6) 31 C. 658.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION APPLICATION No. 50 OF 1912.

October 12, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Crouch, A. J. C., and Mr. Fawcett, A. J. C.

Munshi SHIVANDAS—DEFENDANT—APPLICANT

versus

PAMANMAL MANGHARAM—PLAINTIFF—OPPONENT

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XVII, r. 1—Application for adjournment—Discretion of Court, object of—Party deliberately neglecting, effect of.

It is purely a matter of discretion for the Court to grant an adjournment in any particular case. The discretion should be exercised judicially and reasonably and is not subject to any definite rules.

The main purpose for which a Judge is given a discretion under Order XVII, rule 1, is to enable him to prevent a party improperly delaying proceedings and abusing the process of the Court with that object.

If a party deliberately neglects to summon all his witnesses and those cited do not appear, he has only himself to blame if the Court regards this as an indication that the intention is to prevent the case proceeding on the day fixed.

Civil revision application against an order of the District Judge, Hyderabad.

SHIVANDAS v. PAMANMAL MANGHARAM.

Mr. G. A. Kikla, for the Applicant.

JUDGMENT.—The applicant in this case was defendant in an application under Schedule II, rule 20, Civil Procedure Code, to file an award made out of Court. He put in a written statement of objections on 9th February 1912, on which issues were framed the same day, and the case was adjourned for final hearing to 18th March 1912. On the 5th March, he applied for summonses to witnesses, both residing in Sakrand at a distance of some 24 miles from Hala, the place where the Court is situate, and paid expenses the same day. The summonses were not served as both the witnesses were absent at other places. On the 18th March defendant was absent, but his Pleader applied for an adjournment on the ground of his witnesses being absent. This was refused by the Sub-Judge. An appeal was made to and rejected by the District Judge of Hyderabad, and applicant now applies to this Court in revision for a reversal of the order refusing him an adjournment.

Under Order XVII, rule 1, Civil Procedure Code "The Court may, if sufficient cause is shown at any stage of the suit, grant time to the parties or to any of them, and may from time to time adjourn the hearing of the suit." It is, therefore, purely a matter of discretion for the Court to grant an adjournment in any particular case—a discretion which no doubt should be exercised judicially and reasonably but which is not subject to any definite rules. As pointed out by Russell, J., in re Taja Noora (1) where a discretion is vested in any legal authority, such authority must be free to exercise it in each case and rules which are unchangeable and which compel such authority to exercise its discretion in any particular manner are invalid. English authorities such as Gardner v. Jay (2) are to the same effect. In accordance with this principle it is certainly not a rule that a party is entitled to an adjournment, merely because witnesses summoned have not been served. On this point we concur with the following remarks contained in paragraphs 94 and 97 at page 29 of the Bombay High Court Manual of Circulars:—"The grant of an adjournment is a matter which generally is entirely within the discretion of the Court.....A party is not entitled as of right to an adjournment because witnesses who have been summoned have not appeared. The question is one for the discretion of the Judge. In granting adjournments in such cases the principle should be borne in mind that the trial should be conducted within a period short enough to enable the Judge to deal satisfactorily with the evidence." Similarly rule 28 at page 76 of the Sind Courts Civil Circulars lays down that "adjournments are not to be granted unnecessarily. Parties must have their evidence ready on the day fixed for hearing. If they omit to take the necessary steps for this purpose in good time they will not usually be allowed further time. The Judge should not ordinarily refrain from proceeding with a case merely because all the witnesses are not present."

In his reasons for refusing the adjournment, the Sub-Judge says:—"The defendant had more than a month to summon witnesses. He had ample time to take out summonses repeatedly until the witnesses were served, but he took no steps until the 5th March for summoning witnesses. The time left was too short to serve the witnesses or for the witnesses to appear even if served." The last statement is controverted in an affidavit which has been put in by the applicant, and we assume that there was sufficient time for the witnesses to have been served, if they had been present at Sakrand on the 16th March, when the bailiff went there to serve the summonses, and for them to have appeared at Hala on the 18th. To this extent the applicant no doubt sufficiently complied with the requirements of rule 12 at page 72 of the Sind Courts Civil Circulars that "applications for summonses to witnesses shall be presented . . . .and process fees and travelling and subsistence allowances shall be paid . ....so long beforehand as may be sufficient for service and compliance in case the witnesses do not reside within five miles of the Court." But, for the reasons already given, the mere fact of compliance with this rule did not entitle applicant to an adjournment. On the other hand, we do not think that the mere fact that the delay in applying for summonses so that they could not be re-issued to the witnesses in time to secure service by the 16th March necessarily disentitles him to an adjournment. The case falls under the general rule that in exercising a judicial discretion a Judge has to "consider as a Judge, what are vaguely termed all the circumstances of the case and the purposes for which he is invested with discretion, and to make his order by reference to considerations of convenience or utility or saving of expense rather than on considerations of strict law or technicalities," see Encyclopædia of Laws of England, Volume IV, page 609, sub-tit. "Judicial discretion."

(1) 4 Bom. L. R. 768 at p. 772.
(2) (1885) 29 Ch. D 50; 58; 54 L. J. Ch. 762, 52 L. T 395; 33 W. R 470.

Now one of the main purposes for which a Judge is undoubtedly given a discretion under Order XVII, rule 1, is to enable him to prevent a party improperly delaying proceedings and abusing the process of the Court with that object. In the present case the Sub-Judge was clearly of opinion that the real object of the applicant was to delay the proceedings in this manner. He says:—"It is remarkable that the defendant gave the names of six witnesses and deposited costs only for two. It would seem to show that he did not want the case to go on to-day and, therefore, he did not want all the witnesses for the present." The statement in the first sentence of the above has not been controverted by the applicant in the affidavit filed by him, and must be taken as correct. In our opinion it fully justifies the view taken by the Sub-Judge as to the real object of the applicant. The case had been fixed for final hearing on the 18th Mach and the applicant's duty was to summon all his witnesses so that those served and present could have been examined, even though some of the witnesses were unserved and did not appear. If a party deliberately neglects to summon all his witnesses and those cited do not appear, he has only himself to blame if the Court regards this as an indication that the intention is to prevent the case proceeding on the day fixed. The fact that defendant himself was absent on the 15th March supports the suspicion against him, which is also strengthened by the nature of the application he was resisting. The Courts cannot but take judicial notice of the fact that persons, against whom an award has been given and who have no real ground for resisting an application to file it in Court, often resort to every possible stratagem for the purpose of delaying the filing of the award and consequent issue of execution thereon.

As remarked by Jenkins, C. J., in Ramachandra v. Balmukand (3) it is a sound rule that Courts of Appeal should not lightly interfere with a discretion deliberately exercised by a lower Court; and this rule applies a fortiori to a revisional Court which can only interfere within the limits laid down by section 115, Civil Procedure Code. In the present case not only are we not satisfied that the lower Court in confirming the Sub-Judge's order refusing to grant the adjournment acted illegally or with material irregularity, but on the contrary we think that the Sub-Judge rightly and legally exercised a sound discretion in refusing the adjournment.

The application is, therefore, dismissed with costs.

Application dismissed.

(3) 29 B. 71; 6 Bom. L. R. 780.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 75 OF 1913.

November 24, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

NARASIMHA CHETTI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

VIJIAPALA NAINAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r 63—Claim petition—Adverse order, without investigation, whether conclusive, if not set aside within one year—Difference between old and new Code Order XXI, rule 63, of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, is much wider in its scope than the corresponding section 283 of the Code of 1882, and unlike the latter section covers cases in which there has been no investigation. Orders made under rule 63 of Order XXI become final if not set aside within one year.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of North Arcot, in Appeal

NARASIMHA CHETTI v. VIJIAPALA NAINAR.

Suit No. 248 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the District Munsif of Ranipet in Original Suit No. 628 of 1911.

FACTS.—The plaintiffs, having on 1st December 1905 instituted a suit against the defendants Nos. 1 to 3 on a bond executed by them in favour of plaintiffs, obtained an attachment before judgment of the suit properties in January 1906. These properties had, however, been sold by defendants Nos. 1 to 3 to the 4th defendant on 20th December 1905. The plaintiffs' suit was decreed on 16th November 1906. In pursuance of the said decree the plaintiffs brought the suit properties to sale. On 7th January 1909, 4th defendant put in a claim, which however was dismissed, the order being as follows: "The attachment was made in January 1906, and the sale is coming on to-day. The claim is based on a sale-deed dated a fortnight before the attachment. I find that the claim has been unnecessarily delayed and dismiss it without investigation, Order XXI, rule 58 (1), proviso." The sale took place on 19th January 1909 and the plaintiffs became the purchasers. They then sued the defendants for possession of the properties. Both the lower Courts upheld the sale to the 4th defendant. The plaintiffs thereupon appealed to the High Court.

Mr. N. S. Narasimhachari, for the Appellants:—Order XXI, rule 63, makes every order passed on a claim petition conclusive against the person affected, if not set aside within one year. The fact that there was no investigation is immaterial under the new Code. The distinction between orders passed after investigation and those without it, which existed under section 283 of the Code of 1882, is not maintained in the corresponding provision of the new Code, viz., Order XXI, rule 63. The change in the language of the present Article 11 of Limitation Act IX of 1908 is also significant. There has been a deliberate departure from the old law. Fourth defendant, therefore, not having sued for setting aside the adverse order against him, has lost his title to the suit properties and the plaintiffs are in consequence entitled to a decree.

Mr. L. A. Venkataraghava Iyer, for Mr. L. A. Govindaraghava Iyer, for the Respondents:—The alteration in the language of section 283 is only verbal and the old decisions still hold good. An order of dismissal passed without investigation could not be deemed an order passed against the party affected. The order clearly says that the claim was dismissed without any investigation. Further the plea of limitation was not raised in the Courts below. The bar of limitation does not apply to a defendant in possession. See Roghoonath Doss Mohapattur v. Bydonath Doss Maharatha (1), Venkapa v. Chenbasapa (2) and Meerudin Saib v. Rahisa Bibi (3).

JUDGMENT.—The appeal is argued on the ground that the rights of the contesting defendants were disallowed by Exhibit G, the order against the 4th defendant in Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 11 of 1909 in the District Munsif's Court, Ranipet, which has not been set aside by any decree and has, therefore, become conclusive.

Contra it is argued that, as Exhibit G was not passed after investigation, a suit to set it aside is not subject to the one year's limitation, and it, therefore, has not yet become conclusive. This would, no doubt, have been well-founded under sections 278 and 283 of Act XIV of 1882. But under the latter section it was only orders under sections 280, 281 and 282, which became conclusive after one year, whilst under Order XXI, rule 63, the language is wider, "where a claim or objection is preferred, the party against whom an order is passed, etc.," and we cannot restrict it to cover only cases in which an investigation has taken place. In these circumstances the plaintiffs' contention must prevail.

The result is that the decrees of the lower Courts are set aside and the plaintiffs are given the decree asked for. The argument on which they have succeded here was not referred to before the District Munsif and it is not clear that it was put forward in the lower Appellate Court.

Each party will, therefore, bear his own costs throughout.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 14 W. R. 364.
(2) 4 B. 21.
(3) 27 M. 25.

BAYABAI SAKALKAR v. HARIDAS.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL CIVIL SUIT No. 1045 OF 1912.

August 27, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Macleod.

BAYABAI SAKALKAR—PLAINTIFF

versus

HARIDAS RANCHHORDAS AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS.

Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 62—Bequest in favour of a person not named—Secret instructions to trustee—Admissibility of oral evidence to prove trust.

A legatee who undertakes to carry out the wishes of a testator, will be treated as a trustee and compelled to carry out the instructions of the testator.

Manuel Louis Kunha v. Jnana Coelho, 31 M. 187; 18 M. L. J. 158, followed.

Where a testator directed that a certain pecuniary legacy be entrusted to one H to be disposed of by him in accordance with instructions given by the testator to one of his trustees and that his shares in a certain Company be transferred to the person whose name will be disclosed by H, and the intended beneficiary (who was admittedly the person in whose favour the instructions were given) filed a suit praying that H might be ordered to disclose the secret trust and that the bequest might be declared to be for her benefit:

Held, (1) that parol evidence was admissible to prove the trust,

(2) that the shares must be transferred to a person whose name was given by the testator to H, the power given to H being not a general one but a special one.

Mr. Gadgil (with him Mr. Munshi), for the Plaintiff.

Mr. Desai (with him Mr. Dadachanji), for Defendants Nos. 3 and 4.

Mr. Kanga (with him Mr. Dastur), for Defendant No. 5.

Mr. Kanga, (with him Mr. Taraporevala), for Defendant No. 6.

JUDGMENT.—One Gokuldas Kanji, a Bhatia, died in Bombay about the 18th December 1910, leaving a widow Gangabai and a daughter Kashibai, a concubine Bayabai, plaintiff in the suit, and several illegitimate children said to be by her. By his Will he appointed defendants Nos. 1 to 5 in this suit executors and executrix. Clause 7 of the Will runs as follows:—

"In accordance with the directions I am going to give in private to trustee No. 1 out of the trustees appointed by me, my trustees should entrust to Haridas Rs. 5,000 that may be received from my life-policy and the shares of Tata & Co. also should be transferred to the person whose name will be disclosed by Haridas."

The said Gangabai filed Suit No. 24 of 1911 against the said executors and executrix, praying, inter alia, (a) that the estate of Gokuldas might be administered on the footing that he had died intestate or in the alternative on the footing of the Will, if proved to be genuine and valid; (b) that in so far as might be necessary the Will, if proved to be genuine, might be construed by the Court.

In paragraph No. 9 of the plaint the plaintiff contended that several clauses of the Will were void and inoperative.

The defendants did not admit this in their written statement, but were willing that the Will should be construed. In paragraph No. 9 they said that certain persons should be added as parties.

It is admitted now that Bayabai, the present plaintiff, was the person in whose favour directions were given to Haridas, but her name was not mentioned in paragraph No. 9.

The suit came on for hearing before Beaman, J., on the 20th June 1912.

The learned Judge's notes, to which I have referred, contain merely the appearances for the parties. No issues were raised, from which it seems that the parties in a friendly spirit without argument asked the learned Judge to construe the Will.

The judgment on clause 7 is as follows:—"Clause 7. Here the testator intends to create a secret trust; but having regard to the provisions of the Hindu Wills Act read with the Indian Trusts Act, it is clear that no effect can be given to it, and as no beneficial interest is given to executor No. 1 the whole of that gift fails and falls into the residue."

Bayabai, making her five children as the children of Gokuldas party-plaintiffs, filed this suit against the five executors and executrix on the 27th September 1912, praying, inter alia, that the defendant Haridas might be ordered to disclose the secret trust under clause 7; that the bequest in clause 7 might be declared to be for the benefit of the plaintiff; and that the defendants should be ordered to pay such maintenance including arrears to the first plaintiff for herself and her children as the Court might think fit.

BAYABAI SAKALKAR v. HARIDAS.

Defendants Nos. 3 and 4 filed their written statement. In clause 4 they refer to the judgment in Suit No. 24 of 1911 and contend that the question of clause 7 being effective was res judicata. They admit that they had been informed by defendant No. 1 that the person for whose benefit the provision in clause 7 was intended was the first plaintiff.

Thereafter Gangabai was made a party-defendant as well as various other parties who took benefits under the Will. Gangabai filed a written statement in which she contended that the decree in Suit No. 24 of 1911 was binding on the first plaintiff and that in any event, the first plaintiff was not entitled to be paid more than Rs. 15 a month as maintenance, which had been offered to her.

The other defendants did not appear at the hearing. After the pleadings had been read, plaintiffs' Counsel asked that plaintiffs Nos. 5 and 6 might be struck off, since they had no claim being daughters. As it was obvious there was a misjoinder of causes of action and of parties, he also asked for leave to withdraw the suit on behalf of plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 4 with liberty to file a fresh suit for maintenance, and for leave to withdraw such part of the first plaintiff's suit as referred to the claim for maintenance with liberty to file a fresh suit. I ordered that plaintiffs Nos. 5 to 6 should be struck off, and also plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 4 with liberty to file a fresh suit, while first plaintiff should be allowed to continue the suit in respect of prayers (a) and (b) of the plaint with liberty to file a fresh suit for her maintenance. The first plaintiff was directed to pay the costs of defendants Nos. 3 and 4 and defendant No. 6, incurred by them in preparing to resist the claim for maintenance unless a suit was filed in respect of that claim within three months from that date (the 6th August) in which case the same materials would be available.

If necessary, the consequential amendments, in the plaint could be made.

The following issues were then raised :—

1. Whether the claim made by the plaintiff in paragraphs Nos. 3 and 4 of the plaint with reference to the sum of Rs. 5,000 and the shares in Tata Steel Co. is not res judicata by reason of the decision in Suit No. 24 of 1911.

2. Whether in any event the plaintiff is entitled to the said claim.

3. Whether these defendants are not entitled to a decree on their counter-claim.

As regards issue No. 3 plaintiff's Counsel admitted he could not retain the share certificate referred to in the counter-claim.

As regards the first issue as the plaintiff was not a party to Suit No. 24 of 1911, the decision would only be binding on her if she were claiming under the executors. It was urged that executors represent the beneficiaries, but the defendants certainly did not represent Bayabai as no mention whatever was made of her name. Nor does she claim under them, as her case is founded on a contract made by Haridas with the testator. Moreover, the question I have now to decide was not raised in the suit, namely, whether if there was a trust in favour of Bayabai she could come in and prove it. I, therefore, find that she is not bound by the decision in Suit No. 24 of 1911.

The evidence of Haridas now makes it clear that the testator was desirous of making a bequest in favour of Bayabai, but was not willing for her name to appear in the Will. He, therefore, dictated clause 7 as it stands and told Haridas in private that the bequest was for the benefit of the lady at Kandewady.

Haridas knew to whom the testator referred, although he did not know her name until afterwards. On one occasion he had gone with the testator to the house in which Bayabai lived and the testator pointed her out to him. In answer to my questions Haridas said that the testator understood that witness was willing to abide by his wishes, and he was quite willing to pay the plaintiff if the legacy was paid to him.

The bequests in clause 7 are two:—

1. Rs. 5,000 to be recovered from the life-policy are to be given to Haridas to whom the testator was going to give directions in private.

2. The shares in Tata & Co. were to be transferred to the name of such person as Haridas might name.

The question arises whether the evidence of Haridas as to the private instructions given to him by the testator is admissible.

It was argued that section 68 of the Indian Succession Act, which is incorporated in the Hindu Wills Act by section 2 of that Act, applied; but this is not a case of ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will.

If the testator had made no mention of his private instructions and had merely made a bequest of the Rs. 5,000 to Haridas, I do not think it can be doubted that the terms of the trust which he had undertaken could be proved.

The question was very fully gone into in Manuel Louis Kunha v. Jnana Coelho (1), where it was held that the rule of equity that a legatee who undertakes to carry out the wishes of the testator will be treated as a trustee and compelled to carry out the instructions of the testator, was made applicable to India by section 5 of the Indian Trusts Act.

But it was argued that the case is different if it appears on the face of the Will that the legatee is not intended to take any beneficial interest, because there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will and, therefore, extrinsice vidence of the testator's intention is not admissible.

The cases of In re Fleetwood; Sidgreaves v. Brewer (2) and In re Huxtable; Huxtable v. Crawford (3) show that where there is be quest to A to be dealt with by him in ac cordance with directions given to him by th testator, the Courts have not considered tha there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will so as to exclude oral evidence of the instructions given. All that is required is that the instructions were communicated to the legatee by the testator and that the legatee agreed to accept the bequest on the terms of the trust. The consent of the legatee is implied if by his silence he leads the testator to believe that he will abide by the instructions communicated to him.

In Riordan v. Banon (4) the facts were practically on all fours with the present case. The Will directed a pecuniary legacy to be disposed of by the legatee in a manner of which he alone should be cognizant. It was proved by parol evidence that before execution of the Will the testator had verbally informed the legatee that he intended to bequeath the legacy in trust for a person he then named and that the legatee had consented to accept the legacy for that purpose. The residuary legatee having claimed the benefit of the legacy, it was held that a valid trust for the person named had attached to the bequest and the Court would allow such trust to be proved by parol evidence.

In In re Fleetwood; Sidgreaves v. Brewer (2) Hall, V. C., said: "The same principle which led this Court, whether wisely or not, to hold that the Statute of Frauds and the Statute of Wills were not to be used as instruments of fraud, appears to me to apply to cases where the Will shows some trust was intended, as well as to those where this does not appear upon it."

In In re Huxtable, Huxtable v. Crawford (3) A bequeathed £14,000 to C "for the charitable purposes agreed upon between us" and it was held by the Court of Appeal that there was a gift for limited charitable purposes, and that evidence was admissible to show what the purposes agreed upon were. It was admitted for proving matters which were not defined by the Will.

I can see no reason why this rule of equity should not be applied in India, both when it appears on the face of the Will that instructions have been given to the legatee and when it does not so appear. In the latter case equity interferes to prevent a fraud by the legatee, in the former, to prevent a fraud by the residuary legatee. The objection is the same in each case, viz., that the testator's intentions have not been expressed in accordance with the provisions of the law applicable to Wills.

The bequest of the shares in Tata & Co. stands on a different footing. The testator directed that his executor should transfer them to such person as Haridas might name. But for the context, those words would give Haridas a general power to name any one he pleased as the transferee. Read with the first part of clause 7 it is evident that the testator intended that the shares should be transferred to the same person in whose favour a trust had been created as regards Rs. 5,000.

It has been argued that Haridas cannot be permitted to disclose the name of the person to whom the testator told him the shares should be transferred and that, therefore,

(1) 31 M. 187; 18 M. L. J. 158.
(2) (1880) 15 Ch. D. 594 at p. 607; 49 L. J. Ch. 514; 29 W. R. 45.
(3) (1902) 2 Ch. 793; 71 L. J. Ch. 876; 87 L. T. 415; 51 W R 285
(4) (1876) 10 Ir R. Eq. 469.

the shares fall into the residue, on the ground that there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will.

Sections 67 and 68 of the Indian Succession Act embody the canon referred to by Jarman on Wills, 6th Edition, Vol. I, at page 516: "The admission or rejection of parol evidence is commonly said to depend in all cases on the canon, which rejects it in the case of patent ambiguities, or those which appear upon the face of the Will, and admits it in the case of latent ambiguities, or those which seem certain, for anything that appears upon the face of the Will, but there is some collateral matter, out of the Will, that breeds ambiguity. And this ambiguity, being raised by parol evidence, may, it is said, be fairly removed by the same means. But upon examination the maxim proves not to be an universal guide; for, on the one hand, there are many recognized authorities for the admission of parol evidence to explain ambiguities appearing on the face of the Will, while, on the other hand, the existence of a latent ambiguity will certainly not, as appears sometimes to have been supposed, warrant the admission in all cases indiscriminately of parol evidence to show what the testator meant to have written as distinguished from what is the meaning of the words he has used.....We come, therefore, to the conclusion either that the distinction taken by the canon between latent and patent ambiguities is an unsubstantial one, or that the proposition does, in its second branch, assert the admissibility of evidence to show the testator's intention (as distinguished from the meaning of his written words); and that consequently, if true, its application must be confined to a special class of cases."

In Colpoys v. Colpoys (5), still accepted as an authority, the Master of the Rolls said at page 464 et seq.: "The books are full of instances sanctioned by the highest authorities both in law and equity. Where the person or the thing is designated on the face of the instrument, by terms imperfect and equivocal, admitting either of no meaning at all by themselves or of a variety of different meanings, referring tacitly or expressly for the ascertainment and completion of the meaning to extrinsic circumstances, it has never been considered an objection to the reception of the evidence of those circumstances, that the ambiguity was patent."

But the question does not arise in this case whether under similar circumstances those authorities will be followed by the Courts in India, for it seems to me that the evidence now under consideration has been adduced for the purpose of proving material facts, and not for proving what the testator meant to have written.

In Higgins v. Dawson (6) Lord Davey refers with approval to the following passage in the judgment of Rigby, L. J., in the Court below: "The first point which I think it convenient to notice is the fundamental distinction between evidence simply explanatory of the words (of the Will) themselves, and evidence sought to be applied to prove intention itself as an independent fact (Wigram, 3rd Edition, pl. 10). This distinction must never be lost sight of. The great majority of the cases of explanatory evidence consisted of the ascertainment of persons and things insufficiently explained by the Will itself:" see also Wigram, page 51; and Jarman on Wills, 6th Edition, Vol. I, at page 511 says: "Upon the same principle, of course, it is not essential to the validity of the gift, either of real or personal estate, that the person who is the intended object of the testator's bounty should be actually pointed out on the face of the Will; it is enough that the testator has provided the means of ascertaining it, according to the maxim, id certum est quod certum reddi potest: Nor is it material that the description makes the objects of gift to depend upon circumstances or acts of persons which are future and contingent."

That a power can be created by a Hindu Will was recognized by this Court in Javerbai v. Kablibai (7). If the words of the second part of clause 7 are read by themselves, Haridas has a general power to nominate the person to whom the shares should be transferred. He could nominate himself or any person in existence at the date of the testator's death. But read with the words in the first part of the clause, it is clear that the shares must be transferred to a person whose name was given by the testator to Haridas, and that the power is not a general one but a special one.

(5) (1822) Jac. 451; 37 Eng Rep. 921.

(6) (1902) A. C. 1; 71 L. J. Ch. 132, 50 W. R. 337 85 L. T. 768.

(7) 15 B. 326.

I think that Haridas was bound to disclose the plaintiff's name and that the evidence is admissible either under section 62 or in accordance with the authorities above cited.

Suit decreed.

COURT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE, UNITED PROVINCES.

REVENUE PETITION No. 11 OF 1913-14 OF BARA BANKI DISTRICT.

July 25, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Holms, J. M.

BADAL—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

ABDUL WAHAB—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Ex-proprietary rights, claim for—Possession, actual, of sir not retained by vendor, effect of—Waiver—Purchase at public sale and not by deed executed by vendor.

If the vendor transfers the actual possession of his zemindari and sir land to the vendee and waives, by his failure to enter into possession as a tenant, the statutory rights conferred by section 7A of the Oudh Rent Act, he cannot be deemed to be a tenant with such rights, but this principle of waiver does not probably apply to cases when the purchase is made at a public sale and not by a deed executed by the vendor.

Thakur Harihar Bakhsh v. Gajadhar Bakhsh, 11 Select Decision 1904, referred to.

Appeal from the decree of the Commissioner, Fyzabad, dated the 4th August 1913, upholding the order of the Assistant Commissioner, Bara Banki, dated the 21st April 1913.

Mr. E. Manuel, for the Appellant.

Mirza Mohammad Fasih, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In February 1910 Jang Bahadur bought at a public sale the proprietary rights of Abdul Wahab in the land in question along with other land, and in May 1910 Jang Bahadur leased the land in suit along with other land to Badal, the appellant. Later on, Abdul Wahab sued Jang Bahadur for a declaration as to his ex-proprietary rights, and in June 1912 Jang Bahadur agreed to compromise giving him ex-proprietary rights in the land in suit. Apparently Badal was in cultivating possession between May 1910 and June 1912, and the real question is, did Abdul Wahab by his action in not entering into possession as a tenant waive the statutory rights conferred on him by section 7A? There are rulings to the effect that if the vendor transfers the actual possession of his zemindari and sir land to the vendee and waives by his failure to enter into possession as a tenant the statutory rights conferred by section 7A, he cannot be deemed to be a tenant with such rights [Thakur Harihar Bakhsh v. Gajadhar Bakhsh (1)]. This case, however, differs to this extent that Abdul Wahab did not transfer the actual possession of the sir land to the vendee by any deed, and with some hesitation I hold that he did not waive his ex-proprietary rights.

The appellant urges the question of his being ejected from a part of his holding only, but in the view I take he holds the land in suit as sub-tenant under Adbul Wahab and the rest of the land given to him by lease in May 1910 as tenant-in-chief under Jang Bahadur. So the holdings are different.

I dismiss the appeal. As the litigation is largely due to respondent's negligence, parties will bear their own costs of appeal.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 11 Select Decision 1904.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION FIRST APPEAL No. 261 OF 1914.

December 8, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Chamier.

KALIAN SINGH AND OTHERS—DECREE-HOLDERS—APPELLANTS

versus

JAGAN PRASAD—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—RESPONDENT.

Execution—Res judicata—Judgment-debtor not raising an objection which he ought to have raised—Objection, whether can be raised subsequently.

It is not necessary that a judgment-debtor who puts forward objections in the execution department must put forward all possible objections once and for all. If he does not do so, matters which he has omitted must not be treated as res judicata against him.

Execution first appeal from the decision of the Subordinate Judge of Muttra.

Mr. Gulzari Lal, for the Appellants.

KALIAN SINGH v. JAGAN PRASAD.

Mr. Kailash Nath Katju, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of proceedings in execution of a decree passed in 1911. The decree was for Rs. 20,200 with proportionate costs and the Court also gave the plaintiffs future interest, that is, interest from the date of suit at the rate of six per cent. per annum. The first question for decision is whether the Court allowed interest on the costs awarded. It appears to me that the decree read by itself is plain enough. The expression "sud ajenda" is applicable to the principal sum decreed, and not to the sum awarded as costs, and if there is any doubt as to the meaning of the decree, it is set at rest by a reference to the judgment which makes the meaning quite plain. In my opinion the decree-holders were not entitled to interest on the amount of costs awarded. It appears that in 1912 an application was made to execute the decree and a report was put up which showed that a sum of Rs. 8,500 odd remained due. In November 1912, some property was sold for the sum of Rs. 8,500, or deducting the sale commission, Rs. 8,479. Soon after the sale the judgment-debtor applied to the Court for refund of Rs. 125, saying that the decree-holders had been over-paid. It does not appear how he proposed to make out this, and the Court ultimately decided that the decree-holders had not been over-paid. By the present application for execution the decree-holders seek to recover Rs. 110-3-0, as balance of the amount of the decree, Rs. 5-3-6, interest on the same from the date of the sale above-mentioned and Rs. 178-1-0, interest on the sum of Rs. 8,479, total Rs. 293-7-6. The judgment-debtor objected, saying that if accounts were taken it would be found that the decree-holders had been over-paid. On this occasion for the first time in the history of the case the judgment-debtor pointed out that all along interest had been calculated on the sum awarded as costs. According to my construction of the decree the decree-holders were not entitled to this interest. But it is contended that it is not open to the judgment-debtor to raise the question at this stage of the suit, but that he ought to have raised the question long ago and in particular he ought to have raised it in March 1913 when he alleged that the decree-holders had been over-paid. In fact it is contended that the matter is now res judicata against him, because he might and ought on that occasion to have raised the question which he has now raised. It has been held in several cases that a matter once decided by a Court executing a decree cannot be re-opened at a subsequent stage of the proceedings; but I am not aware that it has been held that a judgment-debtor who puts forward objections in the execution department must put forward all possible objections once and for all, and that if he does not do so, matters which he has omitted must be treated as res judicata against him even if he was not aware of them. In the present case there has certainly been no decision on the question now raised and in the absence of authority I am not prepared to hold that the matter is res judicata against the judgment-debtor, because he had a previous opportunity of raising the question but did not do so. If, as I hold, interest ought not to have been allowed on the sum awarded as costs, and the judgment-debtor is entitled to raise objection at this stage, the decree-holders are certainly not entitled to the sum of Rs. 110-3-0, or to interest thereon. In any case they are not entitled to the sum of Rs. 178-1-0. They purchased the property themselves and, therefore, they paid no money into Court at all, and even if they had paid money into Court they would not have been entitled to interest on the sum paid in by them. I am, therefore, of opinion that the Court below was right in allowing judgment-debtor's objection. I do not understand the Court below to have held that the judgment-debtor is entitled to a refund of any particular amount. All that it did was to allow his objections and to dismiss the application for execution. This appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

KARUNAKARA MENON v. KRISHNA MENON.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 180 OF 1913.

January 18, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and Mr. Justice Seshagiri Aiyar.

M. KARUNAKARA MENON AND ANOTHER —RESPONDENTS NOS. 2 AND 3—APPELLANTS

versus

M. KRISHNA MENON AND OTHERS— PETITIONERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 89 — Several judgment-debtors—Application by one to set aside sale—Applicant, whether entitled to claim deposit by non-applying judgment-debtors as his.

A judgment-debtor who applies to have a sale set aside under Order XXI, rule 89, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, cannot claim that the monies deposited by other judgment-debtors who have not joined in his application should be regarded as his.

Trimbak v. Ramchandra, 23 B. 723; Kripa Nath Pal v. Ram Lakshmi Dasya, 1 C. W. N. 703, followed.

Anantha Lakshmi Ammal v. Kannanchankarath Sankaran Nair, 18 Ind. Cas. 579, 13 M. L. T. 123; (1913) M. W. N. 101; 24 M. L. J. 205; Vedala Lakshminarasamma v. Pucha Lakshmammal, 14 Ind. Cas. 326, (1912) M. W. N. 756, distinguished.

Appeal under section 15 of the Letters Patent against the judgment of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Tyabji, in Civil Revision Petition No. 57 of 1912, reported in 22 Ind. Cas. 537, preferred against the order of the District Court of South Malabar in Civil Miscellaneous Appeal No. 23 of 1911, preferred against the order of the Court of the District Munsif of Palghat in Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 1381 of 1911, in Original Suit No 285 of 1908.

FACTS.—The 1st counter-petitioner (plaintiff in Original Suit No. 285 of 1908 on the file of the District Munsif of Palghat) obtained a mortgage-decree against the defendants in respect of the Jenmam value of the plaint properties due to the Government by the assignor of the defendants. The decree directed that the items of lands in the hands of the defaulters should be sold first and if the decree remained unsatisfied, then lands in the possession of other assignee-defendants, who were not defaulters, should be sold. As among the defaulters also the decree directed that the sale of the properties in the hands of those who paid their respective decree-debts should be postponed to those of others. For the amount due by the 3rd defendant, all the properties were actually sold. The other defaulters deposited their respective portions of the decree-debt in Court before actual sale but after sale-proclamation. Items Nos. 2, 3 and 4 belonging to the 3rd defendant were sold on 20th March 1911 and the remaining items on 3rd April 1911. The 2nd and 3rd counter-petitioners were the respective purchasers at the said sales. The first sale was confirmed on 3rd April 1911 within 30 days after the second sale but after 30 days of the first sale. The present petitioners, who were some of the defendants having interest in some of the items sold, put in an application under Order XXI, rule 89, Civil Procedure Code, to set aside the sales. After deducting the amounts already deposited to the credit of the decree-debt by other defaulters, they deposited the balance in Court.

As regards the sale of items Nos. 2, 3 and 4, the District Munsif held that the petition was barred by limitation and as regards the sale of other items he dismissed the petition on the ground that the amount, as required under Order XXI, rule 89, was not deposited as the deposit by the other defendants could not be said to have been "received by the decree-holder" within the meaning of the section.

On appeal, the District Court of South Malabar confirmed this decision. Against this order a Civil Revision Petition No. 57 of 1912* was filed in the High Court. Tyabji, J., who heard this petition, concurred with the Courts below as regards the first sale, but set aside the second sale, following the decision in Civil Miscellaneous Appeal No. 82 of 1912 and distinguishing Trimbak v. Ramchandra (1) relied on by the Courts below. This Letters Patent Appeal is against the said decision of Tyabji, J.

Messrs. J. L. Rosario and Sivarama Menon, for the Appellants:—The case is not one for interference under section 115, Civil Procedure Code. Under Order XXI, rule 89, the amount mentioned in the proclamation of sale minus what is "received" by the decree-holder should be deposited before the sale could be set aside. Amounts deposited, even if to the credit of the decree-debt, cannot be said to have been "received" by the decree-holder [Trimbak v. Ramchandra (1)], though actual cash receipt may not be necessary [Vedala Lakshminarasammah v. Pucha Lakshmammal (2) and Anantha Lakshmi Ammal v. Kunnanchankarath Sankaran Nair (3)]. Further the petitioners are not interested in all the items of property.

(1) 23 B. 723.

* See 22 Ind. Cas. 537.—Ed.

KARUNAKARA MENON v. KRISHNA MENON.

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar and N. A. Krishna Aiyar, for the Respondent:—It is settled law that this Court can interfere under section 115 if jurisdiction is assumed or refused by putting a wrong construction on a section of the Civil Procedure Code or any other provision of law. See Anantha Lakshmi Ammal v Kunnanchankarath Sankaran Nair (3). If the money is entirely at the disposal of the decree-holder, it amounts to "receipt." See Civil Miscellaneous Appeal No. 82 of 1912 (per Benson and Sundara Aiyar, JJ). The previous deposits were made to the credit of the decree-debt and the decree-holder might withdraw the amount at any time. Trimback v. Ramchandra (1) is not in point. There the deposit was by the auction-purchaser, which he was entitled to withdraw if the sale was set aside. Further the decree-holder in this case does not say that he could not receive the amounts.

The Government Pleader stated that the Government were not interested in the case of either party but that he was simply watching the case on Government's behalf.

JUDGMENT.—It is with considerable hesitation that we have come to the conclusion that the learned Judge's order is wrong. It has to be noticed that the provision in Order XXI, rule 89, is in the nature of an indulgence to the judgment-debtor; before the sale takes place, he has every opportunity of avoiding it by satisfying the decree. Practically a locus poenitentiæ is given him after the conclusion of the sale to retain his property if he complies with certain conditions. Consequently Courts are bound to see that the provisions of law in this respect are very strictly conformed to. In this case, we are not satisfied that the judgment-debtors have complied with the requirements of the law. Under rule 89, the judgment-debtor should deposit the money due under the proclamation of sale minus the amount "which may, since the date of such proclamation of sale, have been received by the decree-holder." Mr. Ramachandra Aiyar argues that moneys deposited by the 14th defendant and the 1st defendant should be regarded as moneys received by the decree-holder. Neither of them has joined in the application to set aside the sale. If the moneys had been deposited by the applicants, themselves such moneys can be taken to supplement the deposit actually made at the time of the application to set aside the sale. But when the moneys have been paid in by another and have not been received by the decree-holder, it seems impossible to suggest that they are either a part of the deposit or that they must be deemed to have been received by the decree-holder. None of the decided cases have gone this length. Trimbak v. Ramchandra (1) is distinctly against it. So also in Kripa Nath Pal v. Ram Lakshmi Dasya (4). In the decision in Appeal against Order No. 82 of 1912 referred to by Mr. Justice Tyabji, the money in Court deposit was due to the judgment-debtor and his co-parceners who assented to the course taken by him. The learned Judges held that the non-compliance with the formality of taking it back and depositing it with the balance due under the proclamation of sale was unnecessary. Anantha Lakshmi Ammal v. Kunnanchankarath Sankaran Nair (3) only decided that where a decree-holder had agreed to give up a portion of the decree amount, he was not entitled to insist upon the deposit or payment of the full amount mentioned in the proclamation of sale. The suggestion is that what was given up must be regarded as having been received. The decision in Vedala Lakshminarasammah v. Pucha Lakshmammal (2) does not take the matter any further. In that case an agreement by the decree-holder to set off a portion of the decree amount was held to amount to payment. In the present case, the persons who made the previous deposits are not the applicants; and although we do not agree with

(2) 14 Ind. Cas. 326; (1912) M. W. N. 756.
(3) 18 Ind. Cas. 579; 13 M. L. T. 123; 24 M L. J. 205 at p. 211; (1913) M. W. N. 101.
(4) 1 C. W. N. 703.

Mr. Rosario's contention that every judgment-debtor who has separate interest in the property advertised for sale should join in applying to set aside the sale, we are of opinion that it is not open to the applicants to claim that the moneys deposited by the non-applying judgment-debtors should be regarded as theirs. We must, therefore, hold that the application of the respondents is not in accordance with Order XXI, rule 89, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908. The decision appealed against must be set aside and that of the lower Appellate Court must be restored. The parties will bear their own costs in this appeal.

Appeal allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 362 OF 1909.

June 19, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

MOHENDRA NATH BISWAS AND OTHERS —PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammat SHAMSUNNESSA KHATUN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Res judicata—Jurisdiction—Conduct of party to be bound by res judicata—Previous decision, when conclusive between parties—Hindu widow, decree against, when binding on reversioners—Compromise decree—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 141—Adverse possession—Thak and survey map, presumption relating to.

In determining the jurisdiction of the Court, which decided the former suit, to try the subsequent suit, in order to apply the rule of res judicata regard should be had to the jurisdiction of that Court at the date, not of the subsequent suit, but of the former suit.

Res judicata operates against a person who took an active part in a litigation in contesting, though unsuccessfully, the claim of the then plaintiff, notwithstanding the fact that he was merely described as a pro forma defendant.

Puttappa v. Timmaji, 14 B. 176 and Rahmubhoy v. Turner, 14 B. 408; 18 I.A. 6, distinguished.

The decision regarding the operation of res judicata between the parties in a previous suit is conclusive as between the parties or their representatives.

Aghore Nath v. Kamini Debi, 6 Ind. Cas. 554; 11 C.L.J. 481; Baij Nath v. Padamanand Singh, 14 Ind. Cas. 124; 39 C. 848; 16 C. L. J. 154; 16 C. W. N. 621, Mohanaya Prosad Singh v. Ramkhelawan Singh, 15 Ind Cas. 911; 15 C.L. J. 684 and Purna Chandra v. Rasik Chandra, 9 Ind. Cas. 568; 13 C. L. J. 119, referred to.

A decree obtained upon a fair trial in a suit by or against a Hindu widow in possession of the estate of the full owner, operates as res judicata regarding only the questions tried in the suit.

Katama Natchiar v. Raja of Shivaganga, 9 M. I. A. 539 at p. 604; 2 W.R. (P.C.) 31; 19 E. R. 843; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 520, 2 Sar P. C. J. 306 and Roy Radha Kissen v. Nauratan Lal, 6 C. L. J. 490, referred to.

Where a compromise amounting to a bona fide settlement of disputes is made for the benefit of the estate, it binds the reversioner quite as much as a decree on contest.

The mere transfer of title does not prolong a cause of action.

Pramath Roy v. Roolea Begum, 7 M. I. A. 323 at p 353; 4 W. R. (P. C.) 37, 1 Suth. P. C. J. 367; 1 Sar. P. C. J 602; 19 Eng. Rep. 331, referred to.

Article 141, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act, applies when it is proved that the last full owner was in possession at the time of his death, and the fact that on his death, he was succeeded by his widow, daughter or mother, will not bar limitation in case time began to run against him on his being dispossessed.

Amrita Lal Bagchi v. Jatindra Nath Choudhury, 32 C. 165, referred to.

Before Act IX of 1871 came into operation the title of the reversioner ceased along with the loss of the title of the female heir by adverse possession.

Nobin Chunder v. Isur Chunder, 9 W. R. 505 (F.B.); B. L.R. Sup. Vol. 1008, referred to.

The presumption of genuineness of thak and survey maps, furnishing valuable evidence of possession and title at the time they were made, is rebuttable.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Khulna, dated the 17th June 1909.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose and Babu Jadu Nath Kanjilal, for the Appellants.

Mr. B. Chakrabarti, Dr. Dwarka Nath Mitter, Babus Shama Charn Maitra and Sarat Chandra Sen, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The subject-matter of the litigation, which has culminated in this appeal, consists of an area of 600 bighas of land described in two schedules attached to the plaint. The plaintiffs claim the lands as comprised within village Dhobakhali, included within Taluk Joar Santoshpur, appertaining to estate No. 3840 of the Backergunj Collectorate. The defendants contend that the disputed lands are comprised within village Gajalia, included in a howla under a nim osuth-taluk subordinate to an osuth taluk carved out of Taluk Titai Sardar within estate No. 3841 of the Backergunj Collectorate. The history of the title of the plaintiffs may be briefly outlined. Satyakinkar Ghosal, who owned a share of the semindari appertaining to touzi No. 3840, died on the 5th November 1833 and left two daughters, Sabitri and Sati. Before his death, he had executed a Will on the 23rd October 1833 and had appointed his brothers, Satyaprasanna Ghosal and Satyasaran Ghosal, executors to his testament. By the Will, he left his properties to his two daughters in equal shares for their maintenance. Sabitri died in 1893 and Sati in 1896. The succession to the estate of Satyakinkar Ghosal thereupon opened out to the nearest reversioner, Satyasatya Ghosal, on whose death the estate passed into the hands of his sons. Shortly afterwards, the Court of Wards took charge of the management of the estate, and, on the 16th September 1903, executed the conveyance in favour of the plaintiffs whereupon their claim in the present suit is founded. One of the properties transferred by this deed of sale is village Dhobakhali of which the boundaries are set out in the schedule, and then is added the claus, "within these boundaries according to the thak and survey maps." The case for the plaintiffs is that the tract of 600 bighas claimed by them is included within village Dhobakhali and is consequently their property. The defendants contest the claim, on the grounds, amongst others, that it is barred by res judicata and limitation; they also plead that the lands are comprised in their village Gajalia and never formed part of the estate owned by the predecessors of the plaintiffs. The Subordinate Judge has pronounced no opinion upon the question of res judicata, but he has found against the plaintiffs on the merits as also on the plea of limitation, and in this view he has dismissed the suit. On the present appeal by the plaintiffs, three questions emerge for consideration, namely, first, is the claim barred by the principle of res judicata; secondly, is the claim barred by limitation, and, thirdly, are the disputed lands situated within village Dhobakhali in estate No. 3340?

The plea of res judicata is founded on the decisions in two previous litigations, which require separate consideration. In 1860 one Anjamannessa Bibi, who then owned the nim-osuh-taluk under which the defendants now claim, brought a suit against one Derastullah, the putnidar of village Dhobakhali from the Receivers to the estate of Satyakinkar Ghosal. Satyasaran Ghosal, one of the executors to the estate of Satyakinkar Ghosal, was a pro forma defendant to this suit, though he was not described as such, and appears to have helped Derastullah in his defence. The dispute related to a portion of the land comprised in the present litigation, and the suit was brought to set aside an order of the thak authorities, who had, according to the then plaintiff, erroneously held such land to be included within village Dhobakhali and not in village Gajalia. The suit was valued at Rs. 715 and was instituted in the Court of the Sudder Amin of Barisal whose pecuniary jurisdiction was limited to Rs. 1,000. The Sudder Amin dismissed the suit on the 19th November 1862. On appeal by the plaintiff, the principal Sudder Amin of Backergunj decreed the suit on the 19th December 1863. He held that the thak map was incorrect and that the disputed land was situated within Gajalia and not Dhobakhali. This decision was confirmed by this Court on the 10th August 1864, and it is worthy of note that the appeal to this Court had been preferred, not by the lessee alone but also, by Satyasaran Ghosal. The defendants contend that this decision operates as res judicata. The plaintiffs seek to meet the objection on four grounds, namely, first, that the suit was tried by a Sudder Amin whose pecuniary jurisdiction was limited to Rs. 1,000; secondly, that Satyasaran Ghosal was only a pro forma defendant and no relief was claimed against him; thirdly, that he was not a party expressly in his character as executor to the estate of Satyakinkar Ghosal; and fourthly that the decision in a subsequent suit between the parties in 1891, that the decree in the suit of 1860 does not operate as res judicata is conclusive. We are not much impressed by the first two reasons assigned by the plaintiffs, but the third and fourth must clearly prevail. As regards the first reason, it is plain that to determine, for purposes of the application of the rule of res judicata, whether the Court which decided the former suit had jurisdiction to try the subsequent suit, regard must be had to the jurisdiction of that Court at the date of the former suit, and not to its jurisdiction at the date of the subsequent suit; if the contrary view were adopted, decrees made by Munsifs would, in course of time, cease to be res judicata by reason of a gradual increase in the value of the subject-matter of the litigation: Gopi Nath v. Bhugwat Pershad(1); Rughunath v. Isgur Chunder (2); Kunji Amma v. Raman Menon (3). As regards the second reason, the vital point is not, how the Ghosal defendant was described, but what part he took in the litigation. He not only helped the tenant-defendant with funds, but himself actively contested the claim of the then plaintiff, as is indicated by his appeal to the High Court, though he was described merely as a pro forma defendant. In such circumstances, he could not reasonably escape from the effect of an adverse decision which he unsuccessfully resisted. The cases of Puttappa v. Timmaji (4) and Rahmubhoy v. Turner (5) are clearly distinguishable, as there the pro forma defendant against whom no relief was claimed took no part in the proceedings. As regards the third reason, it is pointed out that Satyasaran Ghosal, though at that time the sole surviving executor (as his co-executor Satyaprasanna had died in 1859) had a two-fold capacity, he was himself part owner both of Dhobakhali and Gajalia. From this point of view, no doubt he could not be treated as a party necessarily in his character as executor to the estate of Satyakinkar Ghosal and the decision would not operate as res judicata. The fourth reason assigned also is conclusive in favour of the plaintiffs. In a suit between the predecessors of the parties in 1891, where the effect of the decree in the suit of 1860 came under consideration, the Court held, rightly or wrongly, that the decree did not operate as res judicata. This decision itself, even if it be assumed to have been erroneous in law, is conclusive between the parties: Aghore Nath v. Kamini Debi (6); Baij Nath v. Padmanand Singh (7); Mohamaya Prosad Singh v. Ram Khelawan Singh (8); Purna Chandra v. Basik Chandra (9). We must hold, accordingly, that it is not open to the defendants to plead in this litigation that the decree in the suit of 1860 operates as res judicata.

We have next to consider the effect of the decree in the suit of 1891. In 1891, Sabitri and Sati, along with the tenure-holders under them, brought a suit for recovery of possession of the lands now in dispute as against some of the present defendants and the predecessors-in-interest of the others. The then plaintiffs alleged that the lands appertained to Dhobakhali, while the defendants urged that they were comprised in Gajalia. On the 31st May 1893, the Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit. He found that the claim was barred by limitation, as neither the plaintiffs nor their predecessors had ever been in possession. He also held that the thak map on which the plaintiffs relied, was incorrect, and that the defendants were not bound by the proceedings of the thak authorities. Appeals were preferred to this Court by Sati (Sabitri had died shortly after the decision of the Subordinate Judge) as also by the lessees, plaintiffs. On the 29th August 1894, both the appeals were withdrawn by the appellants, and it was ordered, with the consent of the respondents, that each party do bear his own costs in this Court, though, in the application for withdrawal, it was stated that the respondents had agreed that each party should pay his own costs both in the original Court and in the High Court. The effect of the withdrawal of the appeals was to leave the decree of the Subordinate Judge dated the 3rd June 1893 in full operation, and, as it is admitted that the lands in dispute in the present suit are identical with the lands to which the suit of 1891 related, the question necessarily arises whether the decree of the Subordinate Judge operates as res judicata. The first point for consideration is, what was the status of Sabitri and Sati in relation to the estate of their father Satyakinkar Ghosal, now in the hands of the plaintiffs? This turns upon the construction of his Will, dated the 5th November 1833. The Will was construed in a suit on the original side of this Court, instituted by Sabitri and Sati for construction of the Will of their father and for the administration of his estate. Pontifex, J., held on the 7th November

(1) 10 C. 907.
(2) 11 C. 153.
(3) 15 M. 494; 2 M. L. J. 282.
(4) 14 B 176.
(5) 14 B. 408; 18 I. A. 6.
(6) 6 Ind. Cas. 554; 11 C. L. J. 461.
(7) 14 Ind. Cas. 124; 39 C. 848, 16 C L. J. 154; 16 C. W. N. 621.
(8) 15 Ind. Cas. 911; 15 C. L. J 684.
(9) 9 Ind. Cas. 588; 13 C. L. J 119.

1876 that Sabitri and Sati were entitled to the interests of Hindu daughters in the estate of the testator. The question arose again in a suit instituted in 1898 by the representatives of the reversionary heir to the estate of Satyakinkar Ghosal, after the death of Sati, for declaration that a lease executed by Sabitri was not operative after the death of herself and her sister. It was ruled by this Court (Maclean, C. J., and Fletcher, J.) on the 12th April 1907, in affirmance of the view of the primary Court, that the construction put by Pontifex, J., upon the terms of the Will was correct and that it was also conclusive between the parties. There is, in our opinion, no room for serious controversy that Sabitri and Sati took the interests of Hindu daughters in the estate of their father under the terms of his Will. The second point, accordingly arises, whether the adverse decision, pronounced in the suit instituted by them, binds the estate in the hands of the reversioner as heir. The leading decision on the question of the effect of a hostile judgment obtained against a Hindu widow or daughter in possession of the estate of the last full owner, is that of the Judicial Committee in Katama Natchier v. Raja of Shivagunga (10), where their Lordships stated their opinion in these terms: "Unless it could be shown that there had not been a fair trial of the right in that suit, or, in other words, unless that decree could have been successfully impeached on some special ground, it would have been an effectual bar to any new suit... by any person claiming in succession to her. For, assuming her to be entitled to the zemindary at all, the whole estate would, for the time, be vested in her, absolutely for some purposes, though, in some respects, for a qualified interest; and until her death, it could not be ascertained who would be entitled to succeed. The same principle, which has prevailed in the Courts of this country as to tenants-in-tail, representing the inheritance, would seem to apply to a Hindu widow; and it is obvious that there would be the greatest possible inconvenience in holding that the succeeding heirs were not bound by the decree fairly and properly obtained against the widow." This exposition of the law was affirmed by the Judicial Committee in the cases of Pertabnarain v. Trilokinath Singh (11) and Hari Nath v. Mothura Mohun (12). But, as pointed out in Roy Radha Kissen v. Nauratan Lal (13), a decree obtained upon a fair trial in a suit by or against a widow operates as res judicata regarding only the questions tried in the suit. Now, in the case before us, the Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit by Sabitri and Sati on the two-fold ground that the claim was not established on the merits and was barred by limitation. The reversioner is bound by this decision, unless he can prove that the decree was not fairly and properly obtained against the ladies. An endeavour was made in the Court below—and the effort has been repeated here—to show that the appeal preferred to this Court by Sati was withdrawn by her in collusion with the then respondents. This attempt has wholly failed. The Subordinate Judge rightly refused to accept the story that the appeal was withdrawn by Sati for a consideration. There is, on the other hand, the significant fact that the lessees also withdrew their appeal at the same time. The theory of collusion, consequently, fails. It is there contended that the withdrawal of the appeal was in the nature of a compromise and destroyed the conclusive character of the original decree, which thereupon ceased to be operative as a contested decree. This view cannot possibly be sustained, for, as was pointed out by the Judicial Committee in Khunni Lal v. Gobinda Krishna Narain (14) and Hiran Bibi v. Sohan Bibi (15), a compromise amounting to a bona fide settlement of disputes will bind the reversioner quite as much as a decree on contest; in other words, that the principle laid down in Katama Natchier v. Raja of Shivagunga (10) is not limited to decrees in suits contested to the end. This rule is subject to the qualification that the compromise was made bona fide for the benefit of the estate and not for the personal advantage of the limited owner: Tasini Charan v. John Watson (16);

(10) 9 M. I. A. 539 at p. 604; 2 W. R. (P. C.) 31; 19 E. R. 843; 1 Suth. P. C. J. 520; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 305.

(11) 11 I. A. 197, 1 C. 186, 8 Ind. Jur. 697; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 567, Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 86.

(12) 20 I. A. 183, 21 C. 8.

(13) 6 C. L. J. 490.

(14) 10 Ind. Cas. 477, 38 I. A. 87; 33 A. 356. 15 C.W.N. 545 (P. C.); 8 A. L. J. 552, 13 Bom. L. R. 427; 13 C. L. J. 575, 10 M. L. T. 25; 21 M.L.J. 645; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 432.

(15) 24 Ind. Cas. 309; 27 M. L. J. 149; 1 L. W. 648 (P. C.); 18 C. W. N. 929.

(16) 12 W. R. 413; 3 B. L. R. 437.

Indro Kooer v. Abdool Burkut (17); Imrit Konwar v. Roop Narain Singh (18); Upendra Narain v. Gopee Nath (19): Sambasiva Ayyar v. Venkateswara Ayyar (20); Timmaji Amma Garu v. Subbaraju (21), Rajlakshmi v. Katyayani (22). The view cannot be defended on the principle thata qualified owner like a Hindu widow, daughter, or mother is bound, at her peril, to pursue a litigation in respect of the estate in her hands unremittingly to the ultimate Court of Appeal and that she cannot bona fide effect a settlement of the matter in controversy, even though such compromise be in the best interest of the estate. We hold accordingly that the decree of the Subordinate Judge in the suit of 1891, which has not been successfully impeached on the ground of fraud, coercion, collusion or any like reason, operates as res judicata between the parties to the present suit.

The plea of limitation raised by the defendants is sought to be met by the plaintiffs by reference to Article 141 of the second Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, which provides that a suit for possession of immoveable property by a Hindu entitled to possession on the death of a Hindu female, must be brought within 12 years from the date when the female dies. As Sabitri died in 1893 and Sati in 1896, and this suit was commenced on the 7th June 1907, this seems, on a superficial view, to furnish a complete answer; but on close examination, it transpires that the plaintiffs are in inextricable difficulty. It is plain that Article 141 applies only to cases where it is proved that the last full owner was in possession at the time of his death; if he himself was dispossessed and time began to run against him, the operation of the Law of Limitation would not be arrested by the fact that, on his death, he was succeeded by his widow, daughter or mother. In the words of Lord Kingsdown in Prannath Roy v. Rookea Begam (23), a cause of action is not prolonged by mere transfer of the title: Amrita Lal Bagchi v. Jotindra Nath Chowdhury (24). Before the plaintiffs can rely upon Article 141, they must consequently prove that their predecessor, Satyakinkar Ghosal, was in possession at the time of his death on the 5th November 1833. This the plaintiffs have failed to establish, while the defendants are able to produce a nim-osuth-taluk potta, dated 27th August 1831, to show that the possession of their predecessors commenced at that time. There is a further difficulty which the plaintiffs have to face. There is, as the Subordinate Judge points out, evidence on the side of the defendants that they were in possession through their under-tenants at least as early as 28th June 1834. It is well-known that under the law as it stood before the Limitation Act of 1871 came into operation, adverse possession which extinguished the title of the female heir also extinguished the title of the reversioner: Nobin Chunder v. Isrur Chunder (25). Consequently, if the possession of the defendants commenced at any time anterior to 1861, the title of the plaintiffs, if any, would be extinguished before 1873, when the Limitation Act of 1871 came into operation; and, once the title was extinguished while the Limitation Act of 1859 or Regulation III of 1793 or Regulation II of 1805 was in force, it could not be revived by the introduction of the Limitation Act of 1871: Amirtaloll v. Rajonee-kant (26); Hari Nath v. Mothura Mohun (12); Fatimatulnissa v. Sundar Das (27); Khunni Lal v. Gobinda Krishna (14). Now, the proceedings in the litigation of 1860 show that the predecessors of the plaintiffs were then out of possession, while in the suit of 1891, they failed to prove that they had ever been in possession. On the other hand, the evidence on the side of the defendants indicates their possession as early as 1834 and unquestionably between the years 1853 and 1869. The position, then, is that while the plaintiffs are unable to prove that their predecessors had any subsisting title in 1873, when the Limitation Act of 1871 (with its Article 142) came into operation, defendants have given a mass of reliable evidence, documentary and oral, to prove their possession through their tenants for much longer than 12 years prior to 1873. We accordingly hold, in concurrence with the Subordinate Judge, that (17) 14 W. R. 146. (18) 6 C. L. R. 76.

(19) 9 C 817; 12 C. L. R. 356.
(20) 31 M. 179, 3 M. L. T. 369
(21) 5 Ind Cas. 640, 33 M. 473; 7 M. L. T 340, 20 M. L. J. 204; (1910) M. W. N. 60.
(22) 12 Ind. Cas 484; 38 C. 639.
(23) 7 M. I. A 323 at p. 353, 4 W. R. (P. C) 37; 1 Suth. P. C J 367; 1 Sar. P.C.J. 692, 19 Eng. Rep. 331.
(24) 31 C. 165.
(25) 9 W. R. 506 (F. B); B. L. R Sup Vol. 1008.
(26) 2 I. A. 113; 15 B. L. R. 10; 23 W. R. 214.
(27) 27 I. A. 103; 27 C. 1004, 4 C. W. N. 565.

the claim of the plaintiff is barred by limitation, and, if their predecessors had any title to the disputed lands, such title was extinguished before the Limitation Act of 1871 came into force.

Finally, question of title of the plaintiffs is full of unexplained difficulties, of which no reasonable solution has been found. The plaintiffs claim the disputed tract as included in village Dhobakhali under Taluk Joar Santoshpur. It is undoubtedly an element of weakness in their case that they are not able to trace when and by whom this taluk was created, and what lands were comprised therein. But there is a much graver difficulty in their way. Their conveyance sets out in detail the boundaries of Dhobakhali, but it is conclusively established that the disputed tract is not situated within those boundaries. The plaintiffs are consequently driven to fall back upon the additional description inserted after the description of the boundaries, namely, "according to the thak and survey map." There is thus, to start with, an inconsistency between the admitted boundaries and the delineation as made on the thak and survey maps. The plaintiffs practically abandon the boundaries, and rely upon the thak and survey maps, which they contend afford valuable evidence of title and possession at the time they were made. In support of this position, reference is made to the cases of Omirta Lall v. Kalee Pershad (28), Nobo Coomar v. Gobind Chunder (29), Syama Sundari v. Jogobundhu (30), Jarao Kumari v. Lalon Moni (31), Jagadindra Nath Roy v. Secretary of State (32), Abdul Hamid v. Kiran Chandra (33), Mirza Shamsher v. Kunj Behari Lal (34), Dunne v. Dharani Kant (35), Fazlur Rahim v. Nabendra Kishore Roy (36), Satcowri v. Secretary of State (37). Now it may be conceded that thak and survey maps may be presumed to have correctly delineated the boundaries of villages, and thus to furnish valuable evidence of possession at the time they were made and consequently also of titles. This principle is of no assistance to the plaintiffs. Here the thak map was made in 1855 and was followed by the survey map in 1858; but the accuracy of these maps was promptly challenged by the predecessors of the defendants. In the suit of 1860, which was instituted expressly for the purpose of declaration that the thak map was incorrect, the then plaintiff was successful, and in the subsequent litigation of 1891 and 1898, in which the present plaintiffs or their predecessors were parties, the thak map was again found to be inaccurate. Under these circumstances, the presumption of accuracy applicable to the thak and survey maps upon which the plaintiffs rely, has been amply rebutted. On the other hand, an examination and comparison of the maps, as made by the Subordinate Judge and as repeated in this Court, shows that the decision in the suit of 1860 as to the inaccuracy of the thak map was unquestionably right. This conclusion is strengthened by the large body of evidence of possession on the side of the defendants, which effectively negatives the thak map as evidence of possession in 1858. We agree with the Subordinate Judge that the thak map is unreliable, and that it no more establishes the title of the plaintiffs than it binds the defendants.

The result is that the decree of the Subordinate Judge is affirmed and this appeal dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

---

(25) 25 W. R. 179.
(29) 9 C. L. R. 305.
(30) 16 C. 186.
(31) 17 I. A. 145; 18 C. 224.
(32) 30 I. A. 44 (P. C.), 30 C. 291; 5 Bom. L. R. 1; 7 C. W. N. 193.
(33) 7 C. W. N. 849.
(34) 12 C. W. N. 273; 7 C. L. J. 414; 3 M. L. T. 212.
(35) 35 C. 621.
(36) 15 Ind. Cas. 341; 17 C. W. N. 151.
(37) 22 C. 252.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 55 OF 1912.

December 3, 1913.

Present:—Sir George W. Shaw, KT., J. C.

NGA TI, LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE OF NGA TET, DECEASED—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

NGA PAN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11—Res judicata—Finding of lower Court objected to in appeal but not disposed of by Appellate Court, whether final.

SURAJ KISHAN v. AJUDHYA PRASAD SINGH.

Where an appeal is preferred against the finding of an issue, but the Appellate Court does not decide finally on that point as the appeal is disposed of on other points, it cannot be held that the finding of the lower Appellate Court is final and, therefore, the decision cannot operate as res judicata.

Mr. S. Vasudevan, for Mr. J. C. Chatterjee, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. Mukerji, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The only point for determination is whether the question of the re-union of Nga Tet and Mi Pan after divorce was res judicata in the present suit. It was raised and decided in a previous suit between the same parties by the Court of first instance and the lower Appellate Court, but the judgment of the lower Appellate Court was appealed against and the judgment of this Court in second appeal (Second Civil Appeal No. 228 of 1911) did not decide this point, but upheld the decision of the lower Appellate Court dismissing the plaintiff-appellant's suit on another ground, namely, that he had not proved the mortgage which he alleged.

The plaintiff-appellant had made it one ground of his appeal in his memorandum of second appeal that the decision of the lower Appellate Court in regard to the re-union was wrong, but the learned Additional Judge came to no decision on this point—the decision in regard to the proof of the mortgage being sufficient for the disposal of the case.

As an appeal was preferred and an objection taken against the finding of the lower Appellate Court on the point in question, I think it must be held that the matter of re-union was not heard and finally decided in the previous suit within the meaning of section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure. This is in accordance with the decision of a Bench of the Calcutta High Court in Rai Charan Ghose v. Kumud Mohun Dutt Chowdhry (1), where Mr. Justice Banerji read the words "heard and finally decided by such Court" to mean "heard and finally decided by such Court either if no appeal is preferred from its judgment or if an appeal being preferred has been disposed of, and the judgment of the Appellate Court which takes the place of its judgment has decided the point."

(1) 2 C. W. N. 297; 25 C. 571.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court is, therefore, set aside and it is directed to proceed to dispose of the appeal on the merits. Costs will abide the final result.

Decree set aside; Case remanded.

OUDH JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 6 OF 1909.

March 15, 1910.

Present:—Mr. Chamier, J. C., and Mr. Evans, A. J. C.

Pandit SURAJ KISHAN AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

Babu AJUDHYA PRASAD SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Mortgage, prior and subsequent—Prior mortgagee's suit decreed—Mortgaged property sold in execution and purchased in part by prior mortgagee—Subsequent mortgagee, suit by—Redemption, piecemeal and partial.

The prior mortgagee, without impleading the subsequent mortgagee, brought a suit and got a decree for sale of the properties mortgaged to him, viz, A, B and C. In execution some properties were purchased by the prior mortgagee himself and some by another auction-purchaser. Thereafter the subsequent mortgagee brought a suit for sale of the properties included in his mortgage, viz., B, C and D, making the prior mortgagee a party to his suit:

Held, that the subsequent mortgagee was entitled to a decree for sale of the properties B, C and D, conditionally on his at first redeeming B and C by paying off the proportionate amounts due on each of them on account of the prior mortgage as calculated by the respective values of B and C.

Bishesher Dial v. Ram Sarup, 22 A. 284; A. W. N. (1900) 50; Shib Lal v. Bhawani Shankar, 26 A. 72; A. W. N. (1903) 190; Lakhmidas Ramdas v Jamnadas Shankarlal, 22 B. 304; Brij Kishore v. Madho Singh, 28 A. 279, 3 A. L. J. 27; A. W. N. (1906) 279, Surjiram Marwari v Barhamdeo Persad, 2 C. L. J. 202; Ganga Das Bhattar v. Jogendra Nath Mitter, 5 C. L. J. 315; 11 C. W. N. 403; Hakim Lal v. Ram Lal, 6 C. L. J. 46; Jugdeo Singh v. Habibullah Khan, 6 C. L. J 612; 12 C. W. N. 107; Jawahir Singh v. Baldeo Baksh Singh, 6 C. L. J. 672; 10 C. C. 193 (P. C.); Hara Kumari Chowdhrain v. Eastern Mortgage and Agency Company Limited, 7 C. L. J. 274; Debendra Nath Sen v. Mirza Abdul Samed Seroji, 1 Ind. Cas. 264; 10 C. L. J. 150; Mahtab Singh v. Misree Lall, (1907) N. W. P. H. C. R. 88; Hari Kissen Bhagat v. Veliat Hossain, 30 C. 755; 7 C. W. N. 723; Kedar Nath v. Saiyad Hafiz Ali, 10 C. C. 356, Saiyad Zahid Ali v. Budra Singh, 5 Ind. Cas. 800; 13 C. C. 50; Gur Parshad v. Sah Bindraban Das, 3 C. C. 254; Najju Khan v. Ram Bali, 7 C. C. 330; Goverdhan Das v. Veerasami Chettiar, 26 M. 537;

SURAJ KISHAN v. AJUDHYA PRASAD SINGH.

Debendra Narain Roy v. Ram Taran Banerjee, 30 C. 599, 7 C W. N. 766 (F. B.) and Babu Mustafa Khan v. Shadi Lall, 10 O. C. 81, referred to.

Appeal from the decree of the Officiating Subordinate Judge, Fyzabad, dated 19th October 1908.

Mr. Mumtaz Husain, for the Appellants.

Babu Baldeo Lal, for Respondent No. 5.

Syed Wasir Hasan, for Respondent. No. 7.

Babu Bhairon Prasad, for Respondents Nos. 8 to 13.

Babu Gokul Prasad, for Respondent No. 14.

JUDGMENT.

EVANS, A. J. C.—This is an appeal by the plaintiffs against an order of the Subordinate Judge of Fyzabad. The plaintiffs sued to recover Rs. 29,540-4-6 due on a deed of mortgage, dated the 6th September 1898, under which eleven villages were mortgaged. In the shape that the case finally took there were 20 defendants. The reasons why defendant Nos. 6 to 20 have been impleaded are set forth in paragraph 8 of the plaint. The learned Subordinate Judge granted a decree in favour of the appellants for Rs. 27,132 and directed that in case of default the mortgaged property be sold subject to the prior incumbrance of defendants Nos. 5 and 8 to 13, who are admittedly prior mortgagees.

The grounds set forth in the memorandum of appeal are as below:

"1. That the learned Subordinate Judge is wrong in holding that the principle of contribution or apportionment of the prior charge of the defendants Nos. 5, 8 to 13 and defendants Nos. 6, 7, 15, 16, 17, purchasers in execution of the decree in favour of defendant No. 5, was not applicable to the case, which was one for sale and not for redemption of mortgage of the property in suit.

"2. That the contribution asked for was not in any way inconsistent with the allegations made and the relief prayed for in the plaint, nor did it in any way offend against the provisions of section 53 of the Code of Civil Procedure."

An objection has also been taken to the order of the learned Subordinate Judge by respondent No. 7, Raja Saiyid Abu Jafar, who purchased two villages out of those mortgaged to the appellants. The grounds on which this objection is taken are as below:

"1. That the plaintiffs-appellants are not entitled under the circumstances of the case to a decree for sale subject to the prior mortgage.

"2. That the appellants must redeem before bringing the property to sale."

To clear the way, it may be stated here that Mr. Mumtaz Husain, for the appellants, has intimated that his clients are prepared to submit to a decree directing them to redeem the villages mortgaged to them on payment of a proportionate amount of the mortgage-money due to the prior mortgagees. His contention now comes to this that the proportionate amount of the mortgage-money due on each specific village should be ascertained and his clients be allowed to redeem the villages separately and then enforce their mortgage. On behalf of the prior mortgagees the contention taken is that there is no authority for the proposition that a puisne mortgagee can redeem piecemeal in a case of this kind and that before they can sell the villages mortgaged to them, they must discharge the whole debt due to the prior mortgagees.

In order to decide the points in controversy between the parties it is necessary to state the following materials facts. On the 13th June 1896 Lallu Sahi, predecessor of defendants Nos. 1 to 4, mortgaged 37 villages to the Maharaja of Balrampur for Rs. 2,20,000. On the 7th February 1898 the above-named mortgagor mortgaged two villages including the village of Kator to defendants Nos. 8 to 13. Kator is not one of the 37 villages mortgaged to the Maharaja of Balrampur, but is included in the eleven villages mortgaged to the appellants. A decree was obtained by these mortgagees on this mortgage on the 11th July 1907. The present appellants were parties to that suit. There is nothing on the record to show what happened after this decree was passed, but we are informed that the village of Kator has not yet been sold. It may be noted here that Mr. Mumtaz Husain, on behalf of the appellants, has conceded that the appellants were not excluded when the prior mortgagees sought to enforce their mortgage on this village and, therefore, they cannot now in the present suit seek to enforce their mortgage on this village and that part of their claim with respect to the village of Kator need not be considered. On the 10th March 1898 the same mortgagor executed another mortgage in favour of defendants Nos. 8 to 13 of three villages including the village of Hamzapur, which was not one of the 37 villages mortgaged to the Maharaja of Balrampur but is included in the villages mortgaged to the appellants. The mortgagees obtained a decree on this mortgage on the 16th July 1907, but the appellants were not parties to this suit. In execution of this decree the villages were sold on the 20th June 1908. On the 6th September 1898 Lallu Sahi mortgaged to the father of the appellants nine villages out of the 37 villages mortgaged to the Maharaja of Balrampur and the two villages noted above, Kator and Hamzapur. This is the mortgage in suit. The Maharaja brought a suit on his mortgage and obtained a decree for sale of the property mortgaged to him. This decree was made absolute on the 30th July 1904 and the amount then found due was Rs. 2,79,722-1-9. The appellants were not parties to that suit. On the 20th May 1907 the Maharaja, in execution of his decree, purchased some villages including the village of Madhoban, which is one of the villages mortgaged to the appellants' father. On the 16th July 1907 the present suit was instituted by the appellants for enforcement of their mortgage dated the 6th September 1898, subject to the prior mortgages held by the Maharaja of Balrampur and defendants Nos. 8 to 13. On the 20th July 1907 and 29th November 1907 more villages were sold in execution of the Maharaja's decree and he purchased other villages included in the appellants' mortgage. The result of these sales was that the Maharaja realized Rs. 3,37,891-7-7 and it appears that only Rs. 523-4 were due when the accounts were made up to the 16th March 1908. The nine villages covered by the mortgages held by the Maharaja and the appellants have been purchased as below:—

Four by the Maharaja; two by Raja Saiyid Abu Jafar, defendant No. 7; one by Manohar Lal, defendant No. 15; one by Datadin, defendant No. 16, and Sheo Nath Kunwar, defendant No. 17, and one by Musammat Kaniz Kulsum Begam, defendant No. 6.

As stated above the appellants have conceded that they are prepared to submit to a decree directing them to redeem the prior mortgages before they can bring the villages to sale under their mortgage. It is, therefore, unnecessary to consider the legal aspect of the objection taken on behalf of respondent No. 7 or to decide whether a puisne mortgagee in circumstances like the present must redeem the prior mortgages before he can sell the mortgaged property.

The point for decision, shortly stated, is whether the appellants are bound to redeem the prior mortgages in full or whether they can obtain a decree on payment of a sum proportionate to the value of the villages covered by their own mortgage. The contention taken on behalf of the respondents, prior mortgagees, is that there is no authority that a puisne mortgagee as such in circumstances like the present can redeem piecemeal. The prior mortgagees are entitled to rely on their mortgages as a shield against a puisne mortgagee and those mortgages must be redeemed in their entirety before the subsequent puisne mortgagee can enforce his claim.

The following propositions of law appear to be concluded by authority or by express provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. First, when a mortgagee buys at auction the equity of redemption in part of property mortgaged to himself such purchase has, in the absence of fraud, the effect of discharging and extinguishing that portion of the mortgage debt which was chargeable on the property purchased by him,—see the cases of Bishesher Dial v. Ram Sarup (1), Shib Lal v. Bhawani Shankar (2) and Lakhmidas Ramdas v. Jamnadas Shankarlal (3). Secondly, that a puisne mortgagee has, so far as regards redemption of the mortgaged property, the same rights against the prior mortgagee as the mortgagor has as against such prior mortgagee,—see sections 75 and 95 of the Transfer of Property Act. Thirdly, that a person interested in a share only of the mortgaged property is not entitled to redeem his own share on payment of a proportionate part of the amount due on the mortgage, except where a mortgagee or mortgagees has on have acquired, in whole on in part, the share of a mortgagor,—see section 60 of the Transfer of Property Act. As to the meaning of the person interested in mortgaged property, if we turn to section 91, clause (a), of the Act, it is clear that a person interested in the mortgaged property includes a puisne mortgagee. The authorities for this proposition are to be found in Gour's Commentary on the Transfer of Property Act, Third Edition, page 1005. I understand this proposition is not disputed. The main contention taken on behalf of the prior mortgagees is that the appellants cannot be placed in a better position than they would have occupied if they had been made parties to the suit instituted by the prior mortgagees, and in that case the only remedy left to them would have been to redeem the prior mortgages in their entirety before they could enforce their own mortgage. This may be correct, but the position of affairs has been altered by the action taken by the prior mortgagees. The mortgaged property has been sold and distributed amongst a number of persons including the prior mortgagee, the Maharaja of Balrampur himself. The Maharaja has practically obtained the whole amount due to him under his mortgage decree and if the puisne mortgagees are compelled to pay up a second time the whole amount due to the prior mortgagees because they are entitled to hold their mortgages as a shield against the claims of the puisne mortgagees, it would have the effect of altogether preventing the subsequent mortgagees from realising the sum due to them under their mortgages, because the amount due even to the Maharaja of Balrampur alone is so enormous that no one could be expected to pay this amount in order to realise a comparatively small amount due upon a portion of the mortgaged property. It is true that if the appellants obtained a decree for sale on their mortgage subject to redemption of the prior mortgages and the mortgaged property were sold in execution of this decree, the auction-purchaser, on payment of the total amount due under the prior mortgages, would, in accordance with the provisions of section 82 of the Transfer of Property Act, be entitled to recover a proportionate amount from the purchasers of the villages not included in the appellants' mortgage, but this would have the effect of starting a number of fresh cases and litigation which would extend over many years to come. This is a result which we should avoid if possible. Looking, therefore, solely at the equities of the case it appears most desirable that the appellants should be called upon to redeem the prior mortgages on payment of a sum of money proportionate to the value of the villages covered by their mortgage. As to the authorities on the subject we have been referred to the following decisions of the Allahabad High Court:—Shib Lal v. Bhawani Shankar (2), and Brij Kishore v. Madho Singh (4): and there are also a number of rulings to be found in the Calcutta Law Journal, as set forth in our order dated the 10th January 1910 as below:

(1) 23 A. 284; A. W. N. (1900) 59.
(2) 26 A. 72; A. W. N. (1903) 190.
(3) 22 B. 304

Surjiram Marwari v. Barhamdeo Persad (5); Ganga Das Bhattar v. Jogendra Nath Mitter (6); Hakim Lal v. Ram Lal (7); Jugdeo Singh v. Habibullah Khan (8); Jawahir Singh v. Baldeo Baksh Singh (9); Hara Kumari Chowdhurani v. Eastern Mortgage and Agency Company Limited (10); Debendra Nath Sen v. Mirza Abdul Samed Sevji (11).

The facts in Shib Lal v. Bhawani Shankar (2) are as below:

Five separate properties were mortgaged to one set of mortgagees and subsequently four out of the five properties were mortgaged to a second set of mortgagees. The prior mortgagees brought a suit for sale without making the puisne mortgagees parties and obtained a decree and in execution thereof caused three properties to be sold. They purchased two themselves and one was purchased by one Shib Lal. The puisne mortgagees then brought a suit for sale on their mortgage without joining the prior mortgagees as parties and obtained a decree for sale which was purchased by Shib Lal. This Shib Lal stood in the shoes of the puisne mortgagees. The prior mortgagees caused the remaining two pieces of

(4) 28 A. 279; 3 A. L. J. 27, A. W. N (1905) 279.
(5) 2 C L. J 202.
(6) 5 C. L. J. 315; 11 C W. N. 403.
(7) 6 C L J. 46.
(8) 6 C L. J 612; 12 C W N. 107
(9) 6 C. L. J 672, 10 C. C. 193 (P. C.).
(10) 7 C L J. 274
(11) 1 Ind, Cas 264, 10 C, L. J. 150.

property to be put up for sale as the proceeds of the first sale were insufficient. Shib Lal obtained a declaration that these properties could not be sold without giving him an opportunity to redeem. The prior mortgagees then brought a suit against Shib Lal to recover payment of the amount remaining due to them under their decree for sale of the pieces of property which had not been sold. It was held that the integrity of the mortgage had been broken, that the prior mortgagees were entitled to recover by sale of the property unsold a rateable portion of the mortgage debt proportionate to the value of that property when the prior mortgage was executed and that Shib Lal, as representative of the puisne mortgagee, could not redeem the whole of the mortgaged property. This case is not on all fours with the present case, because it appears that the puisne mortgagee in that case for some reason wanted to redeem the whole property but the principle involved can be applied to this case. The proposition of law as laid down by Morgan, C. J., in the case of Mahtab Singh v. Misree Lall (12) was approved. That proposition is that a mortgage is indivisible so long as the mortgagee has not acquired by purchase a part of the mortgagor's rights and interests. But when he has so acquired a portion, he is not entitled to throw the whole burden of the mortgage debt on the remaining portion of the equity of redemption. The position of Shib Lal in that case was that of a puisne mortgagee and similarly in the present case, it being admitted that the appellants are entitled to a decree upon their mortgage, they are entitled to redeem such portion of the prior mortgages as is proportionate to the share of the mortgaged property in which they are interested. Amongst the cases decided by the Calcutta High Court, I may refer to the cases reported as Ganga Das Bhattar v. Jogendra Nath Mitter (6) and Debendra Nath Sen v. Mirza Abdul Samed Seroji (11). The case in Ganga Das Bhattar v. Jogendra Nath Mitter (6) was similar to a certain extent to the present case. The plaintiff represented the prior mortgagees, who had obtained a decree without impleading the subsequent mortgagees. The subsequent mortgagees also obtained a decree without impleading the prior mortgagees. The subsequent mortgagees were interested in a portion of the property mortgaged to the prior mortgagees. In a suit between the contending sets of mortgagees for possession of the mortgaged property, several questions arose as to the principle upon which the conflicting rights of the parties were to be adjusted. It is only necessary to refer to the third point in dispute, which was whether the subsequent mortgagees should be called upon to redeem the entire mortgage. The decision of Mookerji, J., upon this point is based upon the decisions in Surjiram Marwari v. Barhamdeo Persad (5) and Hari Kissen Bhagat v. Veliat Hossain (13). He held that as the plaintiffs had purchased the equity of redemption the defendants were clearly entitled to claim partial redemption. The case in Surjiram Marwari v. Barhamdeo Persad (5) was decided by the same learned Judge and Harington, J., and although there appears to have been an agreement as to partial redemption the rule laid down was that when a mortgagee acquired in whole or in part the share of the mortgagor partial redemption might be allowed.

The last case that I wish to refer to is that of Debendra Nath Sen v. Mirza Abdul Samed Seroji (11). The facts of the case are extremely complicated, but for the purposes of this appeal the following facts are sufficient. The plaintiff was a mortgagee and the contending defendant had purchased a portion of the mortgaged property in execution of a money decree, and he contended that he was only liable to contribute rateably for the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim. The law laid down was that "the mortgage security is entire and indivisible and unless there are exceptional circumstances, the mortgagee cannot be compelled to break up the security." The exceptional circumstances recognised are such as would have the effect of creating a severance of the security and in such cases an apportionment should be directed, where it would be for the benefit of any one who has taken a part of the property under necessity or where the mortgagee himself became the owner of a part of the equity of redemption, and it was held that the test to be applied was whether there had been a severance of the security at the instance or with the consent of the mortgagee and an apportionment would only be enforced upon the mortgagee where special equitable considerations are established. In the case before the Calcutta High Court it was held that such special equitable considerations did not exist. But in the case before this Court I have set forth reasons why I hold that certain equities exist in favour of the present appellants, as it may be taken to be an established proposition of law that a puisne mortgagee has an interest in the mortgaged property within the meaning of section 60 of the Transfer of Property Act. I would hold that, although none of the rulings cited above are exactly on all fours with the present case, the appellants are entitled to a decree for sale of the mortgaged property upon payment to the prior mortgagees or their representatives, the purchasers of the different villages, of a portion of the two prior mortgage debts proportionate to the value of the villages in which they (the appellants) are interested. As to the method of calculation, I would hold that an account should be taken of what was due to the Maharaja, defendant No. 1, under his mortgage of the 13th June 1896 up to the date fixed for redemption in the decree obtained by him dated the 30th July 1904. This amount should be distributed between the different villages according to their value. The amount to be paid by the appellants in respect of each village will be the proportionate amount so found due plus interest at Rs. 6 per cent. per annum up to the date of the confirmation of the sale of each village. The same course should be taken with respect to the village of Hamzapur included in the mortgage in favour of defendants Nos. 8 to 13, dated the 10th March 1898. The calculation, made as directed above, will show the different amounts payable on account of each of these villages and should prevent further litigation. but the appellants will have to pay in one lump sum the whole amount due for the villages covered by their mortgage. The amount will be deposited in Court for distribution to the purchasers concerned. On payment of the amount the appellants will be entitled to sell the villages covered by their mortgage in satisfaction of their decree.

(12) (1867) N. W. P. H. C. R. 88.

(13) 30 C. 755; 7 C. W. N. 723.

The above order will dispose both of the appellants' appeal and the objection taken by respondent No. 7, Raja Saiyid Abu Jafar.

CHAMIER, J. C.—I concur with the conclusions stated in the judgment which my learned colleague has prepared, but in view of the importance of the case I propose to state briefly my reasons for the view which we have taken. A short summary of the facts will be sufficient.

On June 13th 1896 Lallu Sahi mortgaged 37 villages, including nine villages called, Karomi, 2 Argupur, 3 Bilwari, 4 Gopalpur, 5 Kabra, 6 Maopur - Barjoli, 7 Katra Chhangapur, 8 Madhoban, 9 Masuran, to respondent No. 5, the Maharaja of Balrampur, for Rs. 2,20,000. On March 10th 1898 Lallu Sahi mortgaged three other villages, including a village called Hamzapur, to respondents Nos. 8 to 13. On September 6th 1898 Lallu Sahi mortgaged to the father of the appellants the ten villages named above and a village called Kator, which for the reasons stated by my learned colleague may be disregarded. Respondent No. 5 obtained a decree for sale on his mortgage in execution of which he himself purchased several villages including Karomi, Argupur, Gopalpur and Madhoban, respondent No. 6 purchased Bilwari, respondent No. 7 purchased Kabra and Masuran, respondent No. 14 purchased Katra Chhangapur and respondents Nos. 15 and 16 purchased Maopur Barjoli. Respondents Nos. 8 to 13 obtained a decree for sale on their mortgage, in execution of which they themselves purchased Hamzapur.

The appellants were not parties to the suits brought by respondent No. 5 and respondents Nos. 8 to 13, and it is admitted that the appellants are not affected by the decrees obtained therein or by the sales held in execution of those decrees. They have now sued for sale of the property mortgaged to them. The Court below has given them a decree for sale of the eleven villages subject to the mortgages of June 13th 1896 and March 10th 1898. The appellants contend that a sale of the villages subject to the prior mortgages will result in only nominal prices being obtained, inasmuch as purchasers of the villages will have to face complicated suits for contribution against the holders of villages not included in the mortgage to the appellants. The appellants contend that as the securities formerly held by respondent No. 5 and respondents Nos. 8 to 13 have been split up by the purchase of villages by those respondents, they should be allowed to redeem the villages mortgaged to them (the appellants) upon payment of so much of the sum due on the prior mortgages as is proportionate to the value of those villages. Respondent No. 7 on the other hand contends that the appellants should be required to redeem both the prior mortgages before bringing any of the property to sale. This contention is advanced in order to prevent the appellants from obtaining relief. Respondent No. 7 is aware no doubt that the appellants cannot find the large sum of over three lacs of rupees, which they would be required to pay on account of the prior mortgages.

It has been held for many years by this Court and by several High Courts that a puisne mortgagee is entitled to bring property mortgaged to him to sale subject to prior mortgages, if any, i. e., without redeeming those mortgages, and this view has now been affirmed by the Legislature in Order XXXIV of the Code of Civil Procedure.

A first mortgagee who has purchased or by other means acquired his mortgagor's rights in the property may pay off a second mortgage if he pleases [Kedar Nath v. Saiyad Hafiz Ali (14) and Saiyad Zahid Ali v. Rudra Singh (15)], but there has been a great conflict of opinion as to whether when a first mortgagee has obtained a decree on his mortgage behind the back of a puisne mortgagee and has acquired the property by purchase or foreclosure in execution of that decree, he can require a puisne mortgagee to redeem the first mortgage before bringing the property to sale,—see Gur Parshad v. Sah Bindraban Das (16), Najju Khan v. Ram Bali (17), Govardhan Das v. Veerasami Chettiar (18) and Debendra Narain Roy v. Ram Taran Banerjee (19). It is, however, unnecessary to decide this question in the present case, because we have come to the conclusion that in the circumstances of the present case the appellants are entitled to redeem the villages mortgaged to them by paying so much of the amount due on the prior mortgages as is proportionate to the value of those villages and this is what the appellants wish to do.

Ordinarily a person who is interested in part only of mortgaged property may insist upon redeeming the whole of the property and may be compelled to do so, but the rule is subject to exceptions. For example, when the mortgagee defendant has acquired part of the mortgaged property, the person seeking to redeem may redeem his own interest only and the mortgagee may insist upon redemption being limited to that interest [section 60, Act IV of 1882, Babu Mustafa Khan v. Shadi Lall (20) and Debendra Nath Sen v. Mirza Abdul Samed Seroji (11)]. This exception rests upon the view that the mortgagee has, by his own action, broken up the security and can no longer insist that his security is indivisible. He breaks up the security by purchasing part of the mortgaged property, because by his purchase he is deemed to have discharged that portion of the mortgage debt which was chargeable upon the property purchased by him, see Mahtab Singh v. Misree Lall (12), Bisheshur Dial v. Ram Sarup (1), Shib Lal v. Bhawani Shankar (2) and Lakkmidas Ramdas v. Jamnadas Shankarlal (3). The rule appears to be the same whether the person seeking to redeem is a mortgagee of part of property already mortgaged to another person or a person who has bought part of the interest of the mortgagor. Respondents Nos. 5 and 8 to 13 must be held by their action to have lost their right to insist upon the indivisibility of their securities. The other respondents who have purchased

(14) 10 O. C. 356.
(15) 5 Ind. Cas. 900, 13 O. C. 50.
(16) 3 O. C. 254.
(17) 7 O. C. 330.
(18) 26 M. 537
(19) 30 C. 599; 7 C. W. N. 766 (F. B.).
(20) 10 O. C. 81.

NGA PO KAN v. NGA SHWE DAT.

villages included in the appellants' mortgage have no concern with the indivisibility of the security held by respondent No. 5. Whether the property is sold subject to the prior mortgage or the sale takes place after the prior mortgage has been redeemed, the result will be the same. They will only get their rateable share of the amount due on the prior mortgage. In the peculiar circumstances of this case I think we may allow the appellants to bring the villages mortgaged to them to sale if they pay to the holders of those villages their rateable share of the amount due on the prior mortgages. But for the reasons stated elsewhere no decree will be made for the sale of the village Kator.

BY THE COURT.—The order of the Court is that the case is remanded to the Court below for a finding on the following issues:

1. What is the amount due to the prior mortgagee, the Maharaja of Balrampur, or his respresentatives, as calculated in accordance with the directions above given with respect to the villages noted below:

1. Karomi.
2. Argupur.
3. Bilwari.
4. Gopalpur.
5. Kabra.
6. Maopur Barjoli.
7. Katra Chhangapur.
8. Madhoban.
9. Masuran ?

2. What is the amount due to the prior mortgagees, defendants Nos. 8 to 13, with respect to the village of Hamzapur calculated in accordance with the directions given above ?

The lower Court is authorised to add any necessary parties in order to arrive at a proper decision on these issues and it is also authorised to take such additional evidence as is necessary. The finding should be returned to this Court within three months from this date and fifteen days will be allowed for objections from the date of the finding of the Court below.

Issues remitted.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 91 of 1912.

January 19, 1914.

Present:—Mr. McColl, A. J. C.

NGA PO KAN—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT

versus

NGA SHWE DAT—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5—Appeal—Admission of appeal presented after time—Discretion of Court—Discretion must be legal and regular—Presentation of appeal to wrong Court, whether sufficient cause.

Discretion when applied to a Court of Law means discretion guided by law. It must not be arbitrary, vague and fanciful but legal and regular.

The presentation of an appeal to a wrong Court through a mistake in ignorance of law is not a sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after time.

In an appeal filed after time the appellant should state in his memorandum of appeal the grounds on which he asks the Court to admit it after time.

Mr. J. N. Basu, for the Applicant.

Mr. E. Ba Din, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff-applicant sued the defendant-respondent, alleging that he had stood surety for his deceased brother on a sale of goods, and obtained a decree in the Township Court. The decree is dated 1st November 1911. On the 6th November the defendant-respondent applied for a copy of the Township Court's judgment and decree. He was told next day what stamps to produce and he produced them on the 8th. He was told that copies would be ready on the 20th and they were delivered to him on that day, so that the time required for obtaining these copies was 14 days.

Then instead of appealing against the decree he filed a regular suit in the Sub-Divisional Court for accounts. It is difficult to understand what he wanted, as he referred only to transactions which had been dealt with in the suit in the Township Court. This suit for accounts was filed on the 28th November and on the 15th December the Sub-Divisional Judge held that the suit was not maintainable and that the defendant-respondent's remedy was to appeal against the Township Court's decree. Instead of doing so at once, he waited for eight days and then on the 23rd December applied for and obtained a copy of the Sub-Divisional Judge's judgment, though this was in no way necessary for the purpose of appeal,

The Courts were after that closed for the Christmas holidays. Again he did not appeal on the first day on which the Courts were opened, but on the 4th January he filed a miscellaneous application in which he asked for permission to appeal, though the time for appealing had elapsed. It is not clear from the proceedings whether he filed his memorandum of appeal at the same time or not. In the appellate record, the appeal is stated to have been presented on the 3rd February. That was the date on which the District Judge passed orders on the miscellaneous application, and as the memorandum of appeal is dated the 3rd January 1912 it is possible that it was filed at the same time as the application. The District Judge heard the application ex parte and passed orders admitting the appeal. Notice was then issued to the plaintiff-applicant and the appeal was disposed of on the merits, the question of limitation not being considered again. The Township Court's decree was reversed and the suit dismissed.

The plaintiff-applicant has now applied for revision on various grounds, but the preliminary point of limitation has been argued first.

The procedure followed in the District Court was wrong. The defendant-respondent should have filed his memorandum of appeal and in it stated the grounds on which he asked it to be admitted after time. After hearing him or his Advocate the District Judge might have admitted the appeal provisionally, and then at the hearing gone into the question of limitation and heard what the other side had to say on the point.

It is argued for the defendant-respondent that the admission of an appeal after time is a matter of discretion and that the discretion of the lower Appellate Court should not be interfered with on second appeal. It has been said that discretion when applied to a Court of Law means discretion guided by law. It must be governed by rule and not by humour. It must not be arbitrary, vague and fanciful but legal and regular. The reasons given by the learned District Judge for admitting the appeal after time are given in the following words: "It is explained on behalf of the applicant that he did not understand the law and thought the proper Court to apply to was the Sub-Divisional Court. The Sub-Divisional Court indicated to him his error. Excluding the time between the date of institution in the Sub-Divisional Court (28th November 1911) and the date the copy of the Sub-Divisional Court's judgment was obtained (15th December) (sic)—and I think in the circumstances this period should be excluded—the appeal would appear to be within time."

The learned District Judge apparently had in mind section 14, Limitation Act. This section does not apply to appeals, but I have no doubt that the circumstances contemplated in that section would generally be held to be sufficient cause within the meaning of section 5. But the District Judge omitted to consider whether the ground on which the Sub-Divisional Court was unable to entertain the defendant-respondent's suit was of a like nature as defect of jurisdiction. The High Court of Allahabad has held that the presentation of an appeal to the wrong Court through a mistake in ignorance of law is not a sufficient cause. The High Courts are however not agreed upon this point. But in this case the defendant-respondent made a worse mistake than appealing to the wrong Court. He did not attack the decree at all but filed a fresh suit. Again, the learned District Judge omitted to consider whether the proceeding which the defendant-respondent prosecuted in the Sub-Divisional Court was prosecuted with good faith, i. e., with due care and attention. Had he exercised even the most ordinary care, would he not have discovered that his remedy was to appeal to the District Court?

Again, the learned District Judge failed to consider whether the defendant-respondent had been guilty of any laches after he had been informed of his proper remedy by the Sub-Divisional Court. As it took 14 days to obtain copies of the Township Court's judgment and decree, the time for appealing expired on the 15th December i. e. the day on which the Sub-Divisional Judge informed the defendant-respondent of his proper remedy. Had the defendant-respondent acted promptly then, his appeal would have been only a few days out of time, but instead of doing so he did nothing until the last day before the holidays commenced and then he applied for a copy of the Sub-Divisional Judge's judgment which was not required. Even after that he was guilty of further laches in that he did not file his appeal on the first day on which the Courts opened.

As the learned District Judge passed orders without going into any of these matters, it cannot be said that the discretion which he exercised was a judicial discretion and I think interference is justified.

Furthermore the District Judge acted under a mistake of fact. He says that if the period occupied in prosecuting the suit in the Sub-Divisional Court be excluded, the period allowed for appealing would have expired on the 6th January, but that is not correct.

In the passage from the District Judge's order quoted above he says: "Excluding the time between the date of the institution in the Sub-Divisional Court and the date the copy of the Sub-Divisional Court's judgment was obtained." But as this last date is given as the 15th December, which was the date on which the Sub-Divisional Judge's judgment was passed, a copy being supplied on the 23rd, I think the period the District Judge intended to deduct was the period between the date of institution and the date of judgment; obviously under no circumstances could defendant-respondent be allowed to deduct the time between the date of judgment and the date on which he thought fit to apply for a copy of it. Thus allowing 18 days for the time spent in the Sub-Divisional Court and 14 days for obtaining copies of the Township Court's judgment and decree and the usual 30 days, we have a total of 62 days and even if the one day necessary for obtaining a copy of the Sub-Divisional Court's judgment, though that copy was not required, be added, the total becomes 63 days and the last day for filing the appeal would be the 3rd January 1912, whereas the application for permission to appeal was filed on the 4th January 1912. Had the District Judge not made a mistake in his calculation, I hardly think that he would have admitted the appeal.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court is set aside and that of the Township Court restored with all costs.

Decree set aside.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 327 OF 1912.

March 7, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.

SADASHIV—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat RUKHMABAI AND OTHERS—DECREE-HOLDERS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 48, Sch. III, Para 11 (3), retrospective effect of—Mortgage-decree passed before the coming into force of the Code—Execution—Limitation.

Section 48 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, has retrospective effect and limits the period for the execution even of mortgage decrees passed before the new Code came into force.

Where an application was made in 1911 for execution of a decree for sale under a mortgage made absolute in 1898 and it appeared that before then several applications had been made each within the prescribed period from the last step taken in aid of execution and that during the interval the property had been in the hands of the Collector for about 6 years:

Held, that the decree-holder could not take any benefit from paragraph 11 (3) of Schedule III of the Civil Procedure Code and that his last application for execution was barred by time under section 48 of the Code.

Appeal against the decree of the Divisional Judge, Nagpur Division, dated the 8th May 1912, confirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Wardha, dated the 3rd February 1912.

Mr. J. Mitra, for the Appellant.

Mr. D. P. Tiwari, for Respondent No. 1.

Mr. Raghunath Rao Baldeo, for Respondent No. 2.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary decree for sale under a mortgage was passed against the appellant on the 31st of October 1896, and was made absolute on the 27th of September 1898. The property of which sale was ordered was a house and two absolute occupancy fields with a well and a tamarind tree in one of them. The house was sold in the year 1900. Several applications for execution have since been made, and each of them was within the prescribed period from the last step taken in aid of execution. The property was in the hands of the Collector for sale from the 30th of November 1901 to the 30th of October 1905, and again from the 27th of November 1908 to the 10th of January 1911, a total period of six years and fourteen days. On each occasion nothing was realised and the property was released from attachment. The last application for execution was made on the 25th of April 1911, or two days short of twelve years and seven months from the date of the final decree for sale. It has been held in both the Courts below, that of the Subordinate Judge of Wardha and that of the Divisional Judge of Nagpur, that section 230 of the old Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882) did not apply to mortgage decrees, that section 48 of the Civil Procedure Code now in force (Act V of 1908) does not apply to decrees passed before it came into force, and that, therefore, there is no limit at all to the period within which this decree can be executed. The Divisional Judge also held that even if the twelve years rule did apply, the decree-holder is entitled to deduct the period of six years and fourteen days during which the decree was in the hands of the Collector, under the last paragraph of section 325A of the old Code or paragraph 11 (3) of Schedule III of the new, which are identical. Against this decision the judgment-debtor has appealed, urging that execution of the decree is barred by time.

In regard to section 230 of the old Code, the view accepted in the High Courts of Calcutta and Allahabad is that that section did not apply to mortgage decrees, which could, therefore, be executed up to the end of all time. The Calcutta view is set out in Fasil Howladar v. Krishna Bundhoo Roy (1), which was followed in Kartick Nath Pandey v. Juggernath Ram (2), though certain learned Judges of the same Court showed a distinct inclination to the opposite view in the earlier cases of Hart v. Tara Prasanna Mukherji (3) and Jogemaya Dassi v. Thackomoni Dassi (4). In the Allahabad High Court the point is discussed in Ram Charan Bhagat v. Sheobarat Rai (5). In the other two cases mentioned by the learned Divisional Judge, Pahalwan Singh v. Narain Das (6) and Jadu Nath Prasad v. Jagmohan Das (7), there is no discussion of the matter. It is taken for granted that section 230 applies only to decrees other than mortgage decrees. The opposite view was taken in Madras in Kommachi Kather v. Pakker (8) and in Vaidhinadasamy v. Somasundram (9) by the Full Bench. There are apparently no published rulings of the High Court of Bombay or of this Court on the point. I am distinctly inclined to accept the interpretation put upon the words of section 230 by the Madras High Court, especially in view of the meaning assigned to very similar words in the second Schedule of the Limitation Act by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the well-known case of Vasudeva Mudaliar v. Srinivasa Pillai (10). But it is not necessary to express any definite opinion on this point, because I am quite clear that section 48 of the Code of 1908 applies to all decrees, whether passed before or after that Code came into force.

The authority for the opposite view on which both the Courts below have relied is the Allahabad ruling in Konsilla v. Ishri Singh (11). It was there held that the right to enforce execution of a decree like the present is a substantive right, which, under section 6 of Act X of 1897 (the General Clauses Act), cannot be taken away by an Act passed after its accrual, unless an intention to take it away appears, expressly or by necessary implication, in the new Act, and no such intention appears in the Civil Procedure Code of 1908. The Calcutta High Court (Jenkins, C. J., and Mullick, J.), however, in the later case of Bisseswar Sonamut v. Jasoda Lal Chowdhry (12) was unable to

(1) 25 C. 580; 2 C. W. N. 118.
(2) 27 C. 285.
(3) 11 C. 718.
(4) 24 C. 473.
(5) 16 A. 418; A. W. N. (1894) 142.
(6) 22 A. 401; A. W. N. (1900) 131.
(7) 25 A. 541; A. W. N. (1903) 98.
(8) 7 M. L. J. 66; 20 M. 107.
(9) 28 M. 473; 15 M. L. J. 126.
(10) 30 M. 426; 17 M. L. J. 444, 11 C. W. N. 1005; 4 A. L. J. 625; 6 C. L. J. 379; 2 M. L. T. 333; 9 Bom. L. R. 1104. (P. C.); 34 I. A. 187.
(11) 6 Ind. Cas. 188; 32 A. 490; 7 A. L. J. 420.
(12) 19 Ind. Cas. 391, 40 C. 704; 17 C. W. N. 622, accept this decision as correct. In regard it to the learned Chief Justice said: "I must confess that I feel some difficulty as to the decision in that case. When it was put to the learned Vakil for the respondent in this case whether he was making his application under the Code of 1908 or the repealed Code of 1882, he had to concede that it was the new Code of 1908. If so, then section 48 is an integral part of that Code, and no application under that Code, as it appears to me, can be made in disregard of its express conditions, I say that bearing in mind the provisions of section 6 of the General Clauses Act. In this connection it is important to observe that the Legislature evidently considered this Code might and would interfere with rights, for there is an express provision in section 154 that 'nothing in this Code shall affect any present right of appeal which shall have accrued to any party at its commencement,' a provision that would have been unnecessary unless the Code, as framed, would affect existing rights under the old Code. It has been urged before us that this view would involve hardship, that rights would be imperilled, if not confiscated; but this overlooks the provision which prescribed that, though the Code was passed in March 1908, it should not come into operation until January 1909. That provision afforded ample opportunity to all persons having rights under the old Code to enforce them before the new Code came into operation."

The common sense of these arguments seems to me convincing. I would add to them three short passages from Story's Conflict of Laws, quoted with approval by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 1851 in Her Highness Buckmaboye v. Lulloobhoy Mottichund (13): "The law of prescription * * * forms no part of the contract itself, but merely acts upon it ex post facto in case of a suit; it cannot properly be deemed a right stipulated for, or included in the contract." Later, the learned author says: "Considered in their true light, Statutes of Limitation or prescription are ordinarily simple regulations of suits and not of rights. They regulate the times in which rights may be asserted in Courts of Justice, and do not purport to act upon those rights." And again, "In regard to Statutes of Limitation or prescription of suits, there is no doubt that they are strictly questions affecting the remedy, and not questions upon the merits. They go ad litis ordinationem, and not ad litis decisionem, in a just juridical sense."

This seems to rob the decision in Konsilla v. Ishri Singh (11) of its very basis, which is the proposition that the right which the holders of mortgage decrees passed before 1909 had under the Code of 1882 to execute those decrees without any limit of time, was a substantive right. It is hard to see how there can be a vested interest in a mere matter of procedure. If the Court-fee payable on an application for execution were raised, could the holders of decrees passed before the change claim to put in their applications on the old Court-fee? Or if a Court is moved from one town to another, would the inhabitants of the first town who held decrees passed by that Court before the move, have a right to have the decrees executed in that town? Limitation is no less a matter of procedure than these matters, and the right to obtain relief by following certain procedure within a fixed time seems to me no different from the right to do so at a fixed place or a fixed price. Even, therefore, assuming that section 48 of the Code of 1908 did not merely explain and make more certain the law as it stood under section 230 of the Code of 1882 but amended it, a view which I am unable to take, I hold that the new section has retrospective effect and limits the period for the execution even of mortgage decrees passed before the new Code came into force.

It remains to examine the contention that execution of the decree is not yet barred, because of the provisions of paragraph 11 (3) of Schedule III of the Procedure Code of 1908, which reproduces the third paragraph of section 230 of the old Code. This contention the learned Divisional Judge has accepted as sound on the authority of Keshavlal Bechar v. Pitamberdas Tribhuvandas (14) and Girdhar Das v. Har Shankar Prasad (15). Neither ruling decides the matter now before us. In the former case the objection of the bar under section 230 was not seriously pressed and was not discussed. It was held that the Collector's management of the property, which began within a year of the passing of the decree and still continued, was merely a continuation of the proceedings originally instituted, and that each of the annual payments made by the Collector to the decree-holder was a partial step in aid of execution of the decree. In the second case the decree-holder, who was not the creditor on whose attachment the property had been put in the hands of the Collector, had applied to the Collector to have his decree satisfied and this application had been refused. Clearly, therefore, he was deprived, during the management of the Collector, of all remedy against the property in the Collector's hands and was entitled to exclude that period in calculating limitation, though, as the learned Judges were careful to explain, that was only in respect of the property in the Collector's hands. He had not been deprived of any remedy in respect of his debtor's other property, and execution of his decree against that other property was barred by time.

(13) 5 M. I. A. 234 at pp. 265, 266, 267, 8 Moo. P. C. 4; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 423, 18 E. R. 884; 14 Eng. Rep. 2.

(14) 19 B. 261

(15) 20 A. 383; A. W. N. (1898) 82.

Here we have the converse case. The decree-holder was not deprived of any remedy against the property in the hands of the Collector. He certainly was deprived of his remedy against his debtor's other property by the second paragraph of section 325A of the old Code and paragraph 11 (2) of Schedule III of the new Code, and if his decree were capable of execution against that other property, which it is not, it would not be barred by time to that extent. It is urged on behalf of the decree-holder that he was deprived of his remedy of being able to force the sale of the property, unless the whole amount of his decree was paid at once, by the power given to the Collector to lease out the land and pay him in instalments. This, however, is incorrect. Under sections 321 and 322 of the old Code and paragraphs 1 and 2 of Schedule III of the new Code in executing a decree for sale on a mortgage, the Collector could not satisfy the decree by instalments. He was bound to sell the property or to satisfy the decree in full by a lease or mortgage for the full amount to be paid at once. I am aware that at one time some misconception did exist on this point, and that it was thought that a Collector might pay off by instalments a decree ordering sale on a mortgage. That was set right long before November 1901, when the Collector first took charge of this property, but anyhow we have to consider to what extent the creditor has been deprived of a remedy by the actual powers specially given to the Collector, not by any popular delusion as to those powers. Here his remedy was rather enlarged by the property being put in the hands of the Collector, because in addition to giving the debtor time to raise the money under sections 321 (a) and 305 of the old Code [and paragraph 1 (a) of Schedule III, and Order XXI, rule 83, of the new], which the Court also could do, the Collector could himself make arrangements to mortgage or lease the property under section 321 (b) of the old Code [and paragraph 1 (b) of Schedule III of the new] which the Court could not.

I hold, therefore, that the decree-holder cannot, in this case, get any benefit from paragraph 11 (3) of Schedule III of the Civil Procedure Code, and that his last application for execution is barred by time under section 48 of the Code. The orders of both the Courts below allowing execution are accordingly set aside. The decree-holder will pay all the costs of both parties in all three Courts.

Appeal accepted.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REFERENCE No. 1 OF 1914.

August 3, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Holmwood and Mr. Justice Chapman.

Srimati PARAMESWARI—PLAINTIFF

versus

JAGAT CHANDRA DAS AND OTHERS—RESPONDENTS.

Jurisdiction—Small Cause Court—Suit registered as ordinary suit—Tried as Small Cause Court suit—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLVI, r. 7—Reference to High Court—Discretion—Decision on merits.

PARAMESWARI v. JAGAT CHANDRA DAS.

A suit valued at Rs 90 was instituted in the Court of a Munsif having Small Cause Court power only up to Rs. 50. It was registered as an ordinary suit but was tried subsequently as a Small Cause Court suit by the successor of the former Munsif who had Small Cause Court power up to Rs. 100:

Held, considering the merits of the case, that it was not a fit case to direct that the suit be re-heard in the regular form, on the ground that the Court of Small Causes had erroneously held the suit to be cognizable by it.

Held, further, that the High Court had full power in such a case to consider the matter on the merits, so as to do substantial justice without putting the parties to the expense of a fresh suit.

A Court of Small Causes cannot be expected to consider whether the suit before it is one which it has jurisdiction to entertain independently of whether an actual plea is not taken to that effect.

Mahima Chandra Sirdar v. Kali Mondal, 12 C W. N. 167, not followed.

Hari Kamayya v. Hari Venkayya, 20 M. 212 and Shambhu Dhanaji v. Ram Vithu Sarang, 28 B. 244, 5 Bom. L. R. 1008, referred to.

Suresh Chander Maitra v. Kristo Rangini Dasi, 21 C. 249 and Ram Lal v. Kabul Singh, 25 A 135, A. W. N. (1902) 219, followed.

Civil reference by the District Judge of Chittagong.

Babu Khitish Chandra Sen, for the Plaintiff.

Babu Chandra Sekhar Sen, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a reference made to us by the learned District Judge of Chittagong under Order XLVI, rule 7, Civil Procedure Code. It appears that a suit for recovery of ornaments (or their value, 90 rupees) placed in deposit with defendant was instituted in the Court of the Munsif having Small Cause Court power only up to Rs. 50 and was registered as an ordinary suit. Before the case came on for hearing, the first Munsif was succeeded by another Munsif who had Small Cause Court power up to Rs. 100. He tried the suit as a Small Cause Court suit and dismissed it on a very strong finding of fact that no such deposit had ever been made. The evidence of deposit is quite unsatisfactory and unreliable. He goes into the evidence in detail, analyses it, and as far as we can see has come to a just and proper conclusion.

It is urged on the authority of the case of Mahima Chandra Sirdar v. Kali Mondal (1) that this Court is bound to act upon the reference by the learned District Judge and to direct that the suit be re-heard in the regular form. In support of this contention the Full Bench case of Madras, Hari Kamayya v. Hari Venkayya (2), and the decision of the Bombay Court in Shambhu Dhanaji v. Ram Vithu Sarang (3) are cited. But those were cases where the same officer had been subsequently vested with enhanced powers, and the learned Chief Justice points out in his judgment that in the previous Bombay case, Balchand v. Balaram (4), the Judges had held contrary views upon the special circumstances of that case, and we find that the Allahabad Court in the case of Ram Lal v. Kabul Singh (5) has held that where no question as to the Court's jurisdiction was raised by either party and the Court of Small Causes proceeded to judgment as if the case was properly cognizable by it, the High Court would refuse to interfere upon a reference made by the District Judge upon the ground that the Court of Small Causes had erroneously held the suit to be, or not to be, cognizable by it. It was moreover cogently laid down in that case that the Court of Small Causes could not be expected to consider whether the suit before it was one which it had jurisdiction to entertain independently of whether an actual plea was or was not taken to that effect. What took place in that case and also in this case is very evident. The defendant lost his case and then for the first time had it suggested to him that there was a plea which he might have raised before a Court of Small Causes with effect, and thereupon tried to get the decision reversed by an application to the District Judge. The Judges say: "We are not in favour of assisting parties to set aside decrees upon points which they did not raise before the Court which tried the matters in issue, and of which they gave no notice to the opposite party." To a similar effect is the rule of this Court in the case of Suresh Chunder

(1) 12 C. W. N. 167.
(2) 20 M. 212.
(3) 28 B. 244, 5 Bom. L. R. 1008.
(4) 5 Bom. L. R. 398.
(5) 25 A. 135 A. W. N. (1902) 219.

Maitra v. Kristo Rangini Dasi (6), which was the converse case to the present, where the case had been tried by the regular procedure when it ought to have been tried by the Small Cause Court procedure, and it was pointed out that section 16 of the Small Cause Court Act was in conflict with the new rule introduced in the Code of Civil Procedure by section 646B, the present Order XLVI, rule 7, and that there being this conflict, section 646B as also rule 7 distinctly stated that the High Court may make such order in the case as it thinks fit; so it is clear that it was intended that the High Court should have full power to consider the matter on the merits, so as to do substantial justice without putting the parties to the expense of a fresh suit.

This question of the discretion of this Court under the rule was not adverted to in the case which we have cited in 12 Calcutta Weekly Notes and in the Bombay case, the Chief Justice based his decision on the desirability of having an uniform procedure in these cases. With all respect to that great authority it is impossible, in our opinion, to have an uniform procedure where the matter is one which is left entirely to the discretion of this Court to be weighed on the merits in each case; and this case appears to us to be so peculiarly without merits that it would be impossible for us to direct that the parties should be put to the expense of a fresh trial in such a petty matter.

We, therefore, decline to interfere in the matter, though we recognize that the learned Judge had no choice but to refer the matter to us. The result is that the reference is discharged and the order of the Small Cause Court will be upheld.

There will be no order for costs in this matter.

Reference discharged.

(6) 21 C. 249.

COURT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE, UNITED PROVINCES.

REVENUE PETITION No. 72 OF 1912-13 OF SULTANPUR DISTRICT.

November 13, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Holms, J. M.

Syed MUHAMMAD BAQAR—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

SHEO MOHAN SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), ss. 3 (3), 107 B (b) and 107 G—"Land" includes fallow plots—Rent-free land liable to pay rent as provided by settlement decree—Proprietor of grove, not necessarily owner of land as well—Grove, character of—Assessment of rent, suit for, landlord's rights as to—Undivided holding, effect of.

"Land," as defined in the Oudh Rent Act, includes plots remaining fallow

Land held rent-free but liable to pay rent on breach of a condition annexed to it, as provided by the settlement decree, is not land held rent-free under a judicial decision as contemplated by section 107B (b) of the Oudh Rent Act.

A person recorded as proprietor of a grove is not necessarily a proprietor or under-proprietor of the land covered by the grove.

A land is not grove if only a portion of it remains grove.

Thakur Janki Baksh Singh v. Mahabir Singh, 1 Selected Decision 1910, referred to.

A landlord has no right to sue for assessment of rent some only of the co-sharers in an undivided holding.

Appeal from the decree of the Officiating Commissioner, Fyzabad, dated 26th May 1913, reversing that of the Deputy Commissioner, Sultanpur, dated 28th September 1912, modifying that of the Assistant Collector, Sultanpur, dated 17th January 1912.

FACTS.—The facts of the case appear clearly from the following Order of the Commissioner :—

"This case is one of a very unusual kind and I have found some difficulty in coming to a correct decision. The facts are as follows. At the first Regular Settlement the predecessors of the appellants obtained a decree for certain rent-free sir and claimed to hold certain other land as rent-free sir. This latter claim was not admitted, but a decree was passed with respect to some 24 bighas 14 biswas 10 biswansis of the other land declaring the holders to be entitled to be recorded as proprietors of the lands, which were described as groves, the conditions attached being that the lands were to be held in subordination to the superior proprietor and that if any revenue were assessed on the lands, the holders should be responsible for it and if the groves were cut down, whether assessed to revenue or not, the holders were to pay a rent based on the rate payable by the best land in the village. In 1907 the superior proprietor brought a suit for assessment of rent under the Resumption Chapter of the Oudh Rent Act, claiming rent for 19 bighas 12 biswas from Onkar Singh who was alleged to be then holder. The Assistant Commissioner dismissed the suit, holding that the Resumption Chapter did not apply. His order was reversed by the Deputy Commissioner and after litigation up to the Board of Revenue a rent of Rs. 152-4-7 was fixed on an area of 20 bighas 1 biswa 10 biswansis. Onkar Singh refused to pay up the rent and was sued for arrears. He then contested the suit on the ground that he only held a half share in the holding, and his nephews, the present appellants, were made parties to the suit. After further litigation which went up to the Judicial Commissioner's Court, the landlord obtained a decree for half the rent against Onkar Singh, the appellants being exempted on the ground that they were not a party to the original suit for assessment. This decision necessitated a fresh suit for assessment of rent under the Resumption Chapter against the appellants and this second appeal has been filed against the order of the Deputy Commissioner by which he has assessed the appellants to a rent of Rs. 69 on an undivided half share of an area of 15 bighas 14 biswas 3 biswansis out of the original area of 20 bighas 1 biswa 10 biswansis for which rent was claimed. On behalf of the appellants I am asked to differ entirely from the views held by the various Courts in the previous litigation with Onkar Singh, on the ground that the appellants are not bound by the previous litigation. There can be no doubt and it is not denied that the appellants are not bound by the previous litigation and it is equally clear that the existing orders, viz., the assessment to rent of Onkar Singh at Rs. 76-2-3 for a half share of an undivided holding of 20 bighas 1 biswa 10 biswansis and the assessment to rent of the appellants at Rs. 69 for a half share of an undivided area of 15 bighas 14 biswas 3 biswansis out of that holding are an anomaly. The respondent is to blame for suing Onkar Singh alone under the Resumption Chapter when Onkar Singh and the appellants were recorded in the under-proprietary khewat as joint co-sharers of the land, and Onkar Singh ought certainly to have raised his objection then and not during the suit for arrears of rent. The interpretation of the whole of the decree does not appear to have been raised before the Board of Revenue in the litigation against Onkar Singh, as will be seen from a copy of the order dated 26th April 1909, which shows that the only point raised before the Board was the claim that the land was not liable to assessment of rent under the decree unless and until the groves were cut down as a whole. The decree was undoubtedly very loosely worded and I find the same difficulty as the present Deputy Commissioner has had in interpreting it to justify assessment of rent, at the rate payable for the best land in the village, of areas which, from the time of the decree until now, have been occupied by houses or water or have lain waste and in whose condition there has been no change. Reading the decree in conjunction with the judgment it appears to me that the Settlement Officer intended to decree to the holders of these lands an under-proprietary right, not rent-free like the sir lands he refers to, but subject to the payment of revenue if any were assessed on the holding and subject to the payment of rent at the rate payable for the best land in the village for all lands then occupied by trees, which might subsequently be rendered capable of cultivation by the cutting down of trees.

"No revenue was payable by the superior proprietor at the time of the decree for these lands and there is nothing to show that any revenue has since been imposed. But the holders were declared liable to payment of the revenue at least and so were not rent free under proprietors, but true under-proprietors to whom the provisions of section 79 of the Land Revenue Act apply. It seems to me, therefore, that the original Revenue Court who dealt with the original application of the respondent to assess Onkar Singh under the Resumption Chapter was correct and the Resumption Chapter does not apply,—Vide the proviso to section 107B

To hold that it does not apply has resulted in rent being fixed under the terms of the decree and not under section 107G or section 107H, the only two sections under which rent could be assessed, and in Onkar Singh and the appellants being deprived of the under-proprietary rights decreed to them. But apart from this question, I do not see how it is possible for me to uphold a decree passed against only three out of four co-sharers in an undivided holding. It is true that the learned Judge, in his appellate judgment in the arrears of rent case, says that there is evidence that Onkar Singh is in possession of half the land, but I can find nothing in the evidence recorded by the lower Court in that case to bear this out. All that this evidence shows is that Onkar Singh had a half share in the holding and the present Deputy Commissioner's order bears this out. It seems to me that if the learned Judicial Commissioner had been aware of the correct facts, he would have decreed the whole claim for the arrears against Onkar Singh and this subsequent litigation would have been unnecessary, holding him to be jointly and severally responsible for the rent assessed on the whole holding. As, however, in my opinion, the Resumption Chapter of the Oudh Rent Act does not apply to these decree-holders and the suit against the appellants is bad, now that the whole facts are disclosed, I set aside the order of the lower Courts and dismiss the respondent's suit with costs, including Pleader's fees in all Courts."

Syed Zahur Ahmad, for the Appellant.

Pandit Banni Dhar Misra, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—(July 24th, 1914.)—The facts have been clearly stated by the Commissioner. Apart from the difficulty he raises as to passing a separate decree assessing rent on three out of four co-sharers in an undivided holding, a further difficulty occurs. Mr. Rafiq, the District Judge, in his judgment, dated 24th March 1911, has held that the present respondents are not liable for rent for their portion of the holding, as no rent has been assessed. The result is that the remedy in the shape of a suit for arrears of rent in accordance with the terms of the settlement decree is not open to the appellant. He has now had resource to the alternative remedy,—a suit under the Resumption Chapter for assessment of rent. Now if the Resumption Chapter applies at all and section 107G is made use of, the rent must be determined under the provisions of that section, and not according to the terms of the settlement decree. Appellant urges that section 108 (5A) is wide enough to cover a suit for assessment of rent according to the settlement decree, although such a suit would not fall under any other section of the Oudh Rent Act. I feel considerable doubt as to this contention and on the next day of hearing appellant will let me have his rulings in support of it.

The respondent urges that, as only two plots out of the ten plots assessed are cultivated, the other plots, remaining fallow, do not fall in the definition of land in the Oudh Rent Act. There is nothing to be said for this view, apart from any question as to lands occupied by dwelling-houses.

He next urges that the land is held rent-free under the settlement decree under section 107B (b). The settlement decree distinctly states that the land will not necessarily be held rent-free, but that, when the groves are cut down, it will be liable to pay rent determined in a special way. Land which is liable to pay rent under a judicial decision can hardly be said to be held rent-free under it.

It is also contended by the respondent that the land which is recorded as under-proprietary land should now be held to be under-proprietary land. There is not much in the settlement decree to justify this contention. Reference is made in the settlement decree to Shankar Singh being proprietor of the groves, but this is not the same thing as his being proprietor or under-proprietor.

Respondent has further contended that the land assessed is still grove, because there is grove on the remaining portions of certain numbers. Thakur Janki Baksh Singh v. Mahabir Singh (1) is against this contention.

Adjourned to a date to be fixed later.

(1) 1 Selected Decision 1910.

GANAJI v. DHANSINGH.

(November 13th, 1914).—This is a complicated case and several troublesome points have arisen. The previous suit, which was settled finally by the appellate judgment of the Board dated the 16th November 1909, was under the Resumption Chapter in which the appellant sued Onkar Singh only for assessment of rent. A decree was given, which apparently was under section 107G, although the rent determined was not apparently determined under that section but according to the settlement decree of 1st August 1872. In my previous order of the 24th July I raised the question as to whether the present suit can lie under section 108 (5A). No objection, however, was taken on this point before the Commissioner nor according to his judgment urged before him, and, as this suit is similar to the suit in which the Board gave a decree without objection on this point, I will not raise it. The Commissioner says that it appears to him that the Settlement Officer intended to decree to the holders of these lands an under-proprietary right. Onkar Singh apparently raised no definite claim to under-proprietary rights in the previous litigation and the question was not discussed in the Board's judgment. It is by no means clear what rights were conferred by the settlement decree of 1872. Subsequent entries in the Settlement papers and patwari's records are only partially on record. In the khetauni of the First Settlement, Shankar Singh was recorded under the column for proprietor and the note in the margin on which respondent relies is not clear as to what land it refers. The respondent has not produced the last Settlement khewat and the entry in the last Settlement khasra may be disregarded. The Judicial Commissioner in his decision of the 21st December 1906 discussed the meaning of the settlement decree and holds that no under-proprietary right in land was created, but this was against Onkar Singh only and does not bind the respondents. The wording of the settlement decree certainly is such as to admit of two interpretations. If the grove lands were not to be held as under-proprietary lands, the words "plaintiff should hold these grove lands as he does his sir" would seem to be superfluous. On the other hand, the rent payable after the groves have been cut down is greater than would ordinarily be paid by an under-proprietor.

The action of the appellant in proceeding separately against the sharers in an undivided holding would, if the present suit were allowed, possibly result in a grave anomaly, Onkar Singh being apparently treated as a statutory tenant under the litigation ending in 1909, while the other co-sharers raise the question of their rights to an under-proprietary tenure. Without, however, coming to the decision of this claim I will settle the appeal from another point of view.

The appellant has himself entirely to blame for the difficulties in which he finds himself. He sued originally only one of the recorded sharers for assessment of rent in an undivided holding. He has wasted the time of a number of Courts, and on the whole I think he must be left to suffer the result of his own inconsiderate action. I, therefore, dismiss the appeal on the ground that the appellant has no right to sue for assessment of rent some only of the co-sharers in an undivided holding.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 88B OF 1913.

January 26, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Mittra, Offg. A. J. C.

GANAJI—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

DHANSINGH—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Possession—Evidence of title—Suit on ground of dispossession

Possession is a good title against all persons except the true owner.

In a suit for possession on the ground of dispossession, the plaintiff must show that there was no discontinuance of possession before the defendant's entry.

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, West Berar, dated the 12th November 1912, reversing that of the Junior Munsif, Akola, dated the 1st December 1911.

Mr. F. W. Dillon, for the Appellant.

Mr. H. S. Gour, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a suit for possession of a site in a gadhi which has been found to belong to the Government. In 1899 the plaintiff, the defendant and other persons applied for permission to build within the gadhi. The Tahsildar permitted the applicants to do so, provided they owned the sites. This, it is conceded, did not create a title binding on the Government. But the Government is not a party to the suit and, so far as can be made out from the record, has not supported the claim of either party. The lower Appellate Court has found that the plaintiff, in pursuance of this permission, built on the site in dispute in the famine year, that is, 1900. The plaintiff's case is that he was dispossessed by the defendant in 1907. The plaintiff had brought a suit under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act, which was dismissed. This is admitted, though there is no copy of the judgment or proceedings filed. The plaintiff has now instituted this regular suit and has been given a decree for possession by the lower Appellate Court on the ground of the plaintiff's prior possession.

The defendant-appellant's first contention is that the plaintiff, having brought a suit on his title as owner, should not have been given a decree on his prior possession, as the defendant had not sufficient notice of such a claim being advanced. But the plaintiff clearly stated that he had obtained the site from Government and built a shed thereon and was in peaceful possession of it for a number of years, when he was dispossessed by the defendant. It is obvious that the defendant, who holds a neighbouring plot under the same order of the Tahsildar, was in no way misled as to the nature of the plaintiff's claim.

The second question for decision is whether the plaintiff can be given a decree for possession on the ground of his mere prior possession. It is settled law that possession is a good title against all persons except the true owner. The authorities in support of this view are cited in Nand Ram v. Narbad (1). The so-called permission granted by the Tahsildar did not create a valid title as against the Government, but it does not follow that the defendant is at liberty to disturb the plaintiff's possession. As against the latter the plaintiff's prior possession was a good title. It is urged that the decree of the lower Appellate Court is bad, as there is no finding that the defendant did not enter into possession peaceably, and in support of this argument Counsel cites the following passage in the judgment of Batten, A. J. C., in Sawanji v. Musammat Chinki (2): "If the party sued entered into possession peaceably, then his possession is just as good as that of the plaintiff." What the learned Judge meant to lay down was that the plaintiff's possession must continue till the entry by the defendant, to entitle the plaintiff to recover possession from the latter. In other words, there must have been no discontinuance of possession before the defendant's entry. The facts of the case before me show that this is a case of dispossession, and it does not matter whether this was forcible or peaceable.

The last ground is that the plaintiff, by reason of the dismissal of the suit under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act, is precluded from recovering on the ground of mere previous possession in the absence of title. Now the point on which the former suit under section 9 could be res judicata is as to whether the plaintiff was dispossessed within six months of that suit. Anything else said by the Judge as to title or as to possession prior to six months will be obiter. The dismissal of the former suit is, therefore, not inconsistent with the finding that the plaintiff, before he was ousted by the defendant, was in juridical possession for some time. Reliance is placed on the second paragraph of section 9 of the Specific Relief Act which is to the following effect: "Nothing in this section shall bar any person from suing to establish his title to such property and to recover possession." The argument that the plaintiff having failed in the former suit can only recover on his title, overlooks that peaceful possession is good title as against the defendant, and the decree in the regular suit may be based on such possessory title.

The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 2 C. P. L. R. 59.

(2) 12 Ind. Cas. 25; 5 N. L. R. 88.

MI NGWE HMON v. MI PWA SU.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 136 OF 1913.

December 11, 1913.

Present:—Mr. McColl, A. J. C.

MI NGWE HMON—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

MI PWA SU—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Slander—Repetition of rumour, whether actionable—Suit for damages for slander—Law applicable—Defence—Truth of slander.

The repetition of slanders heard from others is actionable unless privileged.

In a civil suit for damages for slander, the criminal law of defamation has no application. The suit must be decided according to justice, equity and good conscience.

The proof of the truth of the slander is a complete defence in a civil suit for damages

Mr. A. C. Mukerjee, for the Appellant.

Mr. Ba Din, for Mr. San Wa, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff-respondent, a married woman, sued the defendant-appellant for damages for slander, alleging that the latter had spread a rumour in the village that she had had sexual intercourse with one Pyaw Bwe. Her first witness stated that the defendant-appellant had told her that the plaintiff-respondent and Pyaw Bwe had been seen sleeping twisted together like snakes. The Township Judge appears to have believed this witness, but he held that the evidence showed that plaintiff-respondent's relations with Pyaw Bwe were suspicious and that they were the subject of talk in the village and that the defendant-appellant had only repeated what she had heard and was, therefore, not liable.

On appeal the learned Additional Judge of the lower Additional Court found that defendant-appellant had exaggerated what she had heard and had thus caused strained relations between plaintiff-respondent and her husband and that whether what defendant-appellant said was true or not, she was liable for damages as none of the exceptions contained in section 499, Indian Penal Code, applied. He gave plaintiff-respondent a decree for Rs. 60.

The defendant-appellant has now appealed to this Court.

Both of the Courts below have erred in law. If slanderous words used by one man are actionable, the repeating of them by another is also actionable unless privileged, and the Township Court erred in supposing that the defendant-appellant was not liable simply because she had only repeated what she had heard from others.

The lower Appellate Court was wrong in supposing that the criminal law of defamation had any application. The suit had to be decided according to justice, equity and good conscience and in such matters the Common Law of England, though not binding, is generally looked to for guidance.

According to the Common Law of England slanderous words imputing unchastity to a woman are not actionable without proof of special damage. This rule, however, has not been imported into the law in India and now even in England under the Slander of Woman Act such words are actionable per se. Another rule which has been generally recognised in India is that proof of the truth of the slander is a complete defence in a civil suit for damages for slander or libel, "because the law will not permit a man to recover damages in respect of an injury to character which he either does not or ought not to possess." It is possible that there might be a case in which the application of this rule would not be in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience, but this is not such a case. If the defendant-appellant used the words complained of, they were certainly actionable, but proof of their truth would be a complete defence.

It has been urged that there is not sufficient proof that defendant-appellant did use the words complained of, that the plaintiff-respondent's witness Ma E Nge is deaf and Ma Tha I; who was admittedly present and in a better position to hear, did not hear them. But Ma Tha I stated that after the defendant-appellant had made a remark against the plaintiff-respondent she moved a head—they were all three walking along the road in single file—and did not hear what further conversation defendant-appellant and Ma E Nge had. Besides there is evidence that the defendant-appellant made similar slanderous remarks to others.

Next, it is contended that plaintiff-respondent's conduct was such as to disentitle her to any damages, that during her husband's absence Pyaw Bwe constantly visited her, that they were seen sleeping on the same mat and that plaintiff-respondent's mother-in-law actually requested Pyaw Bwe's father to forbid him to visit the house. The evidence was recorded in English by a Burmese Magistrate and I have no doubt that he has translated the word * * as 'sleep' and that what the witness Pyaw Bwe really said was that he had been lying on the same mat with the plaintiff-respondent, which corresponds with what one of the witnesses for the defence stated, viz., that she had seen Pyaw Bwe and the plaintiff-respondent lying facing each other and talking. This, no doubt, implies intimacy and I do not disagree with the Township Judge's finding that the plaintiff-respondent's conduct was improper. If the defendant-appellant had merely told others of these proved improprieties she would not have been liable. But she stated in effect that plaintiff-respondent and Pyaw Bwe had had sexual intercourse and she stated this not as an inference from their proved intimacy, but as an independent fact and she failed to prove anything more than impropriety.

I am of opinion, therefore, that she has rightly been held liable and I do not consider the damages awarded, Rs. 60, excessive.

The appeal is accordingly dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1070 OF 1914.

February 2, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Scott-Smith.

THUMAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammat BASANTI—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Procedure—District Judge adopting finding of Divisional Judge in another case on custom, legality of.

Where a District Judge affirms a decree in favour of the plaintiff, following a finding as to custom arrived at by the Divisional Judge in another case relating to houses in the abadi of the village, he does not apply his mind to the point and his procedure is irregular.

Second appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Amballa, dated the 16th February 1914, affirming that of the Munsif, first Class, Amballa, dated the 1st May 1913, decreeing the claim.

Mr. Nand Lal, for the Appellant.

Rai Bahadur Pandit Sheo Narain, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This was a suit by Musammat Basanti, plaintiff-respondent, for possession of a shop sold to her by Ganpat, a non-proprietor in Bahyal village. Defendant-appellant is a proprietor who took possession of the house. The main question at issue was as to the right of the proprietors to object to alienations by non-proprietors. The case was heard along with two others in which the appeals lay to the Divisional Judge. In those cases the proprietors were the plaintiffs and their suits were dismissed by the first Court. The learned Divisional Judge on appeal found against the proprietors, on the ground that they had acquiesced in the defendants' possession. He also recorded certain findings as to the customs prevalent in the village, one being that proprietors can object to future alienations by original non-proprietors, but not to those by non-proprietors who have derived their title by sale and have been lulled into a sense of security of title.

In the case out of which the present appeal arises the appeal lay to the District Judge, who accepted the finding of the Divisional Judge as to the above custom, and holding after a remand that Ganpat was not an original non-proprietor but had derived his title by purchase, dismissed the appeal of the proprietors, the first Court having decreed plaintiff's claim.

In second appeal it is urged that the lower Appellate Court should have decided the question of custom independently.

Pandit Sheo Narain for respondent says the District Judge was entitled to adopt the finding of a superior Court. Perhaps he might have been entitled to do this and I am not sure that I should have interfered had I been satisfied that he had applied his mind to the point and to the reasoning of the Divisional Judge. But there is nothing in his judgment to show that he had done this. Another objection to the procedure adopted by the lower Appellate Court is that there was no necessity for the Divisional Judge to come to any finding on the question of custom, and his finding was a mere obiter dictum and under the circumstances not of very much value.

Pandit Sheo Narain also argues that as Ganpat was in possession for more than 12 years after the sale to him, he acquired an absolute title and could transfer the shop to any one he liked without the consent of the proprietors.

This argument appears to be quite a new one. Plaintiff never urged that Ganpat had acquired an absolute title by adverse possession. He may have been a full owner according to the custom of the village, but if the custom is against him, I do not see how his position could be better than that of any other non-proprietors.

The appeal is accepted and the order of the lower Appellate Court being set aside, the case is remanded to the Senior Subordinate Judge for re-decision of the appeal. Stamp in this Court to be refunded and other costs to be costs in the case.

Appeal accepted.

UPPER BURMA JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 24 OF 1913.

February 26, 1914.

Present:—Mr. McColl, A. J. C.

NGA PO AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

NGA SO PE—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch I, Art. 142—Possession within 12 years of suit—Undisturbed possession—Discontinuance of possession.

In a suit for ejectment of a trespasser from certain land allowed to remain fallow for many years by the owner, the defendant pleaded that the land had been waste land for 40 years and he cleared the jungle with the permission of the Thugyi and was in occupation:

Held, that the suit was governed by Article 142 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act and the plaintiffs must prove that they were the rightful owners and were in possession at some time within 12 years before the suit.

Discontinuance of possession means an abandonment of possession by one person followed by the actual possession of another person.

Mr. C. G. S. Pillay, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs-appellants sued for possession of some land, alleging that they had allowed it to remain fallow for many years, that in 1271 the defendant-respondent entered upon it without their permission and worked it, that they protested, whereupon he promised to pay rent, that that year he only offered one basket of paddy as rent though they demanded five, that the next year he refused to pay any rent at all, that the lease was then determined and that in 1273 the defendant-respondent again entered upon the land without their permission and refused to give it up.

The defendant-respondent pleaded that the land had been waste land for 40 years, when he entered upon it and cleared the jungle with the permission of the Thugyi. He denied having attorned to the plaintiff-appellant.

The Courts below having held that the suit was time-barred under Article 142 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act, the plaintiffs-appellants have come up to this Court in second appeal.

The first Court relied on Mg. Nyun v. Ma Nyein Zan (1), but as the facts of that case are not very fully set out it is difficult to say how far it is a parallel case and I think Mr. Burgess' dictum, "if the land was left unworked for 41 years the plaintiffs or their predecessors presumably relinquished possession," is open to question. A landowner is under no obligation to cultivate his land, though of course if he allows it to remain uncultivated more than a certain number of years he is liable to be assessed to revenue at full rates instead of at fallow rates. The suit no doubt was governed by Article 142, but the appellants alleged dispossession in 1271 and again in 1273. What they had to prove, therefore, to show that the suit was within time was that they were in possession in 1271. Now the rule is that when no one exercises active dominion over land the possession remains with the rightful owner: Rajah Leelanund Singh v. Musammat Basheeroonissa (2), so that if the plaintiffs-appellants showed that they were the rightful owners and they had once been in possession, it would be presumed that that possession continued right down to 1271 if it appeared that their possession had not been interrupted till then. It was of course open to the defendant-respondent to prove that the plaintiffs-appellants' possession had been interrupted and then the presumption that they were in possession in 1271 would have been rebutted, but no such evidence was given. The evidence given by the defendant-respondent's witnesses was to the effect that the land had been lying waste since the annexation. In view of the defence set up and the absence of rebutting evidence, I consider that the evidence of the 2nd plaintiff-appellant and that of the witness Mg. Kaw, together with an entry in a revenue map, is sufficient evidence that the plaintiffs-appellants are the rightful owners and the evidence of the witness Mg. Swe to the effect that he worked the land as plaintiffs-appellants' tenant for two years about the time of the annexation of Upper Burma is sufficient evidence that the plaintiffs-appellants were in possession then, and they must be held to have continued in possession until they were dispossessed by the defendant-respondent. There was no discontinuance of possession. "Discontinuance means an abandonment of possession by one person followed by the actual possession of another person." Starling's Indian Limitation Act, 5th Edition, p. 402.

(1) U. B. R. (1892-96) II, 375.
(2) 16 W. R. 102.

The decrees of the Courts below are set aside and the plaintiffs-appellants will be given a decree for possession with all costs.

Appeal allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 343 OF 1911.

July 20, 1914.

Present:—Justice Sir Asutosh Mookerjee, KT., and Mr. Justice Beachcroft.

CHOTA BAHIRA SAHEBA—DEFENDANT No. 1—APPELLANT

versus

PURNA CHUNDER CHAUDHURI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Pachete Raj—Family custom—Maintenance grant, nature of—Impartible estate, alienability of—Equitable interest, value of—Putnindar under grantor of maintenance—Grantor, right of, against grantee—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 43, scope of.

According to the family custom in the Pachete Raj, a maintenance grant to the members of the Raj is not absolute in its nature like gift, but lasts only for the life-time of the grantee, and it is entirely optional with the successor of the grantor to resume or confirm the grant.

It is only where a custom in restraint of alienation is not proved that an impartible estate is alienable.

Udaya v. Jadub, 8 C. 109; 8 I. A. 248; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 260; 5 Ind. Jur. 552, Sartaj v. Deoraj, 10 A. 272; 15 I. A. 51, 5 Sar P. C. J. 139; 12 Ind. Jur 213 and Venkata Surya Mahipati Rama Krishna Rao v. The Court of Wards, 22 M. 383; 26 I. A. 83; 3 C. W. N. 415; 9 M. L. J. Sup. p. 1, referred to.

If the transferor himself has once become entitled to a valid estate in the land, the transferee's equity would attach upon it in the hands of all persons claiming under the transferor otherwise than for a legal interest by purchase for value without notice.

The holder of the Pachete Raj, after having granted certain villages to the defendant for her maintenance, created a putni in favour of the predecessor of the plaintiff on the allegation that the grant had been resumed. The maintenance grant, after the death of the grantor, was not resumed by his successor. The plaintiff filed a suit for ejectment of the defendant on the ground of trespass:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable for want of title, and that section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act was not applicable, inasmuch as the section recognised the doctrine of title by estoppel and applied only where a person erroneously represented that he was authorised to transfer certain immoveable property.

Appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge of Manbhum, dated the 26th June 1912.

Dr. Rash Behary Ghose and Babu Lalit Mohan Ghose, for the Appellant.

Babus Dwarka Nath Chakravarti, Mohini Mohan Chatterjee and Hem Chunder Mookerjee, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The subject-matter of the litigation, which has culminated in this appeal, consists of eight villages included in the Pachete Raj in the District of Manbhum. In or about the year 1855, Nilmani Singh, the then holder of the Raj, granted these villages to his paternal aunt, Puncham Kumari, the first defendant in this suit, for her maintenance. On the 6th December 1878, Nilmani Singh granted a putni of the same villages to Jaychandra Chaudhuri, now represented by the plaintiffs, on the allegation that the maintenance grant had been resumed. The putnidar was unable to obtain possession, as the villages had not in fact been resumed, and the first defendant was still in occupation. The putnidar in 1879 sued to eject the first defendant and persons who had derived title from her, on the allegation that the maintenance grant had lapsed. The Raja who had granted the putni was also joined as a pro forma defendant. The suit was dismissed by the Subordinate Judge on the 1st October 1880, on the ground that the grant was not resumable by the grantor during the life-time of the grantee. This decision was confirmed on appeal by the Judicial Commissioner on the 30th May 1881. But, although the putnidar was thus defeated in his attempt to obtain possession of the lands comprised in the putni, the Raja proceeded to realise the putni rent by recourse to the summary procedure laid down in the Putni Regulation. The putnidar was constrained to deposit the putni rent under protest, and on the 21st April 1887, he instituted a suit to obtain a refund of the amount deposited under compulsion of process of law and also to obtain an injunction to restrain the Raja from recourse in future to the provisions of the Putni Regulation for summary realisation of the putni rent. The suit was decreed by the Subordinate Judge on the 20th March 1888. On appeal to this Court, the decree of the Subordinate Judge for refund of the amount deposited was confirmed on the 22nd January 1889, but the order for injunction was withdrawn, as it had not been properly framed and was also considered needless for the protection of the plaintiff. Since the date of this decision, the putnidar has not paid rent to the holder of the Raj, as he has not been able to obtain possession of the villages comprised in the putni. Raja Nilmoni Singh, the grantor of the putni, died in August 1898 and was succeeded by his son, Raja Harinarayan Singh, who died in or about January 1903 and was succeeded by his son, Raja Jyotiprosad Singh. The plaintiffs, who are the representatives-in-interest of the original putnidar, commenced this suit on the 22nd July 1910, to eject the first defendant as also persons who had derived title from her on the ground that they were trespassers, as the maintenance grant had lapsed on the death of the grantor, Raja Nilmoni Singh, in August 1898. The claim is founded on the allegation of the existence of an immemorial family custom in the Pachete Raj that the eldest son of the Raja succeeds to the Raj, that the other sons and relations of the Raja receive maintenance according to their rank and position, and that on the death of the grantor or grantee, the maintenance property is resumed. The Raja repudiated the claim of the plaintiffs and asserted that, according to custom, the Raja was at liberty to resume or confirm a maintenance grant made by his predecessor, that it was entirely optional with him and was in no way obligatory. He added that his father had not resumed the grant made to the first defendant, and that he himself had no intention to resume the grant. The first defendant also resisted the claim on the ground, amongst others, that according to family custom, maintenance grants were not resumable during the life-time of the persons entitled to maintenance. The Subordinate Judge has held that the maintenance grant in favour of the first defendant came to an end on the death of the grantor, that his successor became entitled to resume the grant although the grantee was alive, and that the plaintiffs, as putnidars from the grantor, were vested with the right of resumption. In this view, the Subordinate Judge has decreed the suit. The first defendant has appealed to this Court, and on her behalf the decision of the Subordinate Judge has been challenged on three grounds, namely, first, that the question of the nature of the title acquired by the first defendant under the maintenance grant is res judicata; secondly, that the alleged custom, whereby a maintenance grant comes to an end on the death of the grantor, has not been proved; and, thirdly, that the plaintiffs have not acquired a title under this putni to obtain possession of the villages during the life-time of the first defendant.

The determination of the first question depends upon the scope of the controversy in the litigation of 1879 and of the actual decision therein. At that time, the grantor and grantee were both alive. The issue raised was, whether the maintenance grant of the villages in suit was or was not resumable by the grantor during the life of the grantee. The question thus put in issue was answered in the negative, against the contention of the then plaintiff. The question now in controversy, namely, whether after the death of the grantor the maintenance grant may be resumed by his successor during the life of the grantee, did not and could not arise in the previous suit; such a question could arise only after the death of the grantor. The Subordinate Judge expressed the opinion that a grant of lands for the maintenance of any person continues presumably for the life of the grantee, and that the then plaintiff had failed to discharge the onus which lay upon him to prove that the grant was resumable at pleasure. The Judicial Commissioner held that there was no proof of a custom of resumption by the grantor during the life-time of the grantee. It is plain, consequently, that the decision in the suit of 1879 was rested on the ground that the grantor himself was not competent to resume the grant during the life of the grantee. This does not conclude in any way the decision of the question raised in this suit.

The determination of the second question depends upon the evidence of family custom on the record. The plaintiffs have examined one of themselves as the solitary witness in support of their claim. This person, who gives his age as thirty-seven years, asserts that the family custom of the Raja of Pachete is that maintenance grants are resumed on the death of the grantor or grantee. This statement does not prove that every maintenance grant made in the Pachete Raj comes to an end on the death of the grantor. But it is plain that the evidence of this witness is otherwise valueless. He is in no way connected with the family, and, when cross-examined as to the source of his knowledge of the alleged custom, he stated that he had heard of the family custom from assertions made by Raja Harinarayan Singh in several suits brought by him for khorposh (i.e., for resumption of maintenance grants). No foundation, however, has been laid for the reception of secondary evidence of statements made by Raja Harinarayan Singh; and the pleadings or depositions in which the alleged statements were made should have been produced. Apart from this, the statements of the witness are so vague and indefinite that no reliance can be placed thereon. He is unable to state with regard to different suits for resumption, whether there were any written grants in those cases, or even the decisions given by the Courts. The testimony of this witness is wholly insufficient to establish the alleged custom. Reference, however, has been made to two suits relating to maintenance grants in the Pachete Raj, decided by the Sadar Dewany Adalat in 1837 and 1840: Punchum Koomaree v. Gurunarain Deo (1) and Gurunarain Deo v. Unund Lal Singh (2). The litigation in the second case was ultimately taken up to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council: Anund Lal Singh v. Gurrood Narayun Deo (3). In the first of these cases, the suit was brought for the recovery of a maintenance grant made by a Raja of Pachete in favour of his daughter, the plaintiff. The Court of first instance held that the allowance to daughters was usually discontinued on their marriage, unless their husband should prove unable to support them, and that consequently the plaintiff, who had been married to the son of the Raja of Nagpur, had no claim for maintenance on the Pachete Raj. On appeal, the Sadar Dewany Adalat confirmed this view, and added the following observation:

"The estate of the Raja of Pachete is one of those of the nature adverted to in Regulation X of 1800, which devolves entirely on the next heir of the reigning Raja, who, moreover, according to the family usage as established by evidence, has the power of revoking and cancelling all grants made by his predecessor, the power of making such grants being restricted, in regard to the period of the grant, to the life-time of the grantor."

In the second case, the suit for resumption of the maintenance grant was brought by a successor of the grantor against the representative of the grantee; the grantor and grantee were both dead at the date of the institution of the suit; consequently, no question could arise as to any family custom which might entitle the successor of the grantor to resume a maintenance grant from the grantee during the life-time of the latter. The suit was brought by Gurnarain Deo, who had succeeded to the Pachete Raj, to recover khorposh from Anandalal Singh Deo. The property had been granted by Manilal, a predecessor of the plaintiff, to Kanchanlal, a predecessor of the defendant on the 26th July 1775. One of the questions in controversy between the parties was whether the grant was absolute or was only for purposes of maintenance. The Court of first instance found in favour of the defendant and dismissed the suit. Upon appeal, the Sudder Court (Mr. Rattray) confirmed the decree of the Provincial Court. An application for review was granted, and the appeal re-heard, with the result that Mr. Rattray, the Judge, who had heard the appeal in the first instance, decreed that his former decision should be reversed, while his colleague, Mr. Dick, held that the original decree was correct and should be affirmed. The third Judge, Mr. Lee-Warner, to whom the appeal was referred, held that the second decision of Mr. Rattray was correct. The consequence was that the first decision of Mr. Rattray stood cancelled and the suit and appeal were decreed. The defendant preferred an appeal to the Judicial Committee, which was dismissed on the ground that the grant was not absolute but for maintenance and had lapsed after the death of the grantee. There was no adjudication—in fact, there was no occasion for any investigation of the question—that the successor of the grantor of a maintenance grant was entitled to resume it on the death of the grantor during the life-time of the grantee. Stress, however, is laid upon the following passage from the second judgment of Mr. Rattray: "It is placed beyond doubt that by the ancient custom of this family, the reigning Raja is succeeded by his eldest son and that the other sons as well as the minor branches of the family receive merely an allowance for their subsistence; and further that the successor to the Raj has full power to annul, cancel, alter, modify, or confirm the arrangements of his predecessor, as to him may seem fit." This statement is entitled to weight, subject to the important qualification that the matter in controversy between the parties did not raise directly or indirectly the question of the right of the successor of the grantor to cancel, modify or confirm a maintenance grant during the life-time of the grantee. When the case was taken to the Judicial Committee, Lord Langdale observed that the appellant, who claimed under the grant, had admitted that a grant for maintenance ceased with the life of the grantor; consequently, if the grant was not absolute but for maintenance, the appellant had no title. It cannot be disputed that the fact that both the grantor and the grantee were dead at the date of the institution of the suit, takes away from the value of the decision for our present purposes. It cannot be treated as a judicial determination of the existence of the custom in a case in which the question arose directly for investigation. At any rate, the decision of Mr. Rattray does not show that a maintenance grant necessarily lapses upon the death of the grantor. Consequently the two litigations, on which reliance is placed, do not really carry the case of the plaintiffs beyond the oral testimony of the solitary witness cited by them; these cases show at most that a grant for maintenance may, after the death of the grantor, be resumed or confirmed at the choice of his successor; but it is entirely optional with him to resume or confirm the grant; there is no evidence to show that it is obligatory upon the successor of the grantor to resume the maintenance grant. This view is supported by the evidence of Khudu Lal Singh, the paternal cousin of Raja Nilmoni Singh. This witness has been examined on behalf of the defendants, and describes the family custom of the Pachete Raj family in the following terms: "Khorposh granted to junior members of the family are enjoyed by the grantee till her life, but if the grantor dies, his successor can resume the khorposh if he likes; he has the option of resuming the khorposh, or allowing the khorposhdar to enjoy the khorposh property till his or her death." In cross-examination, he states that the khorposh grant is liable to resumption on the death of the grantor or grantee. He then proceeds to enumerate instances of khorposh grants which had been resumed on the death of the grantor, and also of grants, which were not so resumed. In our opinion, the plaintiffs have failed to establish that by custom a khorposh grant under the Pachete Raj lapses upon the death of the grantor, and the lands revert forthwith to the Raj; on the other hand, the evidence indicates that such maintenance grants continue during the life-time of the grantees, but that if meanwhile the grantor dies, they are liable to be resumed at the choice of his successor; it is entirely optional with him to resume the grant or to allow the grantee to continue to enjoy the property during his or her life-time. Reliance, however, has been placed upon the decisions in Beni Pershad Koeri v. Dudhnath Roy (4), Ram Chandra v. Jogendra Nath (5) and Jagannadha v. Pedda Pakir (6) to show that a grant for maintenance prima facie ceases with the life of the grantor. These cases are of no assistance to the plaintiffs, who set up a special family custom and can succeed in their claim only upon proof of such custom. On the evidence, they have failed to prove the alleged custom, while there is good ground for the view that a maintenance grant in the Pachete Raj is for the life of the grantee, but is liable to be resumed by the successor of the grantor, should the latter die during the life-time of the grantee. In the present instance, Raja Harinarayan Singh, who succeeded to the Raj after the death of the grantor, never resumed the villages, while his successor, the present Raja, has expressly stated that he has not resumed and does not intend to resume the khorposh villages. In these circumstances, the plaintiffs cannot succeed on the hypothesis that the first defendant became a trespasser the very moment the grantor died.

(1) (1837) 6 Mac. Sel. Rep. 100; 7 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 791.

(2) (1840) 6 Mac. Sel. Rep. 354; 7 Ind. Dec. (o. s.) 932.

(3) 5 M. I. A. 82; 1 Sar. P. C. J. 390; 18 Eng. Rep. 826.

The determination of the third question involves the solution of the problem, whether the plaintiffs have acquired a title to eject the defendants under the putni granted to them by Raja Nilmani Singh Deo on the 6th December 1878. For this purpose, it is assumed that the putni was validly created, on the principle that an impartible estate is not inalienable, unless a custom in restraint of alienation is proved: Udaya v. Jadub (7), Sartaj v. Deoraj (8), Venkata Surya Mahipati Rama Krishna Rao v. The Court of Wards (9). The plaintiffs then rely in substance upon the doctrine of title by estoppel, recognised in section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act. That section enacts as follows: "Where a person erroneously represents that he is authorised to transfer certain immoveable property and professes to transfer such property for consideration, such transfer shall, at the option of the transferee, operate on any interest, which the transferor may acquire in such property at any time during which the contract of transfer subsists." It is plain that this section, construed according to its terms, does not assist the plaintiffs. Nilmani Singh did not erroneously represent that he was authorised to grant the putni; he was competent to grant the putni, subject to the interest of the maintenance-holder, which could not continue in any event beyond her life-time. But when he granted the putni he stated what was not true, namely, that the maintenance grant had been resumed; as a matter of law, he was not competent to resume the maintenance grant unless he survived the grantee; as a matter of fact, he had not resumed the grant. The condition mentioned in the first portion of section 43 is thus not fulfilled. The second part of the section provides that the transfer operates on such interest as the transferor may acquire in the property at any time during which the contract of transfer subsists. This condition, also, is not fulfilled, because the rights of Nilmani Singh in the property remained what they were before the grant of the putni, they were not enlarged at any time after the grant of the putni and before his death. It is conceivable that if his rights had been enlarged, say, by the death of the grantee of the maintenance right, the putnidar might have been entitled to the benefit, not only against him but also against his heir, though there is authority to the contrary. Lord St. Leonards in his treatise on Vendors and Purchasers (1862, page 335, Chapter IX, section 2, paragraph 31) observes as follows: "If a man sell an estate to which he has no title, and after the conveyance acquires the title, he will be compelled to convey it to the purchaser: Carne v. Mitchel (10). But this is said to be a personal equity attaching on the conscience of the party and not descending with the land; and, therefore, if the vendor do not in his life-time confirm the title, and the estate descend to the heir-at-law, he will not be bound by his ancestor's contract: Morse v. Faulkner (11); Carleton v. Leighton (12); Bensley v. Burdon (13); Murrell v. Goodyear (14). This opinion, however, deserves great consideration." It is worthy

(4) 27 C. 156; 26 I. A. 216, 4 C. W. N. 274.
(5) 4 C. L. J. 399.
(6) 4 M. 371.
(7) 8 I. A. 248, 8 C. 199 (P. C.); 4 Sar. P. C. J. 290, 5 Ind. Jur. 552.
(8) 15 I. A. 51; 10 A. 272; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 139, 12 Ind. Jur. 213.
(9) 26 I. A. 83; 22 M. 383; 3 C. W. N. 415; 9 M. L. J. Sup. p. 1.
(10) (1842) 10 Jur. 909 at p. 912; 15 L. J. Ch. 287.
(11) (1792) 1 Anst. 11; 3 Swan. 429*n*; 36 Eng. Rep. 936.
(12) (1805). 3 Mer. 667; 36 E. R. 225.
(13) (1826) 2 Sim. & Stu. 519, 4 C. J. (o. s.) Ch. 164; 25 R. R. 258; 57 E. R. 444.
(14) 1859) 2 Giff. 51; 6 Jur. (N. S.) 91, 96 E. R. 22.

of note that the decision in Morse v. Faulkner (11) had been doubted by Sir Edward Sugden himself, when he was Lord Chancellor of Ireland, in Jones v. Kearney (15), where he observed that no good reason could be given why a contract should be binding upon the ancestor and not upon the heir. In that case, the seller had acquired the title after the conveyance, but he died before the conveyance could be perfected. The contract could have been enforced against the seller, and yet it was doubted, whether the remedy was available against the heir, although Sir Edward Sugden did not share the doubt. See Trevivan v. Lawrence (16). The distinction, for which Sir Edward Sugden could see no good reason, may be regarded as unsound on principle, for as Bigelow observes, (Estoppel, 6th Ed., pages 459 and 479) the heir of the transferor in such a case is rightly bound by the same estoppel as the transferor himself, because he takes without value and no injustice is done to him; he is bound as a privy because he gets the estate without cost, and it is right, therefore, that he should stand in the situation of his ancestor. The true rule may accordingly be taken to be that if the transferor himself has once become entitled to a valid estate in the land, the transferee's equity would attach upon it in the hands of all persons claiming under the transferor otherwise than for a legal interest by purchase for value without notice [cf. Specific Relief Act, sections 18 and 27, Smith v. Osborne (17): Bridgwater's Settlement, In re; Partridge v. Ward (18); Taylor v. Wheeler (19); Jennings v. Moore (20); Martin v. Seamore (21); Holroyd v. Marshall (22); Tailby v. Official Receiver (23)]. To avoid misapplication of this principle, it is useful to bear in mind the successive steps of the process of reasoning by which the result is reached; first, a contract by X, for valuable consideration to assign property to be acquired by him, whether it is expressed as a contract or whether it takes the form of an immediate assignment, merely binds X personally until the property comes into existence; secondly, when X acquires property which comes within the scope of the contract, that property is bound; X becomes a trustee of it for the assignee, who acquires an equitable interest therein; and it is not necessary that any fresh act should be done by X to perfect such equitable interest of the assignee; thirdly, the interest acquired by the assignee in after acquired property when it is acquired, is an equitable interest; as such it is not available against a purchaser, for value without notice of a legal interest in the property. This analysis shows that the rule has no application to the present case. Here, the grantor of the putni never acquired the right to resume the maintenance villages; consequently, the position is not precisely what it would have been, if the right had accrued to him and the putnidar had sought to obtain the benefit thereof as against the heir. The right to resume the maintenance villages accrued for the first time to Harinarayan Singh who succeeded to the Raj on the death of Nilmani Singh. On what principle, can it be held that he was bound to exercise his option for the benefit of the putnidar? To affirm the proposition that he was so bound is to hold that the Raja for the time being may take away the option of his successor and determine that his choice is to be exercised in a particular mode. We are of opinion that the reasonable view of the rights of the parties is to hold that the successor is free to exercise his option and to dertermine whether he will or will not resume the maintenance lands; if he resumes, the putnidar obtains the benefit: if he does not, the putnidar has to await the termination of the maintenance grant by the death of the grantee. The plaintiffs have contended that this conclusion places them at an unfair disadvantage; but we are not satisfied that they have any real grievance. They sued the Raja and obtained an order for suspension of the rent, so long as they are not placed in possession. No doubt, they paid a premium for the putni, for which they have not yet obtained any corresponding (15) (1841) 1 Dr. & War. 134 at p. 159; 1 Con. & L. 34; 4 Ir. Eq R. 74, 58 R. R. 240.

(16) (1705) 1 Salk. 276, 6 Mod. 258, 87 E. R. 1003.
(17) (1857) 6 H. L. C. 375; 3 Jur. (N. S.) 1181; 6 W. R. 21; 10 E. R. 1340, 108 R. R. 161.
(18) (1910) 2 Ch. 342, 79 L. J. Ch. 746, 103 L. T. 421.
(19) (1706) 2 Vern. 565; 23 E. R. 968.
(20) (1706) 2 Vern. 609, 23 E. R. 996.
(21) (1670) 1 Ch. Cas. 170.
(22) (1862) 10 H. L. C. 191; 33 L. J. Ch. 193, 9 Jur. (N. S.) 213, 7 L. T. 172; 11 W. R. 171; 138 R. R. 108; 11 E. R. 909.
(23) (1888) 13 A. C. 523; 58 L. J. Q. B. 75; 60 L. T. 162; 37 W. R. 513.

benefit; but when they found they could not get possession, they might have sued either for suspension of rent till they could get possession or for cancellation of the lease and for refund of the premium; they deliberately chose the smaller measure of relief and were content with temporary suspension of rent. In our opinion, the suit is premature, as the title of the first defendant had not terminated at the date of its institution.

The result is that this appeal is allowed, the decree of the Subordinate Judge set aside and the suit dismissed with costs in both the Courts.

Appeal decreed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS CIVIL APPEAL No. 7B OF 1913.

December 6, 1913.

Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C., and Mr. Mittra, Offg. A. J. C.

SHRIRAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

CHUNNI LAL—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Partnership suit—Court competent to pass decree for amount exceeding its pecuniary jurisdiction—Incompetency to order amendment of valuation according to amount found due after preliminary decree—Course of appeal to be determined by amended valuation.

In a partnership suit the fact that the amount found due exceeds the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court does not prevent it from passing a decree for the full amount.

After a preliminary decree under section 215 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, and an appellate decree confirming it has been passed, the plaint as such may well be regarded as merged in the decree, and the Court is incompetent to order amendment of the valuation of the plaint in accordance with its finding as to the amount due and then to return the plaint for presentation to the Court having jurisdiction over the suit thus valued.

If the order for amendment is complied with by the plaintiff, the course of appeal will be determined by the valuation of the amended plaint.

Miscellaneous appeal against the order of the Subordinate Judge, Khamgaon, dated the 16th September 1912.

Mr. F. W. Dillon, for the Appellants.

Dr. H. S. Gour, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal against an order returning a plaint for presentation to the proper Court. The suit was filed on the 3rd September 1902 in the Court of the Civil Judge, Akola. A preliminary decree under section 215 of the Civil Procedure Code was passed on the 10th February 1903 by Mr. Dandekar, Civil Judge, Akola, declaring the partnership dissolved from the 3rd September 1903 and directing accounts to be taken. The suit was valued at rupees five thousand. Against this preliminary decree, an appeal was filed (being Civil Appeal No. 66 of 1903) in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts. The Appellate Court modified in some minor points the directions of the first Court regarding the sale of the partnership property, namely, a ginning factory. On the 7th September 1905 the case was transferred to the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Khamgaon, who had jurisdiction, under the Berar Civil Courts Act, to try the suit as it was valued (as we have already mentioned) at rupees five thousand. On the 12th November 1911 the Subordinate Judge recorded his findings on certain issues. Against these findings an appeal was filed to the Court of the District Judge, being the Civil Appeal No. 7 of 1911; the then District Judge dismissed the appeal on the ground that there was no final decree passed up to that time. Accounts were taken and on the 16th September 1912 the Subordinate Judge found that Rs. 11,926-9-3 were due to the plaintiffs. On this day the Subordinate Judge ordered the plaintiffs to amend the plaint, and the plaint was accordingly amended and the amount claimed in the plaint was shown to be Rs. 11,926-9-3 instead of rupees five thousand. The Subordinate Judge then returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. Against this order, an appeal was filed before the District Judge. The District Judge was of opinion that the memorandum of appeal should have been presented to this Court and he accordingly returned it for presentation here. The plaintiffs have presented the memorandum of appeal, in obedience to the order of the District Judge, to this Court.

The first question for determination is whether the appeal against the order of the Subordinate Judge, dated the 16th September 1912, lies to this Court, or to the District Court. There is no doubt that if the plaintiffs' Pleader had not amended the plaint as ordered by the Subordinate Judge, the proper appellate forum would have been the District Court, on the principle laid down in Olpherts v. Arjundas (1). But here, rightly or wrongly, the plaintiffs' Pleader amended the plaint, as directed by the Subordinate Judge, and on the face of the plaint so amended the appeal must lie to this Court, inasmuch as the claim is now apparently one for more than five thousand rupees.

The next question for decision is whether the order of the Subordinate Judge, dated the 16th September 1912, is a correct order. At the time when he passed the order, the ruling of this Court, already referred to, in Olpherts v. Arjundas (1), had not been given. It scarcely admits of any doubt that the suit, if it had been instituted in the Subordinate Judge's Court with the valuation originally put in the plaint, would have been within his competence to try. It could be and was duly transferred to his file in 1905. In our opinion, there would be no difference in point of law as to the Subordinate Judge's jurisdiction to try the suit, whether it was duly instituted in his Court or was duly transferred to his Court, at a time when the amount due on the accounts was yet unascertained. He was certainly competent to go on with the trial of the suit. Would the fact that he afterwards found that the amount due exceeded the pecuniary jurisdiction of his Court, prevent him from passing a decree for the full amount? We think not. We need not discuss this further, as the case of Olpherts v. Arjundas (1) seems to be conclusive on the point.

There remains for us to consider whether the amendment of the plaint ordered by the Subordinate Judge was ultra vires or not. We have already pointed out that there was in this case a preliminary decree under section 215 of the Civil Procedure Code and an appellate decree confirming, and in some minor points modifying it. The plaint as such may well be regarded as merged in the decree. There remained nothing for the Trial Court but to carry out the directions given in that decree, as modified by the appellate decree. We think it was not under these circumstances competent to the Subordinate Judge to order an amendment of the plaint and a re-trial, ignoring his predecessor's decree as well as the decree of the Judicial Commissioner, Hyderabad Assigned Districts.

The result is that the appeal succeeds.

The orders of the Subordinate Judge ordering amendment of the plaint and returning the plaint for presentation to the proper Court are set aside and the Subordinate Judge is directed to dispose of the case according to law. The attention of the lower Court is drawn to the provisions of section 11 of the Court Fees Act. The costs of the appeal will follow the result We fix rupees fifty as legal practitioner's fee.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 22 Ind. Cas. 928; 9 N. L. R. 112.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 2512 AND 2547 OF 1912.

January 8, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Sadasiva Aiyar and Mr. Justice Hannay.

IN S. A. NO. 2512 OF 1912

THEKKEMANNENGATH RAMAN alias KUNCHU PODUVAL AND OTHERS—1ST DEFENDANT'S LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES—APPELLANTS

versus

KAKKESSERI PAZHIYOT MANAKKAL, KARNAVAN AND MANAGER, RAMAN BHATTATHRIPAD AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANTS NOS. 2 TO 82—RESPONDENTS

AND

IN S. A. NO. 2547 OF 1912

KAKKESSERI POZHIYOT MANAKKAL, KARNAVAN AND MANAGER, RAMAN BHATTATHRIPAD—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

MALLIYIL VEERAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Malabar Law—Redemption of kanom mortgage, suit for—Previous suit against mortgagor and mortgagee deciding title to property—Res judicata—Estoppel—Covenant for title, breach of—Damages, measure of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 72 (c)—Expenses incurred in supporting title of mortgagor, reimbursement for—Compensation for trees of spontaneous growth—Malabar Tenants Improvements Act (I of 1900), ss. 5 (11), 10.

THEKKEMANNENGATH RAMAN v. KAKKESSERI PARHIYOT MANAKKAL.

Where in a suit for redemption of a kanom mortgage by a jenmi who had paid off a previous mortgagee with compensation for improvements, it appeared that the title to the property had been decided against the plaintiff in a previous suit brought in the District Munsif's Court by a third party against himself and the mortgagor

Held, (1) that the matter was res judicata though the former suit was brought in a Court which had no jurisdiction over the present suit.

Pathuma v. Salimamma, 8 M. 83 and Ranganathan Chetty v. Lakshmu Ammal, 21 Ind Cas. 15, 25 M. L. J. 379; (1913) M. W. N. 600, 14 M. L. T. 189, followed;

(2) that even if it was not res judicata the defendant and the plaintiff in the present suit having been parties to the former suit, the plaintiff was equitably estopped by reason of the finding in the previous suit from raising the contention that the properties disputed in that suit belonged to him.

Nallappa Reddi v. Vridhachala Reddi, 25 Ind. Cas. 858; 37 M. 270, followed

(3) that as the plaintiff included the disputed lands in his demise to the defendant, he must be deemed to have given a covenant for title,

(4) that the defendant's statutory right given by the breach of covenant could not be taken away except by an express release of such rights by him or by acquiescence of such a very long duration that a release could be safely presumed;

(5) that no question of limitation arises as between the mortgagors and mortgagees when accounts are taken at the time of redemption;

(6) that the damages which the defendant sustained by being unable to get possession of those lands should be calculated on the basis of the present pattom income minus a reasonable interest on the sum which he would have had to pay for the improvements;

(7) that the defendant could not claim any reimbursement for expenses incurred in supporting the title of the mortgagor, as it is only "in the absence of a contract to the contrary" that such a claim can be successfully brought;

(8) that the defendant was entitled to compensation for improvements under sections 5 (11) and 10 of the Malabar Tenants Improvements Act. The compensation due to the defendant's predecessor in the kanom right now vested in and was claimable by him irrespective of the fact that under the old law no compensation was payable for trees of spontaneous growth and the defendant was not obliged to pay anything to the prior kanomdars for those trees.

Second appeals against the decree of the District Court of South Malabar, in Appeal Suit No. 45 of 1909, preferred against that of the Subordinate Judge of South Malabar at Palghat.

In No. 2512 of 1912

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar, A. Nilakanta Aiyar and B. Sitarama Row, for the Appellants.

Messrs. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar and K. P. Govinda Menon, for the Respondent.

In No. 2547 of 1912

Messrs. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, K. P. M. Menon, for the Appellant.

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar, K. P. Govinda Menon and Sitarama Row, for the Respondents.

These second appeals coming on for hearing on the 3rd and 4th November 1914, and having stood over for consideration till 16th November 1914, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—These two second appeals have arisen out of a suit brought by the jenmi mortgagor to redeem Kanom mortgage. Various complicated questions chiefly relating (a) to the details of the properties mortgaged, (b) to the michavaram payable by the mortgagee-tenant, (c) to the damages, if any, due to the mortgagee on account of the mortgagee's inability to get possession of some of the mortgaged properties and (d) to the compensation, if any, payable from trees of spontaneous growth to the mortgagee have to be dealt with in these two second appeals, one of which is by the plaintiff and the other by the 1st defendant's legal representatives. These questions might be thus stated in detail :

1. (a) Was the tank situated in the item No. 7 marked in the Commissioner's plan (and described in the mortgage document, Exhibit A, as the boundary mark between items Nos. 6 and 7 of that deed) included in the mortgage demise ?

(b) Has the lower Appellate Court wrongly given a decree for the redemption of that tank also, while deciding that the tank site is not included in the demise ?

2. (a) Do those portions of the plaint mortgaged properties which were decided in the former Suit No. 147 of 1890 to belong to a rival jenmi (38th defendant in that suit) and which are now enjoyed by the defendants Nos. 13, 32, 33, 44, 50 and 92, who claim to be sub-lessees of that rival jenmi, really belong to the plaintiff ?

(b) Is that question res judicata against the plaintiff by the decision in that former suit ?

(c) Is the plaintiff estopped in any other manner from claiming redemption of those properties ?

3. (a) Did the plaintiff by including those properties in the plaint demise of 1888 covenant with the 1st defendant that he had title to those properties ?

(b) In case it is found that the plaintiff had no title to those properties, is the 1st defendant entitled to claim damages from the plaintiff on account of the breach of the plaintiff's said covenant ?

(c) Had the 1st defendant knowledge on the date of Exhibit A of all the facts and was there in consequence no right in him to rely in his defence on any such covenant of title ?

(d) Is the 1st defendant precluded by acquiescence or waiver from claiming such damages ?

(e) Is the 1st defendant's claim for damages barred by limitation ? If it is not so barred, what is the amount of damages to which he is entitled ?

4. (a) Whether the 1st defendant has, at the instance of the plaintiff, been spending 16 paras of paddy a year at the annual festival in the temple of the plaintiff called Perkurukkikavu, on the understanding that the 16 paras should be credited towards the michavaram due to the plaintiff ?

(b) Is the 1st defendant entitled to credit for the said 16 paras ?

5. (a) The yearly michavaram agreed upon under the plaint demise of 1888, Exhibit A, being for the first two years only, the old michavaram of 168 paras and Rs. 2 worth of areca nuts, did the 1st defendant agree to an enhancement of the michavaram by 43 paras 8 narayams and 4 nazhis of paddy for the remaining years of the term agreed upon by the 1st defendant, as the 1st defendant expected the other properties which he litigated for in No. 147 of 1890 to be reduced to his possession ?

(b) Is the 1st defendant, therefore, not liable to pay the said additional michavaram as he was unable to so reduce the other properties into his possession ?

6. Is the 1st defendant entitled to add to his kanom amount the costs which he incurred in the litigation in the former Suit No. 147 of 1890 ?

(b) Is he precluded from so claiming the said costs by any contract to the contrary found in the kanom document, Exhibit A ?

7. (a) Is the 1st defendant entitled to claim compensation under the Malabar Compensation Act for the value of the trees of spontaneous growth ?

(b) Is the said claim res judicata by the decree in Original Suit No. 147 of 1890 ?

8. Are the plots N3, N4 and N5 in the Commissioner's plan included in the properties demised under Exhibit A and is the lower Appellate Court in error in having held otherwise ?

(I have formulated only those questions which were argued before us, and not all the numerous questions formulated in the 46 grounds stated in the two memoranda of appeals taken together.)

Questions 1 (a) and (b). The lower Appellate Court has given good grounds for its conclusion that the tank situated in item 7 was not included in the mortgage demise. As it is, however, not clear that its decree, which modifies the Subordinate Judge's decree by disallowing among other reliefs the compensation claimed for the tank, makes a corresponding modification in the said Subordinate Judge's decree so as to exclude that tank from the properties to be redeemed by the plaintiff, I would direct that the matter be made clear by mentioning in the decree to be prepared in this Court that the said tank is excluded from the properties of which redemption is decreed to the plaintiff. I need hardly say that the question of the ownership and possession of that tank is left undecided in this suit.

Second question. This relates to the title to the properties which the 1st defendant sought to recover as part of the properties demised to him by the plaintiff under Exhibit A in the former Suit No. 147 of 1890 on the file of the Valluvanad District Munsif's Court. To that suit the present plaintiff was a party. There can be no doubt that that suit was conducted bona fide by the present 1st defendant (as plaintiff) in the interests of both himself and the present plaintiff, who was the 37th defendant in that suit. The title to those properties was decided against the present plaintiff and the present 1st defendant in favour of the 38th defendant in that suit. So far as those properties were concerned, therefore, the matter is clearly res judicata according to the decision in Pathuma v. Salimamma (1) (decided by Sir Charles Turner, C. J., and Mr. Justice Muthusami Iyer) though that Suit No. 147 of 1890 was brought in the Valluvanad District Munsif's Court which had no jurisdiction over the present suit whose value is over Rs. 2,500. In Pathuma v. Salimamma (1) the learned Chief Justice and Muthusami Iyer, J., draw a distinction between the competency of a Court to decide on the subject-matter directly in issue and the competency of the same Court to decide finally all the questions of fact and law which have to be decided in order to arrive at the decision on the title to the subject-matter. The decisions on such questions of fact and law will not be res judicata if the subject-matter of the subsequent suit was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court which decided the first suit.

But it is argued by the plaintiff's learned Vakil, Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna, Aiyar that the decision in Pathuma v. Salimamma (1) must be held to have been overruled impliedly by the observations of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Gokul Mandar v. Pudmanund Singh (2). Their Lordships' dictum, though obiter, (as their Lordships expressly say that it was "not necessary for their Lordships to decide the plea of res judicata") is, of course, binding on us if it is really against the ratio of the decision in Pathuma v. Salimamma (1). But as I understand their Lordships' decision, it only criticises an objection raised by the respondent's Counsel that the finding of a Revenue Officer in a revenue suit on the status of the appellant was res judicata in the subsequent suit which was not within the jurisdiction of the Revenue Officer; and their Lordships point out the difference between the wording of section 13 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 and the wording of section 13 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882, which latter introduced for the first time the words "competent to try such subsequent suit, etc." It must, no doubt, be admitted that the Calcutta High Court in Shibo Raut v. Baban Raut (3) has interpreted the observation of their Lordships in Gokul Mandar v. Pudmanund Singh (2) as deciding that even the decree in the former suit as regards the title to the subject-matter of that suit is not res judicata in the subsequent suit, provided that the subsequent suit related not only to the subject-matter of the former suit, but also to other matters so as to make the total value of all the subject-matters in the subsequent suit to exceed the jurisdiction of the Court which tried the first suit. But this Court has consistently followed Pathuma v. Salimamma (1), one of the latest cases on this point being Ranganatham Chetty v. Lakshmu Ammal (4) decided by Arnold White, C. J., and Oldfield, J. As the learned Chief Justice puts it "although taking all the causes of action together, the second suit may be said to be outside the jurisdiction of the original Court, still if the specific question be within the jurisdiction of the original Court and was determined by the original Court, it is no answer to say that the whole suit was beyond the jurisdiction" (of the Court which tried the first suit). I, therefore, hold on question 2 (b) that the decision in the former suit on the title to the subject-matter of that suit is res judicata by the decision in that former suit given against the present plaintiff and against the 1st defendant. Even if the question is not res judicata, the 1st defendant and the plaintiff having been both parties to the suit No. 147 of 1890, the plaintiff is equitably estopped by reason of the finding in the previous suit from raising the contention that the properties disputed in that suit belong to him. The principle on which this equitable estoppel is raised has been clearly indicated in the decision of Sundara Aiyar, J., and Philips, J., in Nallappa Reddi v. Vridhachala Reddi (5). I would, therefore, answer question 2 (c) also in the affirmative.

Having thus answered questions 2 (b) and 2 (c) against the plaintiffs, it becomes unnecessary to consider question 2 (a).

Coming to the third question with its subdivisions (a) to (e), the principal point is whether there was a covenant for title given by the plaintiff as to the properties claimed by the rival jenmi. Section 65, clause (a), of the Transfer of Property Act clearly says that "in the absence of a contract to the contrary, the

(1) 8 M. 83.
(2) 29 C. 707 at p. 715; 4 Bom. L. R. 793; 6 C. W. N. 825; 29 I A 196 (P. C.).
(3) 36 C. 353; 12 C. W. N. 359, 7 C. L J. 470.
(4) 21 Ind 15, 25 M. L. J. 379; (1913) M. W. N. 690, 14 M. L. T. 180.
(5) 25 Ind. Cas 888; 37 M. 270.

mortgagor should be deemed to contract with the mortgagee that the interest which the mortgagor professes to transfer to the mortgagee subsists, and that the mortgagor has power to transfer the same." As the plaintiff included the disputed lands in his demise to the 1st defendant, he must be deemed to have contracted that he was the jenmi of these disputed lands also. The question of the knowledge of the mortgagee as to the defect of title in the mortgagor is irrelevant, as has been held in two recent cases in this Court in the analogous questions between vendor and purchaser [See Ragava Iyengar v. Samachariar (6), Subbaraya Reddiar v. Rajagopala Reddiar (7) and Arunachala Aiyar v. Ramasami Aiyar (8)].

The sub-question 3 (c) need not, therefore, be answered.

As regards the question of acquiescence or waiver, question 3 (d), their Lordships of the Privy Council have doubtless held in Partab Bahadur Singh v. Gajadhar Bakhsh Singh (9) that a mortgagee whose mortgage was created in 1851 and who lost portions of the mortgaged properties in 1853, 1858 and 1864 by acts beyond the mortgagor's control, cannot claim compensation after having acquiesced for 30 years in the diminution of his security. But the mortgage in that case was executed before the Transfer of Property Act came into force and that fact might make some difference as is suggested in the later case, Abdullah Khan v. Basharat Hussain (10), decided by their Lordships of the Privy Council. I think that the 1st defendant's statutory right given by the breach of the covenant attached to the mortgage transaction under section 65 of Act IV of 1882 cannot be taken away, except by an express release of such rights by the 1st defendant or by acquiescence of such a very long duration that a release can be safely presumed. In this case, the 1st defendant's former unsuccessful litigation of 1890 in respect of the disputed lands came to a close only in 1897. (See Exhibit X.) This suit was brought in 1905 and the 1st defendant, who has paid nothing for michavaram after 1895 except the 16 paras of paddy annually spent for the temple festival, cannot be said to have by his conduct released his claim for compensation for the breach of the covenant given by the mortgagor as to his title to the disputed lands. In the case of M. V. Seethihutti v. M. Kunhamtty (11) quoted on his side by the plaintiff's Vakil I find that the mortgage document sought to be redeemed was dated in 1871, long before the Transfer of Property Act came into force, and hence I do not feel pressed by that decision.

As to whether the 1st defendant's claim for damages is barred by limitation [part of question 3 (e)] I do not think that any question of limitation arises as between mortgagors and mortgagees when accounts are taken at the time of redemption. [See Parasurama Pattar v. Venkatachalam Pattar (12), decided by Benson and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.]

The only sub-question remaining under this head is, what is the amount of damages to which the 1st defendant is entitled on account of the breach of the covenant [part of question 3 (e)], and this is connected with questions Nos. 4 and 5. They may, therefore, all be considered together.

The 1st defendant practically admits in paragraph No. 15 of his written statement that the agreement to pay the additional michavaram of 43 paras 8 narayams and 4 nazhis of paddy per year after the expiry of the first two years of the lease term was based on his expectation that he would be able to obtain possession of the disposed properties also at or about the end of those two years. In other words, it is practically admitted that the old michavaram of 168 and odd paras of paddy (and Rs. 2 worth of areca nuts) which were being paid by the former kanomdars (the Melappat Tarwad people), was the fair amount of michavaram which

(6) 22 Ind. Cas. 42; (1914) M. W. N. 57; 1 L. W. 8.
(7) 28 Ind. Cas. 570, (1914) M. W. N. 876, 15 M. L. T. 240
(8) 25 Ind. Cas. 618; 27 M. L. J. 517; 16 M. L. T. 397; 1 L. W. 849.
(9) 24 A. 521, 29 I. A. 148 (P. C.), 7 C. W. N. 97.
(10) 17 Ind. Cas. 787; 35 A. 48 at p. 57; 17 C. W. N. 233; 13 M. L. T. 182; (1913) M. W. N. 181; 17 C. L. J. 312; 15 Bom. L. R. 452, 25 M. L. J. 91; 40 I. A. 31 (P. C.).

(11) S. A. No. 259 of 1914
(12) 21 Ind. Cas. 701, 25 M. L. J. 561, (1914) M. W. N. 196.

would have to be paid if the mortgaged lands other than the disputed lands had alone been given on demise to the 1st defendant. This, to my mind, clearly indicates that the reasonable compensation which the 1st defendant could claim for the breach of the plaintiff's covenant to secure title to the disputed lands was only his being released from the obligation to pay this additional michavaram, of 43 and odd paras annually. I do not think it necessary in this view to point out in detail some of the fallacies underlying the reasons given by the learned Subordinate Judge (the Court of first instance) for holding that the 1st defendant is entitled, not only to pay nothing as michavaram but even to get compensation in addition from the plaintiff. One point, however, might be noted, namely, that the learned Sub-Judge takes the present pattom of these disputed lands as the basis of his calculation for the ascertainment of damages, ignoring the fact that at present higher pattom is obtainable owing to the large improvements effected on those lands by the former mortgagees, that the 1st defendant could not have recovered those lands for the enjoyment of the said higher income (assuming that those lands belonged to the plaintiff) without paying large sums as compensation for the improvements and that the damages which the 1st defendant sustained by being unable to get possession of those lands should, therefore, be calculated on the basis of the present pattom income minus the reasonable interest on the sums which he would have had to pay for the improvements.

I see no sufficient ground why the 16 paras which the Subordinate Judge finds to have been spent yearly by the 1st defendant at the plaintiff's request, on the understanding that it should be credited towards the michavaram, should not be so credited towards the 168 and odd paras which I have found as above to be the michavaram payable by the 1st defendant to the plaintiff throughout. This disposes of the questions of damages and michavaram referred to above.

The sixth question relates to the costs of the litigation in Suit No. 147 of 1890. In Exhibit A, the 1st defendant clearly says that he himself will meet all the expenses to be named for recovering the properties mentioned in Exhibit A. Section 72, clause (o), of the Transfer of Property Act, no doubt, allows the mortgagee to spend as much money as is necessary for supporting the title of the mortgagor to the mortgaged property, but it proceeds to say that it is only "in the absence of a contract to the contrary" that the mortgagee could add such money to the principal of the mortgage money. There is found in Exhibit A such a clear contract to the contrary. But it is argued for the 1st defendant that the litigation whose expenses the first defendant took upon himself to bear was only the litigation with the former kanomdars on the questions of improvements, michavaram, etc., and not a litigation in which he was obliged to fight a rival jenmi also. I do not think that the contract to the contrary found in Exhibit A was restricted to litigation in which the jenmi's title to any portion of the property would not be put in dispute. The document generally mentions "all expenses necessary for recovering the properties." Whether the properties had to be recovered through one kind of litigation or another, it does not, in my opinion, matter. I, therefore, agree with the lower Courts that the 6th question must be decided against the 1st defendant.

The 7th question relates to the claim for compensation for trees of spontaneous growth allowed to the 1st defendant by the lower Courts. Madras Act I of 1900, section 5, clause (1), says that every tenant ["tenant" including "mortgagee" under section 3, clause (1)] shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made by him or his predecessor-in-interest and for which compensation has not been already paid. Section 10 says (as I understand it) that trees and plants of spontaneous growth during the period of the tenancy must also be considered as improvements made by the tenant, though the compensation is to be awarded only on a lower scale than for other improvements. Mr. Ananthakrishna Aiyar ingeniously argued that as section 10 allows the award of compensation only for trees and plants spontaneously grown during the period of the tenancy, the 1st defendant is not entitled to compensation for trees which had begun to grow before 1888 when his tenancy commenced. Though the language of sections 5 and 10 of the Act is not very happy, I have no doubt that the compensation due to the 1st defendant's predecessor in the kanom right now vested in the first defendant is claimable by the first defendant. In Thupran v. Mamad Kasim Sait (13) Sundara Aiyar, J., and myself state as follows: —"It is immaterial whether the improvements were made by the 2nd defendant himself or by any other person in possession before him. It is quite sufficient that the improvements are on the land even if they were made by some previous occupant, and it was not the case of either party that anybody except the 2nd defendant was in occupation at the time of the suit." Further, if the construction contended for by Mr. Ananthakrishna Aiyar be accepted, the result would be that a melkanomdar who is obliged to pay after 1900 the compensation for spontaneously grown trees to the prior kanomdar cannot claim that money when he is himself sought to be redeemed by the jenmi afterwards. Further, apart from section 10 of the Malabar Tenants' Improvements and Compensation Act, the subsequent mortgagee who pays a prior mortgagee acquires all the rights and powers of the prior mortgagee under section 74 of the Transfer of Property Act. The plaintiff's suit, though it is worded as a suit to redeem the kanom in favour of the 1st defendant, is in the eye of the law a suit to redeem the prior kanom also, the rights under which have passed to the 1st defendant by his redemption of the said 1st mortgage. Now if the plaintiff sued to redeem the first mortgagee (that is, the Melapatt Tarwad, assuming that they had continued in possession of the mortgaged property till the date of this suit) the plaintiff would be obliged to pay compensation for the trees of spontaneous growth under section 10, and it follows that he is bound to pay the 1st defendant also compensation for those trees. The fact that under the old law, no compensation was payable for trees of spontaneous growth and that the 1st defendant was, therefore, not obliged to pay anything to the prior kanomdars for those trees is irrelevant. The question is what, on the date of this suit, was payable as compensation for improvements, and not what was payable when the Suit No. 147 of 1890 was brought. The decision in Suit No. 147 of 1890 as to what the 1st defendant had to pay to redeem the prior mortgagees is, therefore, not res judicata on the question what on the date of the redemption in this suit the plaintiff has to pay to the 1st defendant to redeem all the mortgage rights vested in the 1st defendant. I would, therefor, confirm the decision of the lower Courts on this question.

Lastly we have got the 8th question referring to the plots N3, N4 and N5 in the Commissioner's plan. The boundaries mentioned in Exhibit A for item No. 14 may possibly include these plots also. The 1st defendant states that he did not get possession of them, and as a question of fact it must be taken as found by both the lower Courts that these plots belong to the Vallapuzha jenmi and are held by the 73rd defendant under that jenmi.

In the result, the lower Appellate Court's decree will be modified in a few respects, namely, that there should be no decree for redemption of tank item No. 7, that the michavaram should be calculated throughout on the basis that only the original rate of 168 paras 1 narayam and 2 nazhis of paddy and two rupees worth of areca nut is payable per year to the plaintiff and that credit should be given to the defendant for 16 paras per year as paid towards michavaram besides the sums already allowed by the lower Court. In other respects, the lower Court's decree will stand confirmed. The above conclusion implies that Second Appeal No. 2547 of 1912 has totally failed and it must be dismissed with costs.

SECOND APPEAL No. 2512 OF 1912:—In this the parties will have proportionate costs. There will be also proportionate costs in Appeal Suit No. 45 of 1909 on the file of the District Court, the proportion being calculated on the result of the litigation as decided in this Suit Appeal No. 2512 of 1912.

HANNAY, J.—I concur.

These second appeals having been posted to be spoken to this day the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.—(1) Six months' time will be allowed from this day to the plaintiff to pay up the additional amount. That additional sum will carry interest awarded to the defendants under our decree at six per cent. per annum from when the plaintiff obtained possession in execution of the lower Court's decree.

(13) 17 Ind. Cas. 433.

(2) Interest on arrears of michavaram will run at Rs. 2 per cent.

(3) The value of the tank need not be taken into calculation in fixing the costs.

Appeal No. 2547 dismissed;
Appeal No. 2512 partly allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEALS NOS. 141 TO 144 OF 1908.

August 20, 1914.

Present:—Sir John Edward Power Wallis, Offg. Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Hannay.

IN A. S. No. 141 OF 1908

BHATHEY SUNDARARAYAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

IN A. S. No. 142 OF 1908

LAGUDUVA RAMUDU—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

IN A. S. No. 143 OF 1908

AIYALLY BALAIEN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

IN A. S. No. 144 OF 1908

MUGANTHU SEETHARAMIEN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

A. A. KUPPUSAMI IYER AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS IN ALL.

Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888), ss. 20, 29 (4)—Infringement—Defence—Want of subject-matter—Want of novelty—Difference between Acts of 1888 and 1911—English and Indian Law—Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911).

Under the Inventions and Designs Act of 1888 a defendant in an action for infringement is allowed to set up by way of defence all the grounds on which the grant of the patent could be opposed, grounds which are to be found in section 20 of the Act. A defendant is not allowed to set up the defence that the invention was not new, unless the defendant or some person through whom he claims has, before the date of the delivery of the application for leave to file the specification, publicly or actually used in some parts of British India or of the United Kingdom the invention with respect to which the privilege is alleged to have been infringed.

The Indian Acts do not intend, as in England, that there should be any separate defence to the grant of a patent on the ground of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty.

The defendant cannot raise the defence of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty and the restrictions imposed by section 29 (4) are binding in both cases. All the statutory grounds for opposing the grant of a patent, which can be pleaded in answer to an action for infringement of a patent under the Act of 1911, cannot be pleaded in a suit instituted before the Act, as it is not applicable.

Appeals against the decrees of the District Court of Madura, in Original Suits Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 of 1906, respectively.

Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna Iyer, for the Appellants.

Mr. T. Rangachari, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

WALLIS, OFFG. C. J.—These are appeals from the judgment of the District Court of Madura in several connected cases in which the plaintiffs sued for an infringement of a patent taken out by the first plaintiff in the year 1902 for the "Ampthill Patent Loom." The District Judge has found that the infringement has been proved and has given judgment for the plaintiffs.

Under the Patent Act of 1888 ("The Inventions and Designs Act V of 1888") a defendant in an action for infringement is allowed to set up by way of defence all the grounds on which the grant of the patent could be opposed, grounds which are to be found in section 20 of the Act. One of these grounds is that the invention was not a new invention. Under section 29 (4) a defendant is not allowed to set up the defence that the invention was not new, "unless the defendant, or some person through whom he claims, has, before the date of the delivery * * * of the application for leave to file the specification, publicly or actually used in some parts of British India or of the United Kingdom the invention * * * * with respect to which the exclusive privilege is alleged to have been infringed."

Now, it has been sought, in the argument before us, to escape from the operation of this section on two grounds. It has been contended for the appellants that the defendant is not precluded from pleading that the alleged invention was not the proper subject-matter of a patent, or that there was no subject-matter for the patent. It is quite true that in English patent cases it has been the custom to plead, not only that the alleged invention was not new, but also that it was not the proper subject-matter for a patent, and accordingly in any text-books this matter is treated as distinct from the question whether the invention is new, whereas other text-book writers analysing the matter have pointed out that there is no real distinction. This objection was taken before me sitting on the original side last year (in Original Suit No. 173 of 1911) and I disallowed it. It is quite clear from a perusal of the Patent Act of 1888, and the same conclusion follows from a perusal of the present Patent Act, the Indian Patents and Designs Act II of 1911, that the framers of these Acts did not intend that there should be any separate defence to the grant of a patent on the ground of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty. The grounds upon which the grant of a patent may be opposed are set out in section 20 of the Act of 1888, and they contain no mention of any defence of want of subject-matter. The Legislature, if I may say so, I think rightly took the view that any defence which had been raised under that head might appropriately be brought under the head of want of novelty. Consequently, we are of opinion that it is not open to the appellants in these cases to raise any defence of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty, and if they wish to rely upon want of novelty, then, of course, they are bound by the restrictions in section 29 (4).

A second attempt was made to escape these embarrassing provisions. It was pointed out that there is no such restriction on the defendants under the Act of 1911. Under that Act, as in England, any of the statutory grounds for opposing the grant of the patent may be pleaded in answer to an action for an infringement of a patent. It was argued that, although this provision was not in force at the time that this suit was tried and decided in the lower Court, we were a Court not only of appeal but that of rehearing also and that we ought to apply the law as it at present exists - to apply the Statute of 1911 rather than the Statute of 1888, and we were referred to a case in Gorakala Kanakaiya v. Janardhan Padhai (1). That decision of the Full Bench is not authority for any such extensive proposition; that decision is entirely limited to the construction of the word 'final' in a certain section of the Madras Estates Land Act (Mad. Act I of 1908). Even as to that, the learned Chief Justice who presided entertained some doubt as to the correctness of the ruling, but in any case that decision is no authority for any broad proposition as to the retrospective operation of Statutes.

However, it is unnecessary to deal with this question on grounds of general principle, because it is most clearly dealt with in one of the provisions of the General Clauses Act (X of 1897) which deals with cases "where . . any Act of the Governor-General. ..made after the commencement of this Act, repeals any enactment hitherto made." The Act II of 1911 has repealed the Act V of 1888 and, therefore, it is a clear case for the application of the section. Now, section 6 (c) provides that "unless a different intention appears, the repeal shall not affect any investigation, legal proceeding, or remedy in respect of any such right, privilege, obligation, liability, penalty, forfeiture or punishment as aforesaid." And the words "legal proceeding" are sufficiently wide to cover a suit for infringement. It is, however, expressly provided that any such legal proceeding or remedy may be continued or enforced as if the repealing Act had not been passed. It is, therefore, clear that this objection also must be overruled. It only remains then to see whether the District Judge has arrived at a correct conclusion with regard to the limited defence to which the defendants are restricted so far as regards want of novelty.

Under section 29 (4) it is for the defendant to show that either he or some person through whom he claims, before the date of the delivery or receipt of the application, has publicly or actually used the invention. The District Judge has found that none of the defendants in these appeals has discharged that burden and as regards all but one of them the learned Vakil for the appellants, has been unable to contend even that they have discharged it, because they have failed to produce any evidence of prior user on their part or on the part of those through whom they claim and, therefore, those appeals must fail. As regards one of the appeals (No. 143) the defendant in the lower Court has adduced some evidence, but the District Judge has found that he has not discharged the burden. In this connection the District Judge has called attention to the provisions of section 37 of the Act which require that both the plaintiff and the defendant should deliver "a written statement of the particulars of the grounds, if any, upon which he means to contend that the plaintiff is not entitled to an exclusive privilege..." There is a further provision that no evidence at the trial shall be allowed to be given in proof of any breach of the conclusive privilege, or of any ground impeaching the validity of that privilege, or of any objection or ground affecting such a privilege, unless such breach or other matter as aforesaid has been stated in the particulars delivered under this section. Now, in his written statement this defendant did not give any particulars—and he does not seem to have been called upon to give any particulars—it was only at the trial it was discovered that he ought to have been called upon to deliver particulars. He was, however, a party to an affidavit which was put in at an early stage of the case on behalf of himself and the other defendants (Exhibit T7) and I think this affidavit may be treated as particulars. That affidavit says that "Obala Munisami Iyer started this loom 15 years ago and worked it through Jambu Ramaswami Manika Hanumantha's son, Alagirisawmi, and others." At the trial this defendant did not even attempt to prove this, and it was disproved. Obala Munisami was called as the 14th witness and he said he was a weaver and purchased goods from others, but he denied he had started this system. He said he got some of these cloths with borders with animal patterns, the first of them in 1900. It is not necessary to pursue this part of the case further, because it is not the case on which this defendant relied at the trial. Assuming that he was at liberty to go into it—if he was to be allowed to go into it—the particulars ought to have been amended as provided in the Act. His defence was that he learnt the process from one Ghose Krishnien of Tanjore, the 26th witness. We agree with the learned Judge that this story is not satisfactory and cannot be accepted. Ghose Krishnien says he learnt this system from Benares but, as the District Judge points out, no one was called who could speak with any authority as to whether such a system was known in Benares at all. On the other hand, there is evidence that such knowledge as this man Krishnien had of this system, he acquired in Madura and apparently through the instrumentality of this defendant, so that it was this defendant who taught Krishnien rather than Krishnien taught this defendant, and after the date of the application, Exhibit 35 (d) (page 176 of the printed papers), is an entry in Krishnien's account showing the expenses incurred in going to Madura to work 'adipet.' Exhibit Y of the 18th June 1901 is another entry in the accounts of the 13th witness, T. K. Venkatarama Iyer, a cloth merchant in Madura, showing that he paid Balian, that is to say, this defendant, remuneration for preparing an adipet border on Ghose Krishnien's account, so that in 1901—after this patent had been applied for—we find Krishnien going to Madura to learn to work 'adipet' and getting an adipet harness prepared—a phrase which covers the plaintiff's invention. All this evidence points to Krishnien first becoming acquainted with process of this kind in 1901, so that he cannot have taught it to the defendant in 1897 as alleged in the defendant's evidence. As pointed out by the District Judge there is another part of the evidence which discredits Krishnien's story.

(1) 8 Ind. Cas 730; 9 M. L. T. 64; 21 M. L J. 31; (1910) 1 M. W. N. 841; 36 M. 489.

According to his own evidence he first met Babiah at the house of the 13th witness, T. K. Venkatarama Iyer, and the 13th witness then mentioned that this defendant, Babiah, was about to work for him. Exhibit 28 which is the agreement under which Babiah, the defendant, worked for the 13th witness is dated the 26th of May 1900, so that the first meeting between Krishnien and Babiah would be in 1900. That again disproves the story that the defendant Babiah learnt the process from Krishnien in 1897. Now, it is not the present defendant's case, and there is no evidence, that he learnt this process in any other way. Nor is there any stisfactory evidence that he used it before the date of the plaintiff's application.

In argument in appeal, reliance was placed on Exhibit 28; it is dated 26th May 1900. This is the agreement that I have just referred to. All that this agreement says is "we shall bring you what we have weaved newly." There is no express reference to weaving by "adipet". Assuming that the defendant in June 1900 was producing borders with animal patterns, it does not follow that he was doing so by the plaintiff's process or anything like it. In June 1900 he is found purchasing vulties in considerable quantities. Vulties, as explained in the judgment of the District Judge, are the reeds which were used before the plaintiff's invention and which under the plaintiff's invention were discarded in favour of twines. His evidence is that he would not use vulties when working in the adipet system. Therefore, the only inference is that the vulties which he bought in June 1900 were to be used on something very like the old system, and there is further evidence, which the District Judge has accepted, that it was possible with this vulty system to produce animal patterns though it was a much more troublesome thing than under the plaintiff's system. The evidence goes to show that the plaintiff's invention was complete in 1900 and that in that year he showed it to Mr. Chatterton, the Director of Industries, when he visited Madura; and it was only natural that it should have, at any rate in a general sort of way, got known to the weaving community in Madura and it may well be that attempts were made to copy it, even at that very early stage.

There is a rather suggestive piece of evidence in this respect which was put in by the defendants, Exhibit 10 series. That shows that there was a suit brought by a cloth merchant against a weaver who had obtained an advance from him on a promise to make an adipet machine and had failed to do so. Then we have Exhibit 32 which is dated 2nd March 1901—that is, after the application. That is a post card to the present defendant, Babiah, from his cousin in which the cousin asks, "can the adipet you are now using be used for the border only or for the whole cloth"? This may show that the defendant had got wind of the plaintiff's invention and was using something of the same sort, but it certainly does not show that the defendant had been using this particular process before the date of the plaintiff's application. The meaning of this post card would have been much clearer if the letter to which it is a reply had been produced, and it is very significant that it has not been produced.

As regards the evidence not directly connected with the present defendant, the District Judge observes, and the evidence appears to bear him out, that there is no satisfactory evidence of the manufacture of these animal borders in Madura before 1900, before the time when the plaintiff was making this invention, but it is not necessary to go into the general aspects of the invention, and it is undesirable to do so because they are the subject-matter of an application for revocation which will have to be dealt with on the original side of this Court. For the purpose of disposing of these appeals, it is sufficient to say that in our opinion, the District Judge was right in holding that the defendant had failed to discharge the burden of showing, that this process was used either by the defendant himself or by those through whom he claims before the date of the plaintiff's application.

The result is that the appeals fail and are dismissed with costs.

HANNAY, J.—I agree.

Appeals dismissed.

SIND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1 OF 1912.

August 27, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Fawcett, J. C., and Mr. Crouch, A. J. C.

GOBIND RAM AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

SABGHATULLAH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11, Ex. IV—Suit for recovery of water rate—Subsequent suit for injunction restraining defendant from tapping water-course—Res judicata—Enjoyment of water-course—Right of person in possession—Jus tertii.

The plaintiffs sued the defendants' father for recovery of water rate and obtained an ex parte decree. The defendants having again threatened to draw water, the plaintiffs sued for an injunction restraining the defendants from tapping the plaintiffs' water-course:

Held, (1) that the allegation that the water-course belonged to the Government and not to the plaintiffs was a matter which might and ought to have been made a ground of defence in the former suit within the meaning of Explanation IV to section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code and that the judgment in that suit operated as res judicata, as it held that the water-course was the plaintiffs' and hat the defendants had no right to take water from it.

(2) that even assuming that the plaintiffs were trespassers and had been in enjoyment of the disputed portion of the water-course for less than the statutory period sufficient to give them an easement by prescription, still they were entitled to protection in their enjoyment of the water-course against all persons except the true owner, and the plea of jus tertii was not sufficient to disentitle them to the injunction sought.

Kondapa v. Devarakonda, 6 Ind. Cas. 266; 34 M. 173; (1910) M. W. N. 117; 7 M. L. T 352; 20 M. L J. 803, followed.

Second appeal against the decision of the Joint Judge, Sukkur-Larkana.

Mr. Rupchand Bilaram, for the Appellants.

Mr. G. A. Kikla, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In this case the plaintiffs sued in the Shikarpur Sub-Court for an injunction, alleging that a water-course called Sonawahi was their exclusive property and had been cleared by them, but that the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 with the help of the other defendants were threatening to enter upon it and do its clearance.

The Sub-Judge of Shikarpur granted plaintiffs the injunction sought for with regard to a portion of the water-course. He held, however, that the portion of the Sonawahi from the canal called Sind Wah to Survey No. 441, dah Jano, was not, really speaking, Sonawahi at all and was the property of Government, and that consequently plaintiffs were not entitled to any relief regarding that portion.

The Joint Judge, Sukkur-Larkana, confirmed this decision on appeal and plaintiffs now appeal on the grounds mentioned below.

The first is that the decision in a suit between the same parties, No. 623 of 1907, operates as res judicata on the question raised as to plaintiffs' right to the whole of the water-course in question. In that suit plaintiffs claimed hak ab (water rate) for Survey Nos. 431, 433, 440, 442 and 443, alleging that the water-course called Sonawahi belonged to them and that the defendant had irrigated those numbers from it. The suit was tried ex parte and a decree passed for the recovery of hak ab by plaintiffs, for Nos. 431, 433, 442 and 443. The judgment, Exhibit 92, shows that the Sub-Judge held that the water-course in question was admittedly plaintiffs' and that defendant had no right to take water free from it. The survey map produced in this case shows that Nos. 442 and 443 abut on the portion of the water-course now in dispute, and not on the portion which has been held by the lower Courts to belong to plaintiffs. The Sub-Judge says the papers, do not show from what point of the water-course these numbers are irrigated. But in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, the presumption would, I think, be that they were irrigated from the portion in dispute, which is the nearest to them. If so, the allegation that this portion does not belong to plaintiffs but to Government was certainly a matter which might and ought to have been made a ground of defence in the former suit within the meaning of Explanation IV to section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code. The Sub-Judge is also not correct in saying that the right of ownership in the water-course was not raised and decided in that suit; the judgment shows the contrary. I am, therefore, inclined to hold that the question of plaintiffs' ownership of the whole water-course (including the part beyond Survey No. 430) is res judicata and cannot be re-opened in this suit. The cases of Shyama Charan Banerji v. Marinmayi Debi (1) and Raj Kumar Roy Chowdhury v. Alimuddi (2) show (if authority on the point is needed) that an ex parte decree in a case like this can operate as res judicata.

It is not, however, necessary to give a definite finding on the point, in view of the conclusion on the second ground of appeal. This is that the lower Courts erred in refusing to grant an injunction in respect of the portion of the water-course in dispute, because (as held by them) it is on Government land and plaintiffs have established no title to it. Mr. Rupchand has shown reasonable grounds for supposing that plaintiffs may have laid their water-course over this land with the permission of Government. But even assuming that they are trespassers, this plea of jus tertii is not sufficient to disentitle the plaintiffs to the injunction sought. A case which is almost exactly in point is that of Kondapa v. Devarakonda (3). As there held, even assuming that plaintiffs are trespassers and have been in enjoyment of the disputed portion of the water-course for less than the statutory period sufficient to give them an easement by prescription, still they are entitled to protection in their enjoyment of the water-course against all persons except the true owner. The same principle was approved and applied by the Privy Council in Ismail Ariff v. Mahomed Ghous (4).

(1) 31 C. 79.
(2) 16 Ind. Cas. 911; 17 C. W. N. 627.
(3) 6 Ind. Cas. 266; 34 M. 173; (1910) M. W. N. 117; 7 M. L. T. 352; 20 M. L. J. 803.

The decrees of the lower Courts so far as they refuse plaintiffs the relief claimed in regard to the portion of the water-course between Sind Wah and Survey No. 430 are, therefore, reversed, and plaintiffs are granted an injunction restraining defendants from interfering in the clearance of that portion of it also. Defendants-respondents must (in lieu of the lower Courts' orders as to costs) pay appellants' costs throughout.

Appeal accepted.

(4) 20 C. 834; 20 I. A. 99.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1481 OF 1912.

July 29, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling and Mr. Justice Tyabji.

BHIMAVARAPU BUCHI REDDI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS NOS. 1 TO 5—APPELLANTS

versus

THE PRESIDENT OF THE TALUK BOARD OF GUNTUR AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Madras Local Boards Act (V of 1884), s. 51 - Trust, powers as to, transferred from Board of Revenue—Suit for recovery of trust property, when maintainable by local body.

The local body to which the powers of the Board of Revenue are transferred under section 51 of the Madras Local Boards Act, 1884, is invested with the rights of management as well as superintendence of a trust property and is entitled, where there is no trustee, to sue for the recovery of trust property.

Chairman, Municipal Council of Rajahmundry v. Susurla Venkataseerlu, 31 M. 111; 3 M. L. T. 241, followed.

Second appeal from the decree of the Court of the Temporary Subordinate Judge of Guntur in Appeal Suit No. 492 of 1910, preferred against that of the District Munsif of Tenali in Original Suit No. 701 of 1908.

Mr. P. Nagabushanam, for the Appellants.

Mr. P. Narayanamurti, for Respondent No. 2.

JUDGMENT.—The first point argued on behalf of the appellants is that the 2nd respondent was invested only with the power of superintendence originally possessed by the Board of Revenue under Regulation VII of 1817, and was not entitled to bring this suit. Section 51 of the Local Board's Act, V of 1884, is identical with section 26 of the District Municipality Act, IV of 1884, and the ruling in Chairman, Municipal Council of Rajahmundry v. Susurla Venkateseerlu (1) is clear authority for the proposition that the local body to which the powers of the Board of Revenue were transferred was invested with the rights of management as well as superintendence and that the former include the right to sue for the recovery of trust property. It is suggested that even the Board cannot sue over the heads of trustees, but we consider that Exhibit C is a valid resignation of their posts by such trustees as held office at the date of its execution and it is not suggested that any other trustees had come into office prior to the date of suit. We must hold that the 2nd plaintiff was entitled to sue.

It is next argued that the suit is time-barred. It is brought against appellants as legal representatives of B. Chenna Reddy, one of the original trustees, and section 10, Limitation Act, is applicable.

The last point sought to be raised is that defendants Nos. 2 to 5 should not be held liable; but the judgment of the Subordinate Judge shows that this was given up in the lower Appellate Court, and we cannot allow it to be set up again here. The second appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 31 M. 111; 3 M. L. T. 241.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 776 OF 1913.

December 15, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling and Mr. Justice Hannay.

GANDI RAMASWAMI—DEFENDANT No. 2—APPELLANT

versus

PURAMSETTI PEDAMUNAYYA AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Suit for possession—Hindu widow suing in representative capacity—Death of plaintiff—Suit, whether abates—Reversioners of last male owner—Legal represen.

GANDI RAMASWAMI v. PURAMSETTI PEDAMUNAYYA.

tative—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (11)—Survival of right to sue.

A suit for possession brought by a Hindu widow in a representative capacity as representing the estate does not abate on her death. The right to sue survives to the reversioners of the last male owner, who are her legal representatives within the meaning of section 2 (11) of the Civil Procedure Code and as such are entitled to be brought on the record.

Premmoyi Choudhrani v. Preonath Dhur, 23 C. 636; Rikhai Rai v. Sheopujan Singh, 7 Ind. Cas. 97; 7 A. L. J. 960; 33 A. 15; Tribhuvan Sundar Kuar v. Sri Narain Singh, 20 A. 341; A. W. N. (1898) 65, Chiruvolu Punnammal v. Chiruvolu Perrazu, 29 M. 390; 1 M. L. T. 183; 16 M. L. J. 307 (F. B.), Musammat Parbutty v. Musammat Higgin, 17 W. R. 475, followed.

Sakyahani Ingle Row Sahib v. Bhavani Bozi Sahib, 27 M. 588; Kommeneni Chinna Veerayya v. Kommeneni Lakshmi Narasamma, 15 Ind. Cas. 213; 22 M. L. J. 375; 11 M. L. T. 184; (1912) M. W. N. 442; 37 M. 406; Arunachellam v. Vellaya Pillay, 15 Ind. Cas. 461; 12 M. L. T. 199; (1912) M. W. N. 897; 23 M. L. J. 719, distinguished.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Court of Kistna at Masulipatam, in Appeal Suit No. 166 of 1912, preferred against that of the Court of the Additional District Munsif of Masulipatam, in Original Suit No. 333 of 1910.

Mr. V. Ramadoss, for the Appellant.

Mr. V. Ramesam, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The suit out of which this second appeal arises was brought by one Peramma to establish her right to certain inam land and to recover possession after ejecting the defendants. Her case was that the suit property belonged to her father, Bapula, that after his death her mother, Venkamma, enjoyed the land and that on Venkamma's death, the plaintiff became entitled to the land as daughter of Bapula but that the defendants prevented her from taking possession. The defendants alleged that Bapula had made over the land to one Ratham, the husband of the 3rd defendant, to do the inam service for him over 50 years before suit and that their family had held the land and done service ever since. The plaintiff, Peramma, died pending the suit and the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 were then brought on record as being her legal representatives. The plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 are the grandsons of Bapula's brother. Both the lower Courts on the merits have given a decree in favour of the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5, and it is conceded by the present appellants that on the findings of fact arrived at by the lower Courts the decree in favor of the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 cannot be impeached. They contend however that upon the death of Peramma, the suit abated and that the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 could not be added as legal representatives of the deceased Peramma or continue the suit, as they claim, not as legal representatives of Peramma, but as reversioners of the last male holder i.e., Bapula. The lower Appellate Court, relying upon the cases of Premmoyi Choudhrani v. Preonath Dhur (1), Rikhai Rai v. Sheopujan Singh (2), Tribhuvan Sundar Kuar v. Sri Narain Singh (3) and Musammat Parbutty v. Musammat Higgin (4), held that the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 were rightly added as plaintiffs, and the question for determination is whether that decision is correct or not. This point involves the determination of the questions whether the right to sue survived after the death of Peramma and whether the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 are her legal representatives.

The appellants rely upon the cases of Sakyahani Ingle Row Sahib v. Bhavani Bozi Sahib (5), Kommeneni Chinna Veerayya v. Kommeneni Lakshmi Narasamma (6) and Arunachellam v. Vellaya Pillay (7). The first two cases were suits by presumptive reversioners on their own behalf to set aside a widow's alienation. On the death of the plaintiff in each case, it was held that the right to sue did not survive to the next reversioners. In the former case, it was decided that the right to sue in such cases was a personal right and that such suits could not be treated as representative suits, reversioners who are not actual parties to such litigations not being bound by the adjudications thereon.

This decision was followed in the latter case, Kommeneni Chinna Veerayya v. Kommeneni Lakshmi Narasamma (6). The case of Kommeneni Chinna Veerayya v. Kommeneni Lakshmi Narasamma (6) is authority for the view that for the purposes of deciding the question whether the right to sue survives or not, there is no distinction between suits to set aside an adoption and

(1) 23 C. 636.
(2) 7 Ind. Cas. 97; 33 A. 15; 7 A. L. J. 960.
(3) 20 A. 341; A. W. N. (1898) 65.
(4) 17 W. R. 475. (5) 27 M. 588.
(6) 15 Ind. Cas. 213; 37 M. 406. 22 M. L. J. 375; 11 M. L. T. 184; (1912) M. W. N. 442.
(7) 15 Ind. Cas. 461; 23 M. L. J. 719, 12 M. L. T. 199; (1912) M. W. N. 897.

suits to set aside an alienation. It was there held that the right to sue to set aside an adoption would not survive after the death of the mother of the last male owner, who was the plaintiff in the suit notwithstanding that, as held in Chiruvolu Ponnammal v. Chiruvolu Perrasu (8), an adjudication in such a suit would have been binding on the other reversioners, if there had been a fair trial, for the rights of the reversioners remain subject to the rule of law laid down in Chiruvolu Punnammal v. Chiruvolu Perrasu (8).

The respondents contend that these rulings do not conclude the points for determination in this case, as they relate to declaratory suits whereas the present is a suit for possession. The cases of Premmoyi Choudhrani v. Preonath Singh (1) and Rikhai Rai v. Sheopujan Singh (2) relied upon by the lower Appellate Court clearly support the view that in suits such as the present the right to sue survives to the reversioners, who are the legal representatives of the widow, for the purposes of such suits although they do not claim title through her but as reversioners of the last male owner. These two cases are referred to in Kommeneni Chinna Veerayya v. Kommeneni Lakshmi Narasamma (6). It was observed as regards Premmoyi Choudhrani v. Preonath Singh (1) that it could not be reconciled with the Madras cases relating to declaratory suits upon the question of the survival of the right to sue, etc., on the ground that the claim there was to recover possession of property. The case of Rikhai Rai v. Sheopujan Singh (2) was also distinguished on the ground that it was a suit for possession. We think that these cases are not in conflict with the Madras cases relied upon by the appellants on the ground of distinction given in Kommeneni Chinna Veerayya v. Kommenni Lakshmi Narasamma (6). In this connection the respondents rely upon the observations in Sakyahani Ingle Row Sahib v. Bhavani Bozi Sahib (5). There is no analogy between the case of widows and other qualified female holders entitled to present possession of property and the case of reversioners, presumptive or otherwise, whose rights are absolutely contingent. The vested right to the estate and possession in the case of the former renders it necessary and proper to invest them with the right to bind those who may come in succession to them by any adjudication duly made in litigation to which they were parties. Upon this basis the line of reasoning adopted in the case of Premmoyi Chuodhrani v. Preonath Singh (1) appears to us to be entirely applicable here upon the question of the survival of the right to sue. Upon the second point also, viz., whether in the circumstances of this case, the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 are the legal representatives of the deceased Peramma, that case as well as the case of Rikhai Bai v. Sheopujan Singh (2) are fully in point. The widow sued in a representative capacity as representing the estate which would after her death go to the succeeding heirs and as found by both the lower Courts, the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 are the persons on whom the estate has devolved on the death of Peramma. The plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5, therefore, fall within the terms of the definition of a legal representative contained in section 2 (11) of the present Civil Procedure Code.

In these circumstances, therefore, we hold that the right to sue in this case survived on the death of Peramma to the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 as legal representatives and that the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 5 were, therefore, rightly added as plaintiffs on the death of Peramma.

The second appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

(8) 29 M. 390: 1 M. L. T. 183; 16 M. L. J. 307 (F. B.).

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 451 OF 1911.

July 23, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Woodroffe and Mr. Justice Coxe.

MAHAMMAD NASSARUDDIN SARCAR —PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

SHEIKH ISAB—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) (as amended), s. 88, cl. (6), construction of—Incumbrance, meaning of —Surrender—Incumbrance created by tenant, effect of, upon landlord, MAHAMMAD NASSARUDDIN SARCAR v. SHEIKH ISAB.

Per Woodroffe, J.—The term "incumbrance" in section 86, clause 6, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, means not one which is binding on the landlord, but one which is binding as between the tenant and the incumbrancer.

In a case of surrender unlike that of abandonment, the landlord taking the tenant's rights should equitably be bound by the tenant's previous transaction by way of a mortgage. Neither the landlord nor the tenant can derogate as against his own grant.

Per Coxe, J.—The landlord's rights under section 86 clause (6), of the Bengal Tenancy Act cannot be affected by the tenant's incumbrance which is not legally binding upon him.

Appeal against the decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Mymensingh, dated the 29th of November 1910, modifying that of the Munsif, second Court at Kishoregunj, dated the 9th of June 1910.

Babu Mohini Mohan Chatterjee, for the Appellant.

Babu Sasanka Jiban Roy, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

WOODROFFE, J.—The substantial question in this appeal is whether or not there was a valid surrender by the 5th defendant to the landlord, seeing that defendant had previously mortgaged the holding to the plaintiff, mortgagee, who now sues to recover rent from the sub-tenants of defendants Nos. 5 and 6. If the surrender is a valid surrender then it will appear, as the lower Appellate Court has held, that the plaintiff will only be entitled to recover rent to the extent of 8 annas representing the interest of defendant No. 6. If, on the other hand, the surrender was not a valid one then the plaintiff would, as held by the first Court, be entitled to the whole 16-annas rent.

The question whether this surrender was valid as against the plaintiff, turns upon the construction which we should put upon section 86, clause 6, of the Bengal Tenancy Act and in particular upon the meaning of the word "incumbrance" in that clause. The question which has been argued before us is, whether or not the word "incumbrance" of that clause means an incumbrance which is binding upon the landlord or whether it is an incumbrance which is binding as between the tenant and the incumbrancer. This point arose in Suit Appeal No. 2955 of 1911 to which we have been referred and was decided in the latter sense.

The learned Pleader who appears on behalf of the appellant contends before us that it is not a case of abandonment but a case of surrender and that, therefore, the landlord taking the tenant's rights should equitably be bound by his previous transaction by way of a mortgage; that is to say, as a tenant could not derogate as against his own grant, so the landlord, who took the tenant's right, could not do so, though it may be open for him to assert his superior right as landlord otherwise than by accepting a surrender from his tenant.

On these grounds I think that it is made out by the appellant that he is entitled to recover 16-annas rent and I, therefore, set aside the judgment and decree of the lower Appellate Court and restore those of the first Court with costs.

COXE, J.—I am unable to hold that under section 86, sub-section 6, of the Bengal Tenancy Act the landlord's rights can be affected by an incumbrance, which is not legally binding upon him. But I think that in this case I can agree that the Munsif's order should be restored. The holding belonged to defendants Nos. 5 and 6. They mortgaged it to the plaintiff. Thereafter defendant No. 5 surrendered his interest to the landlord. There is nothing, however, befor us to show whether defendant No 6 agreed to surrender, or whether or not he was willing to go on paying rent for, the whole, and it may well, therefore, be held that in the circumstances the landlord is not entitled to recover rent from the under-tenant.

That being so, it is clear that the plaintiff was entitled to the whole rent and in that view I agree to the order that has been passed.

Appeal allowed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REFERENCE No. 5 OF 1914.

August 31, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Beaman and Mr. Justice Hayward.

DHONDO RAMCHANDRA KULKARNI —PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BHIKOJI GOPAL—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11, Expl. IV, O. XXXIV, r. 1, O. II, r. 2—Several mortgages upon same property—Necessary parties to suit—Two mortgages in favour of same person—Suit on later mortgage—Subsequent suit on former mortgage, whether maintainable.

Where there are several mortgagees upon the same property, any mortgagee suing upon his mortgage must make all the other mortgagees as well as the mortgagor parties to the suit.

Where a mortgagee having two mortgages of different dates upon the same property sues upon the mortgage of later date first and has the property sold without reference to the prior mortgage, he cannot afterwards bring a separate suit on the prior mortgage.

Civil Reference made by the District Judge, Poona, under section 54 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879.

Mr. B. V. Desai, for the Appellant.

Mr. V. V. Bhadkamkar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMEMT.

BEAMAN, J.—This is a reference by the District Judge of Poona under section 54 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act. The principal question referred to us, put in the simplest language, is whether a mortgagee having two mortgages of different dates upon the same property may sue upon the mortgage of later date first, and having had the property sold without reference to the prior mortgage can thereafter bring a separate suit on the prior mortgage. We think that he cannot do so. In our opinion, the question is not to be answered under Order II, rule 2. The causes of action certainly are distinct. It could hardly be seriously contended, we think, that in such circumstances if the mortgagee allowed the prior mortgage to be time-barred, he could not sue upon the puisne mortgage, or again, that by doing so, he could revive the prior mortgage which had become time-barred. Thus, it is clear that the causes of action are not the same. The answer then will have to be sought by reference, we think, to the general principles of the law of mortgage and res judicata. The rule is that where there are several mortgages upon the same property, any mortgagee suing upon his mortgage must make all the other mortgagees as well as the mortgagor parties to the suit. To this rule there are exceptions. Until the alteration of section 85 by Order XXXIV, rule 1, the Courts appear to have put a very strict interpretation upon the words of old section 85 of the Transfer of Property Act. But there can be no doubt that under the general law of mortgage as administered in England a puisne mortgagee might sue his mortgagor, if he chose to do so, for foreclosure and sale without making a prior mortgagee a party to the suit, and the result of such a suit between a puisne mortgagee and his mortgagor would be to have the property sold, as it is said, subject to the prior mortgage. Accurately stated, in all cases of that kind what is really sold is not the property at all but the right to redeem the prior mortgage upon it.

Similarly, when a puisne mortgagee sues the mortgagor and joins a prior mortgagee, the effect of the suit between the puisne mortgagee and the mortgagor is exactly the same as though the prior mortgagee had not been a party to it, assuming (1) that the mortgagee has insisted upon his rights, (2) that neither the puisne mortgagee nor the mortgagor has redeemed him in the suit. Then the result would be that the property would be sold subject to that prior mortgage as between the puisne mortgagee and the mortgagor. In other words, again, what would be sold would not be the property but the right to redeem the prior mortgagee. It is equally clear, we think, that in a suit so framed if the prior mortgagee did not choose to assert his rights, although a party to the suit, the result would be that the property would be sold free of that mortgage, and that the prior mortgagee would be disentitled to assert any rights he might otherwise have had under his prior mortgage against a purchaser at any such sale. That rule depends upon the principle of res judicata. This is very clearly apparent from the dicta of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Sri Gopal v. Pirthi Singh (1).

In our opinion, precisely the same result is worked out where the puisne mortgagee suing on his puisne mortgage is himself a prior mortgagee. By no stretch of fictional forms or fictional ideas can it be said, we think, that in such circumstances he is not a party to the suit. He is just as much a party as though he had been impleaded by a puisne mortgagee other than himself. So that where a mortgagee holds two mortgages of different dates upon the same property, and sues upon the later mortgage, he must be deemed to be a party to the suit in a position to assert any rights he might have under his prior mortgage. There might be no objection in such circumstances to his reserving those rights, as though he and the prior mortgagee were different persons, and so have the property put to sale subject to the prior mortgage. But if he makes no mention of his rights as prior mortgagee, then he is in the same position, we conceive, as a prior mortgagee would be, if being duly impleaded, he did not attempt to assert his rights. In such cases the decision in Sri Gopal v. Pirthi Singh (1) is conclusive, establishing that such a prior mortgagee would be precluded from bringing another suit upon his prior mortgage against the purchaser at the sale; that is to say, the matter would be res judicata against the prior mortgagee.

(1) 4 Bom. L. R. 827; 24 A. 429, 29 I. A. 118; 6 C. W. N. 889.

This being our view, it follows that we must answer the question asked us by the learned District Judge in the negative. He has referred to us a subsidiary question under the special provisions of section 13 (b) of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act upon which, I believe, my brother Hayward will express our opinion, though, in the view we take, it is not essential to the decision of the suit upon which the first question has been referred to us.

We wish to express our thanks to the learned gentlemen who afforded us much assistance as amicii curiæ during the argument.

HAYWARD, J.—I entirely concur with regard to the first question that prior and subsequent mortgages in favour of one mortgagee cannot be considered one cause of action so as to bar separate suits under Order II, rule 2. They must, in my opinion, ordinarily constitute two different causes of action, as causes of action are said to comprise all facts material to prove the particular suits, and, clearly in the case of separate mortgages, there would be different facts which would have to be proved to establish the separate suits. So that there could be no bar to separate suits under Order II, rule 2.

I also concur with regard to the further question which thereon arises, that the prior mortgage must be considered as necessarily brought in by way of defence in a suit on the subsequent mortgage in favour of the same mortgagee under Order XXXIV, rule 1, and that failure to plead the prior mortgage in the suit on the subsequent mortgage would give rise to res judicata under section 11, Explanation IV, of the Civil Procedure Code. The several decisions quoted before us in support of this proposition, namely, Dorasami v. Venkataseshayyar (2), Kesharram v. Ranchhod (3) and Hari Narain Banerjee v. Shama Sundari Dasi (4), all proceeded on the assumption that prior mortgagees were in all cases necessary defendants in suit brought by subsequent mortgagees under section 85 of the Transfer of Property Act. But it has since been made clear that they are not necessary defendants and that it is a matter of the choice of the subsequent mortgagees by the Explanation to Order XXXIV, rule 1, of the Civil Procedure Code. So the further question which has arisen must be thus stated: whether the prior mortgagee can practically be left out of the suit by the subsequent mortgagee where the two mortgages are vested in the same mortgagee, so as to avoid the penalty of res judicata which would otherwise result under the decision of the Privy Council in Sri Gopal v. Pirthi Singh (1). The matter is, in my opinion, not free from difficulty, but after consideration it does not seem to me practicable to hold the prior mortgagee in such a case not to be a party, when he is himself actually represented in the case, with full knowledge of the prior mortgage as subsequent mortgagee. Nor would there be any prejudice to him in so holding because he would be able, if he so desired, to keep his prior mortgage alive by requiring that the sale of the property should be subject to the prior mortgage, or in the alternative he might allow the sale free of the prior mortgage and recover the amount due on the prior mortgage out of the proceeds of the sale on the subsequent mortgage. This is clear from the provisions of rules 12 and 13 of Order XXXIV. On the other hand, if the prior mortgagee were held in such a case not to be a party and not bound to disclose his prior mortgage, though himself the subsequent mortgagee, the ruling would, in my opinion, open the door to possible fraud in the subsequent dealings with the property and would tend to defeat the general policy of finally settling all questions regarding mortgaged property in one suit and of limiting litigation, underlying the various provisions of the Transfer of Property Act and the Civil Procedure Code.

(2) 25 M. 106; 11 M. L. J. 373.
(3) 7 Bom. L. R. 811; 30 B. 156.
(4) 6 Ind. Cas. 159; 37 C. 589, 11 C. L. J. 551.

With regard to the subsidiary question whether in any case the prior mortgage and the subsequent mortgage must not be held to be one cause of action in view of the special provisions of sections 12 and 13 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, it is not strictly necessary, in view of our decision on the preceding questions, to come to any definite decision; nor does it appear to me that the materials before us are sufficient to enable us to arrive at such a decision. It will be sufficient, therefore, merely to indicate that it would depend on the questions of fact, as pointed out in the decisions of Mahadu v. Rajaram (5) and Gopal Purushotam v. Yashwantrav (6), whether the two mortgages can be said to be independent transactions or transactions "out of which the suit has arisen" within the meaning of section 13 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act. If it had been found as a matter of fact that the transactions were transactions "out of which the suit has arisen," then they would have constituted the same cause of action, and the subsequent suit would have been barred under Order II, rule 2, by reason of the special provisions of section 13 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act.

So that the reply to the questions put to us must, in my opinion, be that the subsequent suit on the prior mortgage was barred, by reason of the decree in the previous suit on the subsequent mortgage, as res judicata under section 11, Explanation IV, of the Civil Procedure Code, and that in any case, if the two mortgages had been found as a matter of fact to have been transactions "out of which the suit has arisen", the subsequent suit on the prior mortgage would have further been barred in view of the previous suit on the subsequent mortgage by the provisions of Order II, rule 2, and the special provisions of section 13 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act.

(5) (1887) 6 Un. P. J. 216.
(6) (1887) 6 Un. P. J. 273.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1079 OF 1913.

October 8, 1914.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ayling and Mr. Justice Hannay.

CHAMBOZIL MOIDIN KUTTI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

ACHUTAMBAL KUNHI KOYAN MUTH HAJI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Malabar Law—Melcharath executed prior to expiry of kanom. validity of—Family necessity—Successor, whether bound.

A melcharath executed without family necessity before the expiry of a prior kanom, in respect of the same property is not binding on the successor of the karnavan whether the karnavan did or did not survive the expiry of the prior kanom.

Second appeal from the decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Calicut, in Appeal Suit No. 288 of 1912, preferred against that of the District Munsif of Parapanangadi, in Original Suit No. 566 of 1911.

Mr. N. A. Krishna Aiyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—It is found that there was no family necessity to justify the melcharath, Exhibit B; and we must hold that this transaction is not binding on the successor of the karnavan who executed it, whether the latter did or did not survive the expiry of the prior kanom. The appeal is dismissed with costs.

Appeal dismissed.

PUNJAB CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 635 OF 1914.

January 13, 1915.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rossignol.

HIRA—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

JOWALA DAS AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 23, 65—Contract—Illegal contract—Rule of in pari delicto—Consideration paid for contract void ab initio, whether recoverable—Betrothal agreement

A breach of betrothal agreement gives rise to a claim for damages.

The plaintiff advanced money to the defendant in consideration of his daughter's betrothal to the former's son. The fiance died and the plaintiff sued for refund of the money paid by him:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable.

Second appeal from the decree of the Additional Divisional Judge, Shahpur Division, at Lyallpur, dated the 22nd January 1914, reversing that of the Munsif, first Class, Chiniot, District Jhang, dated the 16th June 1913, decreeing the claim.

Mehta Bahadur Chand, for the Apellant.

Mr. Nur-ud-Din, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This was a claim for recovery of an alleged loan; the defendant contended that it was not a loan, but was a payment made in consideration of the betrothal of Musammat Viran to plaintiff's son.

The first Court found that the money claimed was a loan, but held that even if it were of the nature described by defendant, plaintiff could maintain a suit for its recovery.

The lower Appellate Court has found that it was not a loan, but consisted of payments made for the purpose described by defendant and it has held that the suit is not maintainable, inasmuch as the money was paid by plaintiff for an improper and immoral object which rendered the whole contract void ab initio.

Before this Court, it it contended on the legal point that Kahna v. Kahn Singh (1) is in point and would warrant a decree in plaintiff's favour.

That ruling would appear to refer to the English rule of in pari delicto, and in effect, the decision appears to be that since the bride's father was not in pari delicto inasmuch as he had not caused the marriage to be celebrated, he could assert that his position was superior to that of the plaintiff. But, is the case quite the same here?

It was pleaded by defendant that the money was advanced by the plaintiff in consideration of the girl's betrothal and that is the finding of the lower Appellate Court.

If that is so, is defendant not in pari delicto? Did he not betroth his daughter in consideration of the sum received? A betrothal is not a mere formality and as it is notorious, a breach of betrothal gives rise to a claim for damages.

In this case then the illegal consideration for the cash advanced had been performed and if we regard the bethrothal and marriage as the real consideration, a part had been performed and but for the death of the fiance the whole would have been carried out.

I have considered whether section 65 of the Contract Act applies to such a case, and although the matter has often been the subject of doubt, the prevailing view is that it does not apply to contracts which are known to be void ab initio by reason of the illegality of the consideration.

Holding then that plaintiff advanced the money claimed to defendant as consideration for an illegal promise which was performed either in whole or in part, according to the view taken, I decide that the plaintiff is entitled to no relief and dismiss the appeal, leaving parties to bear their own costs in view of the fact that neither side is deserving of sympathy.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 106 P. R. 1879.

END OF VOLUME XXVII.

GENERAL INDEX

VOLUME XXVII—1915.

Abatement of suit—Sufficient cause for setting aside 681

——————— —— Suit for possession—Hindu widow suing in representative capacity—Death of plaintiff—Suit, whether abates—Reversioners of last male owner—Legal representative 1001

Abwab, meaning of—Suit for rent—Zilla kharach, provision for payment of—Regulation V of 1812, s. 3—Regulation VIII of 1793, s. 54.

Abwab means an arbitrary and indefinite imposition levied by the landlords on their tenants. An item which forms part of the consideration for which the lease is granted is not an abwab.

Where a lease executed prior to the passing of Regulation VIII of 1793, which forbade imposition of abwabs, specifically provided for the payment of zilla kharach:

Held, that as this was a part of the rent agreed upon, the landlord was entitled to recover it under section 3 of Regulation V of 1812. C. KALI KUMAR ROY v. KAILASH NATH ROY 470

Accomplice—Evidence before Committing Magistrate retracted in Sessions Court, admissibility and credibility of—Evidence of identification, value of.

The statement of an accomplice before the Committing Magistrate, though retracted in the Sessions Court, can be treated as substantial evidence, on the same footing as any other evidence on the record.

But this evidence must be treated with caution in so far as it implicates any particular accused or assigns him a particular part in the actual crime.

The value of the statement of any witness that he recognises a particular man, depends ultimately on the opportunities he had of observing the man and on his personal veracity. S. PUKHU v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 208; 16 CR. L. J. 233 905

Account. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 85.

————, suit for—Consent of parties—Jurisdiction 803

Accused pleading guilty—Magistrate, duty of 910

ACTS—GENERAL.

Act 1850—XXI. See CASTE DISABILITIES REMOVAL ACT.
—— 1858—XXXV. See LUNACY ACT.
—— 1859—XIII. See WORKMAN'S BREACH OF CONTRACT ACT.
—— 1860—XLV. See PENAL CODE.

ACTS—GENERAL—concld.

Act 1865—X. See SUCCESSION ACT.
—— 1867—III. See PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT.
—— 1869—IV. See DIVORCE ACT.
—— 1870—VII. See COURT FEES ACT.
—— 1870—XXI. See HINDU WILLS ACT.
—— 1871—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1871—XXIII. See PENSIONS ACT.
—— 1872—I. See EVIDENCE ACT.
—— 1872—IX. See CONTRACT ACT.
—— 1873—X. See OATHS ACT.
—— 1875—IX. See MAJORITY ACT.
—— 1877—I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.
—— 1877—III. See REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1877—XV. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1878—I. See OPIUM ACT.
—— 1879—I. See STAMP ACT.
—— 1879—VIII. See NORTHERN INDIA CANAL AND DRAINAGE ACT.
—— 1879—XVIII. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.
—— 1881—V. See PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION ACT.
—— 1881—XXVI. See NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.
—— 1882—V. See EASEMENTS ACT.
—— 1882—VI. See COMPANIES ACT.
—— 1882—XIV. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1883—XIX. See LAND IMPROVEMENTS LOANS ACT.
—— 1887—IX. See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.
—— 1888—V. See INVENTIONS AND DESIGNS ACT.
—— 1889—VII. See SUCCESSION CERTIFICATE ACT.
—— 1890—VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.
—— 1896—XII. See EXCISE ACT.
—— 1897—VIII. See REFORMATORY SCHOOLS ACT.
—— 1898—V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1899—II. See STAMP ACT.
—— 1899—IX. See ARBITRATION ACT.
—— 1903—III. See ELECTRICITY ACT.
—— 1907—III. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1908—V. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
—— 1908—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.
—— 1908—XVI. See REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1909—III. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT.
—— 1911—II. See INDIAN PATENTS AND DESIGNS ACT.
—— 1912—V. See PROVIDENT INSURANCE SOCIETIES ACT.
—— 1913—VI. See MUSSULMAN WAKF VALIDATING ACT.
—— 1913—VII. See COMPANIES ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BENGAL.

Act 1869—X. See BENGAL RENT ACT.
—— 1859—XI. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT.
—— 1876—VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR ENCUMBERED ESTATES ACT.
—— 1876—VII. See BENGAL LAND REGISTRATION ACT.
—— 1880—IX. See BENGAL CESS ACT.
—— 1885—VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.
—— 1887—XII. See BENGAL, N.-W. P. AND ASSAM CIVIL COURTS ACT.
—— 1899—III. See CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL ACT.
—— 1908—I. See EASTERN BENGAL AND ASSAM TENANCY ACT.
—— 1908—VI. See CHOTA NAGPUR TENANCY ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—BOMBAY.

Act 1878—V. See BOMBAY ABKARI ACT.
—— 1879—V. See BOMBAY LAND REVENUE CODE.
—— 1879—XVII. See DEKKHAN AGRICULTURISTS RELIEF ACT.
—— 1887—IV. See BOMBAY GAMBLING ACT.
—— 1901—III. See BOMBAY DISTRICT MUNICIPAL ACT

ACTS—(LOCAL)—CENTRAL PROVINCES.

Act 1883—IX. See CENTRAL PROVINCES TENANCY ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—MADRAS.

Act 1804—II. See MADRAS REVENUE RECOVERY ACT.
—— 1865—VIII. See MADRAS RENT RECOVERY ACT.
—— 1873—III. See MADRAS CIVIL COURTS ACT.
—— 1884—V. See MADRAS LOCAL BOARDS ACT.
—— 1886—I. See MADRAS ABKARI ACT.
—— 1891—I. See MADRAS GENERAL CLAUSES ACT.
—— 1894—II. See MADRAS PROPRIETARY ESTATES VILLAGE SERVICE ACT.
—— 1900—I. See MALABAR TENANTS IMPROVEMENTS ACT.
—— 1908—I. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT.
—— 1914—I. See MADRAS HINDU TRANSFERS AND BEQUESTS ACT

ACTS—(LOCAL)—PUNJAB.

Act 1872—IV. See PUNJAB LAWS ACT.
—— 1887—XVI See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.
—— 1887—XVII. See PUNJAB LAND REVENUE ACT.
—— 1900—I. See PUNJAB LIMITATION (ANCESTRAL LAND ALIENATION) ACT.
—— 1905—II. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
—— 1912—I. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.
—— 1912—IV. See PUNJAB COURTS (AMENDMENT) ACT.
—— 1913—I. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
—— 1914—III. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.

ACTS—(LOCAL)—U. P.

Act 1876—XVIII. See OUDH LAWS ACT.
—— 1886—XXII. See OUDH RENT ACT.
—— 1901—II. See AGRA TENANCY ACT.
—— 1901—III. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.

ACTS—REGULATIONS.

Act 1793—VIII. See BENGAL REGULATION.
—— 1799—V. See REGULATION.
—— 1812—V. See REGULATION.
—— 1819—VIII. See PUTNI REGULATION.
—— 1825—XI. See BENGAL REGULATION.
—— 1872—III. See SONTHAL PARGANAS SETTLEMENT REGULATION.

STATUTES.

3 & 4 WILLIAM IV, C. 85. See GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT.
24 & 25 VIC., C. 104 See CHARTER ACT, 1861.

Actionable claim—Transfer of right to sue 115

Administrator of executor, whether a derivative executor 849

Admission on point of law 357

Adoption. See CUSTOM; HINDU LAW.

Adverse possession—Document—Genuineness—Co-owner in possession—Intention to cheat co-owners, whether extinguishes title—Ouster—Adverse possession—Prescription 1

——————————Extinguishment of title 250

——————————Fallow land—Grazing of cattle, whether interrupts operation of adverse possession—Co-sharer, adverse possession of, when presumed—Hostile title 412

——————————Incorporeal right, whether can be adversely possessed 930

——————————Limitation—Eleven years 5 months, possession for—Practice of Settlement Department—Judicial procedure—Possession follows title—Presumption, when raised.

Where 11 years 5 months before suit for possession of a tract of jungle the final Record of Rights was published by the Settlement Department showing the defendants to be in possession at that time:

Held, that having regard to the well-known practice of the Settlement Department, which was itself a kind of judicial procedure, the defendant must have been found to be in possession at least seven months before that record was published.

The presumption that possession follows title in these kinds of cases must depend upon the circumstances of the case. C. SABOJINI DEBI v. KIRTIBASH DAS 802

——————————, nature of possession necessary to create 640

——————————Bengal Land Registration Act (VII of 1876), s. 78—Registration of name, whether proves possession—Possession of co-tenant, when becomes adverse—Character of evidence required to prove it—Assertion of hostile title—Knowledge of co-tenant out of possession—Suit for partition—Court-fee—Actual or constructive possession not proved—Plaintiff not entitled to maintain suit—Proper remedy—Leave to amend plaint—Costs.

The registration of the name of a person, under the Bengal Land Registration Act, is some evidence of possession, but does not necessarily prove that the person who has been able to get his name substituted in the place of that of his vendor is in possession of any share of the estate.

Adverse possession—concld.

To enable one of several co-tenants to acquire title by adverse possession as against the others, his possession must be of such an actual, open, notorious, exclusive and hostile character as to amount to an ouster of the other co-tenants, that is, must have been such as to render him liable to an action of ejectment at the suit of the co-tenants.

The evidence to show adverse possession by one co-tenant must be much clearer than between strangers to the title, and the hostile intent of the co-tenant in possession must be shown by unequivocal conduct.

The ouster of the other co-tenants, in order to render the possession adverse, need not be by violent or intimidating expulsion or repulsion; nor need notice of the adverse holding be actually brought home to the other co-tenants by personal or formal communication, but it is sufficient, if the contrary is not proved, that the circumstances show that such knowledge may reasonably be presumed.

A person who has failed to prove that he had possession, actual or constructive of any share of the disputed property, is not entitled to maintain a suit for partition. His remedy is by a suit for joint possession and partition and he may be allowed to amend his plaint on terms as to payment of costs. On the plaint in a suit so framed, Court-fees must be paid ad valorem. C. LOKENATH SINGH v. DHWAKESHWAR PROSAD, 21 C. L. J 253 465

——— ——— ———Reversionary rights, surrender of—Possession of third person with consent of widow—Mutation of names in favour of manager of widow's property—Presumption 699

——— ——— ——— Thak and survey map, presumption relating to 954

———————, what amounts to 35

Advocate's act, how far binding on client—Agent 829

Affidavit, uncontradicted, reliability of 882

Agent—Advocate's act, how far binding on his client 829

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1911), s. 22—Hindu Law—Adoption—Adoptee not a lineal descendant of his natural father—Occupancy holding, succession to—Right of brother adopted in another family 34

——— ——— ——— s. 22—Land held on service tenure—Rent-free grant—Succession—Hindu Law of inheritance—Pleadings—Practice.

Land held on a service tenure is a rent free grant, and its descent is governed by the ordinary Hindu Law of inheritance and not by section 22 of the Agra Tenancy Act.

The mere fact that the plaintiffs did not admit themselves to be entitled to possession of the land in suit as a service tenure, should not disentitle them to a decree for recovery of possession of the land as a service tenure holding, provided that such right is established on the evidence. A. JOKHAN CHAUBEY v. MAHESH SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 160 720

——— ——— ——— ss. 79, 81—Dispossession of tenant by zemindar through another tenant

Agra Tenancy Act—concld.

*—Limitation—Rival claimants to tenancy, suit between—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court—*Res judicata.

A suit between rival claimants to a tenancy can only be brought in a Civil Court, and not in a Revenue Court. Therefore, a decision of the Revenue Court in a suit for rent between rival claimants to a tenancy would not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit in the Civil Court between the same parties.

Where a lessee from the zemindar dispossess a previous lessee, the dispossession of the latter must be deemed to be a dispossession by the zemindar through his tenant. The remedy of the dispossessed lessee is a suit under section 79 of the Tenancy Act within six months of the dispossession. A. BALBHADDAR CHAUBEY v. SOMAROO RAI, 13 A. L. J. 295 914

——— ——— ——— s. 79 (1) (b)—Suit for compensation for crops wrongfully removed by landlord—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court.

Section 79 (1) (b) of the Agra Tenancy Act entitles a plaintiff to recover the value of any crop which has been wrongfully removed by the defendant as one of the resultant damages of wrongful dispossession.

Therefore, a suit for compensation for the value of the crops which were wrongfully removed is a suit for compensation for illegal ejectment by a tenant against his landlord and should be brought in a Revenue Court. A. CHET RAM v. SAHABA, 13 A. L. J. 102 532

——— ——— ——— s. 95—Suit between rival claimants to tenancy—Cognizable by Civil Court—Jurisdiction—Res judicata.

Section 95 of the Agra Tenancy Act deals with questions arising between landlord and tenant, and not between rival claimants to a tenancy.

Therefore, a suit between rival claimants to a tenancy that the plaintiff is entitled to it is cognizable by a Civil Court.

A decree of a Revenue Court in a previous suit, holding that the plaintiff was the sub-tenant of the defendant in respect of the holding, does not operate as res judicata in the plaintiff's suit in the Civil Court to establish his claim to the holding. A. KANHI RAM v. DURGA PRASAD, 13 A. L. J. 278 913

——— ——— ——— s. 199—Suit for ejectment—Defendant set up lease—Direction of Revenue Court to file suit for declaration of title in Civil Court within three months—Suit filed after expiration of three months—Limitation.

In a suit for ejectment in the Revenue Court the defendant pleaded that he was holding the land under a lease the term of which had not yet expired. The Revenue Court directed the defendant to institute a suit in the Civil Court within three months to establish his rights under the lease. The suit was instituted after the expiration of three months.

Held, that as a cloud was cast on the plaintiff's title under his lease he was entitled to institute the present suit notwithstanding that the period prescribed in the order of the Revenue Court had expired. A. SURAJ MAL v. HIRA KUNWAR, 13 A. L. J. 31; 37 A. 94 51

Agreement creating future interest in favour of unborn persons, whether valid 379

————, voluntary, validity of—Ex-proprietary tenancy converted by ex-proprietor into rent-free holding for life—Occupancy right, relinquishment of, by ex-proprietor 376

Alienation. See HINDU LAW; MALABAR LAW; MORTGAGE.

———— Khakhi Jats of Mouza Salihan, Tahsil Muzaffargarh—Transfer of landed property to wife in lieu of sharni dower, validity of—Sale—Registration—Document thirty years old—Presumption—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 90—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17.

Among Khakhi Jats of Mouza Salihan in Tahsil Muzaffargarh a sonless proprietor can validly transfer his holding to his wife in lieu of sharai dower.

The wife has absolute power of disposing the property thus transferred to her, consequently a gift of it to her daughter is valid by custom and cannot be challenged by the reversioners of her husband.

A document thirty years old coming out of proper custody is to be presumed genuine under section 90 of Act I of 1872.

According to Muhammadan Law a gift by a husband of landed property in lieu of dower in favour of his wife is tantamount to a sale, consequently such a deed of gift in lieu of dower below Rs. 100 does not require registration, although the real value of the immoveable property thus transferred exceeds that amount, and as such is admissible in evidence. P. NUR MUHAMMAD v. ALLAH WASAI, 5 P. W. R. 1915; 35 P. L. R. 1915 562

Alienee of minor's right in property entitled to challenge mortgage by guardian 859

Alluvion and diluvion—Government as owner of river-bed and proprietor of land abutting on river, dispute between—Encroachment 509

Amendment of decree—Application filed after long time, whether allowed 639

———— ———— Mistake as to costs—Pleader's fee—Arithmetical or clerical error—Revision.

Where in the preparation of a decree two sets of Pleader's fee were erroneously charged instead of one, and an application for amendment made nearly after a year was refused:

Held, that the High Court could not interfere in revision, as it was very doubtful whether the error could properly be considered either as a clerical or an arithmetical mistake. A. PAHLAD DAS v. COLLECTOR OF JAUNPUR, 13 A. L. J. 60 922

———— of plaint—Leave to amend—Costs 465

————, when allowed—Objection against amendment, when to be made—Misjoinder of causes of action—Limitation extending time, how pleaded—Sale of partnership business—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 253 (7) 344

Appeal—Admission of additional evidence—Appellate Court, duty of 33

———— Admission of appeal presented after time—Discretion of Court—Discretion must be legal and regular—Presentation of appeal to wrong Court, whether sufficient cause 967

Appeal—contd.

————Appellate Court allowing award to be filed—Revision 332

———— Application to restore application for reversal of sale, dismissal of—Appeal, whether allowed — Sufficient cause — Party deliberately absenting, whether can claim restoration 492

———— against consent decree, when maintainable 242

———— Costs—Power of Appellate Court to allow costs disallowed by Subordinate Court 621

———— against decree passed on award, grounds for 424

————Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 103A, 105, 109A—Entry in Record of Rights, Court not precluded from enquiring into correctness of—Application by landlord for fair rent—Enhancement—Jurisdiction 446

———— Execution of decree—Legal representative of judgment-debtor, objection by—Attached property not of judgment-debtor—Determination of such question 328

———— Facts, finding of, by trial Court—Appellate Court, power of, to disturb 276

———— Final decree passed before filing appeal against preliminary decree—Preliminary decree, whether appealable.

Where before the filing of a second appeal against a preliminary decree, a final decree was passed and no appeal was preferred against the final decree:

Held, that no appeal lay against the preliminary decree as it had been confirmed by the final decree. C. SADHU CHARAN DATTA v. HARANATH DATTA 135

———— Finding adverse to defendant—Defendant, whether entitled to appeal—Res judicata.

There is no right of appeal against a mere finding.

Where, therefore, in a suit to declare an adoption invalid, the invalidity of the adoption is found but the suit itself is dismissed as time-barred, the defendant has no right of appeal against that finding as there is no decree against him.

The fact that that finding may operate as res judicata in subsequent proceedings will not give him a right of appeal. M. ACHANTA VENKATASURYANARAYANA v YELAPRAGADU SHIVASANKARA NARAYANA, 2 L. W. 101; 17 M. L. T. 85 861

———— Finding of fact not to be questioned in second appeal even if based upon evidence on remand 265

———— Hindu Law—Partial partition proved—Onus probandi as to jointness—Mortgage-decree, form of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, rr. 4, 5, 6 489

————Limitation—Award, filing of 31

————, whether maintainable—Order refusing to wind up Company 44

————Memorandum of appeal unaccompanied by copy of decree, whether effective—Collector, whether a Judge—Acts of Collector, presumption as to regularity of 447

Appeal—contd.

——— Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 244—Non-transferable occupancy-holding sold in execution of rent-decree—Application by purchaser to set aside sale—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 178—Fraud 431

——— Objections to report not taken in first Court or not raised in grounds of appeal before lower Appellate Court, whether allowed in second appeal 598

——— Order refusing to attach property for disobedience of injunction, whether appealable—Appellate Court, power of, to order imprisonment 131

——— Order refusing rateable distribution 644

——— Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), ss. 43 (2) (b), 46 (1)—Order refusing to take action against insolvent—Creditor, whether an aggrieved person 241

——— Partnership suit—Court competent to pass decree for amount exceeding its pecuniary jurisdiction—Incompetency to order amendment of valuation according to amount found due after preliminary decree—Course of appeal to be determined by amended valuation 988

——— Party in lower Court not impleaded in appeal, effect of—Limitation for adding party in appeal—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, r. 20—Court, power of, to direct addition of parties in appeal.

Where by a mere act of inadvertence the appellant fails to implead a person who was a party in the lower Court, the appeal ought not to be dismissed on the simple technical ground that the said person is no party to the appeal and that limitation has expired for the purpose of making him a party, but must be decided on merits after that person is directed by the Appellate Court to be made a party; for, under Order XLI, rule 20, Civil Procedure Code, the Court has full authority to direct the addition of parties in an appeal, and when it takes action under this rule, no question of limitation can arise. O. GAJRAJ SINGH v. GAURI SHANKAR, 2 O. L. J. 20 609

——— Preliminary decree—Decision on issues in bar, whether preliminary decree—Omission to frame decree, effect of, on right to appeal—Final decree, effect of—Preliminary decree, preparation of, where provided 317

——— Remand, evidence taken on—Appellate Court, discretion of—High Court, power of, to interfere in second appeal. 827

——— Removal of guardian—Grounds of removal—Appointment of successor 28

——— and revision—Advocate's act, how far binding on his client—Agent—Negligence 829

——— Suit filed in Subordinate Judge's Court but heard and decided by Munsif—Jurisdiction of Subordinate Judge to hear appeal.

A suit was filed in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, but was subsequently transferred to the Court of the Munsif who heard and decided it On appeal the District Judge transferred the case to the Subordinate Judge to hear the appeal:

Appeal—contd.

Held, that the Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to hear the appeal. A. WILAYAT ALI KHAN v. GHANI KHAN, 13 A. L. J. 290 874

——— filed beyond time, admissibility of—Court's negligence to observe procedure—Sufficient cause 784

———, second—Appeal re-heard on application for review—Limitation 732

——— Application for certificate to appeal made after 90 days—Question of custom mixed with law — Certificate refused — Second appeal, whether lies to Chief Court 723

——— Concurrent findings—Question of legal necessity.

Where on the question of legal necessity for a sale the Courts below had come to a concurrent decision, the Chief Court declined to interfere in second appeal. P. SHIB RAM v. HAMIR SINGH, 1 P. L. R. 1915 645 ——— Definite finding of fact—A share-holder in possession of more shamilat than his share—Failure to get deed of sale registered—Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 41.

A finding of fact though not very clear but sufficiently definite cannot be interfered with in second appeal.

The mere fact of a share-holder cultivating more than his admitted share in the shamilat is no inference of his having purchased a further share, specially when he has failed for a long time to get his deed of sale registered or his title recorded in the Revenue Record. P. JAWAHIR SINGH v NAURANG SINGH, 20 P. W. R. 1915; 67 P. L. R. 1915 620 ——— Finding—Interference.

Where the lower Court after considering the whole evidence adduced by the parties, finds an adoption proved, the finding cannot be interfered with in second appeal. P. THAKAR DAS v. CHUNI LAL, 12 P. W. R. 1915; 62 P. L. R. 1915 606

——— Finding of fact 446

——— Finality of order passed on appeal by judgment-debtor against order refusing to set aside auction-sale of his immoveable property to decree-holder—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 2, 47, 104, O. XXI, rr. 90, 92, O. XLIII, r. 1 (j)—Revision—Punjab Courts (Amendment) Act (IV of 1912, s. 70—Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 44.

An order of the Appellate Court in appeal by the judgment-debtor, under rule (1) (j) of Order XLIII of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, against the order of the Court executing the decree refusing, under rule 92 of Order XXI, to set aside, on his application under rule 90 of the said Order, the auction-sale of his immoveable property to the decree-holder, is not a decree within the meaning of sections 2 and 47 of the said Code, and consequently, under the force of sub-section (2) of section 104 of the Code, no second appeal lies therefrom to the Chief Court.

The Chief Court is not bound to interfere on revision with an order which is not so unjust or so perverse that it should not be allowed to stand. P. BABU LAL v. CHANDA, 6 P. W. R. 1915; 38 P. L. R. 1915 589

Appeal—concld.

——, second—Mixed question of law and fact 933

——Order refusing to set aside sale—Second appeal, whether maintainable—Revision petition treated as memorandum of appeal 294

——Party, whether entitled to make a new case 810

——Plea raised for the first time, whether can be allowed.

The plaintiff sued his vendor and the brother and mother of the vendor for possession of a specific portion of a house, alleging that it represented his one-third share in the house which had been purchased in the name of the defendants and one-third of which had been sold to the plaintiff. The vendor confessed judgment, but the other defendants pleaded that in a partition after the purchase the house had fallen to the share of the defendant, who was vendor's brother. The plea was held proved by the original Court and the suit was dismissed, but the Appellate Court found that the plea was not established and passed a decree for possession of one-third of the house. On second appeal it was contended that the vendor, being a member of a joint Hindu family, had no right to alienate any portion of the house which the plaintiff could claim:

Held, that it was a new plea and could not be raised for the first time on second appeal. P. NARAIN DAS v. Musammat DAROPTI, 2 P. L. R. 1915 673

——Point not taken in original Court, or in Appellate Court, whether allowed to be raised in second appeal.

Ordinarily a point not taken in the original Court cannot be advanced in appeal, and similarly a contention not raised either in the first appeal or in the memorandum of appeal cannot be allowed to be argued in second appeal. P. AHMAD KHAN v. BAKHTAWAR, 3 P. L. R. 1915; 14 P. W. R. 1915 646

——Suit for rent, other than house rent 258

Appeal to Privy Council—Connected appeals—One appeal allowed, another dismissed—Leave to appeal granted in appeal which was allowed—Other appeal, whether fit case for leave to appeal to be granted.

Two connected first appeals arising out of the same suit were disposed of by the High Court. In one of the appeals the High Court confirmed the decision of the lower Court and in the other reversed it. The same question was involved in both the appeals. Leave for appeal to the Privy Council was given in the one in which the High Court had reversed the judgment of the Court below:

Held, that under the circumstances the other case also was a fit one for appeal to His Majesty in Council. A. MOHAMAD WALI KHAN v. MOHAMAD MUINUDDIN KHAN, 13 A. L. J. 57; 37 A. 124 378

Arbitration—Agreement to arbitration after institution of suit—Application for stay of suit—Adjustment within the meaning of O. XXIII, r. 3 46

——Award—Order to file award before certain date—Award made in Hindi on that day but filed with its English translation two days later, validity of—Use of word "file" instead of "make" in order, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), Sch. II, paras. 8, 15.

Where a Court allowed the arbitrators to make their award within a certain time, but instead of using the word "make" used the word "file", and the award was made in Hindi and signed within that day but was filed two days later, as the arbitrators decided to have it translated into English, and where the arbitrators also before filing it took an agreement from the parties not to raise any objection to this being done:

Held, that the award was made within time and was valid and that the use of the word "file" instead of "make" was immaterial. C. SRI LAL v. ARJUN DAS, 18 C. W. N. 1325 233

——Party having notice of hearing not appearing—Ex parte award, validity of—Costs, order as to, included in award—Award, whether bad.

Where a party to an arbitration proceeding receives notice of the hearing but does not appear, the arbitrators are right in making an ex parte award.

Costs incurred in the process of obtaining an order from the Court are within the discretion of the Court and outside the province of the arbitrator, but an award is not bad merely because of their inclusion. S. LANG, J. M. v. HOLLAND AND MOSS, LD., 8 S. L. R. 136 526

——Reference to arbitration, resiling from—Appeal against decree passed on award, grounds for.

A party cannot resile from a reference to arbitration at his sweet will and pleasure, and it cannot avail him to show that having once agreed to the reference he afterwards repented of his action.

Where the parties to a suit referred the case to arbitration and a decree was made in accordance with the award of the arbitrators:

Held, that no appeal lies from such a decree, except where the decree is in excess of or not in accordance with the award. O. CHET KUNWAR v. PUTTU SINGH, 17 O. C. 386; 2 O. L. J. 129 424

——Revocation of submission not allowed without good cause—Notice of meeting to party who has already withdrawn not necessary—Arbitrators not bound to discuss in presence of parties—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), Sch. II, para. 20—Regular suit to enforce award—Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), s. 7 (X) (d)—Limitation—Appeal.

Neither party to a submission to arbitration can revoke it unless for good cause shown.

Omission to give notice of the meeting of arbitrators to a party, who has prior to such meeting notified to the arbitrators his withdrawal from the submission, does not invalidate the award.

The arbitrators are not bound to discuss in presence of the parties what award they are going to make.

The procedure laid down in the Civil Procedure Code, Schedule II, paragraph 20, is not obligatory. Instead of applying that an award may be filed, a party may institute a regular suit to enforce the award. For such a suit, the Court-fee would be ad valorem on the value of the property in dispute [section 7 (X) (d), Court Fees Act], and the period of limitation is three years at least, in some land cases it may be twelve years, and there is free right of appeal and second appeal. U. B. NGA HLA GYAW v. MI YA PO, 4 U. B. R. (1914) II, 26; 7 BUR. L. T. 279 31

Arbitration Act (IX of 1899), s. 2—Application to file an award—Cause of action arising in part—Jurisdiction.

A "cause of action" consists of every fact which is material to be proved to entitle the plaintiff to succeed, every fact which the defendant would have a right to traverse, and it arises "in part" within the jurisdiction of a Court, if any fact material for the plaintiff to prove took place therein.

Where a trader entered into a contract at Multan with the agents of a Karachi firm, and the contract was to be completed in Karachi and the money payable thereon was expressly made payable in Karachi:

Held, that the cause of action arose in part in Karachi and that the Karachi Court had jurisdiction to file an award based on a reference contained in the contract. S. WILSON, G. W. v. VOLKART BROTHERS, 8 S. L. R. 107 129

——— s. 14—Award made ex parte—Sufficient cause for non-appearance—Court, power of, to set aside award.

If a party shows sufficient cause for his non-appearance before an arbitrator, the Court will set aside an award passed ex parte against him. S. WHITEHOUSE v. KAHN KAHN & Co., 8 S. L. R. 110 135

——— ——— s. 19—Insolvent guarantee-broker—Guarantee deposit—Employer's claim for damages adjudicated by Judge in insolvency proceedings—Suit to recover guarantee deposit after setting off damages, whether can be referred to arbitration—Sufficient cause.

A suit by an Official Receiver of the property of an insolvent guarantee-broker against his employer for the balance of the guarantee deposit with interest, after setting off the amount of damages settled by the Judge in the insolvency proceeding as due to the employer, cannot be referred to arbitration under section 19 of the Act, as the main question of damages cannot now be litigated without the leave of the Court under section 16 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act. S. JAMES FINLAY AND Co. v. E. RAYMOND, 8 S. L. R. 60 138

Assessment of rent, suit for, landlord's rights as to 974

Attachment. See EXECUTION.

Auction-purchaser. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 47.

Auction sale, bid in, whether can be withdrawn 805

Award. See ARBITRATION 526

——— —. See ARBITRATION ACT.

———Application to set aside—Limitation 371

Bail. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 497.

Benami transaction—Mortgagor and mortgagee—Mortgagor purchasing benami in revenue sale—Subsequent mortgage sale, validity of—Right of bona fide lessee 274

Benamidar, whether can sue—Mortgage—Presumption—Mortgagor, whether can object to such institution 136

Bengal, Assam and North-Western Provinces Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), s. 13 751

Bengal Cess Act (IX B. C. of 1880), s. 20, construction of—Whether suit barred, where zerait in occupation of tenant entered in the cess return simply as zerait*—False entry in the return, effect of.*

Section 20 of the Bengal Cess Act (IX B. C. of 1880) does not enact that if a proprietor, whether by mistake or otherwise, enters a piece of land in the wrong part of his return, he thereby loses his right to claim rent. The Cess Act is a fiscal Act, and its object is that no land within the estate should escape assessment. It is immaterial for this purpose whether zerait land is entered as in the possession of a tenant or the khas possession of the zemindar; and this is sufficient to satisfy the requirements of section 20. The zemindar will be liable to punishment only if he enters land of one class in another class. C. SRI NARAIN SINGH v. SAHBOOL KHAN 304

Bengal Land Registration Act (VII of 1876), s. 78 465

Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act (XI of 1859), s. 37—Taluk in existence from before Permanent Settlement, division of—Portion of such taluk transferred—Protection of such portion.

When a portion of a taluk existing from before the Permanent Settlement is transferred and it is subsequently held in proportionate jama under a name different from the original taluk, but the subsequent transfer and descent thereof can be traced from the original taluk, the portion so transferred is also protected under section 37 of Act XI of 1859.

What the effect of the division of a taluk is must depend upon the intention of the parties. C. DOYAMAYEE CHOWDHURANI v. NARENDRA KISHORE ROY, 19 C. W. N. 79 114

——— ——— s. 37 cl. (4)—Land on which a garden stood before, sold for arrears of revenue—Incumbrance, whether void—Landlord, right of, to annul notice—Notice, how sufficient—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 102—Appeal, second, whether competent 258

Bengal Regulation XI of 1825, ss. 4, 5—Alluvion and diluvion—Government as owner of river-bed and proprietor of land abutting on river, dispute between—Encroachment.

Section 4 of the Bengal Regulation XI of 1825 is intended to apply not merely to cases of alluvion and dereliction arising between the owners of properties situated on opposite banks of a river, but also to cases in which the dispute is between the Government as the owner of the bed of the river and a proprietor whose land abuts on the river. Section 5 does not apply to cases of accretions made owing to recession of rivers. C. SECRETARY OF STATE v. JAGDAMBA DEBI 509

Bengal Rent Act (X of 1859) 928

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), applicability of 271

——— ——— ——— s. 5 432

——— ——— ——— s. 5 (1), (5)—Tenure-holder—Presumption—Lease—Construction of lease.

A lease provided:

(1) that the grant was made in order that the grantee might cultivate the land after making it fit for cultivation at his own expense by his own efforts.

(2) that the grantee might enjoy the land by cultivating it or having it cultivated, and that it would be competent to the grantee to make such other arrangements or adopt such other means as he might consider necessary for cultivating the same and that the grantor would not raise any objection thereto.

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

There was a period of remission fixed, during which no rent was to be paid for the land itself. The rate of rent itself was fixed in perpetuity and a premium was paid by the grantee to the grantor. The area covered by the lease exceeded one hundred bighas:

Held, (1) that under section 5 (5) of the Bengal Tenancy Act it was obligatory upon the Court to presume that the grantee was a tenure-holder,

(2) that the terms of the lease read together with the definition of tenure-holder given in section 5 (1) of the Bengal Tenancy Act instead of rebutting supported the statutory presumption; and

(3) that the definition given in the section was not exhaustive. C. BIBHUDENDRA MANSINGH v. DEBENDRA NATH DAS, 20 C. L. J. 140 432

——— ——— ——— s. 26 235, 352

——— ——— ——— s. 29—Partition among superior landlords—Distribution of rent—Enhancement.

If the total rent remains unaltered, its distribution, by agreement of parties, over different parcels of land does not constitute enhancement within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. ROWSHAN SIRCAR v. SHYAMA CHARAN CHAKRABARTY, 20 C. L. J. 331 49

——— ——— ——— s. 48 (h) 56

——— ——— ——— s. 49—Under-raiyat—Suit for rent by raiyat dismissed—Res judicata as to title—Under-raiyat claiming to hold directly under landlord and paying rent to plaintiff as gomastah—Notice to quit necessary.

The plaintiff, a gomastah of the landlord of a village obtained certain lands from the landlord and let them out to the defendant. In a previous rent suit brought by the plaintiff against the defendant, the defendant had pleaded that he had always paid his rent to the plaintiff for the benefit of the landlord and that the plaintiff was nothing more than a gomastah, and he was a raiyat holding directly under the landlord The rent suit was decided in favour of the defendant, and the plaintiff then sued that in establishment of his title as raiyat he could eject the defendant without notice as a trespasser:

Held, that the decision in the rent suit did not operate as res judicata on the question of title of the plaintiff; that the defendant could not be evicted without notice to quit as required by section 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act 1885. C. KALA GAZI v. MAHESWAR CHAUDHURI 273

——— ——— ——— s. 49 (a)—Lease-hold property, whether heritable—Lease for a term of years—Death of tenant before expiry of term—Right of son to hold lease—Suit for ejectment—Notice to quit.

A lease-hold property under the Bengal Tenancy Act or under any other Act if it is for a term of years is necessarily heritable, inasmuch as the contract enables the lessee to remain in possession for the full term.

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

Where a tenant holding under a written lease for a fixed term of years died before the expiry of his term and his son held the lease and went on cultivating the lands even after the lease:

Held, that the son was liable to be ejected without a notice to quit. C. NIRODE MOHAN DEY v. JAGARALI, 20 C. L. J. 328 45

——— ——— ——— s. 52 19

——— ——— ——— s. 65, scope of—Rent, when first charge—Landlord and tenant, relationship of—Landlord parting with his proprietary right, whether entitled to sell tenant's holding under s. 65—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, rr. 89 to 96—Court, power of, not to confirm sale.

Under section 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the sale of a holding is possible, so long as the rent is a first charge thereon, and it remains the first charge only so long as the relationship of landlord and tenant subsists.

Therefore, a landlord who has parted with his proprietary interest, is not entitled to invoke the special remedies vested in a landlord under section 65 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, but still he can have a sale in execution of his decree under the Code of an interest which is saleable.

Where after a sale in execution of a decree the decree-holder is paid the amount of his decree and there is a concurrent wish of the parties that the sale should be set aside, the Court, although not warranted by any provisions of rules 89 and onwards of Order XXI of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, to set aside the sale, may treat the sale as being of no effect and may decline to confirm it. C. RAM PRASAD v. RAM CHARAN SINGH 601

——— ——— ——— ss. 67, 193, Sch, III, Art. 2, cl. (b)—Lease, construction of—Fishery right, suit for—Limitation—Fishery, money payable for, whether rent.

Where a lease merely gives a right to fish in a jalkar, the fact that the lessee is not to claim reduction of the jama on the ground of drought or inundation does not necessarily show that any right to the soil is also conferred.

A suit to recover money due under such a lease comes under section 193 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and is barred if not brought within the special period provided by Schedule III, Article 2, clause (b), of the Act.

The money payable in respect of a fishery is not rent within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and as such, interest at the rate stipulated in the lease is recoverable on the amount.

Section 67 of the Bengal Tenancy Act relating to interest affects the contract between the parties, and the restriction on the liability of the tenants to pay interest at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum is a matter of substantive right, and does not apply to suits. C. KRISHNA LAL v. SALIM MAHOMED, 19 C. W. N. 514 614

——— ——— ——— s. 86 (6) 564

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 86, cl (6), construction of—Incumbrance, meaning of—Surrender—Incumbrance created by tenant, effect of, upon landlord.

Per Woodroffe, J.—The term "incumbrance" in section 86, clause 6, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, means not one which is binding on the landlord, but one which is binding as between the tenant and the incumbrancer.

In a case of surrender unlike that of abandonment, the landlord taking the tenant's rights should equitably be bound by the tenant's previous transaction by way of a mortgage. Neither the landlord nor the tenant can derogate as against his own grant.

Per Cose, J.—The landlord's rights under section 86, clause (6), of the Bengal Tenancy Act cannot be affected by the tenant's incumbrance which is not legally binding upon him. C. MAHAMMAD NASSARUDDIN SARDAR v. SHEIKH ISAB, 21 C. L. J. 185 1003

——— ——— ——— s. 88 564

——— ——— ——— ss. 98, cls. (3) and (7), 103—Common Manager, powers of—Application under s. 103, whether excluded.

The powers of a common Manager under section 98 (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act are the same as the co-owners jointly might, but for his appointment, have exercised.

Clause 7 of section 98 giving the Manager power to make any application under section 103 does no operate as an exclusion. C. BAKTA PRAMANIK v. KISHORI MOHAN 307

——— ——— ——— s. 103 307

——— ——— ——— s. 103A—Record of Rights—Presumption of correctness—Draft Record of Rights, whether admissible in evidence

It is not until a Record of Rights is finally published that the presumption of its correctness arises Therefore, entries in a draft Record of Rights, published under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, are not admissible in evidence. C. GULAB KUER v. RAM RATAN PANDEY, 18 C. W. N. 896 229

——— ——— ——— ss. 103A, 105, 109A—Entry in Record of Rights, Court not precluded from enquiring into correctness of—Application by landlord for fair rent—Enhancement—Jurisdiction—Appeal.

Section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act precludes a Court from going into the question whether the procedure under the Chapter has been followed and not from inquiring whether the resultant entry in a Record of Rights is correct.

Where on an application by a landlord under section 105 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the Special Judge enhanced the rent of a tenant who was described as korfa and the purpose of whose tenancy was residential, on the ground that it was below the prevailing rate:

Held, that the Bengal Tenancy Act did not apply to such a tenancy and the Special Judge had no jurisdiction to enhance the rent.

Section 109A is no bar to an appeal in a case of settlement of rent in which a question of jurisdiction is definitely raised C. RAMDAS MOKHOPADAYA v. BIPRA DAS PAL, 19 C. W. N. 85 446

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 105 446

——— ——— ——— s. 106, suit under—Question of title, whether determined in suit under s. 106—Civil Court, jurisdiction of.

A person who is not in possession of land which is claimed as rent-free at the date of the Record of Rights, cannot have the mere question of his title to hold the land rent-free tried in a suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), nor can he obtain possession of the land in a suit under that section.

Where, however, the plaintiff has a title and his claim is not barred by limitation he is entitled to possession, but he cannot get all the reliefs in a suit under section 106, whereas he can get a complete remedy by a suit in the Civil Court. C. PRAN KRISHNA SAHA v. TRAILAKHYA NATH CHOWDHURY 863

——— ——— ——— s. 109A 446

——— ——— ——— s. 140, scope of—Remedy against distraint—Ex parte order, Court's inherent power to review—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151—Inherent power, object of.

Section 140 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not afford the only remedy against a distraint made erroneously or on insufficient materials.

The Court which passes an ex parte order has the power to review it, as the Court has an inherent power to deal with an application to set aside an order made ex parte and to set it aside on a proper case being substantiated.

Section 151 of the new Code of Civil Procedure is intended to enlarge the discretion of Courts and to discourage technicalities. C. MADHAVANAND RAM v. MADHU MAHTO 812

——— ——— ——— s. 148 (b)—Rent suit—Parties—Plaint—Property in arrears, identification of.

It is not competent to a landlord to choose arbitrarily some out of several representatives of the original tenant and to institute a suit for rent against such selected persons.

Where in a suit for rent the defendant asserts that he is not in possession of the lands for which rent is claimed and that he is not able to identify the properties in arrears, on account of their boundaries not having been set out in the plaint.

Held, that the plaintiff should be made to comply with the requirements of clause (b) of section 148 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. SATYABHUSHAN GHOSAL v. MONMOTHO NATH 313

——— ——— ——— s. 153—Suit for rent for less than Rs. 100—Decree—Execution 294

——— ——— ——— s. 170 (3)—Decree, satisfaction of—Purchaser of part of occupancy-holding, whether entitled to make deposit.

The purchaser of a part of an occupancy-holding, which is not transferable by local custom or usage, is entitled to make a deposit under section 170 (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. BHAGRAJ SINGH v. MITHUB SINGH 424

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 170 (3)—Non-transferable occupancy holding, whether can be transferred—Landlord, right of—Decree for arrears of rent—Deposit by private purchaser.

A right of occupancy which is not transferable by custom or local usage can be transferred, but where the transfer is a sale of the whole holding, the landlord in the absence of his consent is entitled to enter on such holding.

A private purchaser of such an occupancy holding is quite competent to make a deposit under section 170 (3), Bengal Tenancy Act, to prevent the landlord from selling the holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent as, his interest is such as is voidable on the sale. C. AHMDULLAH CHOWDHURY v. HARKARU SAHA 176

——— ——— ——— s. 173 431

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 178 (1) (d), 194—Privity of contract, whether exists between lessor and under-lessee—Covenant by tenure-holder not to excavate tank—Breach of covenant by raiyat—Tenure-holder, liability of—No actual damages suffered—Infringement of right—Nominal damages.

Section 178 (1) (d) of the Bengal Tenancy Act is controlled by section 194.

There is neither privity of contract nor privity of estate between the head lessor and the under-lessee and hence the under-lessee is not personally liable for the rent reserved by, nor on the covenants contained in, the head lease.

Wherever any act injures another's right and would be evidence in future in favour of the wrong-doer, an action may be maintained for an invasion of the right, without proof of any specific damage.

Where a tenure-holder, who had expressly undertaken not to excavate any tank on the property, granted to a raiyat a lease of some land within the tenure and the raiyat being unaware of the restrictive covenant in the lease of the tenure-holder excavated a tank:

Held, (1) that the tenure-holder, and not the raiyat, was liable in damages to his lessor for excavation of the tank by the raiyat;

(2) that there had been a breach of covenant not to excavate any tank, that is, an infringement of the legal right of the plaintiff, who was consequently entitled to nominal damages, even though he may not have suffered actual damage. Nominal damages does not necessarily mean small damages. C. AKSHOY KUMAR CHATTERJEE v. AKMAN MOLLA, 20 C. L. J. 551 397

——— ——— ——— s. 178 (3) (d) 235

——— ——— ——— s. 183 352

——— ——— ——— s. 193 614

——— ——— ——— s. 194 397

——— ——— ——— Sch. III, art. 2 (b) 614

——— ——— ——— Sch. III, art. 6 as amended by Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy Act (I of 1908)—Special limitation—Suit by a co-sharer landlord for his share of rent, whether governed by Art. 6.

The special limitation provided by Article 6 of Schedule III of the Bengal Tenancy Act, as amended by Act I of 1908, Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy Act, governs an application for execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent in a suit to which the other co-sharers were not parties, the decree being for a sum of money not exceeding Rs 500.

Article 6 is applicable when the decree has been made in a suit between landlord and tenant to whom (and not to which) the provisions of the Act are applicable, it being immaterial that all the provisions of the Act are not applicable C. NARENDRA CHANDRA v. AFIFANNESSA BIBI, 19 C. W. N. 731 729

Bequest in favour of a person not named—Secret instructions to trustee—Admissibility of oral evidence to prove trust 946

Bombay Abkari Act (V of 1878), s. 43—Mhowra flowers—Consigned by railway—Found at an intermediate station for transhipment—Possession—Consignor, whether guilty.

The accused consigned at a Railway Station certain mhowra flowers for conveyance to Nandod. The Railway Company took possession of these goods and in the course of the conveyance to Nandod they were found at Ankleshvar, a place where they naturally would be in the course of this transport. Ankleshvar being a place in a prescribed area within which even the possession of mhowra flowers without a permit is unlawful the accused was charged and convicted for possessing mhowra flowers without a permit under section 43 of the Abkari Act:

Held, that the applicant was not guilty of the possession of the flowers, and in the absence of any evidence that he conspired with the Railway Company that these goods should be conveyed without a permit, he was not guilty of even abetting the offence. B. CHUNI LAL MANI LAL v. EMPEROR, 17 BOM. L. R. 72; 16 CR. L. J. 212 836

Bombay District Municipal Act (III of 1901), ss. 3 (17), 14, 59—Trollies pushed on rails in a public street, whether subject to wheel-tax—Vehicle carrying rubbish, meaning of.

Trollies running on rails in the streets of a Municipal town, pushed or pulled by hand and used by contractors for the purpose of carrying material to fill up a tank, are 'vehicles' and subject to the wheel-tax under the District Municipal Act. B. DAYABHAI NARANDAS v. PESTONJI JAMSHEDJI, 17 BOM. L. R. 63 497 ——— ——— ——— ss. 82, 83, 86—Bill to recover arrears—Statutory requirements not fulfilled—Failure to pay—Distress warrant, whether legal.

——— ——— ——— s. 14 497

A bill to recover the arrears of house-tax served upon a person by a Municipality does not fulfil the requirements of section 82 (2) (b) (ii) of the District Municipalities Act, 1901, if it does not specify the time within which an appeal may be preferred under section 86 of the Act, and in such a case the issue of a distress warrant on failure to pay the arrears is illegal inasmuch as the right of distress depends upon the observance of the statutory formalities, it being a right conferred by the Statute upon those conditions only. B. SURAT CITY MUNICIPALITY v. CHHABILDAS DHARAMCHAND, 16 BOM. L. R. 749 573

Bombay District Municipal Act—concld.

——————— s. 160 (3)—Compensation, award of—Boom in prices, whether to be considered in estimating market-value—Value of portion of land enhanced owing to acquisition of part of it—Compensation for that portion, whether allowed on severance.

In awarding compensation for acquisition of land under section 160 (3) of the Bombay District Municipal Act if a boom in prices of lands exist owing to certain extraordinary circumstances, it must be considered in estimating the market-value of the land to be acquired.

Where a portion of a land acquires a fancy value owing to the acquisition of a part of it for widening a street, no compensation is allowed for the severance of the same. S. KARACHI MUNICIPALITY v. KHATAN MAL HIRANAND, 8 S. L. R. 126 326

Bombay Gambling Act (IV of 1887), ss. 5, 6—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 1 (2), 103, 243—Search under Gambling Act—Mashirs, absence of, effect of—Accused pleading guilty—Magistrate, duty of, to convict.

All searches under a special or local law are not to be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code and, therefore, the absence of mashirs at a search held under the Bombay Gambling Act, 1887, does not make the search illegal.

Where an accused pleads guilty but shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, the Magistrate should not acquit him. S. EMPEROR v. ASLUM, 8 S. L. R. 213; 16 Cr. L. J. 238 910

Bombay Land Revenue Code (Bom. Act V of 1879), s. 135J—Presumption attaching to entries in Record of Rights Mortgage—Properties mortgaged—Ownership of mortgagor—Suit between mortgagee and third party—Burden of proof—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 60—Endorsement by Registering Officer—Evidence.

Section 135J of the Bombay Land Revenue Code enacts that entries in the Record of Rights shall be presumed in effect to be a true statement of their contents. Therefore, in the absence of any other evidence, a Court would be obliged to be guided by any facts so entered in the Record of Rights.

In a suit between the mortgagee and a third party the onus of proving that the properties comprised in the mortgage-deed belong to the mortgagor, lies upon the mortgagee.

The Registering Officer's endorsement on a registered document is evidence, though, of course, necessarily not conclusive of the truth of the facts set forth therein. B. ANANDIBAI BHASKAR v. NARAYAN DHONDDEV, 7 BOM. L. R. 49 478

——————— ss. 189, 197 147

Buddhist Law—Mortgage by husband, when binding on wife—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 1—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 85, 59—Mesne profits.

Where it is found that a Burmese Buddhist husband had authority from his wife to enter into a mortgage of the property, to sign the mortgage document and to register the same, and to be sued on the mortgage so as to bind her interest, the mortgagee is entitled to a declaration that he is the owner and to possession.

Buddhist Law—contd.

A decree for mesne profits may be passed against a defendant who has no right to be in possession as against the plaintiff, though he is the other defendant's tenant. L. B. MA SHWE MIN v. P. A. R. M. CHETTY 788

Burden of proof. See EVIDENCE 610

——— —— Landlord and tenant, relation of, proof of—Presumption 804

———————Liability of Director of Company grounds of 594

———————, mitigation of—Consideration—Loans, oral—Lekha bahi, entries in, whether reliable by themselves—Extrinsic evidence, necessity of 581

——— ——— Necessity of trying Magistrate's evidence—Transfer 848

——— ——— Private land, meaning of—Conversion of ryoti into private land—Degree of proof—Letting lands as Kambattam, whether amounts to conversion—Landlord cultivating lands himself—Presumption 77

——— ——— Question of fact—Tenancy permanent or not 500

——— ——— Rent-decree, setting aside of—Fraud, allegation of—Rent, exaggeration of—Entry in Record-of-Rights, mistake due to, effect of 890

——— ——— Right of convert's son to inherit—Exclusion of kafir under Muhammadan Law 357

——— ———Suit between mortgagor and third party 478

——— ——— Suit for possession by purchaser 13

——— ——— Will—Testamentary capacity 276

Burmese Buddhist Law—Widower's power of disposing his property—Auratha son's right—Purchaser, rights and liabilities of

Where a Burmese Buddhist and his wife jointly acquire certain property and the wife dies leaving a son of the marriage and the husband marries again without partitioning the property with that son, the son is entitled only to a fourth share of the property as an auratha son and the father can dispose absolutely of the three-fourths of the property and a purchaser of the whole property takes the property subject to the auratha son's fourth share, unless the son's right to claim is barred by limitation. L. B. NAUNG SHWE PO v. MAUNG BEIN 632

Calcutta Municipal Act (III of 1899), ss. 223, 228—Consolidated rate first charge on property—Mortgage and charge, distinction between—Purchaser for value without notice—Purchaser under involuntary alienation—Inquiry.

Section 223 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, deals with the question of the personal liability (liability in personam) of the purchaser of the premises for arrears unsatisfied when the title vested in him. Section 228 deals with the question of the liability of the premises (liability in rem) for the rates due thereon. Section 228 is perfectly general in its terms and makes the consolidated rate, as it accrues due from time to time, a first charge on the property (subject to arrears of land revenue). The objects of the two sections are radically distinct and section 228 cannot be controlled by section 223.

Calcutta Municipal Act—concld.

A mortgage is a transfer of an interest in specific immoveable property. A charge only secures payment of money out of that property. The distinction becomes important in the determination of the question whether the property can be followed in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value without notice.

Where only a charge has been created by express words of the Statute, the charge cannot be enforced against the property in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value without notice.

A defendant to avail himself of the defence ought to plead in his written statement that he is a purchaser for value without notice, and the onus of proving it lies on him.

A purchaser with notice may shelter himself under the title of the person from whom he purchased if the latter could successfully raise the defence of want of notice.

To a purchaser acquiring title under an involuntary alienation, constructive notice cannot be imputed to the same extent as to a purchaser at a private sale. A purchaser without notice from a person who had notice is protected.

Where a purchaser should, and could, have ascertained before his purchase the true state of affairs as to the charge upon the property purchased by him, he is in the same position as if he had made such inquiry and the purchasers from him are in no higher position, if they could have by inquiry, before they acquired title, ascertained the fact. C. AKSHOY KUMAR v. CORPORATION OF CALCUTTA, 19 C. W. N. 37; 21 C. L. J. 177 261

Caste Disabilities Removal Act (XXI of 1850)—Right of convert's son to inherit—Exclusion of kafir under Muhammadan Law—Burden of proof—Admission on point of law.

A convert's son must be put in the position in which he would have been if his father had not changed his religion. The words "any right of inheritance" in Act XXI of 1850 refer to any right of inheritance accruing to any person, which right is not affected by conversion.

Therefore, a Hindu son is entitled to inherit the property of his father who was converted to Muhammadanism.

Though, under the Muhammadan Law, a son is prima facie entitled to a share yet the fact of his being a Hindu shifts the burden of proof on him to show that he is not excluded as a "kafir".

A party is not bound by the erroneous admission on a point of law made by his Pleader in the lower Court. S HASSOMAL MURLIMAL v. GHULAM MAAOMED, 8 S. L. R. 156 357

Cause of action against agent and his legal representatives, whether same—Principal and agent—Misappropriation by agent—Termination of agency—Suit to recover money—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 62, 89, 120 807

——— arising in part—Jurisdiction 129

——— Claims for possession and mesne profits 679

Cause of action—concld.

——— Claim for rent accruing due from year to year—Recurring claim 265

——— Fresh suit—Mortgagee's rights to possession of mortgaged property declared—Execution of decree 637

———, misjoinder of 344

——— Relief claimed in plaint not dealt with in compromise—Fresh suit, whether barred 708

——— Scheme, suit for framing and for appointment of a committee of supervision, after removal of trustee—Death of trustee—Cause of action, if survives against successor-in-office 874

——— Suit for redemption dismissed—Second suit on basis of promise to allow redemption, maintainability of 732

——— Suit on bond conditioned with performance of several acts 849

Central Provinces Tenancy Act (IX of 1883), s. 94—Ejectment, meaning of—Wrongful but peaceful possession with intention of excluding the rightful holder.

Ejectment in section 94 of the Central Provinces Tenancy Act means a dispossession, that is to say, a loss of possession through some act of the defendant which was a taking of possession with the intention of excluding the plaintiff. Force includes in cases of this sort the moral equivalent of force

Thus, a person who takes wrongful but peaceful possession, and when asked to give up possession by the rightful holder, refuses to do so, must be held to eject the rightful holder, provided his declared intention is to retain possession permanently. N. Musammat AMBA v. SHEORAM, 11 N. L. R. 8 864

Certificate of Collector. See PENSIONS ACT, s. 6. 927

Cess—Sadelwar and Madiri Kasuvs 688

Charge. See MORTGAGE.

——— Consolidated rate first charge on property—Mortgage and charge, distinction between—Purchaser for value without notice—Purchaser under involuntary alienation—Inquiry 261

———, enforceability of—Charge on land for improvement of which advance made by Government—Sale, validity of 391

——— Further charge, deed of, suit for recovery of money due on—Mortgagor not to redeem prior mortgages without first discharging further charge—Mortgagee to enforce at any time payment of money due on deed of further charge—Limitation, starting point of 540

——— s, joinder of—Offences committed on different dates—Same transaction 184

——— Lease providing for payment of arrears of rent from buildings erected on land—Priority over unsecured creditors—Charge 34

Charter Act (24 & 25 Vic., C. 104), s. 15 917

Cheating. See PENAL CODE, s. 415.

Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act (VI of 1876), ss. 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 11, 12, 19 (d)—Mortgage-debt created on property outside Chota Nagpur, whether affected by Act—Manager, jurisdiction of, to deal with outside debts and liabilities—Mortgagee, rights of—Proprietor, liability of.

The Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act does not apply to debts and liabilities which are charged upon immoveable property outside Chota Nagpur.

Therefore, a Manager of an encumbered estate appointed under the Act and the Revenue Authorities in Chota Nagpur have no jurisdiction to reduce the interest or deal in any other way with a mortgage-debt created by the proprietor of the estate on a property outside Chota Nagpur, and the proprietor of such an estate is not entitled to the rents payable under the patni leases which were reserved in lieu of interest on the mortgage-debt, until the principal sum secured by the mortgage is re-paid, and is liable to refund any amount realized as such. C. JYOTI PROSAD SINGH v. KUMUD NATH 526

Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (B. C. VI of 1908), s. 11—Suit to recover rent—Rent not recoverable for period prior to registration in office of landlord.

Under section 11 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (B. C. VI of 1908), the transferee of a tenure can never recover any rent for the period prior to his application to the landlord for registration in his office.

An entry in the Record of Rights gives the transferee only the presumption of possession under the title he claims, but it cannot give him the right to recover rent which is barred by a statutory provision of the rent law, and such entry cannot take the place of the procedure which the law has laid down as a condition precedent to the collection of rent. C. ANGNU GHASI v. CHAITHU PATRA, 19 C. W. N. 461 605

——— ——— ——— ss. 139 (6), 20 (3)—Suits for recovery of possession, when barred by s. 139 (6) Occupancy right, acquisition of.

Section 139, clause (6), of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, 1908, bars only a suit which relates to agricultural land and is instituted by the headman of a village in his character as headman, but does not bar a suit for recovery of possession on declaration of title.

The mere fact that a raiyat, who has a right of occupancy in his agricultural lands, is at the same time the rent-collector of the village and is remunerated as such, does not deprive him of his right of occupancy. C. DURGA PROSAD SINGH v. HARI RAM MAHTO, 19 C. W. N. 578 538

Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 244—Non-transferable occupancy-holding sold in execution of rent-decree—Application by purchaser to set aside sale—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s 173—Fraud—Appeal.

A purchaser of a portion of a non-transferable occupancy-holding sold in execution of a decree for rent is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of section 244 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882, and therefore, the question whether the sale should be set aside on application of the purchaser on the ground of fraud or under the provisions of section 173, Bengal Tenancy Act, is a question between the parties to the suit or their representatives, and against the decision of such question there is both an appeal and a second appeal C. KALI CHARAN MAHATO v. GOURI SANKAR SINGH 431

——— ——— ——— ss. 282, 283—Decree—Property sold subject to mortgage lien—Mortgage lien, order for, not contested within a year—Suit by mortgagee—Defence—Fraud—Purchaser, whether entitled to contest mortgage as fraudulent—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s 44.

A claimed to be the holder of a mortgage upon certain property which had passed to B on a sale in execution of a decree. In the execution proceedings under that decree A's claim was recognized under section 282 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, but B did not challenge that claim under section 283 of the Code. The property was sold subject to the charge. A then sued to assert his mortgage. B set up that the mortgage was fraudulent. A contended that the order under section 282 was conclusive, as it was not set aside in a suit filed under section 283 within a year from its date:

Held, that section 283 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, can only contemplate a suit based upon facts known to the party against whom an order was passed under section 282 within a year from the date of the order and that if B was not aware of the fraud within a year and became aware of it afterwards, he could, under section 44 of the Evidence Act, assert the fraudulent nature of A's application and the consequent invalidity of the order passed upon it in any proceeding instituted by A on the strength of such order. B. CHIMNA SADASHIV v. RAMDAYAL PRAYAGDAS, 16 BOM. L. R 648 238

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 283 265

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 317 230

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 335—Order under s. 335, effect of, if not set aside within one year.

An order passed under section 335 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, is conclusive as between the parties and, if not set aside by a suit instituted within one year, it cannot be questioned in any subsequent suit as between the same parties, whether the possession given to the auction-purchaser is actual or symbolical. M RANGASWAMI AIYAR v. SUBBARAYA AIYAR, (1914) M. W. N. 897 90

——— ——— ——— s. 602—Mortgage created by security bond—Transfer of Property Act IV of 1882, s. 67—Execution—Decree for costs—Application against surety—Sale on claim arising under mortgage—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV. r. 4—Personal liability of surety.

Where an application for execution of a decree for costs obtained in the Privy Council against a surety and the properties which he had charged as security under section 602 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882, was resisted on the ground that the security could not be realised without a suit under section 67 of the Transfer of Property Act

Held, (1) that the claim of the decree-holder was based entirely on the security bond which created a mortgage in her favour and the claim against the surety was thus a claim arising under the mortgage, within the meaning of Order XXXIV, rule 14, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, and the properties could not be sold without a suit under section 67 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882:

Civil Procedure Code—(1882)—contd.

(2) but that the security bond also created a personal liability, and the decree-holder could realise the amount of costs covered by the security bond from the person and other properties of the surety under section 145, Civil Procedure Code, 1908. C. CHANDRABATI v. BABU RAM 365

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 589

——— ——— ——— ss. 2, cl. (2), 97, O. XX, rr. 12 to 18—"Matters in controversy in the suit," meaning of—Preliminary decree—Decision on issues in bar, whether preliminary decree—Appeal—Omission to frame decree, effect of, on right to appeal—Final decree, effect of—Preliminary decree, preparation of, where provided.

The expression "matter in controversy in the suit" in clause (2) of section 2 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, refers to the subject-matter of the litigation, and should not be understood in its widest possible sense.

Therefore, a decision in plaintiff's favour on the issue of his locus standi to sue is not a decision of a matter in controversy in the suit and, consequently, is not a preliminary decree within the meaning of clause (2) of section 2 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, and is not appealable.

If a decision is in reality a preliminary decree, the mere omission on the part of the Court to embody its effect in a formal expression does not negative the right of the party affected to prefer an appeal.

There should be only one preliminary decree in a suit to be followed by one final decree. A preliminary decree ascertains what is to be done, while the final decree states the result achieved by means of the preliminary decree.

The cases where the Legislature contemplated the preparation of a preliminary decree, are specified in rules 12 to 18 of Order XX of the Code. C. KAMINI DEBI v. PROMOTHO NATH, 20 C. L. J. 476, 19 C. W. N. 755 317

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 2 (2) 317

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 2 (11) 1001

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 9 112

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 10, scope of—Jurisdiction—Res judicata—Title—Issue—Parties—Charter Act, 1861, s. 15.

Section 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, requires, among other things, that the suit should be between parties litigating under the same title and the issue should be the same in both suits.

A Court has no jurisdiction to decide the question of res judicata in a proceeding under section 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Its only jurisdiction in the proceeding is to stop the new suit if it finds the existence of the circumstances mentioned in the section as conditions precedent to the passing of the order.

A High Court can interfere under section 15 of the Charter Act with interlocutory orders when they might lead to failure of justice or irreparable injury. C. SIVAPROSAD RAM v. TRICOMDAS 917

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 11 249, 417

——— ——— ——— s. 11, O. II, r. 2—Res judicata—Cause of action—Suit for redemption dismissed—Second suit on basis of promise to allow redemption, maintainability of—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 12—Appeal re-heard on application for review—Second appeal—Limitation.

When an application for review of an appeal is admitted and the appeal is re-heard and a fresh decree dismissing the appeal is passed on grounds different from those on which the appeal was originally dismissed, a fresh period of limitation for appeal begins to run from the date of the new decree.

The plaintiff-appellant first sued the defendant-respondent for redemption of a piece of land on the basis of a mortgage for Rs. 280, but failed; subsequently he brought the present suit, alleging the same set of facts but basing the suit on the 1st defendant's promise to allow redemption on payment of Rs. 400, for which sum the land had been sub-mortgaged to the 2nd and 3rd defendants. The lower Courts found the promise proved, but dismissed the suit as barred by res judicata and Order II, rule 2, Civil Procedure Code:

Held, that the suit is not barred by res judicata or by Order II, rule 2, Civil Procedure Code, as the suit is not based on the mortgage but on a subsequent promise to allow redemption, which is an entirely new cause of action.

If a man promises to deliver land for an agreed price and fails to fulfil his promise, there is nothing to prevent the Court from decreeing specific performance of the contract. L. B. MAUNG KYAW v. MA GAUK 732

——— ——— ——— s. 11—Res judicata—"Heard and finally decided"—Compromise—Relief claimed in plaint not dealt with in compromise—Fresh suit, whether barred—Cause of action—Estoppel by judgment.

When a matter was not "heard and finally decided" in a suit but a decree was passed on the basis of a compromise agreement, the reliefs claimed in the plaint but not included in such a decree, should not be deemed to have been refused so far as to bar a fresh suit for the said reliefs, if the cause of action in the succeeding suit had not arisen on the date of presentation of the plaint in the prior suit.

There can be an estoppel by judgment in a consent decree only when the question raised by the subsequent suit was present to the minds of the parties and was actually dealt with by the consent decree. In all these cases the question is whether the parties did intend that the question at issue should be finally settled between the parties by the consent decree, and did the consent decree so actually settle that question. M. MAHALINGA SUNDARA THEVAN v. KRISHNA THEVAN 708

——— ——— s. 11—Res judicata—Jurisdiction—Conduct of party to be bound by res judicata—Previous decision, when conclusive between parties—Hindu widow, decree against, when binding on reversioners—Compromise decree—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 141—Adverse possession—Thak and survey map, presumption relating to.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

In determining the jurisdiction of the Court, which decided the former suit, to try the subsequent suit, in order to apply the rule of res judicata regard should be had to the jurisdiction of that Court at the date, not of the subsequent suit, but of the former suit.

Res judicata operates against a person who took an active part in a litigation in contesting, though unsuccessfully, the claim of the then plaintiff, notwithstanding the fact that he was merely described as a pro forma defendant.

The decision regarding the operation of res judicata between the parties in a previous suit is conclusive as between the parties or their representatives.

A decree obtained upon a fair trial in a suit by or against a Hindu widow in possession of the estate of the full owner, operates as res judicata regarding only the questions tried in the suit.

Where a compromise amounting to a bona fide settlement of disputes is made for the benefit of the estate, it binds the reversioner quite as much as a decree on contest.

The mere transfer of title does not prolong a cause of action.

Article 141, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act, applies when it is proved that the last full owner was in possession at the time of his death, and the fact that on his death, he was succeeded by his widow, daughter or mother, will not bar limitation in case time began to run against him on his being dispossessed.

Before Act IX of 1871 came into operation the title of the reversioner ceased along with the loss of the title of the female heir by adverse possession.

The presumption of genuineness of thak and survey maps, furnishing valuable evidence of possession and title at the time they were made, is rebuttable. C. MOHENDRA NATH BISWAS v. SHAMSUNNESSA KHATUN, 19 C. L. J. 457 954

——— ——— ——— s. 11—Res judicata—

Finding of lower Court objected to in appeal but not disposed of by Appellate Court, whether final.

Where an appeal is preferred against the finding of an issue, but the Appellate Court does not decide finally on that point as the appeal is disposed of on other points, it cannot be held that the finding of the lower Appellate Court is final and, therefore, the decision cannot operate as res judicata. U. B. NGA TI v. NGA PAN, 7 BUR. L. T. 249 959

——— ——— ——— s. 11—Res judicata—

Court deciding previous suit not competent to try subsequent suit, effect of.

The decision in a previous suit by a Court not competent to try the subsequent suit does not operate as res judicata in the subsequent suit. O. JIT SINGH v. RAM BAKHSH SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 44 537

——— ——— ——— s. 11—Res judicata—

Suit by reversioner against purchaser—Legal necessity, issue of, determination of—Suit failing for portion of property—Second suit for that portion—Issue of legal necessity—Decision in former suit, whether res judicata—"Litigating under the same title."

Where in a former suit between a reversioner to the estate of a widow and a purchaser from her, an sue was raised as to whether there was legal necessity for the widow's alienation and it was decided adversely to the purchaser, but the reversioner's suit failed for a moiety of the property because it was not found that that moiety had passed to him then, and he filed the present suit after that moiety had passed to him:

Held, that the decision on the issue of legal necessity in the former suit, was res judicata between the parties in the present suit as in both the suits the plaintiff litigated as the owner of the reversion and the defendant as the purchaser from the widow. C. SURJA KANTA RAI CHOWDHURY v. FANI BHUSHAN BANERJEE, 18 C. W. N. 888 226

——— ——— ——— s. 11, Ex. IV, O. XXXIV, r. 1, O. II, r. 2—Several mortgages upon same property—Necessary parties to suit—Two mortgages in favour of same person—Suit on later mortgage—Subsequent suit on former mortgage, whether maintainable.

Where there are several mortgages upon the same property, any mortgagee suing upon his mortgage must make all the other mortgagees as well as the mortgagor parties to the suit.

Where a mortgagee having two mortgages of different dates upon the same property sues upon the mortgage of later date first and has the property sold without reference to the prior mortgage, he cannot afterwards bring a separate suit on the prior mortgage. B. DHONDO RAMCHANDRA KULKARNI v. BHIKOJI GOPAL, 17 BOM. L. R. 144; 39 B. 188 1005

——— ——— ——— s. 11, Ex. IV—*Suit for recovery of water rate—Subsequent suit for injunction restraining defendant from tapping water-course—Res judicata—Enjoyment of water-course—Right of person in possession—Jus tertii*

The plaintiffs sued the defendants' father for recovery of water rate and obtained an ex parte decree. The defendants having again threatened to draw water, the plaintiffs sued for an injunction restraining the defendants from tapping the plaintiffs' water-course.

Held, (1) that the allegation that the water-course belonged to the Government and not to the plaintiffs was a matter which might and ought to have been made a ground of defence in the former suit within the meaning of Explanation IV to section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code and that the judgment in that suit operated as res judicata, as it held that the water-course was the plaintiffs' and that the defendants had no right to take water from it.

(2) that even assuming that the plaintiffs were trespassers and had been in enjoyment of the disputed portion of the water-course for less than the statutory period sufficient to give them an easement by prescription, still they were entitled to protection in their enjoyment of the water-course against all persons except the true owner, and the plea of jus tertii was not sufficient to disentitle them to the injunction sought. S. GOBIND RAM v. SABGHATULAH, 8 S. L. R. 218 999

——— ——— ——— s. 13—Foreign judgment, when suit on, competent in British Courts—Decision on merits, when not—Competent jurisdiction, Court of.

A case in which the written statement of the defendant is struck out for his failure to answer interrogatories and he is not permitted to go into the merits at the trial, cannot be said to have been decided on the merits.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Therefore, a plaintiff is not entitled to sue in the Courts in India on a foreign judgment thus obtained.

Quære.—Whether a judgment passed in the exercise of jurisdiction conferred on the High Court in England pursuant to an Act of the Imperial Parliament is the judgment of a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purpose of section 13 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908? M. PERURI VISVANATHA v. KEYMER 386 ——— ss. 20, 80, O. VII, r. 11 (d)—Notice, whether necessary in all suits against Secretary of State for India in Council—Jurisdiction—District, meaning of—Acquiescence in jurisdiction, whether presumed from defendant's failure to apply for transfer.

Notice under section 80 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, is necessary in every case instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council. The term "district" in that section must mean the district in which the suit is instituted, and the notice required under section 80 must be served on the Collector or on one of the Collectors of that district.

A suit instituted at Sealdah based on a notice to the Collector of Purneah under section 80 of the Civil Procedure Code and on a cause of action arising mainly at Howrah against defendants, one of whom carries on business at Howrah, is wholly untenable.

Order VII, rule 11 (d), does not apply where there is no statement in the plaint which suggests that the suit is barred.

A defendant who objects to the jurisdiction of a Court cannot be said to have acquiesced in the trial of the suit if he does not apply for a transfer. C. RATAN CHAND DHARAM CHAND v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 18 C. W. N. 1340 232 ——— ss. 22, 23, 24, 151—Court not subordinate to High Court, whether s. 23 applicable to—Original side of High Court, suit pending in, whether can be transferred—Inherent power, exercise of—Stay of suit, grounds for—Abuse of process of Court—Forum.

Section 23 of the Civil Procedure Code does not apply where the Court in which the suit has been instituted is not a Court subordinate to a High Court.

Therefore a suit pending on the original side of the High Court cannot be transferred under the provisions of the above section nor can the proceedings be stayed when the cause of action or a cause of action arose within the jurisdiction of the Court.

A High Court has an inherent jurisdiction to stay any suit which is an abuse of the process of the Court.

But where the parties in a defamation suit do not reside within the jurisdiction of the High Court and the plaintiff proves that he has been defamed and that the defamatory matter has been published within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court and that he has suffered damages within the local limits of the jurisdiction of that Court by reason of the publication, it cannot be said that the institution of the suit in the High Court is such an abuse of the process of the Court as to invoke its inherent jurisdiction to stay the suit.

Per Tyabji, J.—The plaintiffs have the choice of the forum and their choice should not be restricted because the defendants may find it more difficult to make their defence in one forum than in another. M. HINDUSTAN ASSURANCE AND MUTUAL BENEFIT SOCIETY LD. v. MULRAJ, 27 M. L. J. 645 455

——— s. 23 455

——— s. 37—Court passing decree, whether entitled to execute it, when property transferred to jurisdiction of other Court—Different Courts having jurisdiction to execute decree—Convenience, jurisdiction determined on ground of.

A Court which originally passed a decree ceases to have jurisdiction to execute it if the properties comprised in the decree are transferred to another district.

In a case where different Courts have jurisdiction to execute a decree, the question which Court will execute it, is settled on the ground of convenience. M. PARTHASARADHI APPA RAO v. MAKA VENKATADRI APPA RAO, (1914) M. W. N. 896 88

——— s. 42 597

——— ss. 42, 47, 104 (h), 145—Small Cause Court decree transferred for execution to Munsif—Order directing arrest of surety, whether appealable.

Where the decree of a Small Cause Court is sent for execution to a Munsif and the latter directs the arrest of the surety of the judgment-debtor, the order of arrest is appealable. C. ADHAR CHANDRA GOPE v. PULIN BEHARY, 20 C. L. J. 129 10

——— s. 47 10, 61, 249, 254, 363, 589

——— ss. 47, 73—Execution proceedings—Rateable distribution—Rival decree-holders—Order refusing rateable distribution—Decree—Appeal.

An order made under section 73 of the Code of Civil Procedure rejecting an application for rateable distribution of the assets between two rival decree-holders, which does not affect or interest the judgment-debtor, is an order in execution proceedings, but is not a decree unless all the conditions enumerated in section 47 are present. No appeal, therefore, lies from such an order.

It is essential for the application of section 73 of the Code of Civil Procedure that the decrees should have been passed against the same judgment-debtor. C. BALMER LAWRIE & Co. v. JADU NATH BANERJEE, 42 C. 1 644

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 60—Execution of decree—Legal representative of judgment-debtor, objection by—Attached property not of judgment-debtor—Determination of such question—Appeal.

Where a decree-holder in execution of a decree for money against a judgment-debtor personally attaches and proceeds to sell properties, of which the judgment-debtor alleges that he is in possession not in his own right but as shebait of a deity to whom the properties have been dedicated, the case does not fall within section 47, but under Order XXI, rule 60, of the Civil Procedure Code.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

When a decree has been passed in a suit against a shebait as representing an idol, it is binding on the succeeding shebait, provided it has been passed without any fraud or collusion. But where a decree has been passed against a person in his capacity as shebait, execution can be taken out only against the properties of the endowment in his hands.

Per Beachcroft, J.—If the claim of an objector, who has been brought on the record as the legal representative of the judgment-debtor, is really in his own interests as representative of the judgment-debtor, the case will come under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, but if the claim is adverse to his interests as representative, it will not. C. UPENDRA NATH v. KUSUM KUMARI DASI, 20 C. L. J. 485; 19 C. W. N. 520 328

——— s. 47, O. XXI, r. 60 —Legal representative of judgment-debtor—Objection that attached property not of judgment-debtor, determination of—Applicability of Order XXI, r. 60.

An objection, raised by a person, who has been brought on the record in an execution proceeding as the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor, that certain properties sought to be made liable do not constitute assets available to the decree-holder, must be determined under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908.

Obiter dictum.—Where X, in execution of a decree for money against Y personally, attaches property in the possession of Y, which Y alleges he holds not in his own right but as shebait of a deity who is not a party to the suit, the question does not arise between the parties to the suit, but between X on the one hand and Y in his capacity as trustee of an endowment on the other hand and should be determined under Order XXI, rule 60, of the Civil Procedure Code. C. AJO KOER v. GORAK NATH, 20 C. L. J. 481; 19 C. W. N. 517 321

——— s. 47—Order in execution proceedings, when appealable 444

——— s. 47, O. XXXIV, r. 12—Prior mortgagee, ex parte decree on subsequent mortgage against—Interest of prior mortgagee, whether can be declared subsequently—Application to prevent execution by such prior mortgagee, whether under s. 47.

Where a prior mortgagee is made a party to a suit on a subsequent mortgage and allows an ex parte decree to be passed against him, he is not precluded from having his right as a prior mortgagee declared under Order XXXIV, rule 12, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908.

An application by such a prior mortgagee to prevent execution being taken out against the mortgaged properties comes under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, being a question between the parties. C. GADADHAR PROSAD v. AULADIN 164

——— s. 47—Representative—Judgment-debtor, application of—Auction-purchaser, relief against—Property erroneously sold in execution—Possession, restoration of, application for—Court, discretion of.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

An auction-purchaser is a representative neither of the decree-holder nor of the judgment-debtor.

Section 47, Civil Procedure Code, does not contemplate an application by a judgment-debtor asking as against the auction-purchaser possession of the property erroneously sold to him by the executing Court.

It is entirely discretionary for the Court to treat a proceeding under section 47, Civil Procedure Code, as a suit. An applicant is not entitled to the benefit as of right. O. ITRAJ KUAR v. RAJA RAM, 2 O. L. J. 57 570 ——— ——— ss. 47, 115, O. XXI, r. 22—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 153—Suit for rent for less than Rs. 100—Decree—Execution—Sale of non-transferable occupancy holding—Proceedings carried on against a dead judgment-debtor—Application to set aside sale by a private purchaser, maintainability of—Order refusing to set aside sale—Second appeal, maintainability of—Revision petition treated as memorandum of appeal.

A decree-holder initiated execution proceedings and carried them on throughout against a deceased judgment-debtor as if he were still alive. The Court was not only not apprised that the proceedings were taken against a dead man, but untrue returns were repeatedly filed to show that the processes had been duly served:

Held, that a sale held under such circumstances must be set aside on the ground of grave irregularity in the proceedings.

Judicial proceedings cannot be carried on in the name of a dead man.

A purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding from whom rent was received after his purchase but whose name was not formally entered as tenant, is competent under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code to make an application to set aside the sale held in execution proceedings against a dead judgment-debtor.

In such a case the burden lies upon the decree-holder to show that the person applying to have the sale set aside had knowledge of the sale before the delivery of possession to the decree-holder-purchaser.

A second appeal lies against an order refusing to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree obtained in a suit for rent for less than Rs. 100.

Where no question of limitation or Court-fees arises a petition may be treated as a memorandum of appeal, if necessary. C. ARJUN DAS v. GUNENDRA NATH, 18 C. W. N. 1266, 20 C.L. J. 341 294

——— s. 48—Minor—Extension of period of limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 6, applicability of.

Section 6 of the Limitation Act, 1908, serves only to extend, for the benefit of minors, periods of limitation provided by the Act itself, it does not extend the period of limitation provided by section 48 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. A. CHATAR PALMAN v. PREMNATH TEWARI, 13 A. L. J. 166 865

——— s. 48, Sch. III, Para. 11 (3), retrospective effect of—Mortgage-decree passed before the coming into force of the Code—Execution—Limitation.

Section 48 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, has retrospective effect and limits the period for the execution even of mortgage decrees passed before the new Code came into force.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Where an application was made in 1911 for execution of a decree for sale under a mortgage made absolute in 1898 and it appeared that before then several applications had been made each within the prescribed period from the last step taken in aid of execution and that during the interval the property had been in the hands of the Collector for about 6 years.

Held, that the decree-holder could not take any benefit from paragraph 11 (3) of Schedule III of the Civil Procedure Code and that his last application for execution was barred by time under section 48 of the Code. N. SADASHIV v. RUKHMABAI, 11 N. L. R. 25 969

S. 72—Execution of decree—Decree for sale of land—Reference to Collector—Executing Court, power of.

A Court executing a decree for sale of mortgaged land sent it to a Collector to sell the mortgaged land. He directed a Sub-Divisional Officer to carry out the sale. The latter officer proposed temporary alienation of the property. The Court was of opinion that it was bound to sell the property and no reference could be made under section 72 of the Civil Procedure Code. On appeal the view taken by the Court was held to be erroneous. The execution Court then referred the case to the Collector under section 72 of the Civil Procedure Code. On appeal it was contended that the order was ultra vires:

Held, that the contention was untenable. P. GURANDITTA MAL v. J. RUSTOMJI, 9 P. L. R. 1915; 34 P. W. R. 1915 630

S. 73 644

S. 80 232

S. 92—Maintainability of suit—Trustee de facto or de son tort subject to same liabilities as trustee de jure—Minor, position of, as trustee.

A suit under section 92, Civil Procedure Code, is maintainable as against a de facto trustee or a trustee de son tort, for he is subject to the same liabilities, while he is so acting, as a trustee de jure.

A person who is not sui juris and requires a guardian to look after his property, cannot be entrusted with the management of a trust. O. MUHAMMAD NASIM v. MUHAMMAD AHMAD, 1 O. L. J. 726, 18 O. C. 38 389

S. 92—Scheme, suit for framing and for appointment of a committee of supervision, after removal of trustee—Death of trustee—Cause of action, if survives against successor-in-office.

Where, during the pendency of a suit instituted by the Advocate-General against the trustee of certain devastanams for his removal on the ground of mismanagement and breach of trust and for the settlement of a scheme and the appointment of a committee of supervision, the defendant died

Held, that the cause of action survived against the successor-in-office of the deceased defendant and that he was rightly brought on record, inasmuch as the plaint contained averments to the effect that there had been systematic mismanagement of the funds of the trust, that there was no means of checking what was deposited in the hundials, that the servants of the temple were making fortunes out of it, that there was a large surplus income every year which had to be properly employed and that the new defendant, the present trustee, had also contributed to the previous mismanagement in his character of agent of the deceased trustee—facts which would by themselves be sufficient to found a suit for the framing of a scheme.

Per Sadagiri Aiyar, J.—In considering whether the prayer for the settlement of a scheme is only ancillary to the prayer for the removal of the trustee or is the principal relief claimed in the suit, the fact that the person who is said to have contributed to the prior mismanagement has succeeded to the trusteeship is a factor to be taken into account.

When the income of a temple is in excess of its expenditure, the Advocate-General will be well-advised in seeking the aid of the Court for the framing of a scheme for the proper application of the surplus.

The relief by way of settlement of a scheme need not depend upon charges against the trustee-in-office. It is sufficient if mismanagement is averred and it is alleged that a proper scheme is necessary to render the recurrence of the state of affairs impracticable. M. SIVAGNANA v. ADVOCATE-GENERAL OF MADRAS, 2 L. W. 148; 28 M. L. J. 174; (1915) M. W. N. 185 874

S. 97 317

S. 100—Second appeal—Mixed question of law and fact.

The pleas of limitation or estoppel involving questions of fact which are not admitted or undisputed cannot be taken for the first time in appeal.

Per Crouch, A. J. C.—It is improper for a Court of Appeal to raise a fresh issue of fact and to proceed to decide it on such evidence which chances to be on record. S. BHERUMAL TEKCHAND v. DUHLAMOMAL 8 S. L. R. 272 933

S. 102 258

S. 104 589

S. 104 (1)—Reference to arbitration, application for—Court finding one of defendants unwilling to refer—Order rejecting application for reference, whether appealable.

Where an application for reference to arbitration is made in a pending case and the Court, finding one of the defendants unwilling to have the case sent to arbitrators, rejects the application, despite the plaintiff's readiness to discharge the unwilling defendant from the array of parties, no appeal lies from such an order of rejection. O. JANKI PRASAD v. BAL MAKUND 721

S. 104 (2), Sch. II, r. 20—Appellate Court allowing award to be filed—Appeal—Revision.

An order passed by an Appellate Court under rule 20 of the second Schedule to the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, allowing an award to be filed and directing the first Court to pass a decree in accordance therewith is not open to appeal.

It is exceedingly doubtful whether a revision of such an order is permissible. P. SUNDER DAS v. MANAK CHAND, 280 P. L. R. 1914; 143 P. W. R. 1914 332

S. 104 (h) 10

S. 105, O. VI, r. 17—Amendment of plaint, when allowed—Objection against amendment, when to be made—Misjoinder of causes of action—Limitation extending time, how pleaded—Sale of partnership business—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 253 (7).

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

No amendment should be allowed which includes a claim which could not, under the law of limitation, be made the subject of a first suit, nor one that introduces a completely new cause of action.

Although no appeal lies against an order allowing an amendment, objection as to amendment can properly be raised in appeal against the decree in the suit.

Anything on which the plaintiff relies for extending the period of limitation must be specifically alleged in the plaint.

When some of the partners sell the partnership business without the knowledge or consent of the other partners, the partnership is thereby dissolved.

A suit for declaration that the sale of a partnership business is fraudulent, null and void as regards plaintiffs and for recovery of the assets from the purchasers and also for an account of the partnership business from the other partners is bad for misjoinder. S. GULRAJMAL v. PAMANMAL, 8 S. L. R. 69 344

——— s. 115 294, 366

——— s. 115, O. XXI, r. 66—Civil Rules of Practice (Madras), r. 189—Attachment of debt—Court, duty of, to inquire as to its existence—Receiver, appointment of, whether irregular—Jurisdiction.

Where an application for attachment of a debt is made the Court is not bound to satisfy itself as to the existence of the debt and if it appoints a Receiver in consonance with rule 189 of the Civil Rules of Practice (Madras), it does not fail to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law or act with material irregularity in the exercise of such jurisdiction within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. M. SURYANARAYANA v. VENKATARATHAMMA 812

——— s. 115—Guardianship of person and property of minor, application for—Person interested, not made party—Revision, right to, of person not party to case 121

——— s. 115—Revision—Principal and agent—Objection as to right of agent, whether can be taken for first time in High Court—Procedure.

The objection, whether the plaintiff is or is not the agent of a particular person on whose behalf he has sued to recover money in the Court of Small Causes, cannot be taken for the first time in the High Court in revision. A. BUDHU KHAN v. HANUMAN PERSHAD 807

——— s. 145 10

——— s. 148 419

——— s. 148, O. XXXIV, rr. 7 (1) (d), 8 (2)—Mortgage—Simple—Court's power to enlarge time of paying mortgage amount.

In the case of a simple mortgage, an order debarring all right to redeem on a fixed date should not be passed in view of Order XXXIV, rule 7 (1) (d) and rule 8 (2), Civil Procedure Code, 1908. Section 148 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, gives a Court power to enlarge the period of redemption if it thinks fit. L. B. MG. AUNG GYI v. MA THEIN MYA 706

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— s. 151 455, 628

——— s. 151—Inherent power object of 812

——— s. 152—Revision—Amendment of decree—Application filed after long time, whether allowed.

An application to amend decree made a long time after the decree was passed, cannot be granted unless sufficient reasons are shown for it. P. GURANDITTA MAL v. RUSTOMJI, 7 P. L. R. 1915; 32 P. W. R. 1915 639

——— O. I, r. 10 94

——— O. I, r. 10 (2) 704

——— O. 2, rr. 1 & 2—Suit for possession of land only—Subsequent suit for mesne profits payable before institution of suit for possession, whether barred—Claims for possession and for mesne profits—Causes of action.

Claims for recovery of land and claims for mesne profits are separate causes of action.

If a plaintiff sues for possession only when he might have joined in the same action claims for profits and damages, it is open to him to sue subsequently for the profits which became payable before the institution of the suit and which might have been included in such suit. M. PONNAMMAL v. RAMANUDA AIYAR, 28 M. L. J. 127; (1915) M. W. N. 130; 17 M. L. T 124 679

——— O. 2, r. 2 732, 1005

——— O. 2, r. 2—Contract Act (IX of 1871), s. 23—Mortgage—Suit for interest on bond executed after mortgage—Consideration—Abstention from suit—Suit to defeat provisions of any law.

The plaintiffs sued for interest due on a mortgage but later on obtained from the mortgagor bonds for further sums of interest, and then sued for the amounts due on those bonds. The first Court decreed the claim, but the Appellate Court held that as the mortgagees had no rights left which they could enforce under the mortgage, the bonds were without consideration

Held, that the bonds were executed in return for plaintiffs' abstaining to sue for the interest, and that in view of the fact that the bonds were executed before the case of Chaudhri Kundan Mal v. Sardar Allah Dad Khan, 5 Ind. Cas 821; 19 P. R. 1910, 36 P. W. R. 1910; 167 P. L. R 1910, had been decided, the plaintiffs were under the bona fide impression that their suit would succeed, if brought, and that, therefore, section 23 of the Contract Act did not apply.

A claim which is barred by Order II, rule 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, is not on exactly the same footing as a time-barred claim. A Court is bound to dismiss a time-barred suit, even though limitation be not pleaded by the defendant, but a Court is not bound to take up proprio motu the question of a suit being barred by Order II, rule 2. The rule is a provision in favour of a defendant of which he may or may not choose to avail himself, the option lies with him

If an intending litigant bona fide forbears a right to litigate a question of law or fact which it is not vexatious or frivolous to litigate, he does give up something of value. It is a mistake to suppose it is not an advantage, which a suitor is capable of appreciating, to be able to litigate his claim, even if he turns out to be wrong. P. GOPAL DAS v. GHULAM MOHY-UD-DIN, 23 P. L. R 1915 579

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 6, r. 17 344

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 7, r. 7—Suit based on one sale—Decree on subsequent sale of a part, whether can be allowed.

Where a person claims possession of the entire property on the strength of a sale which had been cancelled by the consent of both parties, but it is found as a fact that there was in his favour a subsequent sale of a part of that property upon which he has not based his claim, it is desirable in order to prevent further litigation to grant him a decree for that part only, instead of dismissing the suit and directing him to sue again on the basis of the subsequent sale. P. C. SIMPSON v. MRS. E. BACHMAN, 13 A. L. J 55 622

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 7, r. 11 (d) 232

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 8, r. 6 350

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 5 165

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 9 924

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 9, O. 21, r. 90, O. 43, r. 1 (e)—Application to restore application for reversal of sale, dismissal of—Appeal, whether allowed—Sufficient cause—Party deliberately absenting, whether can claim restoration.

Under Order XLIII, rule 1 (e), of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, no appeal lies against an order rejecting an application under rule 9 of Order IX for revival of an application for reversal of a sale, which had been dismissed for non-appearance of the judgment-debtor.

A party who was present in Court but left the Court of his own accord to attend to other business and without even instructing his Pleader, must take the consequence of his own conduct and is not entitled to have his case restored. C. CHABU CHANDRA GHOSH v. CHANDI CHARAN ROY, 19 C. W. N. 25 492

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13—Compromise decree—Compromise effected by unauthorised person—Decree, whether ex parte and can be set aside as such.

A decree based on a compromise cannot be treated as an ex parte decree and set aside as such simply because one of the parties was not authorised to compromise. C. JADU NATH DEY v. ASAN MANDAL 261

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13—*Decree based on compromise—Compromise made by unauthorised persons—*Ex parte decree.

A decree based on a compromise cannot be treated as an ex parte decree and set aside as such simply because some of the parties had no authority to compromise on behalf of others. C. HIRNASHI NAIK v. DAMODAR MISRA, 19 C. W. N. 118 227

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13—Ex parte decree against several defendants—Application to set aside made by some—Power of Court to set aside decree against non-applying defendants—Principal and surety—Liability of surety.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

The plaintiff sued M as principal and N as surety. A decree was passed against both, but ex parte against M. On the application of M alone the Court set aside the decree against both M and N, and eventually released N from liability, holding that he was not liable as a surety and that he had signed the contract, the basis of the suit, as a witness only On application for revision by plaintiff:

Held, that the Court was wrong in setting aside the decree passed against N, as the contract clearly showed that N was liable as surety, and the Court was not justified in finding that N had signed the contract as a witness only. P. SINGER MANUFACTURING CO v. MUHAMMAD DIN, 246 P. L. R. 1914; 166 P. W. R. 1914 251

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 9, r. 13 and O. 17, r. 3, scope of—Court's direction to be present—Defendant's default and Pleader's representation of "no instructions," effect of—Affidavit uncontradicted, reliability of.

A decree passed on defendant's default of appearance inspite of the Court's direction to appear and after his Pleader's representation that he had no instructions, amounts to an ex parte decree within the meaning of Order IX, rule 13, of the Civil Procedure Code.

Order XVII, rule 3, Civil Procedure Code, applies only to cases of a party's failure to do an act for which time had been granted on his application.

An affidavit uncontradicted is prima facie reliable. M. MAJETI NAGARATNAM v. PACHIGOLLA RAMAYYA, 2 L. W. 105 882

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 17, r. 1—Application for adjournment—Discretion of Court, object of—Party deliberately neglecting, effect of.

It is purely a matter of discretion for the Court to grant an adjournment in any particular case. The discretion should be exercised judicially and reasonably and is not subject to any definite rules.

The main purpose for which a Judge is given a discretion under Order XVII, rule 1, is to enable him to prevent a party improperly delaying proceedings and abusing the process of the Court with that object.

If a party deliberately neglects to summon all his witnesses and those cited do not appear, he has only himself to blame if the Court regards this as an indication that the intention is to prevent the case proceeding on the day fixed. S. SHIVANDAS v. PAMANMAL MANGHARAM, 8 S. L. R. 275 942

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 17, rr. 2, 3, O. 9, r. 9—Dismissal of suit for non-appearance at adjourned hearing—Application for restoration—Sufficient cause.

The Civil Procedure Code clearly intends that the parties should be in readiness to proceed on the dates of the hearing and that if they do not, their cases must suffer unless there was "sufficient cause" for their non-appearance or default.

Therefore, if a plaintiff does not want his case to go on and absents himself deliberately, he does so at his risk.

Where a case was originally fixed for the 6th September 1911 but the hearing was adjourned to the 11th October, and some of the plaintiff's witnesses were served and were even present on that date but because some important witnesses were not present, the plaintiff through a Pleader applied for an adjournment, which was refused, whereupon the Pleader withdrew saying he had no instructions, and the Court dismissed the suit:

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, (i) that the order dismissing the suit fell under rule 2 and not rule 3 of Order XVII of the Civil Procedure Code;

(ii) that the plaintiff did not shown that there was "sufficient cause" for his non-appearance within the meaning of Order IX, rule 9.

Per Fawcett, J. C.—It is not within the province of a Court to disregard the strict letter of the law and to grant an application for the restoration of the suit on the ground that it discloses a just and reasonable cause even though "sufficient cause" is not shown. S. USTO SAHEBDINO v. GHULAM KADIR, 8 S. L. R. 241 924

——— ——— ——— O. 17, r. 3 882

——— ——— ——— O. 20, rr. 12 to 18 317

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 1 784

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 2 (3)—'Certifying or recording,' meaning of—Practice—Certifying of part-payments in application for execution—Limitation for certifying.

There is no definition of what certifying or recording under Order XXI, rule 2 (3), of the Code of Civil Procedure is, but the practice in this country is that the decree-holder certifies the part-payments in the application for execution and thereupon the Court, having recorded the whole of the petition, directs execution to issue for the balance.

There is no period of limitation fixed within which the decree-holder must certify, and, therefore, the decree-holder can certify the part-payments at any time and if the part-payment be within time to prevent the decree from being barred, an execution can issue for the balance. C. LAKHI NARAIN GANGULI v. FELAMANI DASI, 20 C. L. J. 181 11

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 22 294

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 28 597

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 53 (3) 363

——— O. 21, r. 57, whether has retrospective effect—Lease created during continuance of attachment—Auction-sale—Right of lessee as against auction-purchaser 792

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 57, applicability of.

Order XXI, rule 57, which provides that on the dismissal of an execution application the existing attachment on the attached property shall cease, can only apply to orders of dismissal passed after the Act came into force. M. VARDIPARTHI RAMAYYA v. KORUKONDA JAGANNADHAM 568

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 58—Objection to attachment - Court's duty to decide on merits.

An objection to an attachment of property under Order XXI, rule 58, Civil Procedure Code, should not be dismissed and the claimant forced to file a regular suit to get the attached property released, on the ground that the question of possession is doubtful and of title complicated, but should be adjudicated on the merits. P. AMIR CHAND v. RAM SARAN DAS, 248 P. L. R. 1914; 162 P. W. R. 1914 256

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 60, 321, 328

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 63 829

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 63—Claim petition—Adverse order, without investigation, whether conclusive, if not set aside within one year—Difference between Old and new Code.

Order XXI, rule 63, of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908, is much wider in its scope than the corresponding section 283 of the Code of 1882, and unlike the latter section covers cases in which there has been no investigation. Orders made under rule 63 of Order XXI become final if not set aside within one year. M. NARASIMHA CHETTI v. VIJIAPALA NAINAR, 2 L. W. 206 944

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 63, O. 38, r. 9—Suit under O. XXI, r. 63, object of—Suit, whether abates, if attachment raised.

The statutory right under Order XXI, rule 63, Civil Procedure Code, is merely to establish the right which the attaching plaintiff claims in the property, i.e., to attach it as the property of the defendant whenever it is his interest to do so. The fact that the attachment before judgment ceases to be operative on the dismissal of the suit by virtue of Order XXXVIII, rule 9, of the Code, does not also cause the suit, under Order XXI, rule 63, to abate. M. RAMASAMY CHETTY v. ALIGIRI CHETTY 800

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 65—Auction-sale, bid in, whether can be withdrawn.

If a person goes to bid at a sale and in full knowledge of the condition offers bids for the property, and the property is knocked down to him, the mere fact that the Court has subsequently the discretion to confirm or annul the Nazir's auction, does not leave it open to the bidder to withdraw his bid. C. RAJENDRA PROSAD JHA v. UPENDRA NATH JHA, 21 C. L. J. 174; 19 C. W. N. 633 805

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 66 611

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 66—Attachment of debt—Court, duty of, to inquire as to its existence—Receiver, appointment of, whether irregular—Jurisdiction 812

——— ——— ——— O. 21, rr. 89 to 96 601

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 89—Execution-sale, application to set aside within time but after confirmation of sale, effect of—Deposit, whether can be made by cheque.

An application to set aside an execution-sale on the day of confirming the sale but subsequent to the confirmation is within time if it is within 30 days of sale.

A deposit under Order XXI, rule 89, must be a deposit in cash and not by a cheque. L. B. ISMAIL ALI v. VISVANADAN CHETTY 656

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 89—Prior mortgagee of property sold at auction—Right to set aside sale.

A prior mortgagee of a property sold at auction has an interest in the property by virtue of a title acquired before the sale; he is as such entitled to apply to have the sale set aside under Order XXI, rule 89, of the Civil Procedure Code. A. KASHMIRO BIBI v. HATIM ALI KHAN, 13 A. L. J. 278 831

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— O. 21, r. 89—Several judgment-debtors—Application by one to set aside sale—Applicant, whether entitled to claim deposit by non-applying judgment-debtors as his

A judgment-debtor who applies to have a sale set aside under Order XXI, rule 89, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, cannot claim that the monies deposited by other judgment-debtors who have not joined in his application should be regarded as his. M. KARUNAKARA MENON v. KRISHNA MENON, 2 L. W. 196; 28 M. L. J. 262 952

——— ——— ——— O 21, r. 90 492

——— ——— ——— O. 21, rr. 99, 103, O. 39, rr. 1, 2—Execution proceedings—Suit to remove obstruction—Temporary injunction.

A temporary injunction restraining defendant rom taking possession of the property in suit is not within the terms or the intention of Order XXXIX, rule 1 or 2, and cannot, therefore, be granted to a person who, after being defeated under Order XXI, rule 99, brings a suit under rule 103 of the same Order. B. CHHOTALAL v. JETHALAL, 16 Bom. L. R. 676 56

——— ——— ——— O. 22, r. 9—Death of one of the defendants during pendency of suit—Legal representative not made party within time—Abatement—Sufficient cause for setting it aside.

A preliminary decree in a suit for rendition of partnership accounts was made on the 1st November 1909 and the appeal against it was finally dismissed by the Chief Court on the 20th December 1911. In the meantime one of the defendants had died in September 1910 and when the record was returned to the first Court on the 17th January 1912, it directed that the deceased defendant's representatives shall be impleaded, which was done on the 17th February 1912. The Court then decided that the suit abated as against the deceased and decreed it against the others. On appeal the Divisional Judge held that the suit failed against all the defendants:

Held, that the deceased defendant was an essential party to the suit and as the plaintiffs did not make an application for impleading his legal representatives on the earliest possible date after the first Court was again seized of the case, there was no sufficient cause for the delay and the suit failed. P. GURMUKH SINGH v. KANSHI RAM, 53 P. L. R. 1915 681

——— ——— ——— O. 22, r. 10, O. 1, r. 10 (2)—Parties, when and how made—Evidence recorded in another proceeding, Judge, whether entitled to decide a question on—Transfer, admission of, by defendant, effect of.

A person can continue a suit as a defendant under Order XXII, rule 10, which is not restricted to plaintiffs and their representatives only.

A Judge has no jurisdiction to decide a matter on evidence recorded in another proceeding to which the applicant was not a party.

An admission by a defendant of a transfer of the property in suit is sufficient to entitle the transferee to be made a party under Order XXII, rule 10, as well as under Order I, rule 10 (2), Civil Procedure Code. C. KRISTO KUMAR DAS v. GIRISH CHANDRA PODDAR 704

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— O. 22, r. 10—Proceedings after preliminary decree for sale or redemption, whether proceedings in suit—Purchaser of property, whether entitled to be made party—Rule 10, whether applicable to execution proceedings.

Under the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, proceedings after a preliminary decree for sale or redemption are proceedings in the suit and, therefore, a suit for redemption does not come to an end after the passing of a preliminary decree and must be considered pending, within the meaning of Order XXII, rule 10, and the private purchaser of the property after such a decree acquires an interest which entitles him to be made a party to the suit A. MUHAMMAD MASIH ULLAH KHAN v. JARAO BAI, 13A. L. J. 307; 37 A. 226 771

——— ——— ——— O 23, r. 1 165

——— ——— ——— O. 23, r. 3, Sch. II, cl. 18—Agreement to refer to arbitration after institution of suit—Application for stay of suit—Adjustment within the meaning of O. XXIII, r. 3.

Clause 18, Schedule II, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, is restricted to cases in which the suit complained of has been instituted after the agreement to refer to arbitration.

Where after the institution of a suit, the plaintiff and the defendant entered into an agreement to refer the matter in dispute to arbitration, and the defendant moved the Court to stay proceedings:

Held, that the agreement did not fall under any of the clauses of the second Schedule of the Civil Procedure Code and that, therefore, the application must fail.

Per Beaman, J.—A mere agreement to refer to arbitration, even though it be in other respects valid, cannot be such an adjustment in whole or in part of the suit as the Court can give effect to under Order XXIII, rule 3

Where the Court is seized of a cause, its jurisdiction cannot be ousted by the private and secret act of parties, and if they, after having invoked the authority of the Court and placed themselves under its superintendence, desire to alter the tribunal and substitute a private arbitrator for the Court, they must proceed according to the law laid down in the first sixteen clauses of the second Schedule B. VYANKATESH MAHADEV v. RAMCHANDRA KRISHNA, 16 Bom. L. R. 658; 38 B. 687 46

——— ——— ——— O. 23, r. 3—Partition suit—Agreement appointing trustees to hold plaintiff's share, whether reference to arbitration and adjustment of suit

An agreement appointing trustees to represent the plaintiff in taking an account from, and effecting partition with, defendant and, thereafter, to hold plaintiff's share in trust for him, does not give the trustees the powers of arbitrator in the matter, and even if it did, it would be a mere agreement to refer to arbitration a matter pending before a Court and would not amount to an adjustment of the dispute within the meaning of Order XXIII, rule 3, Civil Procedure Code. S. GHULAM DASTAGIR KHAN v. GHULAM HUSSEIN KHAN, 8 S. L. R. 187 369

——— ——— ——— O. 24, r. 5 919

——— ——— ——— O. 32, r. 6 603

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— O. 32, r. 7—Minor—Mutation proceeding—Compromise by mother on behalf of minor sons—Suit by minor for setting aside compromise—Leave of Court not obtained—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17—Documents evidencing family settlement—Petition of compromise declaring interests of parties in property exceeding Rs. 100 in value—Compromise not for minor's benefit, validity of.

In the course of mutation proceedings, a petition was filed setting out the terms of a compromise arrived at between the parties. The petition was signed on behalf of the minor plaintiffs by their mother and mutation was made in accordance with the terms of the petition. On a suit by the minors to set aside the compromise and for possession of their proper share in the property.

Held, (1) that as Order XXXII, rule 7, of the Civil Procedure Code does not apply to proceedings under section 35 of the Land Revenue Act, the compromise could not be set aside merely on the ground that the Revenue Court did not give the plaintiffs' mother and guardian leave to enter into it on their behalf.

(2) that written instruments are not exempt from registration merely because they evidence or carry out a family settlement; nor does the mere fact that a document is thrown into the form of a petition or is presented to a Court along with a petition exempt its registration, if it is otherwise compulsorily registrable.

(3) that a petition of compromise presented to a Court which declares the respective interests of the parties in property exceeding Rs. 100 in value must be registered before it can be used as evidence of title, unless it is acted upon judicially by the Court.

(4) that the mere fact that the compromise was not made for the benefit of the minors was enough ground for setting it aside. A. BHARSA v. SIKHDAR, 12 A. L. J. 998 97

——— ——— ——— O. 33, rr. 2, 5 (a)—Application for permission to sue as pauper, how framed—Omission of one item in schedule—Dismissal of application—Revision.

The word "framed" in Order XXXIII, rule 5 (a), is of special importance. It is appropriate to secure the inclusion in the petition of pauperism the various requisites specified in rule (2), and not the correctness of the particular statements of fact involved in them.

The provision for dismissal of defective petitions is not intended to be punitive.

The mere fact that the schedule to the petition does not include one item of the property is not enough ground for dismissal and the High Court can interfere in revision. M. KUPPUSAWMY AIYAR v. MUTHUSAWMY AIYAR, 1 L. W. 1068; (1915) M. W. N. 31 891

——— ——— ——— O. 33, r. 5 (a) 891

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 1 788, 1005

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 2 813

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 2, 5—Payment made out of Court—Certified in Court by decree-holder on application by judgment-debtor—Payment in Court.

Where an application is made to Court within the period allowed by Article 174 of the Limitation Act to compel the decree-holder to certify the payment made out of Court in satisfaction of a mortgage-decree, the payment, if proved, must be recorded and then it will in law be treated as a payment in Court within the meaning of Order XXXIV, rule 2 of the Civil Procedure Code. N. Musammat BAYABAI v. PURSHOTTAM, 11 N. L. R. 16 919

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 4 139, 365

——— ——— ——— O. 34, rr. 4, 5, 6 489

——— ——— ——— O. 34, rr. 4, 6—Preliminary decree on mortgage suit—Decree, combined, in suit for sale of mortgaged property and for recovery of balance due on mortgage—Mortgage, recovery of balance due on, separate decree for.

In suits on mortgage the proper course obviously is to confine the preliminary decree to a decree under Order XXXIV, rule 4, Civil Procedure Code, but where a Court goes further and passes a combined decree under Order XXXIV, rules 4 and 6, Civil Procedure Code, a separate decree under the latter rule is not necessary, and an application for such a decree is, therefore, superfluous.

A relief claimed under Order XXXIV, rule 6, Civil Procedure Code, against the defendant includes a relief against any property in his possession. O. DEPUTY COMMISSIONER, FYZABAD v. SANT BAKHSH PATHAK, 1 O. L. J. 742; 18 O. C. 55 72

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 6 72

——— ——— ——— O. 34, 7 (1) (d), 8 (2) 706

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 12 164

——— ——— ——— O. 34, r. 14 795

——— ——— ——— O. 38, r. 9 800

——— ——— ——— O. 39, rr. 1, 2 56

——— ——— ——— O. 39, rr. 1, 7—Injunction—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), ss. 34, 55, scope of—Appointment of Administrator pendente lite—Injunction, power of Probate Court to grant—English Law and Indian Law, distinction between.

A proceeding for Probate of a Will or for Letters of Administration is not a suit in which property is in dispute.

The only question in controversy in a proceeding in the Probate Court is that of representation of the estate of the deceased, and no question of title thereto, that is, the title of the deceased or of the conflicting titles alleged by the parties to the proceeding can be investigated by the Court.

The terms of section 25, sub-section 8, of the Judicature Act of 1873 are wider than the language used by the Legislature in this country in rule 1 of Order XXXIX of the Civil Procedure Code.

It cannot be said that a Court of Probate is not competent, because it is a Court of Probate, to grant an injunction in any circumstances.

Where injunction is necessary, the proper procedure to follow is for the aggrieved party to apply to the Court for the appointment of an Administrator pendente lite under section 34 of the Probate and Administration Act, as an Administrator pendente lite appointed under section 34 takes charge of the entire estate, both moveable and immoveable, of the deceased.

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

On an application being made under section 34, the Court may, if necessary, grant an injunction either in the exercise of its inherent power or under rule 7 of Order XXXIX of the Code. C. NERODBHARANI DEVI v. CHAMATKARINI DEVYA, 19 C. W. N. 205 617

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 39, r. 2 (3), O. 43, r. 1 (r)—Order refusing to attach property for disobedience of injunction, whether appealable—Appellate Court, power of, to order imprisonment.

An order refusing to attach property for disobedience of an injunction order is an order passed under Order XXXIX, rule 2 (3), and is appealable under Order XLIII, rule 1 (r), and the Appellate Court has jurisdiction to pass an order of imprisonment in appeal.

Per Oldfield, J.—Disobedience of an injunction order is an act independent of the suit and the injunction and calls, therefore, for a separate punishment.

Per Tyabji, J. (dissenting)—Order XLIII, rule 1 (r) is not sufficient to give to the Appellate Court the power which is restricted "to the Court granting the injunction," in other words no appeal is intended to be given as regards the exercise of a power which is annexed to a specified Court. M. OTTAPURAKKAI THAKATH SUPPI v. ALABI MASHUR KOYANKA 131

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 40, r. 1—Appointment of Receivers—Authority to bring and defend suits conferred by Court—Lunacy Act (XXXV of 1858), inquiry under—Document executed by pardanashin lady—Terms not explained to her—Suit by persons of unsound mind—Next friend, whether a party.

Ordinarily, a suit to recover possession of property can only be brought by him in whom there is a present title to it, and by the appointment of a Receiver no property becomes vested in the Receiver. But this rule is subject to modification by the Legislature, and the Code of Civil Procedure empowers the Court to confer upon a Receiver all such powers as to bringing and defending suits as the owner himself has, even if it may involve the setting aside of a voidable instrument executed by one of the co-owners who thereby purports to deal with the entire estate.

Where, therefore, one of two co-widows brought a suit against the other for a declaration that she was entitled to a half share in the estate of the deceased husband and for partition thereof, and the present plaintiffs were appointed Receivers under Order XL, rule 1 (d) of the Civil Procedure Code, with the power to bring and defend suits in their own name and to use the names of the plaintiff and the defendant also, and where the present plaintiffs sued to recover possession of certain immoveable property on the ground that a lease of 16th September 1906 purporting to have been executed by one of the widows in virtue of which the present defendant claimed to be a permanent tenant was invalid:

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

Held, (1) that the co-widows were the owners of the property and the suit in which the Receivers had been appointed comprised that property and that the Receivers were, therefore, as competent to bring this suit as the widows would have been;

(2) that the omission of the Receivers to get leave in the first suit to bring this suit might have consequences adverse to them in that suit but it could not affect their power to bring this suit.

The Lunacy Act contemplates the question of lunacy or sanity at the time of the inquiry, there is no provision in it that the inquiry shall extend to the ascertainment of the period at which the alleged lunatic first became of unsound mind.

Where, therefore, lunacy proceedings commenced in November 1906 and the widow who had executed the lease in September 1906 was found on the 24th September 1907 to be of unsound mind and incapable of managing her own affairs:

Held, (1) that the finding did not carry things back further than the inquiry which commenced in November 1906 and notwithstanding the result of that inquiry the burden still rested on the plaintiffs of showing that she was of unsound mind on the date of the execution of the lease;

(2) that the executant of the lease being of unsound mind at the time it was executed, it created no title in the present defendant and the plaintiffs' right to possession was not barred;

(3) that even if lunacy be not established, the lease was void as its terms were not adequately explained to the executant, a pardanashin lady of weak intellect, and was not understood by her;

(4) that the Receivers were competent plaintiffs even if the lease be held to be not void, but voidable;

(5) that even if a lunatic's manager can sue still there is no established rule of practice in this High Court that requires suits relating to the lunatic's property to be brought by him and not by the lunatic and that on the contrary the Code of Civil Procedure contemplates suits by persons of unsound mind whether so adjudged or not and that though it is true that a person so incapacitated has to sue by next friend, yet a next friend is not a party and the absence of a next friend is immaterial. C. KASSIM MAMOOJI v. K. B. DUTT, 19 C. W. N. 45 459

——— O. 41, r. 1—Memorandum of appeal unaccompanied by copy of decree, whether effective—Collector, whether a Judge—Acts of Collector presumption as to regularity of.

A memorandum of appeal should be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed from and, therefore, no appeal is effective under Order XLI, rule 1, unless it is accompanied by a copy of the decree.

A Collector is a Revenue Officer and although he may at times have to perform judicial functions, he is not a Judge and his acts like the acts of all other Executive Officers are presumed to be regular.

Therefore, where a Collector has certified on his order-sheet that he has duly served certain notices to annul incumbrances, a Judge is not entitled without evidence to conclude otherwise. C. SITIKANTHA ROY v. BIPRA DAS 447

——— ——— ——— ——— O. 41, r. 19 628

——— ——— ——— O. 41, r. 20 609

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—contd.

——————— O. 41, r. 20—Parties to suit, struck off before decree was passed—Power of Appellate Court to implead persons interested.

Order XLI, rule 20, of the Civil Procedure Code applies to persons who were parties to a suit, and persons are nonetheless parties because they ceased to be so before the passing of a decree. An Appellate Court is, therefore, authorized to consider whether they are interested in the result of the appeal and to implead them if it thinks that they are so. M. ISSAKKANAKATH MALIYAKKAL v. POURAKURIKKALAKATH KUNHI 423

——————— O. 41, r. 22—Cross-objections, whether can be taken against a co-respondent.

A respondent can claim relief against a co-respondent by way of memorandum of objections. M. MUNISAMY MUDALY v. ABBU REDDY, 27 M. L. J. 740; (1915) M. W. N. 46 323

——————— O. 41, r. 27—Admission of additional evidence on appeal—Appellate Court, duty of—Practice.

In admitting additional evidence, it is necessary for an Appellate Court to comply with the provisions of Order XLI, rule 27, and if it thinks, either with the consent of the parties or on the application of any one of them, that there is sufficient ground to admit certain papers, the reasons for admitting them in evidence should be stated, and the papers should be formally admitted in evidence. B. DAJI ABAJI SAWANT v. SAKHARAM KRISHNA KULKARNI, 16 BOM. L. R. 641; 38 B. 665 33

——————— O. 41, r. 27 (1) (a)—Documents rejected by lower Court, admissibility of, in Appellate Court—Evidence, fresh—Documentary evidence, admissibility of, at late stage—Court, discretion of.

The plaintiff undertook at the trial to prove a fact definitely and put in documentary evidence in support of it. At the instance of the defendant interrogatories were issued to be answered by the plaintiff himself with a view to obtain his admission as to non-existence of the fact; but the answers not being given by the plaintiff, but by his general agent, and being of an unsatisfactory character, although admitting non-existence of the fact to a certain extent, the defendant asked leave to file certain documents in proof of the non-existence of the fact. The lower Court refused to receive those documents, but they were asked to be filed before the Appellate Court:

Held, that under the above circumstances the lower Court ought to have received the documents in order to dispose completely of the matter in dispute, and that they were admissible in the Appellate Court under Order XLI, rule 27 (1) (a), Civil Procedure Code. O. HANWANT RAM v. BHAGWATI PRASAD SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 27 516

——————— O. 41, r. 27—Remand, evidence taken on—Appellate Court, discretion of—High Court, power of, to interfere in second appeal.

A High Court is not justified in second appeal in interfering with the discretion of the lower Appellate Court to the extent of refusing to recognise the additional evidence taken on remand under Order XLI, rule 27, of the Code of Civil Procedure. A. BHULAN v. WAZIR 827

——————— O. 41, r. 31 561

Civil Procedure Code—(1908)—concld.

——————— O. 41, r. 33 336

——————— O. 43, r. 1—Order—Application for appointment of Receiver—Provisional grant of application, interpretation of—Order, whether appealable.

Where on an application for appointment of a Receiver the Court made an order in these words: "I allow the application provisionally and call on parties to put in applications showing their claims regarding the person and power of the Receiver, and the income, if any, that is to be paid by him to the objectors:"

Held, that as the order does not amount to appointment of a Receiver, no appeal lies against the order. A. RANJI v. KOMAN DAS, 13 A. L. J. 79 646

——————— O. 43, r. 1 (e) 492

——————— O. 43, r. 1 (j) 589

——————— O. 43, r. 1 (r) 131

——————— O. 45, r. 13—Execution of decree, stay of, pending decision of appeal to Privy Council.

Under Order XLV, rule 13, of the Code of Civil Procedure, execution of a decree will not, without sufficient cause being shown, be stayed pending the decision of the appeal to the Privy Council. P. MELA RAM v. RUKMAN, 29 P. L. R. 1915 572

——————— O. 46, r. 7 972

——————— Sch. II, para. 8 233

——————— Sch. II, para. 18 46

——————— Sch. II, para. 20 31, 332

——————— Sch. III, para. 11 (3) 969

Civil Rules of Practice (Madras), r. 189 812

Collector, whether a Judge—Acts of Collector, presumption as to regularity of 447

Collector's certificate, whether confers title on possessor—Evidence, value of certificate.

A certificate issued by the Collector in respect of immoveable properties situated within the town of Madras is only evidence of revenue registry and affords no title or security as to ownership. M. KUPPAMMAL v. GATTIPALLI GOPAUL CHETTI, 1 L. W. 649 14

Commissioner not knowing characters in which accounts are kept, appointment of, whether allowable 598

Common Manager. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.

Companies Act (VI of 1882)—Security deposit mixed with funds of Bank by agreement of parties—Payment of interest—Deposit to be treated as ordinary debt in liquidation.

In the case of a going Bank, the Bank is entitled to treat a security deposit as ear-marked for a particular purpose and refuse to deal with it for any other purpose, but in a liquidation of an insolvent Bank if the occasion for realizing the security has not arisen and if the money has, with the consent of the giver of the security, been received by the Companies Act—(1882)—contd.

Bank and mixed with its funds in consideration of an agreement to pay interest on it, the Bank is only a debtor and not a trustee.

Where an agent of a Bank deposited a certain sum as security for the faithful discharge of his duties and agreed that the Bank should receive and hold the money paying interest at 6 per cent. for its use the money being repayable, if not forfeited for losses occasioned through the agent's default upon his ceasing to be the Bank's agent:

Held, that in liquidation proceedings the agent could only rank as an ordinary creditor and could not take preference over other creditors of the Bank. B. MALVANKAR v. CREDIT BANK OF INDIA, LTD., 16 BOM. L. R. 783 343

——— ——— ——— s. 45—Share-holder—Minor, whether can be share-holder—Receipt of dividends—Estoppel by conduct—Estoppel—Registered holder of share, rights and liabilities of

A share-holder of a limited Company, who was a minor at the date of allotment of shares to him, but after attaining majority received dividends and raised no objection to his name being included in the register of members, is estopped by his conduct while a person sui juris from denying as between himself and the Company's representative that he is a share-holder.

A minor may be a member of a Company under the Companies Act of 1882.

A registered holder of shares in a Statutory Company is a person with a vested interest in property, which may be burdened with an obligation to pay calls in the future. The registered member cannot keep the interest and prevent the Company from having it and dealing with it as their own without being bound to bear the burthen attached to it. B. FAZULBHOY JAFFER v. CREDIT BANK, 16 BOM. L. R. 780 335

——— ——— ——— s. 158—Liquidation proceedings—Charge—Lease providing for payment of arrears of rent from buildings erected on land—Priority over unsecured creditors—Charge.

Where a lease provided that if the lessees (a Company) caused delay in payment of rent, the landlords would be entitled to recover the arrears with interest "from the buildings which may have been erected on the land"

Held, (1) that in equity a charge was created on the buildings when they came into existence; and

(2) that although the charge did not amount to a transfer or a mortgage, it gave a right of priority to the landlords over the unsecured creditors of the company in a winding-up. B. KESHAVLAL HIRALAL v. GIRDHARILAL, 16 BOM. L. R. 643 34

——— ——— ——— s. 169—Petition by creditor to wind up—Dispute about genuineness of claim—Object of petitioner to bring pressure in order to obtain cheap and expeditious payment—Order refusing to wind up—Appeal, whether maintainable.

The principle upon which a Company is to be wound up on the petition of a creditor is simply its inability to pay after proper demand made and the lapse of three weeks. Any such neglect must be judged by reference to the facts of each particular case, and when the defence is that the debt is disputed, all that the Court has first to see is whether that dispute is, on the face of it, genuine or merely a cloak of the Company's real inability to pay just debts.

Where a creditor's demand is in respect of a claim which the Company honestly believes to be a fraudulent claim and unsustainable at law, and in filing a winding-up petition his object is to bring the pressure of insolvency proceedings to bear upon the Company in order to make it pay cheaply and expeditiously a heavy debt which it desires to dispute in the Civil Courts, the petition for insolvency of the Company must be dismissed under section 169 of the Indian Companies Act (VI of 1882).

An appeal will lie from an order refusing to wind up a Company. B. TULSIDAS LALUBHAI v. BHARATKHAND COTTON MILLS CO. LD., 16 BOM. L. R. 602; 39 B. 47 44

Companies Act—(1882)—concld.

——— ——— ——— s. 214—Liability of Director, grounds of—Onus—Position of Director.

Section 214 of the Companies Act applies to the conduct of a Director as such, and anything done by him during the period of his directorship in his capacity as a debtor cannot be made a ground of liability under the section.

The onus is on the applicant to prove the facts which bring the case within the section.

A Director is not a trustee of the loans advanced by a Company before his acceptance of office as such.

Where in an application under section 214 of the Companies Act the Liquidator sought to establish the liability of an ex-Director on the ground that he did not, at the time of his appointment as Director, disclose his indebtedness to the Company:

Held, that it was the duty of the applicant to satisfy the Court that loss or damage resulted to the Company from the alleged non-disclosure by the ex-Director. P. HANS RAJ BHANDARI v. LIQUIDATOR OF THE LAHORE BANK, 59 P. L. R 1915; 46 P. W. R. 1915 594

Companies Act (VII of 1913), s. 215—Winding-up of Company—Proceedings in Court, stay of—Discretion of Court.

In the case of a compulsory liquidation the creditor is debarred from proceeding by way of action, unless he can show special grounds for granting him leave to do so.

In the case of a voluntary liquidation the onus is on the Liquidator to show that an order should be made staying an action brought against the Company for prima facie the ordinary tribunal is the proper one to decide upon a claim against the Company. The proceedings may be stayed when sufficient ground is shown to do so, e. g., when existence of the liability is substantially admitted and the dispute is only as to what is the exact amount due.

The plaintiff sued the Company for refund of a certain sum of money alleged to have been paid on some shares, which the plaintiff alleged were allotted to him subject to a condition. The Company went into voluntary liquidation and the Liquidators moved the Chief Court for an order under section 215 of the Companies Act, 1913, to stay proceedings in the suit filed against the Company. The claim was denied in toto by the Liquidators:

Held, that no sufficient ground was shown for passing the order prayed for P. LIQUIDATORS OF THE MARWAR BANK v. PANNA LAL, 19 P. L. R. 1915; 31 P. R. 1915 685

Company— Liquidation — Share-holder, whether entitled to have his name struck off the list of contributories—Share-holder buying shares on faith of false prospectus, right of.

In proceedings to wind up the affairs of a Company, a share-holder is not entitled to have his name struck off the list of contributories, on the ground that he was induced to purchase the shares by the false reports and balance-sheets issued by the Company.

If a share-holder, who has applied for shares on the faith of a prospectus which eventually is found to contain false representation, wishes to have his name struck off the register, he must take steps before the commencement of winding-up, otherwise he would be too late B. HIRJI KHETSEY v. INDIAN SPECIE BANK, LD., 17 BOM. L. R. 65 505

Compensation awarded against complainant for vexatious complaint by 2nd class Magistrate—Appeal to Sub-Divisional Magistrate—Order, whether can be set aside without notice to accused—Compensation, when should be awarded 192

——————, award of—Boom in prices, whether to be considered in estimating market-value—Value of portion of land enhanced owing to acquisition of part of it—Compensation for that portion, whether allowed on severence 326

——————— for breach of contract—Partner, liability of 650

Composition deed—Absolute transfer of property by debtor to trustees—Resulting trust—Suit for surplus money 332

Compromise, agreement of—Some terms not relating to suit—Decree incorporating whole agreement, whether admissible in evidence—Agreement, whether requires registration—Evidence—Admissibility of such agreement—Adverse possession, nature of possession necessary to create—Res judicata—Compromise decree not relating to suit whether operates as res judicata.

A decree recording an agreement as one of the terms of a compromise though not relating to the suit, is a judicial record of the agreement of the parties and is admissible in evidence.

Therefore, such an agreement recorded in a decree, does not require registration and is admissible in evidence without registration.

Possession in order to be adverse must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent.

The only act of "tethering of cattle, and throwing cow-dungs on the land" unaccompanied with the assertion of any adverse right, does not necessarily denote that a claim of ownership to the land was thereby asserted.

Quære.—Whether a compromise decree can operate as res judicata upon any matter other than that relating to the suit? C. MAHABIR MISSER v. NANDA KISHORE MISSER 640 ——————— affecting immoveable property neither registered nor incorporated in decree, value of 379

——————, registration of. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 17.

Compromise—concld.

——————— by some of the parties—Partition—Consent decree, validity of—Appeal against consent decree, when maintainable—Suit to declare such consent decree inoperative, unnecessary—Dismissal for default, effect of 242

——————— decree—Compromise effected by unauthorised person—Decree, whether ex parte and can be set aside as such 261

——————— deed. See REGISTRATION ACT, s. 17 938

Confession, retracted, value of—Corroboration necessary for conviction 221 ——————— decree. See DECREE.

——————————Variation of terms, whether allowed in execution 830

Consideration. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 2 (d).

——————— Abstention from suit—Suit to defeat provisions of any law 579

——————, failure of—Endorsee from payer of hundi—Holder in due course—Presumption 362

——————— Sale—Full consideration not paid—Vendee not entitled to possession without payment of whole consideration—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, r. 33—Power of High Court 336

——————— want of, allegation as to—Burden of proof 581

Construction of contract. See CONTRACT

——————— of deed—Property gifted to wife for her life only 407

——————— Gift—Property gifted to wife for her life only—Reversion, right of, transfer of—Expectancy of succession—Transfer, validity of 407

——————— of document 385

——————————— Mortgage executed by mother of minor for her husband's debt—Minor, liability of—Mortgagee having only incorporeal right, whether dispossessed by denial of such right—Adverse possession—Incorporeal right, whether can be adversely possessed.

Where a mortgage-deed executed by the mother of a minor mentions that the mortgage is made in order to discharge her husband's debts and also contains a reference to the property being in the enjoyment of herself and her minor son after her husband's death

Held, that the mortgage-deed can be fairly construed to be one executed by the mother on behalf of her son.

Where a mortgagee has only an incorporeal right and is not entitled to possession of the mortgaged properties, the mortgagor's denial of the mortgagee's right cannot make him get possession of the incorporeal right nor can such incorporeal right be possessed adversely by the mortgagor by a mere denial M. VENKATARAMANACHARI v. THIRUNARAYACHARI, 2 L. W. 212 930

——————— of lease. See LEASE.

Construction—concld.

——— ——— of statute 304

——— ——— ——— ———. See STATUTE.

——— ——— of Will. See WILL.

——— ——— ——— 53

Contract to deliver goods in particular month—Non-delivery till last day of month—Breach of contract—Late shipment—Construction of contract—Party relying upon exception—Measure of damages.

The defendant agreed to deliver to the plaintiff a certain quantity of Rangoon rice in the month of June. The contract provided, inter alia, that no objection would be raised by the purchaser if the delivery of the goods was delayed owing to late shipment at Rangoon. The goods were not delivered on or before the 30th June

Held, (1) that there was a breach of the contract,

(2) that the term 'shipment' in the agreement included not merely the loading of goods on board the ship but also the starting of the ship;

(3) that the parties intended by the late shipment provision nothing more than this, that the goods should be put on board in such time as to make it possible to have them delivered to the purchaser at Calcutta on the date specified, if the ship started on such a day as to arrive in Calcutta in time; but that if for any reason for which the vendor was not responsible the ship could not start in time and consequently arrived in Calcutta too late to make it possible for the vendor to deliver to the purchaser the goods on the appointed day, the vendor was not to be held liable in damages;

(4) that, hence, it was obligatory on the defendant to establish that the delay was attributable to circumstances for which he was not responsible.

As soon as a contract has been broken, the obligation of the purchaser to take delivery vanishes; he is not bound to take the goods when they are delivered late.

The right measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and the market price on the date of delivery originally agreed upon by the parties. C. KALI KANTA SAHA v ISMAIL, 20 C. L. J. 133 7

——— ——— Lease and sanad by Government—Resumption for public purposes—"Public purpose," meaning of—Erection of dwelling houses for Government officials, whether public purpose.

A lease and a sanad granted by the Government contained a power of resumption at any time for "public purposes" upon certain terms as to notice and compensation. The Government gave notice to resume the lands in order to erect dwelling houses which they could offer to Government officials at adequate rents for their private residence, as suitable houses could not be easily obtained, though it was shown that it was not impossible to obtain quarters of some kind:

Held, that the term "public purpose" includes a purpose in which the general interest of the community, as opposed to the particular interests of individuals, is directly and vitally concerned and that as the scheme of the Government is one which will redound to public benefit by helping the Government to maintain the efficiency of its servants, it is a Contract—concld.

"public purpose" within the meaning of the contracts contained in the lease and the sanad. P. C. HAMABAI FRAMJEE v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 13 A. L. J. 117; 17 M. L. T. 76; 19 C. W. N. 305; 17 BOM. L. R. 100; 28 M. L. J. 179; 2 L. W. 191; 21 C. L. J. 134; 3 P. B. 279 26

——— ——— to sell, with a reciprocal contract to mortgage by promisee—Failure to mortgage—Gross carelessness on part of promisee—Specific performance, whether allowed.

The defendant agreed to sell to the plaintiff two shops for Rs. 5,900. Rs. 200 were paid in advance as earnest money, Rs. 2,300 were to be paid before the Sub-Registrar, and for the remaining Rs. 3,400 the plaintiff was to mortgage the two shops with possession to the defendant. Both the sale-deed and the mortgage-deed were to be executed and registered within two weeks. In case of default on the plaintiff's part, the defendant was to retain the earnest money, and in case of default on the defendant's part, the plaintiff was to receive back the Rs. 200 and a further sum of Rs. 200 as damages. Both the deeds were duly executed but not registered, owing to the plaintiff's failing to produce the mortgage-deed before the Sub-Registrar for registration. According to the plaintiff the deed was eaten or carried off by rats. The plaintiff sued for specific performance:

Held, (1) that it is discretionary with the Courts to give a decree in such cases; (2) that assuming the facts to be as stated by the plaintiff, the gross carelessness which he had exhibited was such that he did not deserve a decree for specific performance. P. MAHARAJ DAS v. GIAN SINGH, 52 P. W. R. 1915; 128 P. L. R. 1915 481

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 2 (d)—Consideration—Third party, right of, to sue—Plaintiff not privy to contract—Defendant, liability of, when arises—Equity.

A plaintiff cannot make a defendant liable upon a contract to which the plaintiff was not privy, but in such cases as the defendant would be held liable in "Court of Equity" the Courts in this country should hold him liable.

A zemindar who is entitled to zemindari dues from his muafidar is not entitled to sue a lessee from the muafidar for the dues when he was not privy to the contract between his muafidar and lessee, although the lessee agreed in his contract to pay the zemindari dues, as the zemindar has no such equity against the lessee as a Court of Equity would enforce in his favour. A. MANGAL SEN v. MUHAMAD HUSSAIN, 13 A. L. J. 73; 37 A. 115 737

——— ——— s. 11 — Minor — Conveyance in favour of minor, validity of—Contract and conveyance, distinction between—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 127—Gift in favour of minor, validity of—Rulings, construction of.

A contract of sale negotiated by a minor, who settled the terms, paid consideration and received in return a deed purporting to convey immoveable property by way of sale, is altogether void ab initio and no title thereby passes to the minor.

Obiter dicta—(1) Under the provisions of section 127 of the Transfer of Property Act a gift in favour of a minor is not void, though it may be voidable at the option of the minor.

(2) There is a fundamental distinction between a contract and a conveyance. A conveyance is a contract plus something more or, in other words, a conveyance by way of sale is either in itself a contract or at any rate involves or implies an antecedent contract. A. Mussammat MUNNI v. MADAN GOPAL, 13 A. L. J. 185 733 ——— ——— ss. 16, 74—Interest, penal—Court, power of, to grant relief—Penal stipulation as to interest, test of—Unconscionable or extravagant bargain, how determined—Stipulation for accelerating payment, when penal—Domination of Will—Undue influence.

Contract Act—contd.

A Court is competent to grant relief whenever the rate of interest appears to the Court to be penal.

Section 74 of the Contract Act as amended in 1899 is comprehensive enough to cover all cases where the contract contains "any stipulation by way of penalty."

The test to determine whether a contract contains a stipulation by way of penalty is, was the agreement to pay the damage for the breach of covenant or contract unconscionable and extravagant, such as no Court ought to allow to be entered into. In order to determine what is unconscionable and extravagant no hard and fast rule can be laid down, the particular facts and circumstances of each case should be considered.

A stipulation merely accelerating payment of the whole debt on default of payment of one or more instalments is not, by itself, by way of penalty. But the position is very different where the entire sum, which the creditor had agreed to receive in instalments without interest, is not only made repayable in one sum, but is also made to carry interest at an unusual rate. The Court may, in view of all the circumstances of the case, regard the stipulation for the payment of interest at an exorbitant rate, as a penalty.

Where the stipulation was made that upon default of payment of one or two instalments not only would the whole balance due become forthwith payable, but would carry interest at the rate of 75 per cent. per annum:

Held, that the covenant for payment of interest at this rate was a penalty.

The urgent need of money on the part of the borrower does not of itself place the lender in a position to dominate his will within the meaning of section 16 of the Contract Act. But where the creditors are in a position to take advantage of the embarrassment of their debtors the bargain is unconscionable. C. KHAGARAM DAS v. RAM SANKAR DAS, 21 C. L. J. 79; 19 C. W. N. 775 815

——— ——— ss. 19, 65 130

——— ——— s. 23 579

——— ——— ss. 23, 65—Contract—Illegal contract—Rule of in pari delicto—Consideration paid for contract void ab initio, whether recoverable—Betrothal agreement.

A breach of betrothal agreement gives rise to a claim for damages.

The plaintiff advanced money to the defendant in consideration of his daughter's betrothal to the former's son. The fiance died and the plaintiff sued for refund of the money paid by him:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable. P. HIRA v. JOWALA DAS, 27 P. L. R. 1915 1008

Contract Act—contd.

——— s. 23—Partition—Vendor and purchaser—Condition not to partition property, whether against public policy—Breach of contract—Compensation—Damages, measure of.

A condition imposed in a sale-deed that the vendees would not partition the share purchased without the consent of the vendor, is not opposed to public policy, as no right is absolutely given up, and the vendor is entitled to compensation for the breach of such condition.

Where the parties have themselves fixed the value of their right, that amount is a proper measure of the damages sustained by a party. A. KUMR SEN v. SUKHKHO, 13 A. L. J. 6 203

s. 27—Restraint of trade—Landlord allowing cattle market to be held on his land in return of toll, whether trading—Agreement not to hold market to sell cattle on particular days, whether void.

A landholder who, in return for market tolls or fees, allows a cattle market to be conducted on his land, is not thereby exercising the trade or business of selling cattle.

Therefore, an agreement between the owners of two neighbouring lands to the effect that a market for sale of cattle shall not be held on the same day on the lands of both of them, is not void under section 27 of the Contract Act. A. POTHI RAM v. ISLAM FATEMA, 13 A. L. J. 281; 37 A. 212 871

——— ——— s. 33 334

——— ——— ——— ss. 39, 75—Rescission of contract—Compensation for loss caused thereby—Measure of damages—Notice of insolvency, effect of.

A bare notice of insolvency does not necessarily and in all cases amount to a declaration of intention not to fulfil obligations. It is a question of fact in each case.

Where a purchaser of goods failed to take delivery of goods under a due contract and the vendors, on receiving notice of the insolvency of the purchaser, served him with a notice that they put an end to all the forward contracts and received neither a reply to the notice nor any offer to pay for or take delivery of the goods:

Held, that the vendors had validly rescinded the contracts and were entitled to exact compensation for the loss occasioned thereby.

Per Crouch, A. J. C.—The great underlying principle by which the Courts are guided in awarding damages is restitutio in integrum and the exact cost of effecting a complete restitutio in integrum is the difference between the original contract rate and that at which the vendor can sell to a fresh purchaser goods of the same quantity and quality and of the same shipment.

Per Hayward, A. J. C.—The election to take advantage of the repudiation of a contract goes only to the question of breach, and not to the question of damages, which must be estimated by the difference between the contract price and the market price at the day or days appointed for performance, and not at the time of breach S. JAMES FINLAY & Co, LTD. v. DAVID SASSOON & Co., 8 S. L. R. 95 102

Contract Act—contd.

——— ——— s. 43—Joint promisors—Creditor's claim against one barred—Decree against other—Contribution.

A joint promisor, whose liability to the promisee kept alive beyond three years from the date of the promissory note and who is consequently compelled to pay by a decree of the Court more than his proportion of the debt to the promisee, can sue his joint promisor for contribution, though the decree exonerated that other joint promisor from payment on the ground that the debt as against him was barred by limitation

Per Tyabji, J.—The duty to contribute is clearly distinct from the duty to pay to the promisee. The first is to the promisor, the second is to the promisee, the right of each joint promisor to claim indemnity does not consist merely of being subrogated to the right of the original promisee: for though the promisee's rights may have been released the responsibility to the joint promisor is not annulled. M. ABRAHAM SERVAI v. RAPHIAL MUTHIRIAN, 27 M. L. J. 746; 16 M. L. T. 569 337

——— ——— s. 43—Joint promisors — Promisee's discretion to sue some or all—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. I, r. 10.

Section 43 of the Contract Act takes away the right of a joint debtor to be sued jointly.

Where two persons jointly lease a house, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, they are jointly and severally liable to pay the rent, and it is open to the landlord to sue one or both of them.

If the landlord sues one of them only, under Order I, rule 10, Civil Procedure Code, the Court has the power to order that the other should be made a co-defendant, but it is not bound to do so, and in case there is no clue to his whereabouts, it would not be proper for the Court to insist that he should be made a party. P. LIVINGSTONE v. FEROZ DIN, 107 P. R. 1914 94

——— ——— ——— s. 65 1008

——— ——— ——— s. 70 334

——— ——— ——— s. 74 815, 885

——— ——— ——— s. 107—Contract to purchase goods—Failure to take delivery—Breach of contract—Resale—Ascertainment of goods—Damages, principle of assessing—Pleadings in mofussil—Practice.

The High Court sitting in second appeal and dealing with pleadings in the mofussil will not be so strict as it would be in cases from the original side of the High Court.

The defendant at Chittagong agreed by a written contract to purchase from the plaintiffs a certain quantity of Cocoanada chillies Ex. S.S. Lawada at a specified rate. The contract, after reciting the terms for payment of price, provided that on failure to fulfil the above terms, the difference of market-value would be recoverable by the sellers on a week's notice. There was a note also to the effect that re-sale was to be at the option of the sellers. The chillies arrived at Chittagong on the steamer Kotaria, having been transhipped at Calcutta from the steamer Lawada. The defendant was given notice to take delivery, which he failed to do. The plaintiffs sued for damages for breach of contract.

Contract Act—concld.

Held (1) that section 107 of the Contract Act applied;

(2) that the plaintiffs acquired their right of re-sale by the contract itself and, therefore, had no need to invoke section 107;

(3) that the principle of assessing damages laid down by section 107 and by the Allahabad High Court in Prag Narain v. Mul Chand, 19 A. 535 at p. 541, must be kept in view in this case;

(4) that the fact that the quantity of chillies brought to Chittagong formed part of a large consignment of chillies Ex. S.S. Lawada, did not affect the quantity which reached Chittagong, Ex. S.S. Lawada on another steamer and which, the notices said, was set apart and appropriated to the defendant's use. C. ARABAR RAHAMAN v. ISMAIL EBRAHIM 373

——— ——— ——— ss. 128 to 145—Surety, liability of—Contract of guarantee—Loss arising after breach—Unreasonable delay in re-sale—Discharge of broker—Failure to object to statement of accounts—Evidence of correctness.

A contract of guarantee, being a contract stricti-simi juris, the surety is entitled to insist on a rigid adherence to the terms of his obligation by the creditor, and is liable only for such loss as arises directly from a breach of the terms of the contract actually guaranteed.

A guarantee broker is discharged from liability if the seller suffers loss on account of his own unreasonable delay in re-selling the goods after the breach of the contract.

Where a statement substantially affecting a person's material interests is made to him in writing, and the circumstances are such that he would certainly or probably have objected had the statement been incorrect, then his silence can be treated as, an admission, that is, as evidence, but not necessarily as proof, of the correctness of the statement. S. MERCANTILE BANK v. TAHILRAM PESHUMAL, 8 S. L. R. 112 309 ——— ——— ——— ss. 134, 137—Principal and surety—Omission to pursue suit against principal on account of difficulty in service—Striking off his name—Surety not discharged—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908, O. IX, r. 5, O. XXIII, r. 1, applicability of.

Where in a suit against several defendants, there is some difficulty in serving one of them and hence his name is struck off, if not at the request, at least with the consent of the plaintiff, the striking out of the name, even before a year has elapsed, would be a procedure under Order IX, rule 5, rather than Order XXIII, rule 1.

In a suit against the principal debtor and surety, the mere omission of the plaintiff to pursue his suit against the principal debtor with the result that his name is struck off and the suit dismissed against him under Order IX, rule 5, does not discharge the surety, provided the suit be still in time against the principal. B. NATHABHAI TRICAMLAL v. RANCHODLAL RAMJI, 16 BOM. L. R. 606; 39 B. 52 165

——— ——— ——— s. 137 165

——— ——— ——— s. 253 (7) 344

——— ——— ——— s. 253 (10) 64

Contribution—Contract Act (IX of 1872), section 43—Joint promisors—Creditor's claim against one barred—Decree against other 337

——— —— —— One co-mortgagor redeeming whole mortgage, right of 780

——— —— —— —, right of, founded on justice, equity and good conscience—Principle—Contribution for excess over one's share—Liability limited only to one's share—Over-payment good defence—Suit for contribution—Decree, how to be framed 22

——— —— —— —, suit for—Joint tenancy—Payment of rent by one—Liability of other joint tenants to contribute—Decree, form of—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 43, 70.

When several persons hold a tenancy jointly, the liability for rent is joint and several under section 43 of the Contract Act, and where one of these persons pays the whole rent, he can sue the others for contribution under section 70 of the Contract Act and is entitled to a decree to recover jointly from the others. C. NIRDOSH MUNDA v. JAKARIA MUNDA, 20 C. L. J. 492 334 ——— —— —— —— ——, suit for—Payment of decree for rent by one of the judgment-debtors—Execution by assignee of decree—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 148 (h)—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 69, 70,—Suit for contribution not cognisable by Small Cause Court—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 41.

Where an assignee of a decree for rent, without obtaining assignment of the landlord's interest in the land, applies for execution, and one of the judgment-debtors satisfies the decree by payment under compulsion of legal process, the latter is entitled under sections 69, 70 of the Contract Act to call upon the other judgment-debtors for contribution.

There is nothing in section 148 (h) of the Bengal Tenancy Act to prevent the assignee from accepting the payment of the decree and certifying such payment to the execution Court.

A suit by some of several persons, bound by a common liability of tenancy, who have discharged the joint obligation, to compel their co-sharers to make good their shares, falls within the scope of Article 41 of the second Schedule to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and hence, it is excluded from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court. C. RAJANI KANTA GHOSH v. RAMA NATH ROY, 20 C. L. J. 200, 19 C. W. N. 458 56

Costs—Power of Appellate Court to allow costs disallowed by Subordinate Court.

In awarding costs the usual rule is that costs should be allowed to the successful party, and where no good ground exists for not following the rule the higher Court should rectify the error. P. CHELA RAM v. MUNGH RAJ, 22 P. W. R. 1915; 65 P. L. R. 1915 621

Court—Successor in office 145

——— ——, power of, not to confirm sale 601

——— , power of, to direct addition of parties in appeal 609

Court Fees Act (VII of 1870, s. 7 (x) (d) 31

Court Fees Act—contd.

——— ——— s. 7, sub-s. xi (cc)—Landlord and tenant—Suit by former for ejectment and rent—Stamp duty paid on one year's rent—Competency of Court to inquire into title—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 58 and 83—Mortgage by conditional sale—Sale and rental agreement—Document of even date containing an undertaking to reconvey under certain conditions—Deposit in Court—Refusal to receive money—Whether, subsisting relation of landlord and tenant affected by deposit.

Where in a suit for ejectment and arrears of rent by certain landlords against their tenants, the plaintiffs pay stamp duty calculated upon one year's rent only under section 7, (XI) (cc) of the Court Fees Act, of 1870, the Court will not go into the question of title.

Where, in a suit by landlords against their tenants for ejectment and for arrears of rent, the tenants pleaded that the transaction between the parties was only a mortgage by conditional sale, that they had deposited the mortgage amount in Court under section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act and that as the plaintiffs (the mortgagees) had refused to receive the same from the Court, they were debarred from suing for any rent subsequent to the date of such deposit and from ejecting the defendants:

Held, that the mere deposit of the amount in Court did not put an end to the already subsisting relation of landlord and tenant between the parties and that the plaintiffs were entitled to sue for possession and rent. M. BALASIDHANTAM v. PERUMAL CHETTI, 1 L. W. 641; 27 M. L. J. 475 162

——— ——— Sch. I, Art. I 316, 326

——— ——— Sch. II, Art. 17—Suit by claimant under s 283, Civil Procedure Code, 1882, Court-fees on—Value of quantum of interest claimed.

In suits under section 283 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1882 the test for the purposes of the Court-fees is, what is the value of the quantum of interest which the plaintiff wishes to establish. M. NARAYANA SINGH v. AYYASAWMY REDDI, (1914) M. W. N. 910 265

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 1 (2) 910

——— —— —— ss. 4 (m), 476—Proceedings in execution, whether "judicial proceedings"—Sanction to prosecute—Guiding principle.

The proceedings in execution are judicial proceedings within the meaning of the Criminal Procedure Code till they are finally disposed of by the Court

No Court should direct or sanction prosecution unless there is a reasonable probability of conviction. The opinion of the Court should be judicial opinion based on evidence and formed after a thorough inquiry into the matter. N. SHIOSHANKARPURI v. EMPEROR, 10 N. L. R. 177; 16 Cr. L. J. 161 545

——— ——— s. 16—Trial by Bench of Honorary Magistrates—Difference of opinion—Benefit of doubt—Reference to District Magistrate, whether legal—Practice

Where there is an irreconcilable difference of opinion between the members of a Bench of two Honorary Magistrates as to the guilt of an accused, they should follow the principle laid down by the Local Government for their guidance though not formally issued by the District Magistrate of their district under section 16 of the Criminal Procedure Code and, giving the benefit of the doubt, should acquit the accused.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

A reference by a Bench of Honorary Magistrates on difference of opinion between them to a District Magistrate is irregular and not justified by any provisions of Criminal Procedure Code. A. KASHINATH v. SHANKAR RAM, 16 CR. L. J. 113 177

— ss. 88, 386, 439—Attachment under s. 386—Revision incompetent—Claim, determination of—Criminal Courts, jurisdiction of.

No revision lies against an order of attachment made under section 386 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

The principles applicable to attachments under section 88 of the Code apply equally to attachments under section 386.

The Code does not contain any provision for the trial of claims which may be preferred to property distrained under section 386, and when the Magistrate has acted under it, no further proceedings in the Criminal Courts are admissible. P. HIRA LAL v. EMPEROR, 28 P. L. R. 1915 550

— — — ss. 94, 96—Document in possession of accused—Search warrant, Magistrate, power of, to issue—'Person', meaning of—Document or thing, whether limited to document or thing, which is the subject of offence—Inspection of documents found in search.

Under section 96 of the Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate is competent to issue a search warrant for documents in possession of the accused, and such documents can, after production, be inspected by the prosecution or by any experts appointed by the Court in this behalf.

The words 'a person' in sections 94, 96, Criminal Procedure Code, include the person accused in the case, and the words 'document or thing' in the sections are general and cover any document the production or inspection of which is 'necessary or desirable' or will serve the ends of justice. There is nothing in the sections to limit their provisions to the finding of such documents or things only in respect of which the alleged offence may have been committed. P. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, JHANG v. MUHAMMAD HAYAT, 36 P. R. 1914 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 225 897

— — — s. 96 897

— — — — s. 103 910

— — — — s. 107—Jurisdiction of Magistrate to take action—Dispute as to immoveable property—Breach of the peace.

The jurisdiction of a Magistrate to take action under section 107 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not ousted merely because the breach of the peace relates to immoveable property. M. SUPPA THEVAN v. RAMASWAMI AIYAR, 16 CR. L. J. 211 835

— — — — ss. 107, 145, 435 (3)—Proceedings under Chapter XII by Magistrate duly authorised—Interference in revision—Proceedings under sections 107 and 145 not to be combined—Nature of information necessary for issue of process.

Where proceedings are taken under Chapter XII of the Criminal Procedure Code by a Magistrate duly empowered under that Chapter, the High Court has no power to interfere in revision and cannot even enter into the question of the legality of the Magistrate's proceedings.

It is very undesirable to combine proceedings under section 107 with proceedings under section 145, and to act against both opposing parties in the same proceedings under section 107.

In order to enable a Magistrate to issue process under section 107, the information must be of a clear and definite kind directly affecting the person against whom process is issued, and it should disclose tangible facts and details, so that it may afford notice to such person of what he is to come prepared to meet. S. FARID v. PIRU, 8 S. L. R. 207, 16 CR. L. J. 235 907

— — — s. 110—Bad livelihood—General repute, evidence of, nature of.

Where security under section 110, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, is taken from a person on the evidence of general repute only, that repute should be proved to be universal and there should be no doubt about it.

Therefore, where the only evidence against an accused is that of general repute and it is not universal, it is not safe to bind him over on such meagre and doubtful evidence. P. JHANDU RAM v EMPEROR, 48 P. W. R. 1914 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 106 154

— — — ss. 110, 121, 514—Forfeiture of security bond in a separate proceeding, when not allowed.

If a Criminal Court, knowing that the person charged before it is under security to be of good behaviour, in sentencing that person in the case before it, makes no reference to any confiscation of that security and takes no steps towards its confiscation, it is not competent for that Court or any other Court in a subsequent and separate proceeding to take such steps. P. BEGA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 6 P. W. R. 1915 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 194; 96 P. L. R. 1915 754

— — s. 110—Obtaining decree by forged documents, whether cheating or extortion—Proceedings under s. 110, whether legal—Joint trial—Association in same offences.

The obtaining of decrees by means of forged documents is neither cheating nor extortion as defined in the Penal Code. Therefore, persons habitually committing such acts cannot be proceeded against under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Two accused cannot be tried together unless their association in the same offence is made out. P. EMPEROR v. CHUNI, 21 P. R. 1914 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 136 200

— — — s. 112—Order requiring sureties to be clear in its terms—Arbitrary standard—Reluctance to stand surety—Person, when satisfactory surety—Surety, rejection of.

The object of the provisions of Chapter VIII of the Criminal Procedure Code is not to consign bad characters to jail, but to prevent them from committing offences to allay public apprehension.

An order under section 112 must be such that if a suspect have a bona fide intention to be of good behaviour, it will not be impossible for him to find sureties.

It is unfair to a suspect to call on him to produce sureties of a certain class and then to reject the persons offered because they do not conform to an arbitrary standard not set up in the order. If the sureties offered come fairly within the terms of the order, they can only be rejected because they are personally unfit.

More reluctance to be surety constitutes no valid objection, unless the Magistrate is satisfied that the surety is, under what amounts to undue influence, undertaking a risk which as a reasonable and prudent man he would not take if a free agent.

A man is a satisfactory surety if he is in a position to ascertain how the accused is behaving and if he is also of such character and standing that he would not hesitate to apply for cancellation of his bond if he saw risk of forfeiture.

A surety should not be rejected merely because a Police Inspector informs the Magistrate that he is of bad character, when such rejection involves the committal of the accused to prison. S. MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 178; 16 CR. L. J. 100 148

——— ——— ——— S. 118—Proceedings pending—Some defence witnesses called upon to show cause why they should not be prosecuted under s. 193, Indian Penal Code—Accused prejudiced—Order, whether sustainable.

Where proceedings under section 118, Criminal Procedure Code, were still pending against an accused, the Magistrate called upon some of the defence witnesses to show cause why they should not be prosecuted under section 193, Indian Penal Code, whereby the other defence witnesses were frightened and did not give evidence:

Held, that the action of the Magistrate was highly injudicious and was calculated seriously to hamper and prejudice the accused and the order under section 118 could not be sustained. C. KEDAR MULLICK v. EMPEROR, 16 CR. L. J. 114 178

——— ——— ——— S. 121 754

——— ——— ——— ss. 133, 137—Existence of hayricks on premises of petitioner—Conditional order under s. 133—Denial by petitioner that they are nuisance—Inspection of premises by Magistrate—No evidence taken—Order made absolute—Order, whether legal.

In consequence of a representation from the respondent that the hayricks on the petitioner's premises were a nuisance and likely to cause conflagration, the Magistrate issued a conditional order under section 133, Criminal Procedure Code. The petitioner admitted the existence of the hayricks, but denied that they were a nuisance. The Magistrate from his own inspection decided that they were a danger to adjoining houses and made the order absolute without taking any evidence.

Held, that the Magistrate should not have made the order absolute on his own opinion formed by inspection, but should have called on the respondent to adduce evidence that the hayricks constituted a nuisance and the order must, therefore, be set aside. M. DORAISWAMY MUDALIAR v. SUDARSANA CHARIAR, 17 M. L. T. 142; 16 CR. L. J. 207 767

——— ——— ——— S. 133—Removal of encroachment—No finding as to extent of encroachment or bona fides of claim—Order, whether proper—Encroachment, extent of, how ascertained.

Where in a proceeding taken under section 133 of the Criminal Procedure Code, an order was passed for the removal of a house which was said to represent an encroachment or obstruction on a public way, but without any finding as to the extent of the encroachment or as to the claim not being made in good faith:

Held, that the order could not be sustained.

The extent of encroachment should be ascertained by re-laying the map on the ground or otherwise. C. BHAGAT PERSHAD v. RAMRUP KARMOKAR, 21 C. L. J. 116; 16 CR. L. J. 116 224

——— ——— ——— S. 137 767

——— ——— ——— S. 144—Cow-sacrifice—General order.

Under section 144, Criminal Procedure Code, a District Magistrate can issue an order to the public generally who in certain particular circumstances cannot be individually addressed. Sub-section (3) of the section is intended to extend rather than to limit the scope of the order so as to include therein even casual or frequent visitors from outside the limits of the particular locality within which the order is to have application.

A general order issued by a District Magistrate to the effect that no person should sacrifice or cause to be sacrificed any cow or bullock within a certain specified boundary and period, is a legal order. O. ABDUL GAFUR v. EMPEROR, 16 CR. L. J. 190 670

——— ——— ——— S. 144 (3)—Order directed to public at large—Operation not confined to particular place—Jurisdiction.

An order of a District Magistrate, purporting to have been passed under section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code, is made without jurisdiction if its operation is not confined to a particular individual or to the public generally when frequenting or visiting a particular place. B. BHAGUBHAI DWARKADAS v. EMPEROR, 16 BOM. L. R. 684; 16 CR. L. J. 98 146

——— ——— ——— S. 145 807

——— ——— ——— S. 145—Dispute likely to cause breach of the peace not mentioned in notice—Parties aware—Magistrate—Jurisdiction—Revision.

Where there is a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace and the parties are aware of it, the Magistrate is not ousted of his jurisdiction to act under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code simply because in the notice issued it is not stated that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists. A. RAM BEHARI v. MUNESHER, 16 CR. L. J. 224 848

——— ——— ——— ss. 145, 146—Magistrate, duty of, to find who is in possession on date of his order—Previous possession, effect of—Order under s. 146, when ultra vires.

Under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure a Magistrate should find as to who is in actual possession of the property in dispute on the date of his order, not on any date anterior to that, although previous possession may be a guide to his finding peaceful and actual possession on the date.

An order under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, would be ultra vires, unless the Magistrate records a finding that he is unable to find which party is in actual possession under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code. M. THUMBALABED HAMPANNA v. PARISI GANGAMMA, 16 CR. L. J. 239 911

——— ——— ——— ss. 145, 439—Non-compliance with provisions of s. 145—Fatal defect—Revision.

Where a Magistrate proceeding under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, does not strictly comply with its provisions and fails to find that the dispute between the parties concerning the property in question is likely to occasion a breach of the peace, his order is without jurisdiction and bad in law and is, consequently, liable to be set aside on revision under section 439 of the said Code. P. TEKU v BUTA SINGH, 9 P. W. R 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L J. 206; 92 P. L. R. 1915 766

——— ——— ——— ss. 145, 356—Order under s. 145—Procedure under s. 356 not complied with, effect of

The provisions of sub-section (3), section 356, of the Criminal Procedure Code apply only to cases in which the evidence recorded under the first sub-section is not recorded in the Magistrate's own hand. The provisions of the first sub-section are imperative and where a Magistrate in a proceeding under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, does not follow this procedure, his order cannot be sustained. C. SADAMANDA MANDAL v. KRISTA MANDAL, 42 C. 381; 19 C. W. N. 124; 16 Cr. L. J. 192 672

——— ——— ——— ss. 145, 517—Property attached under s 145—Cancelment of order—Disposal of property—Proper order—Practice.

Where, after attaching certain properties under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the order was on inquiry cancelled on the ground that there was no immediate danger of a breach of the peace:

Held, that in such a case the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to direct that the attached properties should be delivered to one of the parties, as that would be in effect deciding the question at issue between the parties, and that he should keep them or their sale-proceeds, if perishable, in deposit until one of the parties establishes its right in a Civil Court.

Quære:—Whether section 517 of the Code of Criminal Procedure applies to such cases? M. CHENGA REDDI v RAMASAMY GOUNDEN, 1 L. W 1082; 16 Cr. L. J. 104 152

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 146 911

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 155, 173—Case not disposed of by order of Magistrate—Prosecution by Police under s. 211, illegal.

The applicant gave to the Police information of a non-cognizable offence. The Police obtained the authority of a Magistrate as required by section 155 of the Criminal Procedure Code to investigate the case. The Magistrate directed that the Police should report to him. No report was ever made. Meantime, however, the Police instituted proceedings against the applicant under section 211 of the Penal Code and obtained his conviction.

Held, that the conviction was bad and must be set aside. Even if the Magistrate had not directed a report to be made, section 173 of the Criminal Procedure Code requires that it should be made The case was one that could not be disposed of without the order of the Magistrate in some form or another. B. APPA RAGHO BHOGLE v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 69; 16 Cr. L. J. 161 545

——— ——— ——— ss. 155, 190 (1) (b)—Non-cognisable case reported by Police—Procedure—Police report.

When a Magistrate receives a Police report in a non-cognizable case and has reason for doubting its correctness, he can order an investigation under section 155, Criminal Procedure Code, but he cannot examine the Police Officer who submitted the report as if he was a complainant.

A Police report in a non-cognizable case is a Police report within the meaning of section 190 (1) (b) Criminal Procedure Code. U. B. NGA SAW KE v EMPEROR, U. B. R. (1914) II, 19; 16 Cr. L. J. 97 145

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 164, 288—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 145, 155—Accused, evidence to be used against—Admissibility in evidence—Contradiction of statements made in Court.

Statements taken under the provisions of section 164, Criminal Procedure Code, and not covered by those of section 288, Criminal Procedure Code, are inadmissible in evidence against the accused, but admissible, under the provisions of section 145 and 155 of the Evidence Act, only for the purpose of contradicting the statements subsequently made in Court by the persons making those former statements. O. PUTTU v. EMPEROR, 1 O. L J. 758; 17 O. C. 363; 16 Cr. L J 132 196

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 173 545

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 190 (1) (b) 145

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 195—Forgery, charge of—Sanction to prosecute, whether necessary.

It is necessary for a party wishing to prosecute upon a charge of forgery committed in respect of a document produced in Court to obtain sanction of the Court under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code A. HARDEO PRASAD v. RAM SARUP, 16 Cr. L J 203 763

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 195 (1) (c)—Bombay Land Revenue Code (Act V of 1879), ss. 189, 197—Mutation—Mamlatdar holding inquiry, whether Revenue Court—Record of Rights—Production of forged Will—Sanction to prosecute.

A mamlatdar holding an inquiry under Chapter XII of the Bombay Land Revenue Code is a Revenue Court within the meaning of section 195, sub-section (1), clause (c), of the Criminal Procedure Code, and sanction is necessary in order to prosecute a person for an offence in respect of a document produced before the mamlatdar in the course of the inquiry. B. EMPEROR v. NARAYAN GANPAYA HAVNIK, 16 Bom. L. R. 678, 16 Cr. L. J. 99; 39 B. 310 147

——— ——— ——— s. 195—Sanction to prosecute—Sanction, when not justified—Prima facie case, whether can be indicated in sanction order.

A Judge is entitled to call for such records as he thinks would assist him in the exercise of his discretion, but he cannot sanction the prosecution of witnesses on inferences drawn against them from such records when they were not produced before or at the time of their deposition and when the witnesses were not given an opportunity to explain them.

Per Napier, J.—A prima facie case cannot be indicated against a person in the order sanctioning his prosecution M. KRISHNAMMA v. CHITTURI CHINNA, 17 M. L T. 15; (1915) M. W. N. 140; 16 Cr. L. J. 115 179

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 195—Sanction, whether granted without application—Defect of procedure or form in granting sanction, effect of.

A Court can give a sanction under section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code even if no application is made to the Court for it.

Per Shah, J.—Any defect of procedure or form in granting a sanction cannot convert the sanction into a complaint. B. In re SANGAPPA GADIGEPPA, 16 BOM. L. R. 947; 16 CR. L. J. 107 155

——— ——— s. 195—Sanction for giving self-evidence—Court, duty of—Prosecution, desirability of, in public interests.

In giving sanction to prosecute for giving false evidence, the Courts should not merely see that there is a good prospect of conviction, but should also consider whether the circumstances are such as to render a prosecution desirable in the public interests. M. In re NATTAVA PARANKUSAM, 37 M. 564 16 CR. L. J. 167 551

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 203, 259, 437—Dismissal of complaint for default—Second complaint on same facts, whether entertainable—Further inquiry—Discretion.

A prior order of discharge does not bar the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to entertain a second complaint upon the same facts.

The mere fact that a complaint has been dismissed under section 259, Criminal Procedure Code, is not a sufficient ground for refusing to entertain a second complaint and dismissing it under section 203.

It is purely discretionary with a Court to order further inquiry under section 437, Criminal Procedure Code. S. BULCHAND TAHILRAM v. GHANDHOOMAL RAMRAKHIAMAL, 8 S. L. R. 196; 16 CR. L. J 174 558

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 235, 239—Charges, joinder of—Offences committed on different dates—Same transaction.

Where certain persons were wrongfully confined by the accused, who fined them and realised a certain portion of the fines and released them on their promising to pay the balance of the fine three days later, but on their failing to do so they were again confined, maltreated and shoe-beaten and were turned out by the accused on being informed that the Police were coming.

Held, that as they were all confined for one purpose i. e., for the purpose of extorting money, the whole thing was one transaction and that there was no misjoinder of charges if they were tried together. C. DEPUTY SUPDT. & REMB. OF LEGAL AFFAIRS v. KAILASH CHANDRA GHOSH, 19 C. W. N. 181; 16 CR. L. J. 120 184

——— ——— ——— s. 239 184

——— ——— ——— s. 243 910

——— ——— ——— s. 247—Acquittal on date not fixed for hearing—Nullity—Jurisdiction of Magistrate to ignore acquittal and proceed with case.

An order of acquittal passed under section 247, Criminal Procedure Code, on a date which was not fixed for the hearing, is a nullity and does not debar the Magistrate from taking up the case and trying the accused without an order from a superior Court to revive it. C. ACHAMBIT MONDAL v. MAHATAB SINGH, 18 C. W. N. 1180; 16 CR. L. J. 148; 42 C. 365 212

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 250, 422, 423, 435 and 439—Compensation awarded against complainant for vexatious complaint by 2nd class Magistrate—Appeal to Sub-Divisional Magistrate—Order, whether can be set aside without notice to accused—Compensation, when should be awarded

In all judicial proceedings where no specific rule as to notice exists, the rule "audi alteram partem" applies as a principle of natural justice.

An Appellate Court can alter or set aside, to the prejudice of an accused, an order awarding compensation to him under section 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure only on proper notice to him.

An order under section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code can be justified only when the Court finds not merely that the complaint was false but also that it was frivolous and vexatious. M. VENKATARAMA AIYAR v. KRISHNA AIYAR, 2 L. W. 200; 28 M. L. J. 204; (1915) M. W. N. 181; 17 M. L. T. 164, 16 CR. L. J. 128 192

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 256—Accused, right of, to cross-examine prosecution witnesses after charge is framed—Magistrate, duty of—Omission to ask, effect of.

The provisions of section 255, Criminal Procedure Code, are imperative and it is an illegality to ignore them.

It is not until a specific charge has been drawn up and explained to the accused that he is in a position fully to cross-examine the witnesses for the Crown and, therefore, he should in all cases be asked at that time if he wishes to re-call witnesses for cross-examination, for the omission to follow the procedure involves remand and re-trial of the case from the point of drawing up of the charge. P. MOOLA v. EMPEROR, 11 P. R. 1914 CR.; 16 CR. L. J. 146 210

——— ——— ——— s. 259 558

——— ——— ——— s. 288 196

——— ——— ——— s. 337—Forfeiture of pardon—Formal withdrawal or declaration, whether necessary before prosecution—Accused, plea open to.

Under the present Code of Criminal Procedure no formal withdrawal of a pardon and no formal declaration that the pardon has been forfeited are required. If the person who has accepted a conditional pardon be subsequently proceeded against, it is open to him to plead on his trial that the pardon has not in fact been forfeited, that is to say, that he has not violated the conditions on which the pardon was tendered and accepted. This then becomes one of the issues to be heard and determined at the trial. C. EMPEROR v. SABER AKUNJI, 19 C. W. N. 179; 16 CR. L. J. 120 184

——— ——— ——— s. 339—Forfeiture of pardon—Practice.

Where an accomplice forfeits the pardon offered to him, it is the duty of the Sessions Judge to record a finding as to the forfeiture. It is not enough that the Committing Magistrate does so. M. MADIGA POTHUGADU, In re, 16 CR. L. J. 284 906

——— ——— ——— s. 356 672

——— ——— ——— s. 386 550

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 399, 426—Order of detention, whether sentence—Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897), ss. 8, 10—Sessions Judge, whether can suspend operation of order.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

An order of detention passed by a District Magistrate under section 10 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) is not a "sentence" within the meaning of section 426 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, nor is it a punishment enumerated in section 53 of the Indian Penal Code A Sessions Judge, therefore, has no power to suspend its operation under section 426 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. M. EMPEROR v. KRISHNA PANDARAM, 16 CR. L J. 134 198

——— s. 403—Previous trial without sanction—Jurisdiction of Court to try accused on some facts after sanction—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 82.

Where the law requires a previous sanction to be given before a charge can be entertained by a Court, that Court is not a Court of competent jurisdiction until the sanction has been obtained.

An accused was placed upon trial for aiding and abetting forgery in connection with a document presented for registration and was acquitted. He was then placed upon his trial for aiding and abetting cheating in connection with the same transaction. He was convicted by the Magistrate but was acquitted on appeal. The District Registrar thereupon gave sanction for his trial for an offence under section 82 of the Registration Act. He was committed to Sessions and the Sessions Judge made a reference to the High Court suggesting that section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code was a bar to his trial

Held, that the former trial of the accused for the offence of aiding and abetting forgery was in no way a bar to his trial for an offence under the Registration Act, nor was his trial and acquittal of the offence of aiding and abetting the cheating a bar by reason of clause 4 of section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code as at the former trial the Court was not competent to charge with or convict or acquit of the offence with which he was subsequently charged by reason of the want of sanction. A. EMPEROR v. JIWAN, 13 A. L. J. 431; 16 CR. L. J. 144; 37 A. 107 208

——— ss. 422, 423 192

——— s. 426 198

——— s. 435 192

——— s. 435 (3) 907

——— s. 436—Discretion of Sessions Judge—Power of High Court to interfere.

A High Court should be slow to interfere with the exercise of the very wide discretion with which Sessions Judges have been invested under the provisions of section 436 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. A. MANGAT RAI v EMPEROR, 13 A. L. J. 111; 16 CR L. J. 139 203

——— s. 437 558

——— s. 437—Further inquiry—Discharge after fully considering whole evidence—Notice to accused.

An order of further inquiry under section 437, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898, is improper and is liable to be set aside on revision if the whole evidence on the record has been duly considered and the order of discharge is not manifestly perverse or foolish, etc.

Although before directing further inquiry notice to the accused is not absolutely necessary, yet according to the general principle of criminal jurisprudence an order to the prejudice of an accused should not ordinarily be passed without giving him an opportunity of being heard. P. SITA RAM v. EMPEROR, 4 P. W. R 1915, 130 P. L. R. 1915; 16 CR. L. J. 214 838 ——— ss. 439, 476—Order of prosecution—Interference in revision.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

——— s. 439 192, 205, 550, 762, 766, 840, 902

The High Court has no power under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code to interfere in revision with an order made by a Civil Court under section 476, Criminal Procedure Code M. MANNER CHETTI, In re, 17 M. L. T. 268; 16 CR. L J. 282 904

——— s. 439—Revision by private prosecutor against order of acquittal—High Court, jurisdiction of, to set aside acquittal—Practice.

Per Jenkins C. J., and Fletcher, J.—A High Court has jurisdiction to set aside on revision an order of acquittal at the instance of a private prosecutor but it should ordinarily exercise this jurisdiction sparingly and only where it is urgently demanded in the interests of public justice.

Per Teunon, J.—A High Court has ample jurisdiction, under section 439, Criminal Procedure Code, to interfere with an acquittal and remedy the wrong, if wrong has been done. Section 439 is expressed in the widest terms and vests in the Court an absolute and unqualified discretion which cannot be restricted by any series of decisions. C. FAUJDAR THAKUR v. KASI CHOUDHURI, 19 C. W. N. 184; 21 C. L. J. 53; 16 CR. L. J. 122 186

——— s. 476 545, 904

——— s. 476—Court—Successor in office.

The expression "Court" in section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code includes the successor in office. A. MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM v. EMPEROR 12 A L. J. 1003; 16 CR. L. J 97 145

——— s. 476—District Registrar, whether Court—Jurisdiction.

A District Registrar, as provided in section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not a "Court" and has, therefore, no jurisdiction to make an order under section 476 of the Code.

Obiter dictum:—What is declared not to be a "Court" for the purpose of section 195 is also not a Court for the purpose of section 476 B. MANKU BALA PATIL, In re, 16 BOM. L. R 946, 16 CR. L. J 106 154

——— s. 476—Order to prosecute—Charge to be clearly specified—Power of Magistrate to order prosecution under s. 182, Indian Penal Code.

An order under section 476, Criminal Procedure Code, should specify clearly the exact charges against the accused.

The mere fact that no sanction is necessary for a prosecution under section 182, Indian Penal Code, does not deprive a Court of jurisdiction to order that prosecution under section 476, Criminal Procedure Code. S. EMPEROR v. KHUBCHAL, 8 S. L. R. 179; 16 CR. L J. 104 152

——— s. 488—Maintenance of children—Mother dissuading children from father's custody to enable her to claim their maintenance—Father, liability of.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Where a father has custody of his minor children and is maintaining them properly, the mere fact that they go and live with their mother would not make him liable to be charged for maintenance under section 488, Criminal Procedure Code, though he refuses to maintain them unless they return to his custody. L. B. MA SHWE HMYIN v. MG. PO CHAT 16 CR. L. J. 217 841

——— ——— ——— ss. 497, 498, scope of — Confession of one of accused materially corroborated as to others—Bail, whether to be granted to others.

The rule laid down in section 497 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, for the guidance of Courts other than the Hight Court is a rule founded upon justice and equity and one which should be followed by the High Court as well as by every other Court subordinate to it, unless anything appears to the contrary.

The extended powers given to the High Court under section 496 of the Criminal Procedure Code are certainly not to be used to get rid of the very reasonable and proper provisions of section 497 of the Code.

Where one of the accused, under sections 307 and 337 of the Penal Code, made a confession implicating himself and the petitioners and the confession was corroborated by such of the evidence as was recorded by the Magistrate who was inquiring into the case, the High Court refused bail, holding that the evidence put forward was such that if believed it would amount to material corroboration of the confession. C. ASHRAF ALI v. EMPEROR, 42 C. 25, 16 CR. L. J. 215 839

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 498 839

——— ——— ——— s. 514 754

——— ——— ——— s. 517 152

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 517—Complaint of theft dismissed—Dispute as to ownership of property—Order, proper form of.

Where a complaint of theft brought on behalf of a talukdar against his tenant in respect of some fallen trees which the tenant had cut down and taken is dismissed on the ground of uncertainty of ownership, the proper order to be passed with regard to the wood is that it should be sold, if it has not been already sold, and the proceeds should be retained by the Court until they are shown to be payable to one or other of the parties, either in virtue of a decree of Court or in virtue of an agreement amongst themselves. B. VISA SAMTA, In re, 16 BOM. L. R. 951; 16 CR. L. J. 111 159

——— ——— ——— ——— ss. 523, 524—No offence proved in respect of property—Possessor unable to prove how he acquired it—Order for disposal of property.

K was suspected of having been concerned in a theft. On search of his house a considerable quantity of jewelry and money was found and was taken possession of by the Police Inquiry, however, showed that there was no definite evidence of guilt against K, nor was any of the property found in the house claimed by any one else although steps were taken under section 523, Criminal Procedure Code, to give others the opportunity to claim it. K was unable to show that it was legally acquired by him and consequently the Magistrate ordered that the property should be at the disposal of the Government:

Held, that having regard to the words of sections 523, 524 of the Criminal Procedure Code it could not be said that the Magistrate's proceedings were illegal, but in the circumstances of the case the intention and spirit of these sections had been disregarded, and the order made by the Magistrate should be set aside. B. KARAPPA CHANBASAPPA, In re, 17 BOM. L. R. 79; 16 CR. L. J. 207 767

——— ——— ——— s. 524 767

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 524—Seizure by Police of property—Presumption in favour of possessor—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 110.

The words "is unable to show that it was legally acquired by him" in section 524 of the Criminal Procedure Code must be read consistently with the ordinary Law of Evidence, and not as intended to supersede anything in that law.

Where on a proclamation being issued under section 523 no one except the accused claims to be the owner of the property attached and no evidence is adduced to show clearly that the claim is false, the proper and safest course for the Court is to follow the presumption laid down in section 110 of the Evidence Act and to hold the accused as the owner in the absence of proof to the contrary. S. ASLUM v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R 141; 16 CR. L. J. 138 202

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 526—Transfer — Necessity of trying Magistrate's evidence—Burden of proof.

An application for transfer based on the ground that the evidence of the trying Magistrate is necessary for the defence, cannot be entertained unless it is clearly shown that the evidence is really essential and that there is likelihood that he can give evidence which would aid the accused in his defence. The burden of proof lies very heavily on the applicant to show that such is the case. S. NABIBUX KHAN AHMEDKHAN v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 170; 16 CR L J. 222 846

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 528 837

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 537—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 182, 211—Trial for an offence under s. 182—Facts alleged showing offence under s. 211—Conviction, whether to be set aside—Prosecution for minor offence, whether legal

A Sessions Judge is not justified in ignoring the provisions of section 537, clause (b), of the Criminal Procedure Code in setting aside on appeal, without going into the merits of the case, a conviction for an offence under section 182, Indian Penal Code, on the ground that the facts alleged disclosed the commission of an offence punishable under section 211 of the Indian Penal Code, for which no sanction as required by the Code was taken.

It is perfectly legal to prosecute for the minor offence under section 182, Indian Penal Code, when it is doubtful whether the facts alleged constitute a graver offence under section 211, Indian Penal Code. A. GUR BAKSH SINGH v. KASHI RAM, 18 A. L. J. 53; 16 CR. L J. 169; 37 A. 110 223

——— ——— ——— s. 540—Witness—Examination of witnesses—Magistrate, whether can exercise discretion in selection of witnesses—Practice,

Criminal Procedure Code—concld.

Magistrates should always be chary of taking upon themselves the duties of deciding on behalf of the parties which witnesses should be examined. M. DUGGIRALA VENKATAPPAYA v. MULPURI VENKATRAMAMAYYA, 28 M. L. J. 134; 16 CR. L. J. 156 220

Cross-objections, whether can be taken against a co-respondent 323

Custom. See PRE-EMPTION.

——— Chanda District—Cultivation of sugarcane —Lambardar, right of, to take land out of possession of any tenant.

In Chanda District there is an old established village custom as regards the taking of land by a lambardar out of the possession of any tenant for cultivation of sugarcane and the deduction to be made therefor. N. GANGADHAR RAO v. RAJANNA 502

——— Family custom—Pachete Raj—Maintenance grant, nature of—Impartible estate, alienability of—Equitable interest, value of—Punundar under grantor of maintenance—Grantor, right of, against grantee—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 43, scope of 982

——— Kalighat palas, whether transferable in limited market—Heritable and partible and devisable —Alienation of a religious office, when permissible—Essentials of a valid custom—Immemorial existence of custom—Presumption—Reasonableness of custom—Inconsistency with general law—Mortgagor setting up title of third person—Estoppel—Trustee mortgagor—No estoppel where mortgage void as contrary to Statute—Mortgage of intangible property—Foreclosure

According to custom the palas or turns of worship of the Kalighat shrine are transferable in the limited market of hereditary shebaits by blood or marriage

The custom is a valid one.

A pala of the Kalighat temple is heritable, and it is immaterial whether the heir is a male or a female. It is also partible and devisable

Though probably religious offices were originally indivisible, they are now deemed partible.

In the absence of a custom or usage to the contrary or any term to that effect in the deed of endowment, a religious trust, or the right of management of a religious or charitable endowment or a religious office attached to a temple or any other endowment cannot be alienated by the holder.

But an alienation of a religious office may be made in favour of a person standing in the line of succession and not disqualified by personal unfitness.

A custom to be valid, (1) must be immemorial, (2) must be reasonable, (3) must have continued without interruption since its immemorial origin and (4) must be certain in respect of its nature generally as well as in respect of the locality where it is alleged to obtain and the persons whom it is alleged to affect.

Evidence showing exercise of a right in accordance with an alleged custom as far back as testimony can go, raises the presumption, though only a rebuttable presumption, as to the immemorial existence of the custom.

The period of ascertaining whether a particular custom is reasonable or not, is the time of its possible inception. It is sufficient if no good legal reason can be assigned against it.

Custom—contd.

Since customs in general involve some inconsistency with the general common law of the realm or are contrary to a particular maxim, the fact of this inconsistency is not of itself a ground for holding the custom unreasonable and bad.

Per Mookerjee, J—A mortgagor cannot set up against his mortgagee the title of a third person especially in view of his express declaration in the mortgage deed that no objection on his part or on behalf of his heirs or representatives shall be maintainable. Even a trustee cannot set up as a defence for himself against the mortgagee that the property mortgaged is trust property which he had no right to mortgage. The principle, however, is inapplicable when the mortgage is void as contrary to Statute.

A mortgagee of palas is a mortgagee of intangible property, and is entitled to foreclose the mortgage quite as much as a mortgagee of chattels, or a mortgagee of land. C. MAHAMAYA DEBI v. HARIDAS HALDAR, 20 C. L. J. 183; 19 C. W. N. 208 400

——— Adoption—Appointment of heir—Alienation by appointee—Appointee's son whether competent to contest—Hindu Law—Ancestral property—Property ancestral qua grandson if it descends to son.

The son of an appointee, whether born before or after the appointment of his father, is incompetent to contest an alienation by his father of the property received from the appointer

Property, whether ancestral or self-acquired of the appointer, received by the appointed heir, cannot be regarded as ancestral qua the latter's sons. But if it once descends to, or comes into the hands of the appointee's son, then it would be ancestral qua the grandson.

The ceremonial adoption of Hindu Law and the customary appointment of heir distinguished from each other, and ancestral property defined and explained. P. MEHRA v. MANGAL SINGH, 99 P. R. 1914; 8 P. W. R. 1915, 71 P. L. R 1915 393

——— Occupancy holding—Will 352

——— Rent—Custom not to pay rent for land remaining fallow, whether improper 872 ——— Succession—Bhakral Rajputs of Gujarkhan Tahsil, Rawalpindi District—Widow, her caste immaterial—Collaterals.

The survivor of the two widows of a sonless Bhakral Rajput of Mauza Deir, Gujarkhan Tahsil, Rawalpindi District, is entitled, whatever her caste or rights as against a co-widow may be, to hold her deceased husband's property for life, and so long as she lives, no collateral can claim possession of that property. P. HASSAN KHAN v. BANO, 15 P. R 1915; 46 P. L. R 1915 535

——— Custom or Muhammadan Law—Succession—Arains of Lahore depending on agriculture.

The parties were Arains by caste, and resided in the Lahore City, but they owned land in the neighbourhood of the City, and cultivated their own land, and admittedly depended entirely upon agriculture for their living:

Held, that in these circumstances, seeing that the parties are members of a large agricultural tribe, custom and not the shara governed the parties in matters of succession. P. MUHAMMAD DIN v. AHMAD DIN, 31 P. L. R. 1915; 26 P. R. 1915 577

Custom—concld.

———— Succession—Exclusion of daughter from inheritance—Balayan Jats in Meerut Division. There is no custom excluding a daughter from inheritance among Balayan Jats in Meerut Division. A. NIADRI v. KURA, 13 A. L. J. 91 707

———— ———— ———— Religious office—Women, right of, to inherit and get services performed by proxy—Legality 440

———— ———— ———— Sister—Kureshi Sheikhs of Gohana in Rohtak District—Collateral of fourth degree not excluding sister—Presumption of following personal law in case of residents in town—Punjab Laws Act (IV of 1872), s. 5.

Where the parties belonging to a non-agricultural tribe reside in a town and do not till land with their own hands and mostly live on Government service, the presumption is that they follow their personal law in matters of inheritance, and the onus of proving any particular custom against it lies on the person asserting such custom.

The fact that among them there are instances of exclusion of daughters by sons, of sisters by brothers and of succession of widows in the absence of sons, does not raise the presumption that in all matters their personal law has been superseded.

No custom among Kureshi Sheikhs of the town of Gohana in the District of Rohtak by which a collateral of the fourth degree excludes a sister from succeeding to her brother's estate was proved in this case. P. AYAZ-UD-DIN v. MAHFUZUNNISSA, 3 P. W. R. 1915, 32 P. L. R. 1915 542

Dacoity—First report—Subsequent evidence of identification of dacoits—Corroboration.

Where in the first report only two dacoits are alleged to have been recognised at the time of committing the dacoity, subsequent evidence that they were all identified cannot be relied upon unless there is a strong corroboration to support it. P. NUR KHAN v. EMPEROR, 8 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 204; 93 P. L. R. 1915 764

Damages—Breach of contract—Compensation 503

———— Breach of contract—Insolvent estate, transferee from purchaser of, right of, to sue for damages 115

———— ———— measure of 471, 989

———— ———— measure of—Contract to deliver goods—non-delivery 7

———— measure of — Recission of contract—Compensation for loss caused thereby 102

———— ———— mental distress—Bodily discomfort 410

———— principle of assessing 373

———— ———— right of—Possessory right over channel—Right exercised over 40 years—Obstruction in enjoyment of right 772

———— suit for—Wrongful attachment 935

Dayabhaga. See HINDU LAW 250

Decision on merits, when not—Competent jurisdiction, Court of 386

Decree. See EX PARTE DECREE.

———— Consent decree, how varied.

A decree made by consent can only be varied by consent. B. BAPU VITHAL, 16 BOM. L. R. 670 note 134

———— interpretation of 543

————Property sold subject to mortgage lien—Mortgage lien, order for, not contested within a year—Suit by mortgagee—Defence—Fraud—Purchaser, whether entitled to contest mortgage as fraudulent 238

Defamation. See PENAL CODE, s. 499.

Dekhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879), ss. 2 (4), 64—"Money" whether includes cattle—Creditor receiving bullo from agriculturist—Duty to give receipt.

Money as defined in section 2 (4) of th Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act includes cattle and a creditor purchasing bullocks from an agriculturist is bound to give a receipt as require by section 64 of the Act. B. EMPEROR v. GOVINDA BABAJI BABDE, 16 BOM. L. R 683; 16 CR. L. J. 114 178

———— ———— ———— ss. 15D, 16—Mortgage transactions — Subsequent money-dealings — Claims for both accounts not to be combined.

Under section 15D of the Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act, a suit for an account may be filed by a mortgagor-agriculturist even where the time named for payment has not yet expired under the mortgage, and he may have either a declaration o the amount due on the mortgage or he may combine a declaration of the amount due with a decree for redemption.

Section 16 enables him to sue for a general account of money dealings between him and the lender and for a bare declaration of the amount due, without any relief being claimed.

But he is not permitted to import the relief to which he is entitled by way of redemption under section 15D into his claim for an account under section 16, and thus to get the benefit of surplus profits remaining in the hands of the mortgagee under the usufructuary mortgage. B. LAXMANDAS HARAKCHAND v BABAN BHIKARI, 16 BOM L. R. 71; 39 B 73 59

———— ———— ———— s. 48 101

———— ———— ———— s. 64 178

Deposit, whether can be made by cheque 656

Discretion of Court—Discretion must be legal and regular 967

———— ———— Further enquiry 558

———— ———— ———Reference to High Court—Decision on merits 972

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), ss. 22, 31—Divorce, petition for, by wife—Adultery and desertion —Delay in petitioning, when cured—Desertion and delay, meaning of.

A wife, who was made to believe by her husband that he would be coming back to her, but who afterwards discovered that he had taken another woman and had in fact abandoned her, is entitled to a divorce though she delayed in presenting her petition for divorce, specially when she believed that she had to wait for three years before filing the petition instead of two years from the date of abandonment.

Divorce Act—concld.

Desertion under the Divorce Act implies an abandonment against the wish of the person charging it, but it is not a universal rule that the abandonment must be against the expressed wish of that person.

Delay intended by section 31 of the Divorce Act must be understood to be culpable delay somewhat in the nature of connivance, condonation or acquiescence. L. B. Ma Array v. Mg. E. Po, 8 Bur. L. T. 32 604

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 31 604

——— ——— ——— s. 37 — Maintenance—Power to award lump sum—Interpretation of Statutes—Punctuation, when taken into consideration.

Under section 37 of the Divorce Act, the Court has power to make an order for payment of a lump sum for permanent maintenance.

The words 'for any time not exceeding her own life' in the section qualify 'annual sum' and do not qualify 'gross sum.'

The word 'secure' would ordinarily include 'pay.'

There can be no reason for refusing the assistance of the punctuation, where the sense might otherwise be doubtful, in Acts of the regularly constituted Legislatures of India. B. Taylor, B. S. v Bleach, C. G., 17 Bom L. R. 56, 39 B. 182 494

Document—Genuineness—Co-owner in possession—Intention to cheat co-owners, whether extinguishes title—Ouster—Adverse possession—Prescription.

When a document is held by a Court of Justice to be 'genuine', what is intended to be held, and in fact is held, is that the document was duly executed and that it is an operative document.

Mere mental determination of a co-owner holding possession to cheat his fellow-owners is insufficient in law for extinguishing the title of the other co-owners. His possession being in law possession of all the co-owners, it is not possible to put an end to that possession by any secret intention in his mind, and nothing short of ouster or something equivalent to ouster can bring about that result.

Therefore, when there is no ouster or equivalent of ouster, the title is not extinguished. C. Bibi Bakhtun v. Ahmad Ishaque 1

Dower. See Muhammadan Law.

Easements Act (V of 1882), s. 4—Consideration paid, nonetheless an easement.

The mere fact that the owner of the dominant tenement paid something to the owner of the servient tenement periodically for the enjoyment of the right to do something upon the servient tenement is not inconsistent with the right claimed coming under the definition of "easement". An easement right can be conferred by the owner of the servient tenement for cash consideration and whether that cash consideration takes the shape of a sum paid once for all or paid from time to time cannot make any difference in the legal nature of the right conferred on the dominant tenement. M. Chengalvala v. Madapati, 2 L. W. 27; (1915) M. W. N. 37 920

Eastern Bengal and Assam Tenancy Act (I of 1908) 729

Ejectment. See Landlord and Tenant.

——— ———, notice of, cancellation of—Prima facie case of under-proprietary rights to be established 175

——— ———, notice of, cannot be for part of holding 382

——— ———, notice of, validity of—Statutory period, computation of.

Where with reference to the patta and kabuliat the statutory period of a tenant was to expire in June 1913, while the notice of ejectment served upon him required him to vacate his holding in May 1913.

Held, that the notice was perfectly good in law inasmuch as the time for ejectment fixed by the Oudh Rent Act is with a view to enable both the landlord and the tenant to make their arrangements, respectively, in time for the next year. U. P. B. R. Lachhman v. Kandhai Prasad, 1 O. L. J. 741 68

———, whether by notice or by suit—Perpetual lessee, not liable to ejectment by notice—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 69.

A perpetual lessee cannot be ejected by notice. The landlord must proceed against him by suit, as provided in section 69 of the Oudh Rent Act. U. P. B. R Lal Munnehar v. Gaya Bakhsh, 1 O. L. J. 731 407

———Person entitled to half share, whether can get one from whole 228

———, suit for—Notice to quit 45

———, suit in—Possession under oral lease for fixed term, if valid as defence.

It is not open to a purchaser of immoveable property to eject a tenant who is in possession under an oral agreement to lease for a fixed term which he can specifically enforce, if the purchaser had notice of the terms of the tenancy and he or his predecessor-in-title had accepted rent from the tenant on such a footing. M. Cunniah Chetti v. Elamanda Chetti, 2 L. W. 152 877

Electricity Act (III of 1903), s. 39 591

Encroachment. See Alluvion and Diluvion.

———, extent of, how ascertained—Removal of encroachment—No finding as to extent of encroachment or bona fides of claim—Order, whether proper 224

Encumbrance on part of holding, whether encumbrance on whole—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 86 (6), 88 564

Enhancement. See Bengal Tenancy Act, s 103A.

——— ——— of rent. See Oudh Rent Act, s 33.

———Rent, distribution of 49

Equity—Consideration—Third party, right of, to sue—Plaintiff not privy to contract—Defendant, liability of, when arises 737

Equity—concld.

———Fraudulent transfer—Suit for declaration—Fictitious proceedings—Fraudulent confederate, when entitled to retain property fraudulently transferred to him—Suit, if for specific performance—Limitation—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 317, applicability of 230

——— of redemption. See MORTGAGE.

Estoppel. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 115; RES JUDICATA.

———, equitable, whether creates jurisdiction 11

——— Holdings, separate, treated as one—Landlord, action of—Ejectment, notice of, cannot be for part of holding.

Where a landlord has once treated the separate holdings of a tenant as one, by including all of them in one and the same suit for arrears of rent, he is estopped from subsequently issuing a notice of ejectment in respect of some only of those holdings.

In Oudh a notice of ejectment cannot be for a part of a holding. U. P. B. R. TULSHA DEI v. MAHABIR, 1 O. L. J 722 382

——— by judgment—Compromise—Relief claimed in plaint not dealt with in compromise—Fresh suit, whether barred—Cause of action 708

——— Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 115—"Omission," interpretation of—Property decreed to be sold—Party having lien on property—Charge not notified in sale-proclamation—Auction-purchaser, position of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 66.

The doctrine of estoppel cannot be said to rest absolutely upon any notice of duty on the part of the person sought to be estopped; and the word "omission" used in section 15 of the Evidence Act does not mean only an omission to perform such a duty as is prescribed by law.

If a party to a suit having a charge or incumbrance on the property in suit ordered to be sold fails to have that charge or incumbrance notified in the sale-proclamation, he is estopped from subsequently setting up his lien against the auction-purchaser O. MANIK RAM v. RAM AUTAR, 2 O. L. J. 22 611

——— between lessor and lessee—Erroneous representation, to create estoppel, must be believed in good faith and after due inquiry—Privies, rights and liabilities of—Classes of privies 785

———Partnership—Manager's statement as to date of dissolution 69

———Partnership—Money deposited with Manager of business not in course of business—Liability of proprietors 252

——— Receipt of dividends—Registered holder of share, rights and liabilities of 335

———Testator and legatee—Heir-at-law of raiyat, whether estopped from questioning validity of gift by raiyat 235

———Trustee mortgagor—No estoppel where mortgage void as contrary to Statute—Mortgage of intangible property—Foreclosure 400

Evidence—Accomplice—Evidence before Committing Magistrate retracted in Sessions Court, admissibility and credibility of—Evidence of identification, value of 905 ——— Accused absconding after occurrence—Identification of accused.

The accused was convicted of murder. It was found proved that the deceased was shot by the accused at night by a gun or a pistol while he was sleeping on the roof of the house adjoining his own. The principal witness was the wife of the deceased who was sleeping close by. She stated that when the shot was fired she awoke, opened her eyes and by the flash of the fire-arm recognized the accused who ran away. She at once raised her cries to the effect that the accused had killed her husband. The husband of a sister of the deceased, who was sleeping on his roof on the other side of the lane, stated that he heard a shot and then cries of deceased's wife and then going down from the roof of his house, he recognized the accused. Another witness who lived at a distance of 500 karams, deposed that having heard the cries he was going to the spot when he met the accused on the way. Other evidence was to the effect that after the occurrence the accused absconded from the village.

Held, that the evidence as to identification was insufficient and the fact of accused's absconding was not inconsistent with his innocence, as he might have run away in fear knowing that an incorrect accusation had been brought against him. P. AHMAD v. EMPEROR, 4 P. L. R. 1915; 2 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 155 219

———Burden of proof—Pardanashin lady—Power-of-attorney—Document executed by Agent, claim on basis of 610

———, circumstantial—No direct evidence—Conviction, whether legal 755

——— ——— Collector's certificate, value of 14

——— ——— Compromise, agreement of—Some terms not relating to suit—Decree incorporating whole agreement, whether admissible in evidence—Agreement, whether requires registration—Evidence—Admissibility of such agreement—Adverse possession, nature of possession necessary to create 640

——— ——— of consent—Hindu Law—Hindu widow, alienation by—Legal necessity—Onus probandi—Consent of reversioners—Attestation by nearest contingent reversioner, effect of 674

——— ———Dower, verbal contract of—Proof 113

——— ——— ———Endorsement by Registering Officer 478

——— ———Failure to object to statement of accounts—Evidence of correctness 309

——— ——— fresh—Documentary evidence, admissibility of, at late stage—Court, discretion of 516

——— ——— ——— General repute, evidence of, nature of 154.

——— ——— of identification, value of 905

——— ——— ——— Land revenue reports, whether admissible in evidence—Judicial notice.

Evidence—concld.

A Court is not entitled to take judicial notice of land revenue reports, and they cannot be admitted in evidence, unless they are proved satisfactorily. C. BOODHAN GOPE v. SAIRA, 20 C. L. J. 516 470

——— Lekha bahi, entries in, when reliable by themselves 581

——— Possession—Suit on ground of dispossession 977

——— Private land, determination of—Onus 50

——— Prosecution, duty of, to prove their own story—Weakness of defence, effect of—Right of private defence—Benefit of doubt—Practice 216

——— recorded in another proceeding, Judge, whether entitled to decide a question on 704

——— taken on remand—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere in second appeal 827

——— Statement made to Police officer, admissibility of.

A statement by a Police officer to the effect that certain persons made certain statements to him is not admissible in evidence, unless it is evidence of general repute. A. CHAINSUKH v. EMPEROR, 16 CR. L. J. 221 845

——— Thumb impression — Expert opinion, value of 203

——— Track evidence, value of 846

——— Will—Testamentary capacity—Opinions of witnesses as to competency, value of 276

——— Will not proved in Probate Court, when can be used as evidence 739

Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 6, 122—Hearsay evidence—Statement by by-stander—Husband and wife, communications between.

A statement by a person alleged to be the eye-witness of a murder made to persons who came to the scene of occurrence after the murderers had left the place, cannot be proved against the accused for the purpose of showing that their names were mentioned as murderers.

In order to make the statement of a by-stander admissible, it must have been made, as contemplated by section 6 of the Evidence Act and illustration (a) to it, at the time the transaction was taking place, or so shortly before or after it as to form part of the transaction. If the transaction has terminated and then the statement is made, the statement is irrelevant. The admissibility is dependent on continuity.

The evidence of the wife of the accused as to certain communications between her and her husband is inadmissible under section 122 of the Evidence Act. P. JOWALA SAHAI v. EMPEROR, 34 P. R. 1914 CR.; 15 CR. L. J. 184 664

——— ss. 11, 32—Statements as to date of birth by person who is dead—Admissibility of such statement.

A statement by a person who is dead made in a petition for guardianship to the effect that a certain person was born on a certain date, not being a statement relating to the existence of any relationship by blood, marriage or adoption, is not admissible under section 32 of the Evidence Act. Nor does section 11 cover a statement of this kind. C. RAM KRISHNA SADHUKHAN v. MONINDRA MOHAN RAY, 20 C. L. J. 302 30

Evidence Act—contd.

——— s. 30—Retracted confession of co-accused, value of—Corroboration necessary for conviction.

A retracted confession of a co-accused is admissible under section 30 of the Evidence Act and may be taken into consideration against him, but a conviction cannot be based on it unless it is corroborated in material particulars by other evidence. P. MUHAMMAD v. EMPEROR, 3 P. L. R. 1915; 3 P. W. R. 1915 CR., 16 CR. L. J. 157 221

——— s. 32 30

——— s. 32 (2)—Pyatbaings—No documents of title—Revenue Surveyor's report not signed by transferors, probative value of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 41—Purchase from ostensible owner—Inquiry by purchaser.

A Revenue Surveyor's reports though admissible under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act have very little probative value when they are not signed by the transferors and are not supported by the evidence of persons who purport to sign them as witnesses.

To claim the protection afforded by section 41 of the Transfer of Property Act, the purchaser must prove that he inquired as to who was in actual possession of the land for 12 years before purchase, and should not assume that his vendor is the true owner merely on the strength of the pyatbaings, which are not signed by the transferors. The pyatbaings after the Transfer of Property Act came into force are no documents of title at all. L. B. MG. PO. NYEIN v. MAUNG MY. 777

——— s. 32 (2)—Statement by deceased scribe of a bond as to marks (nishani) of executant, admissibility of.

The bond in suit purported to be executed by three persons who were all dead. The signature of each of them was represented by an irregular scribble such as might be made by an illiterate person, and against each of these marks there was the statement that it was the mark (nishani) of one of the executants, the name being given in each case. The scribe and the attesting witnesses were also dead. The whole of the bond including the statement as to the marks was proved to be in the handwriting of the deceased scribe by the evidence of his father, a bond-writer.

Held, that direct evidence was to be found on the bond itself in the written statement made by the deceased scribe that the signatures were those of the persons whose names were written against them, and that that statement was relevant under section 32 (2) of the Evidence Act, having been made by the deceased scribe in the ordinary course of his business as bond-writer. N. HARIA v. MANAKCHAND, 11 N. L. R. 9. 866

——— s. 32 (5)—Relationship, existence of—Adoption 739

——— s. 44 238

Evidence Act—concld.

——— ——— s. 50—Actual fact of marriage—Conduct not sufficient 837

——— ——— s. 90—Document 30 years old—Presumption 562

——— ——— s. 91—Instrument of partition—Award 489

——— ——— s. 92—Registered deed Rescission or cancellation cannot be proved by oral agreement or unregistered document Agreement to pay lesser amount in full discharge or fixing different period—Variation in terms—Endorsement on mortgage-deed, when admissible and when not 269

——— ——— s. 94—Document not exclusively relied upon—Admissibility of oral evidence 701

——— ——— ——— s. 109—Presumption, rebutting of—Burden of proof—Landlord and tenant, relation of, proof of—Rental agreement, inadmissible in evidence—Oral evidence, whether admissible.

Where a written rental agreement is inadmissible in evidence, oral evidence, though not admissible to prove the terms of the tenancy or period of the lease, is still admissible to prove that the relationship of landlord and tenant exists between the parties.

When the existence of the relationship of landlord and tenant is once proved to exist its continuance is presumed under section 109 of the Evidence Act and the burden of proving the contrary lies upon the person who denies the relationship. M. CHAVALI SUBBANNA v. TULLURU VENKATARAYUDU, 28 M. L. J. 361 804

——— ——— s. 110 506

——— ——— s. 110—Seizure by Police of property—Presumption in favour of possessor 202

——— ——— s. 115 565

——— ——— s. 117 483

——— ——— s. 122 664

——— ——— ss. 145, 155 196

Excise Act (XII of 1896), s. 49—Selling medicine containing brandy.

A medical practitioner who puts a little brandy into one of the medicines prescribed and sold by him to a patient, does not thereby sell brandy and contravene the provisions of the Excise Law. P. EMPEROR v. BHAGWAN DAS, 33 P. R. 1914 Cr., 16 Cr. L. J. 218 842

Execution by assignee of decree—Contribution, suit for—Payment of decree for rent by one of the judgment-debtors 56

Execution of decree. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 47.

——— ——— ——— Attachment — Dismissal of application, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 57, whether has retrospective effect—Lease created during continuance of attachment—Auction-sale—Right of lessee as against auction-purchaser.

While after the passing of the new Civil Procedure Code, Order XXI, rule 57, has the effect of releasing an attachment when the execution application, under which the attachment was made, has been dismissed it cannot have a retrospective effect upon an order of dismissal made before the operation of the Code.

The dismissal of an application puts an end only to an attachment made on that application.

Where a lease was executed by the judgment-debtor while an attachment under the old Code was still subsisting:

Held, that it was invalid as against the right of the auction-purchaser under his purchase in Court-auction held in pursuance of the attachment. M. KHANDE SUBBAYYA v. NARA SUBBA REDDY, 2 L. W. 4 792 ——— ——— ——— ——— Consent decree—Variation of terms, whether allowed in execution.

A consent decree can only be varied by consent. Therefore, no modification of a consent decree can be allowed in execution on grounds not recognised in the decree itself as giving a right of such modification. B. LACHIRAM v. JANA YESU MANG. 16 BOM. L. R. 668 830

——— ——— ——— ——— Court passing decree, whether entitled to execute it, when property transferred to jurisdiction of other Court—Different Courts having jurisdiction to execute decree—Convenience, jurisdiction determined on ground of 88

——— ——— ——— ——— Decree cannot be executed against persons who were no parties to it—Practice.

A decree passed by the Appellate Court against the defendants who were not parties to the appeal, cannot be executed against them. A. BHAGWANT DATT v. RAJAB CHOWDHURY, 13 A. L. J. 136 804

——— ——— ——— Decree for costs—Application against surety—Sale on claim arising under mortgage—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 4—Personal liability of surety 365

——— ——— ——— ——— Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 72—Decree for sale of land—Reference to Collector—Executing Court, power of 630

——— ——— ——— ——— Decree transferred with certificate of non-satisfaction but with no order for execution—Objection as to decree-holder's right to proceed against property not mentioned in decree—Executing Court, power of, to entertain objections—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 42, O. XXI, r. 28.

Where the transmitting Court has made no order for execution but has merely transmitted the decree and the certificate of non-satisfaction, the Executing Court can entertain an objection impugning the right of the decree-holder to proceed against any property other than that charged in the decree. O. BADRI PRASAD v. GAURI NATH, 2 O. L. J. 18 597 ——— ——— ——— Joint decree—Execution by one of decree-holders—Decree in favour of joint Hindu family—Power of managing member to give discharge—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXII, r. 6.

A joint decree-holder is not bound by the acts of another who has compromised or received payment from and has given discharge to the judgment-debtor beyond the extent of his own share in the decree but a discharge given by a managing member of a joint Hindu family is binding on the members of the family.

Execution of decree—contd.

Where the managing member of a joint Hindu family is on the worst possible terms with the other members and the judgment-debtor's conduct has been throughout dishonest and fraudulent and the latter is colluding with the former in order to defraud the other members of the family, the members are not bound by the acts of the managing member. P. RAM SINGH v. NANAK CHAND, 10 P. W. R. 1915; 60 P. L. R. 1915 603

——— ——— ——— ——— Mortgage-decree passed before the coming into force of the Civil Procedure Code—Limitation 969

——— ——— ——— ——— Mortgage-decree — Declaratory decree—Mortgagee's rights to possession of mortgaged property declared—Cause of action—Fresh suit.

Where a Court passes a decree for money to be realized by sale of the mortgaged property and possession of the property is not decreed, but it is noted that the plaintiff shall be competent to enter in possession of the mortgaged property and to retain possession thereof till such time as the sale thereof takes place and the decree is finally confirmed by the Court, the decree-holder is not entitled to obtain possession by executing the decree, though he may have a cause of action to sue for possession of the property. P. J. RUSTOMJI v. GURANDITTA MAL, 8 P. L. R. 1915; 33 P. W. R. 1915 637 ———————, questions relating to—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47, O. XXI, r. 58, sub-rule (3), applicability of—Decree, objection to attachment of, in execution.

The appellant obtained a decree against two persons I H and A H. I H and A H along with two other persons held a decree against M M and M Z. The appellant applied for execution of his decree by attachment of the interest of I H and A H in the decree which they along with two other persons held against M M and M Z. This application was refused:

Held, that, M M and M Z being no parties to the appellant's decree, the questions arising between them and the appellant could not be taken as questions relating to the execution of the decree held by the appellant. The order refusing the application did not, therefore, fall under section 47, Civil Procedure Code, and was not appealable:

Held, further, that the provisions of Order XXI, rule 58, sub-rule (3), refer to the stage at which execution of the attached decree is being sought and not to a case where the application for attachment of the decree has been disallowed. O. PIARE LAL v. MUHAMMAD MAHMUD, 17 O. C. 374 363

——— ——— ——— Res judicata—Judgment-debtor not raising an objection which he ought to have raised—Objection, whether can be raised subsequently.

It is not necessary that a judgment-debtor who puts forward objections in the execution department must put forward all possible objections once and for all. If he does not do so, matters which he has omitted must not be treated as res judicata against him. A. KALIAN SINGH v. JAGAN PRASAD, 13 A. L. J. 102 950

Execution of decree—concld.

——— ——— ——— Suit for rent for less than Rs. 100—Decree—Sale of non-transferable occupancy holding—Proceedings carried on against a dead judgment-debtor—Application to set aside sale by a private purchaser, maintainability of—Order refusing to set aside sale—Second appeal, maintainability of—Revision petition treated as memorandum of appeal 294

——— ——— ——— Validity of decree, whether can be challenged in execution proceedings—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47—Order in execution proceedings, when appealable.

In execution proceedings it is not open to a party to challenge the validity of the decree. A Court called upon to execute a decree has no power to go behind it, and cannot entertain any objection as to the legality or correctness of the decree.

A decree, even though it is not according to law, is binding and conclusive between the parties till it has been set aside in appropriate proceedings.

An order in execution proceedings can come under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code only when it determines some question relating to the rights and liabilities of the parties with reference to the relief granted by the decree, not when it determines merely an incidental question as to the mode of conduct of proceedings.

Where a Court has refused to stay execution of a decree on application made, not on the ground that the decree was incapable of execution, but on the ground that as a proceeding to test the validity of the decree was still pending no execution should be allowed till its termination, the order does not in any way determine the rights and liabilities of the parties with reference to the relief granted by the decree and is not appealable. C. RAMA PRASAD ROY v. ANUKUL CHANDRA, 20 C. L. J. 512 444

Execution proceedings—Rateable distribution—Rival decree-holders—Order refusing rateable distribution—Decree—Appeal 644

Execution-sale, application to set aside within time but after confirmation of sale, effect of—Deposit, whether can be made by cheque 656

Executor, whether trustee 849

Ex parte decree. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, O. IX, r. 13.

——— ——— ——— Application to set aside ex parte decree—Summons not served—Sufficient time—Defendant, rights and liabilities of 351

——— ——— ——— Decree based on compromise 227

——— ——— ——— ———, effect of—Judgment-debtor not having notice, right of 225

——— ——— ——— ——— against minor — Minor not properly represented—Irregularity—Minor, right of, to get decree set aside—Officer of Court appointed as guardian ad litem—Expenses, provision for.

A suit was brought against a certain person and his minor nephews. The uncle refused to be the guardian of the minors alleging that they lived with their mother. The Court appointed the amin as the guardian ad litem of the minors, without giving any notice to the minors or to their mother in whose care they were. The amin did not make any defence. An ex parte decree was made as against the minors. An application was made to set aside the ex parte decree on behalf of the minors by their mother. The application was refused. Subsequently a suit was filed for a declaration that the decree was null and void as against the minors:

Ex parte decree—concld.

Held, that the minors not being properly represented in the suit and the ex parte decree having been passed without notice to them or their natural guardian, they were entitled to the declaration which they sought in the suit.

Semble.—The appointment of an officer of the Court as guardian ad litem of minors in a suit without requiring the party at whose instance he is appointed to deposit the necessary funds to enable the guardian to defend the case, is little more than a farce. A. BHAGWAN DAYAL v. PARAM SUKH DASS, 13 A. L. J. 179 623

——— ——— ———, setting aside of—Proof of promissory note—Witness examined—Notes of evidence not on record—Decree, if valid 789

Ex parte order, Court's inherent power to review 812

Ex-proprietary rights, claim for—Possession, actual, of sir not retained by vendor, effect of—Waiver—Purchase at public sale and not by deed executed by vendor.

If the vendor transfers the actual possession of his zamindari and sir land to the vendee and waives, by his failure to enter into possession as a tenant, the statutory rights conferred by section 7A of the Oudh Rent Act, he cannot be deemed to be a tenant with such rights; but this principle of waiver does not probably apply to cases when the purchase is made at a public sale and not by a deed executed by the vendor. U. P. B. R. BADAL v. ABDUL WAHAB, 2 O. L. J. 71 980 ——— ——— ———, claim for—Sale of proprietary rights—Relinquishment of ex-proprietary rights, deed of, executed at same time as sale-deed—Possession retained by vendor, effect of.

A deed of relinquishment of ex-proprietary rights executed on the same date as the deed of sale of proprietary rights, is void and inoperative, and the vendor retaining possession of the land can claim ex-proprietary rights in respect of it although the deed of relinquishment relates to that very land. U. P. B. R. MUHAMMAD ASHRAF v. GAYA PRASAD, 2 O. L. J. 42 534

——— ——— ——— declaration of—Dakhl-dihani of proprietary rights does not amount to ex-proprietor's dispossession from his rights—Collection of rent from sub-tenants of ex-proprietor, whether amounts to dispossession—Possession by ex-proprietor, effect of—Mutation of names.

A dakhl-dihani of proprietary rights cannot amount to dispossession of the ex-proprietor from his ex-proprietary rights in his sir, nor does the subsequent proprietor's collection of rent from the ex-proprietor's sub-tenants in possession of the sir, not by some overt act but in the background, amount to such dispossession.

Ex-proprietary rights—concld.

An ex-proprietor retaining possession of his sir since the date of sale of his proprietary rights can claim ex-proprietary rights in respect of the sir at the time of mutation proceedings, even though they take place after more than a year from the date of the transfer. U. P. B. R. BALRAJEE v. SABJU PRASAD, 1 O. L. J. 759 20

———, surrender of. See OUDH RENT ACT, s. 7A 586

First report—Corroboration 764

——— No mention of offender therein—Subsequent assertion of his having been seen not reliable—Track evidence, value of.

Where the first report makes no mention of the offender and the complainant when questioned named nobody as his assailant, and there is no assertion therein that any fugitive had been seen, the complainant's subsequent statement that he had identified the accused at the time of the attack and the evidence of his neighbours that they saw him running with the instrument of crime in his hands, cannot justly be relied upon.

The track evidence of a flimsy nature should not be believed without sufficient corroboration. P. RONKI v. EMPEROR, 10 P. W. R. 1915; 91 P. L. R. 1915; 16 CR. L. J. 222 846

Fishery right, suit for—Limitation—Fishery, money payable for, whether rent 614

Foreclosure. See MORTGAGE.

Foreign judgment. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 13.

Forfeiture—Denial of landlord's title, whether sufficient 863

——— ——— of pardon. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 337.

——— ——— ——— Practice 906

Forgery, charge of—Sanction to prosecute, whether necessary 763

Fraud, allegation of—Entry in Record-of-Rights, mistake as to, effect of 890

——— ——— of party to case, effect of—Decree, when considered as nullity 587

——— Purchaser, whether entitled to contest mortgage as fraudulent 238

Fraudulent decree, setting aside of—Court, power of—Inherent jurisdiction—Remedy—Review—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151, O. XLI, r. 19.

A Court has not only power but it is its duty to set aside a decree obtained by fraud practised upon the Court, when it is apprised of it.

Where a decree-holder gets a consent decree fraudulently passed in his favour by suppressing the service of summons and by getting a false and fraudulent vakalatnama and a petition of compromise filed, the decree can be set aside on review and the fact that it is set aside under a wrong section is no ground of interference by a High Court.

A Court has inherent jurisdiction to correct its own procedure where it has been misled. C. PEARY CHOUDHURY v. SOKOORY DAS, 19 C. W. N. 419. 628

Fraudulent transfer—Suit for declaration—Fictitious proceedings—Equity—Fraudulent confederate, when entitled to retain property fraudulently transferred to him—Suit, if for specific performance—Limitation—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 317, applicability of.

To enable a fraudulent confederate to retain property transferred to him in order to effect a fraud, the contemplated fraud must be effected, then and then alone does the fraudulent grantor or giver lose the right to claim the aid of the law to recover the property he has parted with:

The plaintiff, in order to protect himself from a fictitious deed executed by him in favour of a third person, induced his landlord to institute a fictitious suit for rent. The suit was instituted and decreed and the property was sold and purchased by the landlord and formal possession was also given to him, but actually the plaintiff remained in possession. The landlord thereafter forcibly took away the crop. The plaintiff then sued for a declaration that the entire proceedings in the rent-suit were fictitious:

Held, that the plaintiff is not disentitled to protection in a Court of Equity and that as the suit is not for the specific performance of a contract, no question of limitation arises in it.

Section 317 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, contemplates a real sale in execution of a real decree in a real suit and does not bar a suit for possession of a property purchased in a fictitious sale held in execution of a fictitious decree in a fictitious suit. C. AKHIL PRODHAN v. MANMOTHA NATH KAR, 18 C. W. N. 1331 230

Further Inquiry. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 437.

——————————Discretion 558

Gift. See WILL.

——Construction of deed—Property gifted to wife for her life only—Reversion, right of, transfer of—Expectancy of succession—Transfer, validity of.

A hiba gift-deed executed by a Hindu in favour of his wife for her maintenance and performance of debsheba, without any words indicating inheritance or power of alienation usually contained in a deed of absolute gift, is a gift only for life of the donee and the right of ownership means the right of the donee, to enjoy the property for her life remains in the donor. The reversion, which remains vested in the donor in such a case, is different from a mere expectancy of succession as in the case of a reversioner of a Hindu widow, and is, therefore, descendible to and transferable by his heirs. C. PRIYAMBADA DASI v. RAM GOPAL 407

Good-will, transferee of, right of—Licensee—Estoppel 483

Government grant, free of payment of land revenue, sale of, in execution of a mortgage decree—Government refusing sale—Suit against Secretary of State, the judgment-debtor and the subsequent transferee, maintainability of—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Hearing of case on merits, necessity of, before granting declaration.

The plaintiff-appellant obtained a mortgage decree entitling him to bring to sale certain lands held by the mortgagor under the terms of a Government grant free of payment of land revenue. In execution of the mortgage decree the plaintiff-appellant applied for sale of the land, but the Local Government refused sanction to the sale, on the ground that in view of the terms of the grant the property was inalienable. The plaintiff-appellant then instituted the present suit against the Secretary of State, the judgment-debtor and a subsequent transferee praying for a decree against the Secretary of State, declaring that the right, title and interest of the other defendants in the land in question were liable to be sold in execution of his decree, and that the judgment-debtor had an alienable interest in the property. The Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit, holding that the Civil Court had no jurisdiction to take cognizance of such a suit, that the suit was not maintainable and that he should not in the exercise of his discretion give such a declaration:

Held, that although the Local Government as an executive authority had an unfettered discretion to refuse sale in such a case, yet the declaration made by it in the same order as to the terms of the grant must be treated to have been made in its capacity of a grantor and could be challenged, and the suit was maintainable in respect thereof;

Held, further, that the Civil Court had jurisdiction to hear the suit;

Held, also, that the question of discretion possessed by the Court in the matter of granting declarations could not be considered until the case had been heard upon its merits. C. AMAR CHAND PAL v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 17 C. C. 369 354

Government Notification No. 1692, VI-545 A-9 553

Government of India Act, 1833, 3 & 4 William IV, C. 85, s. 4 723

Grant—Mining lease—Maintenance grant for life without any provision as to opening mines—Grantee, whether has power to grant mining lease—Construction of lease—Conduct of parties—Mine, when open—Intention—Damages, measure of 471

Grantor, right of, against grantee 982

Grove. See OUDH RENT ACT, s. 107H.

————, character of—Proprietor of grove, not necessarily owner of land as well—Assessment of rent, suit for, landlord's rights as to—Undivided holding, effect of 974

———— entered as "maurosi" in column "of tenants' groves"—Under-proprietary right, accrual of 120

———— losing its character as such and brought under cultivation, resumption of—Ordinary tenant land—Trees still standing on land previously grove, right of grove-holder as to.

A grove-holder becomes an ordinary tenant in respect of the grove-land losing its character as such and brought under cultivation, but retains his right in the trees that still remain standing thereon. U. P. B. R. RAM DAS v. MUHAMMAD ABDUD HAQ, 1 O. L. J. 695 94

Guarantee-broker. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 128.

Guardian—Minor, guardian ad litem of, appointment of—Appointment without consent of person appointed, validity of—Mortgage decree, sale under—Reversal of decree—Stranger purchaser, effect on—Party purchaser, liability of—Cessante ratione legis, cessat et ipsa lex, applicability of—Reversal of sale—Party, who is a necessary—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 4—Decree, form of, whether can be modified—Inherent power 139

——— ——— of minor, whether can take Probate 749

——— ——— ad litem. See MINOR.

——— ——— ——— ——— Officer of Court—Expenses, provision for 623

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890)—Guardianship—Female minor—Muhammadan Law—Sister's husband and maternal uncle—None but mahram to be appointed.

No male has a right to the custody of a Mussalman female child unless he is a mahram, that is, stands to her within the prohibited degrees of relationship and cannot under any circumstances marry her.

The sister's husband of a girl is not entitled to be appointed guardian, specially in the presence of a person who is competent under the Muhammadan Law, for instance, the maternal uncle of the minor. C. HARUNNESSA, In the matter of, 18 C. W. N. 853 74

——— ——— ss. 11 (a) (iv), 13, 17—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115—Guardianship of person and property of minor, application for—Person, interested, not made party—Revision, right to, of person not party to case.

Although a person who is not made a party in an application made under section 10 of the Guardians and Wards Act and to whom notice ought to have been issued under section 11 (a) (i) of the Act as a person interested in the result of the application, cannot, under section 47 (a) of the Act, file an appeal from the order passed on the application, yet he can file a petition for revision of that order under section 115, Civil Procedure Code.

Sections 13 and 17 of the Guardians and Wards Act are wide enough to cover an inquiry into any of the matters which can legitimately form the subject of opposition to the grant of a certificate of guardianship to a particular individual. O. JHANDESHUR v. BAIJ NATH, 1 O. L. J. 761 121

——— ——— ——— ss. 13, 17 121

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 24 381

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 24—Marriage of minors—Court's duty.

It is no part of a Court's duty under the Guardians and Wards Act to assume direct responsibility for the marriage of a minor of whose person a guardian has been appointed. It would be better if the Court simply declines to either sanction or prohibit the marriage of the minor to a particular person and leaves the parties concerned to settle their disputes among themselves. P. LAL SINGH v. SHAM LAL, 98 P. R. 1914 381

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 25—Guardian and ward—Custody of minor—Welfare of minor only to be considered—Practice—Enquiry—Court, duty of.

Guardians and Wards Act—concld.

In deciding the question of custody of a minor, the welfare of the minor alone is to be considered.

In such a case all the Court has to do is to satisfy itself what is best in the interests of the minor, and is not bound to make a protracted inquiry. P. JUGGO KAUR v. DURGA DAS, 249 P. L. R. 1914, 159 P. W. R. 1914 257 ——— ——— ——— ss. 34, 47—Order fixing amount of maintenance etc. of ward, whether appealable—Statute, interpretation of.

No appeal lies from an order under section 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act fixing the amount to be applied for the maintenance, education and advancement of the ward and of the persons depending on him.

Where the Legislature has specifically omitted a certain section in providing for appeals, a High Court cannot allow an appeal from that section by giving a wide effect to the general words in an another section or because appeals have been allowed from certain minor matters. M. GOPAMMAL v. V. SREENIVASA IYENGAR, 28 M. L. J. 96 921

——— ——— ——— ss. 39, 42—Removal of guardian—Grounds of removal—Appointment of successor—Appeal.

Section 42 of the Guardians and Wards Act can only come into operation when a guardian is properly removed. Therefore, where the point in issue is whether he has been so removed, the order of removal is appealable.

Where there is nothing on the record to show the grounds of the removal, the case should be remanded in order that the District Judge may deal with the matter properly under section 39 of the Act C. MAHADEO MONDAL v. BIDHI CHAND MONDAL, 20 C. L. J. 296 28

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 42 28

Guardianship. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

Hat, right of holding on fixed days—Interference, when restrained 647

Hindu Law. See CUSTOM.

——— Adoption—Adoptee not a lineal descendant of his natural father—Occupancy holding, succession to—Right of brother adopted in another family—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 22.

Once a boy has been adopted into another family, he ceases to be a "lineal descendant" of his natural father; and, therefore, cannot succeed to the occupancy holding of his brother by the natural father. A. THAMMAN SINGH v. DAL SINGH, 12 A. L. J. 1231; 37 A. 7 24

——— ——— ——— Mitakshara system—Adoption by junior widow with consent of majority of sapindas—Consent of senior widow not obtained—Validity of adoption.

Under the Mitakshara system of Hindu law an adoption made by a junior widow of a deceased Hindu without the consent of the senior widow is invalid even though the adoption was made with the consent of the majority of sapindas, as the senior widow has a preferential right to make an adoption. M. KAKERLA CHUKKAMMA v. KAKERLA PUNNAMMA, 16 M. L. T. 612; 2 L. W. 24; (1915) M. W. N. 19; 28 M. L. J. 72 775

Hindu Law—contd.

——— Adoption—Right of widowed daughter-in-law—Consent of mother-in-law in whom estate rested.

Under Hindu Law a widowed daughter-in-law, that is to say, the widow of a pre-deceased son, can make a valid adoption with the contemporaneous consent of her mother-in-law in whom the estate of the last full owner is vested as an heir. B. SHIDAPPA BAPU BIRADKAR v. NINGANGAUDA SIDDANGAUDA, 16 BOM. L. R. 663 51

——— ——— ——— Twice-born classes—Dattahoma—Adopted child of same gotra.

Among the twice-born classes dattahoma is not essential when the adoptive father and the adopted child belong to the same gotra. C. KATKI v. LAKPATI PUJARI, 20 C. L. J. 319 39

———, validity of—Question involved in suit to recover immoveable property not raised—Res judicata—Limitation Act (IX of 1871), Sch. II, Art. 129.

Where in a suit instituted against a widow to recover possession of immoveable property, a ground of defence as to the invalidity of an adoption was open to her but was not raised, she must be held to have raised it and the question as to adoption deemed to be res judicata in any subsequent suit between the reversioners to her husband's estate and the alienees.

Under the Limitation Act of 1871 it was imperative that a suit for the recovery of immoveable property which involved the displacement of an adoption should be filed within 12 years from the date of the adoption or at the option of the plaintiff, from the death of the adoptive father.

Where, therefore, a suit to set aside an adoption open to a widow is not brought within the period of limitation, a reversioner or any other member interested to dispute the validity of the adoption cannot file a suit after the period of limitation is over, as the right of suit cannot be revived. M. VENKOBA ROW v. THUNIA NATARAJA CHETTIAR, (1914) M. W. N. 903 109

——— ———Widow, when can adopt to her deceased husband—Widows of two persons, whether can adopt same person—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 94—Document not exclusively relied upon—Admissibility of oral evidence

A widow can adopt a son to her late husband only when she has been authorised by the latter to make the adoption, or possibly where her late husband's kinsmen assent to the adoption and there has been no express or implied prohibition by her husband.

It is not competent to the widows of two persons, even if brothers, to take the same person in adoption, either at the same time or at different times.

Where it appeared that a certain Hindu and his branch of the family left their ancestral home in Bikanir and settled down in Delhi:

Held, that succession to their property must be determined (in the absence of any proof that they were governed by some family custom) by the principles of their personal law.

Where the plaintiff put in a certain document of which the language was found to be "absolutely plain and unambiguous," but the plaintiff himself was no party to the document and did not rely upon it exclusively as establishing his title to the property and the plaint as well as the plaintiff's statement before the framing of the issues were very vague:

Held, that under the circumstances the plaintiff was not debarred from adducing oral evidence in support of his contention. P. GOPI KISHEN v. GOPI KISHEN, 27 P. W. R. 1915; 57 P. L. R. 1915 704

——— ——— Alienation by uncle and mother of a minor acting as his guardian—Minor and his uncle, members of an undivided Hindu family—Mother not the legal guardian—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 44, if applicable.

Where a minor and his uncle were members of an undivided Hindu family and certain joint family property was sold by the uncle and the mother of the minor, who was put forward as his guardian:

Held, that, as the undivided paternal uncle was the guardian in law of the minor and not the mother, a suit to set aside the sale would not fall under Article 44 of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act M. KATHAPERUMAL THEVAN v. RAMALINGA THEVAN, 17 M. L. T. 188 695

——— ——— Ancestral property — Property ancestral qua grandson if it descends to son 393

——— ——— Daughters—Dayabhaga School—Survivorship—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 28, Sch. I, Art. 141—Applicability of s. 28—Adverse possession—Extinguishment of title.

A Hindu governed by the Dayabhaga school at his death left two daughters (his heirs) and a daughter-in-law, widow of a pre-deceased son. The daughter-in-law took possession of the estate to the exclusion of the daughters, who were living at their husbands' houses. The possession continued for more than 12 years:

Held, that the possession of the daughter-in-law was adverse and that under section 28 of the Limitation Act it extinguished the right of the daughters; and that the survivor of the two daughters came in on the death of her sister within 12 years of the suit, not by way of inheritance as reversioner, but by right of survivorship, and consequently Article 141 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act would not apply. C. SACHINDRA KISHORE DEY v. RAJALI KANT CHUCKERBUTTY, 18 C. W. N. 904 250

——— ——— Debt—Son's liability to pay money due under indemnity bond of his father—Debt not tainted with immorality—Liability of ancestral property in hands of son

It is the pious duty of a Hindu son to pay the money due under an indemnity clause provided in a sale-deed, not tainted with immorality, executed by his father. The ancestral property in the hands of the son is liable to discharge the debt. A. RAGHUNANDAN PRASAD v. CHHM RAM 95

——— ——— Impartible zemindari — Maintenance allowance, whether charge—Intention of parties—Heir taking as donee under a gift—Santhathi Puramparayai—Annuity in nature of personal estate—Assignment of heir's rights.

Where a suit for the recovery of a certain zemindari was compromised and the plaintiff agreed to receive a sum of Rs. 700 monthly for himself and his heirs from the then and future holders of the zemindari and on the allowance falling into arrears, the son of the grantee instituted a suit for the amount and obtained a decree, but the decree was held to be not executable by his heirs, who were referred to a regular suit, which was duly brought.

Hindu Law—contd.

Held, (1) that the grant was chargeable on the zemindari and enforceable by the descendants of the original grantee;

(2) that the fact that the defendant took the estate as a gift from his father did not take away the liability which would have devolved on him if he had succeeded to the property as son and heir;

(3) that the words "Santhathi paramparayai" clearly showed that the annuity was intended to be descendible to the heirs of the grantee generally and not limited to his lineal descendants.

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—The language of the grant makes the grantor's heirs liable for all time to come.

No special language is necessary to create a charge, it depends upon the intention of the parties, and in the present case the maintenance allowance made payable under the deed of compromise was intended to be a charge upon the zemindari.

The principle that where property is given by Will to a person who would otherwise be entitled to it as heir the character of the property is not changed, is also applicable where the transfer is inter vivos.

Per Wallis, C. J.—The grant is analogous to maintenance allowances payable by the proprietor of an impartible estate to the junior members of his family for maintenance, which are not deemed to be charged on the estate as a whole.

The words used are not sufficient to impose a charge on the zemindari, but merely create an annuity in the nature of a personal estate that may be made descendible in the same manner as real estate.

Where the heir of a deceased person executed a deed in favour of another which, after reciting that there was some question whether he or the other person was the next reversioner, provided that in consideration of a payment of Rs. 1,000, the former should give up in favour of the latter his claim as heir of the deceased and all rights connected therewith and that the latter should enjoy the estate with all rights of ownership and that the executant and his heirs should have no claim to it:

Held, that this was a valid transfer of the heir's rights, which accrued to the transferee and could be lawfully enjoyed by him. M. RAJARAJESWARA DORAI v. SUNDARAPANDIYASWAMI THEVAR, 27 M. L. J. 654 283

——— Joint family—Alienation by manager—Adult co-parceners, when bound by alienation by manager—Consent, implied—Co-parcener not benefited by transaction affected by other co-parcener, not bound by transaction.

No alienation by one co-parcener, even if he is a managing member of the joint Hindu family, will bind the other adult co-parceners, unless their consent to the alienation is either expressed or may be implied from their conduct.

Consent to an alienation would necessarily be inferred where a co-parcener with full knowledge of all the facts takes possession of and retains that which has been purchased with the proceeds of the property alienated.

A co-parcener not benefited by a transaction entered into by the manager of the joint Hindu family can plead that he is not bound by that transaction on the ground that he derived no benefit from it and that it has not been entered into for any legal necessity. O. KANTA v. BHAGIRATH, 2 O. L. J. 80 517

——— Joint family—Family business carried on—Debt contracted for family business—Creditor not bound to inquire as to purpose of loan—Manager, implied authority of.

Where a joint Hindu family carries on a business or profession, and maintains itself by means of it, the member who manages it for the family has an implied authority to contract debts for its purposes, and the creditor is not bound to inquire into the finances of the business, as long as that business forms the purpose of the debts, in order to bind the whole family thereby, because the power to contract debts is incidental to the carrying on of the business, from which the family derives its means of subsistence and support. O. BABA DIN v. BANSRAJ 567 ——— ——— , manager of—Family arrangement—Minor—Mutation proceedings—Registration, whether necessary.

Under ordinary circumstances and in the absence of fraud or collusion, the managing member of a joint Hindu family is entitled to transact the business of the joint family and represent the members of it.

A family settlement come to in a mutation proceeding and creating rights in immoveable property does not require registration. A. DAYA SHANKAR v. HUB LAL, 13 A. L. J. 21; 37 A. 103 497

——— ——— ——— Managing member, representation by, whether on behalf of family 795

——— Maintenance, agreement embodied in decree or order, effect of—Compromise affecting immoveable property neither registered nor incorporated in decree, value of—Agreement creating future interest in favour of unborn persons, whether valid.

A compromise affecting immoveable property cannot be given effect to, if it is neither registered nor incorporated in a decree or order of a Court.

An amount provided as maintenance for a member of a family does not lose its character of being increased or decreased under a change of circumstances as a maintenance allowance by being embodied in an instrument or a decree.

An agreement which creates a future interest in immoveable property in favour of persons unborn, imposes a restraint upon alienation contrary to the principles of Hindu Law and is, therefore, invalid. M. VENKATAPPA NAYANIM VARU v. THIMMA NAYANIM VARU, 27 M. L. J. 656; (1914) M. W. N. 900 379

——— ——— Nattukkottai Chettiers—Family property and trade assets, whether distinct.

In the case of Nattukkottai Chettiers, their family property should be treated as trade assets; and no distinction should be made between the family property and the trade assets. M. CHARTERED BANK v. VELLAIAPPA CHETTY, 27 M. L. J. 654 376

Hindu Law—contd.

———— Partition—Agreement to divide income only, whether estops division by metes and bounds—Plea of impartibility, how maintained—Agreement to divide conclusive as to status.

The plea of impartibility of a zemindari can succeed only if the parties prove that such a custom existed in the family before the family acquired the zemindari lands. A provision in a deed between the members of a family that only the income of the zemindari is to be divided does not estop them from claiming a division by metes and bounds: such an agreement is not binding on the other members of the family, as it is opposed to the ordinary incidents of joint property.

Where a deed recites that there is no community of property or interest between the parties, it operates as a final deed of division and no Court should go behind it. M. MUTHUSAMI NAICKER v. MUTHUSAMI NAICKER 3 ———— ———— Status—Intention to divide—Presumption when one co-parcener divides.

If the male members of a joint Hindu family wish to become divided in status they are at liberty to agree to do so, and on their so agreeing, they become divided in status even though the properties are not actually divided between them by metes and bounds. A definite and unambiguous expression even by one member of his intention to separate himself and enjoy his share in severalty may amount to separation. A definite partition of properties by metes and bounds is not essential to constitute a definite division in status between co-parceners. The presumption, when one of several co-parceners becomes divided, is that the others also have become divided in status. M. BALKRISHNA MUDALIAR v. RAJU MUDALIAR, 16 M. L. T. 610; (1915) M. W. N. 17 736 ———— Succession—Land held on service tenure—Rent-free grant 720

———— ———— ———— Mitakshara School—Brother's widow excludes first cousin.

Under the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law the widow of a brother would be the next reversioner in preference to the first cousins.

The only essentials of a good legal acceleration are that it should be to the next in reversion and that it should cover the whole life-estate. No consent of reversioners is needed, still less any proof of necessity. B. BASANGAUDA NAGANGAUDA v. BASANGAUDA DODANGAUDA, 16 BOM. L. R. 699; 39 B. 87 167

———— ———— ———— Right of convert's son to inherit—Exclusion of kafir under Muhammadan Law—Burden of proof—Admission on point of law—Caste Disabilities Removal Act (XXI of 1850) 357

———— Temple—Murasikar or turn archaka and miras archaka, rights of, to perform new pujas—Navavarana puja, what is—Trustees, right of, to have new pujas and archanas performed by miras archaka.

Trustees of Hindu temples will be acting contrary to their duty if they refuse to accept voluntary contributions offered by devotees for the performance of new pujas and festivals, provided they are not inconsistent with the object of the institution and the necessary funds are forthcoming from the devotees.

Hindu Law—contd.

Non-murasikar (non-turn-holder) archakas are entitled to perform for their clients special acts of worship, such as navaviana puja, without prejudice to the mamool worship being performed during the usual hours by the murasikars or the turn-holders.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—Archana is not distinct from puja and is a portion of it; the latter is a general term meaning ceremonial worship, the former term being applied to the placing of pure leaves or flowers on the idol during the course of recitation of the names of the god or goddess, as the case may be. Archanam is connected more with vocal respect and praise and pujanam with mental attitude.

Navavarana puja is one in which the saktis of the five ordinary aspects of the god (Brahma, Vishnu, Rudra, Eswara and Sadasiva) and the four higher aspects (Bindu, Nadda, Sakti and Siva) are worshipped. M. AMRITHESWARA PANDITHAR v. MUDUGAPPA CHETTIAR, 2 L. W. 127 886

———— Widow, alienation by—Suit by remote reversioner for declaration that it was not binding on reversioners—Extent of reversionary heir's right to bring such suit—Reversionary heir's failure in one suit does not preclude him from suing again in respect of subsequent alienation.

The right to bring a suit for a declaration that a conveyance by a Hindu widow is only good for her life but is not good as an absolute conveyance of the property thereby dealt with against the reversioners of her deceased husband, is limited, and, as a general rule, belongs to the presumptive reversionary heir. But if the nearest reversionary heir has precluded himself in some way by his own act or conduct from suing—as by collusive action with the widow—a reversioner in a more remote degree may be allowed to prosecute such a suit.

The presumptive reversionary heir of a deceased Hindu, who has failed in his action against the alleged widow of the deceased for possession of the property left by him, has not thereby precluded himself from again suing the widow for a declaration that a conveyance made by her after the former suit was only binding for the period of her life, and, consequently, a reversioner in a more remote degree has no right to bring such a declaratory suit. P. C. JHANDU v. TARIF, 19 C. W. N. 197; 17 M. L. T. 10, 21 C. L. J. 26; 2 L. W. 118; 17 BOM. L. R. 44; 37 A. 45; 28 M. L. J. 453 892

———— ———— ———— , alienation by—Legal necessity—Onus probandi—Consent of reversioners—Alienation by nearest contingent reversioner, effect of—Evidence of consent.

To be valid as against the reversioners, or to affect their reversionary rights, a charge created by a Hindu widow or an alienation effected by her can be supported only by proof aliunde that such debt was contracted or alienation was made for valid and legal necessity, and the onus of establishing such necessity rests heavily on the person who claims the benefit of transactions with a Hindu widow or other females taking similar estates. The requirements of the law as to valid and legal necessity may, however, be fulfilled by proving the consent or concurrence of the reversioners to or in the transactions. But the mere attestation by a relative even though he might be the sole contingent reversioner, does not necessarily import concurrence. When a stringent equity arising out of an alleged consent by the reversioners is sought to be enforced against them, such consent should not be inferred from ambiguous acts or be supported by dubious oral testimony, but must be established by positive evidence that upon an intelligent understanding of the nature of the dealings they concurred in binding their interests; and the kindred in such case must generally mean all those who are likely to be interested in disputing the transaction, or at all events there should be such a concurrence of the members of the family as suffices to raise a presumption that the transaction was a fair one and one justified by Hindu Law. P. C. HARI KISHEN BHAGAT v KASHI PARSHAD SINGH, 17 M. L. T. 115; 19 C. W. N. 370, 13 A. L. J 223; 2 L. W. 219; 21 C. L. J. 225; 28 M. L. J. 565; 17 BOM. L. R. 426 674

Hindu Law—concld.

——— —— Widow, decree against, when binding on reversioners—Compromise decree—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 141—Adverse possession—Thak and survey map, presumption relating to 954

——— ——— ——— Pious obligation to pay her husband's debts, whether applicable to debts repudiated—Agreement by husband on certain conditions to re-convey within certain time property purchased—Conditions not fulfilled—Husband denying obligation to re-convey—Widow, whether bound to fulfill the agreement—Alienations by widow upheld—Legal necessity.

In 1869 A sold his property to B, who passed a contemporaneous agreement to re-convey it to the vendor, if the latter paid him Rs. 100 every year for six years. So matters stood till after the death of B. In 1883 his son D was sued by the representatives of A. The suit took the form of a redemption suit, and he, in his written statement, denied that the agreement had been complied with, or could now be enforced, and at the same time alleged that the transaction was not a mortgage. The defence succeeded and the suit was dismissed In 1894 after the death of D his mother, who was in life enjoyment of the estate, was again sued for redemption. The suit again failed as barred by the rule of res judicata. Shortly after this the widow sold the property to the representatives of A.

Held, (1) that the widow was under no pious obligation to do for the last male-holder of the estate what he had emphatically declined to do for himself;

(2) that the alienation was not justifiable and ought not to be sustained against the reversioners;

(3) that the only solid ground upon which alienations by a widow are justified and made good against reversioners is legal necessity. B. BHAGWAT BHASKAR v NIVRITTI SAKHARAM, 16 BOM. L. R. 788; 39 B. 113 356

Hindu Wills Act (XXI of 1870), s. 2 739

Hire and purchase system—Sewing machine purchased on instalment system—Suit for return of machine—Non-payment of instalments—Limitation 637

Hundi payable after certain period—Days of grace—Date of maturity 608

Husband and wife—Liability of husband for misappropriation by his wife.

A husband is not liable for the acts of misappropriation committed by his wife during the course of her service which he had allowed her to take up. A. C. SIMPSON v. MRS. E. BACHMAN, 13 A. L. J. 56 622

Ijara—Non-payment of rent—Possession without payment after expiry of lease—Limitation—Assessment of rent.

Where a certain Mouza was given in ijara to the predecessor-in-title of the appellants who excavated a tank there with the permission of the superior landlord and did not pay any rent therefor even after the expiry of the lease, on a suit for khas possession or in the alternative for assessment of rent:

Held, (1) that the ijara constituted a good answer to the plea of limitation;

(2) that the appellants should be treated as raiyats holding at fixed rates. C. ALAB-UD-DIN v BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR. 31

Immoveable property—Growing crops 935

Impartible estate, alienability of 982

Impartible zemindari: See HINDU LAW.

Improvement, right of tenant to claim compensation for 361

Inam—Service inam—Title-deed in grantee's name—Services connected with temple—Alienation by grantee—Trustee's suit for possession, maintainability of.

The title-deed for an inam orginally granted to a dancing woman for performing certain services in a temple was issued in her name by the Government. She subsequently alienated the inam. The services having been neglected, the trustees of the temple sued for possession of the inam.

Held, that the suit by the trustees was not maintainable. M. MATTA SARAYYA v VEPPARATHI VYDIYANATHAM, 1 L. W. 490, 27 M. L. J. 57 163

Incorporeal right. See ADVERSE POSSESSION.

Incumbrance—Sale for arrears of revenue, effect of 258

——— created by tenant, effect of, upon landlord. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 86 (6).

Inference—Landlord and tenant—Rent-free title—Possession for long series of years without payment of rent—Absence of proof of having been ever realized—Inference 12

Inherent jurisdiction—Fraudulent decree, setting aside of—Court, power of—Remedy—Review—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908) s. 151, O. XLI, r. 19 628

Inherent power—Decree, whether can be modified 139

———, exercise of—Stay of suit—Abuse of process of Court 455

Inheritance. See CUSTOM.

——— Suit by some heirs of deceased person against stranger—Their claim limited only to extent of their own individual shares—Estoppel—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 115.

Where some of the heirs of a deceased person sue to get possession of the deceased's property, they are restricted to their own individual shares if such shares can be ascertained, and they have no right to recover whole of his property even if the remaining heirs have distinctly declined to make any claim. This rule equally applies whether the contest is between two sets of the reversioners, or reversioners and a stranger who is unable to establish any prima facie right at all.

An heir is not estopped from claiming the rest of the property of a deceased person in the hands of a stranger by reason of his redeeming from him (stranger) a small portion of that property P. BUTA SINGH v. LAL SINGH 565

Injunction—Mortgagor and mortgagee, right and liability of—Mortgagor, right of, to enhance rent of tenant—Reduction of mortgage-debt—Suit for declaration and injunction, maintainability of 697

———, power of Probate Court to grant 617

———, suit for—Plaintiff what has to show to succeed in such a case—Purchaser of lessee's right in coal mine, rights of, to take entire coal—Barrier to pen back water, right of—"Instroke and outstroke", meaning of—Instroke, right of, when exercised—Fraud, ground for injunction—Support, right of.

A man who seeks the aid of a Court by an injunction must show that the act complained of is in fact a violation of his right or at least is an act which, if carried into effect, will necessarily result in a violation of the right. The mere prospect or apprehension of injury or the mere belief that the act complained of may or will be done is not sufficient.

In order to succeed in such an action the plaintiff must show a strong case of probability that the apprehended mischief will, in fact, arise.

The plaintiff must show the existence of an intention on the part of the defendant to do the act complained of; but direct evidence of such intention may be unnecessary, if a man insists on his right to do or begins to do or threatens to do or gives notice of his intention to do an act which must, if completed, give a ground of action.

Where, therefore, a purchaser of the rights of a lessee of a coal mine claims the right to take away the entire coal, the Court is competent to grant an injunction if it is established that what the purchaser asserts he has a right to do, would constitute a breach of contract between the lessor and the lessee.

An owner of a lower mine must, if he wishes to guard against the natural flow of water from the mines of his neighbours, have a barrier in the upper part of his mine to pen back the water and the lessee of such a mine may be held liable for any damage done by breaking down the barrier between the mines.

It is, however, not obligatory upon the lessee to leave a barrier of coal merely to prevent communication with adjoining mines and, therefore, where the object of a plaintiff is only to prevent communication an injunction cannot be issued.

Injunction—concld.

The right of instroke is the right of conveying minerals leased to the surface through a pit or shaft in an adjoining mine; it is the converse right to that of outstroke, which is the right of conveying minerals from an adjoining mine to the surface through a pit or shaft in the mine leased.

A lessee is prima facie entitled to work by instroke, but not by outstroke.

Where it can be assumed that the lessee has the right to work by instroke, he cannot be permitted to exercise that right fraudulently to the detriment of his lessor but where no fraud is established, an injunction cannot be granted.

Prima facie the owner of the surface has a right of support and the lessee is not entitled to work the mine so as to cause a subsidence, and an injunction will be granted if the Court is satisfied that injury is imminent and certain to result from the defendant's acts or where the defendant claims the right to do acts which must inevitably cause subsidence. C. RAMJAS AGARWALA v. BEJO MOHAN, 20 C. L. J. 538; 19 C. W. N. 887 244

———, temporary—Execution proceedings—Suit to remove obstruction 56

———, temporary, grant of, when allowed—Hat, right of holding on fixed days—Interference, when restrained.

Under colour of a temporary injunction a Court cannot be asked to give the relief which forms the cause of action in the suit.

But where the defendants put forward a claim of right which is incompatible with the right upon which the plaintiffs sue and where it appears probable that the claim is sought to be exercised in a wholly unnecessary manner upon motives of spite and ill-feeling, the Court will interfere by way of injunction.

A party is entitled to hold a hat in his own village on any day he likes subject to his committing no offence against public tranquility, but where by holding a hat on particular days he violates the legal rights of the other party to hold his hat on those days, he will be restrained from holding his hat on such days. C. BROJENDRA KISHORE ROY CHOWDHURY v. ABDUS SODHAN CHOWDHURY 647

In pari delicto, rule of 1008

Insolvency, notice of, effect of 102

Intention—Conduct of parties 471

Interest, high rate of—Powers of Courts 715

——— Mortgage—Conditional sale—No independent covenant for payment of interest—Post diem interest allowed 616

——— payable on kattubadi amounts 937

———, penal—Court, power of, to grant relief—Penal stipulation as to interest, test of—Unconscionable or extravagant bargain, how determined—Stipulation for accelerating payment, when penal—Domination of Will—Undue influence 815

———, rate of, stipulated in mortgage-bond—Period between date fixed for payment and date of realization—Interest, at what rate to be allowed.

A decree-holder in a mortgage suit is entitled to recover interest at the Court rate for the period between the date fixed for payment and the date of realization of the money, and not at the rate stipulated for in the mortgage-bond. C. SAHIBZADA SINGH v. HAZARI SAHU 522

Interest—concld.

Interlocutory order—Revision 640

Interpretation—Enactments regulating procedure 625

——— —of covenant 800

———————of Statute—Act, whether retrospective 688

——— ——— ———Fiscal enactment 731

Inventions and Designs Act (V of 1888), ss. 20, 29 (4)—Infringement—Defence—Want of subject-matter—Want of novelty—Difference between Acts of 1888 and 1911—English and Indian Law—Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911).

Under the Inventions and Designs Act of 1888 a defendant in an action for infringement is allowed to set up by way of defence all the grounds on which the grant of the patent could be opposed, grounds which are to be found in section 20 of the Act. A defendant is not allowed to set up the defence that the invention was not new, unless the defendant or some person through whom he claims has, before the date of the delivery of the application for leave to file the specification, publicly or actually used in some parts of British India or of the United Kingdom the invention with respect to which the privilege is alleged to have been infringed.

The Indian Acts do not intend, as in England, that there should be any separate defence to the grant of a patent on the ground of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty.

The defendant cannot raise the defence of want of subject-matter as distinguished from want of novelty and the restrictions imposed by section 29 (4) are binding in both cases All the statutory grounds for opposing the grant of a patent, which can be pleaded in answer to an action for infringement of a patent under the Act of 1911, cannot be pleaded in a suit instituted before the Act, as it is not applicable. M. BHATHEY SUNDARARAYAN v. KUPUSAMI IYER, (1914) M. W. N. 817; 27 M. L. J. 573 996

Issue—Jurisdiction—Res judicata—Title—Parties 917

———, object of framing of—Judge, discretion of—Issue, when not necessary—Failure to frame—Error of law.

Where a Judge considers that the determination of an issue is necessary for the right decision of a suit, it is his duty to frame such an issue, but where it is not necessary to frame the issue he does not err in law in not framing it. C. GIRDHAR DAS v. SITARAM NAIK 578

——— whether property remitted—Suit for redemption—What should mortgagor prove 35

Joint decree. See EXECUTION.

Joint family. See HINDU LAW, PARTNERSHIP.

Joint promisors. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 43.

——— ——— ——— Promisee's discretion to sue some or all 94

Joint tenancy. See CONTRIBUTION.

Joint trial—Association in same offence 200

——— ———Public Gambling Act (III of 1867), ss 3 and 4—Keeping gaming house and being present in it—Offence 844

Judicial orders, construction of 813

Judicial proceedings—Registrar of Presidency Small Cause Court, inquiry by, as to service of summons, whether judicial proceeding—Power to grant sanction—Oaths Act (X of 1873), s. 13—Omission to administer oath or affirmation, effect of.

As the Registrar of the Presidency Small Cause Court is authorized to decide the question of service of summons and is, therefore, entitled to take evidence, the proceedings before him in such matters are in the nature of judicial proceedings and he is competent to grant sanction for prosecution.

An omission to administer an oath or affirmation to a deponent is an irregularity which is cured by section 13 of the Oaths Act.

C. BAL CHAND v. TARAK NATH SADHU, 18 C. W. N. 1323; 16 Cr. L. J. 151 215

Jurisdiction—Abuse of process of Court—Stay of suit—Inherent power 455

——— ——— Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 88, 386, 439—Attachment under s. 386—Revision incompetent—Claim, determination of Criminal Courts, jurisdiction of 550

——————— Cause of action arising in part 129

——————— Decree, interpretation of—Village, entire, division of—Jurisdiction of Revenue Courts—Partition of house—U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), ss. 106, 111, 118—Objection as to jurisdiction not taken, effect of 543 ——— ———, determination of on ground of in convenience 88

——— ———Dispute likely to cause breach of the peace not mentioned in notice—Parties aware—Magistrate—Revision 848

——— ———District Registrar, whether Court 154

——— ——— Document not in existence—High Court, power of, to give opinion 501 ———————, Ecclesiastical and Civil, in Lower Burma—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 9—Kathanabaing.

The Civil Courts in Lower Burma have jurisdiction to entertain and try suits of Ecclesiastical nature.

The Government has recognised the authority of Kathanabaing in Upper Burma, but not in Lower Burma. L. B. WISAYA v. ZAW TA 112

——————— Enhancement of rent—Special Judge—Appeal 446

——— ——— Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 107H—Grove brought under cultivation—Bilatafia, land held as—Under-proprietary rights accrual of—Presumption 165

Jurisdiction—contd.

——— ——— Imprisonment.

A Magistrate is not competent to impose a sentence of imprisonment to take effect in continuation of a period of sentence which the accused is undergoing in default of furnishing sufficient security M. GANDELLA RAMUDU, In re. (1914) M. W. N. 500, 16 Cr. L. J. 137 201

——— ——— Maintenance—Suit based on agreement—Claim not made by maintenance-holder 824

——— ——— ——— Material irregularity—Revision 629

——— ——— Mutation—Mamlatdar holding inquiry, whether Revenue Court—Record-of-Rights—Production of forged Will—Sanction to prosecute 147

——— ——— Notice, whether necessary in all suits against Secretary of State for India in Council—District, meaning of—Acquiescence in jurisdiction, wheth r presumed from defendant's failure to apply for transfer 232

——— ——— Order under s. 144, Criminal Procedure Code, directed to public at large—Operation not confined to particular place 146

——— ——— Pre-emption decree—Application for extension of time for payment 419

——— ——— Provincial Small Causes Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 28—Bengal, Assam and N.-W. P. Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), s. 13 751

——— ——— Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 106, suit under—Question of title, whether determined in suit under s. 106—Civil Court, jurisdiction of 883

——— ——— Record-of-Rights, when to be questioned in Civil Courts—Zemindar or other proprietor—Suit for declaration of title in a share of a shikmi ghatwali khorposh grant, whether cognisable by Civil Court 5

——— ——— Res judicata—Conduct of party to be bound by res judicata—Previous decision, when conclusive between parties 954

——— ——— ——— Small Cause Court—Suit registered as ordinary suit—Tried as Small Cause Court suit—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLVI, r. 7—Reference to High Court—Discretion—Decision on merits.

A suit valued at Rs. 90 was instituted in the Court of a Munsif having Small Cause Court power only up to Rs. 50. It was registered as an ordinary suit but was tried subsequently as a Small Cause Court suit by the successor of the former Munsif who had Small Cause Court power up to Rs. 100:

Held, considering the merits of the case, that it was not a fit case to direct that the suit be re-heard in the regular form, on the ground that the Court of Small Causes had erroneously held the suit to be cognizable by it.

Held, further, that the High Court had full power in such a case to consider the matter on the merits, so as to do substantial justice without putting the parties to the expense of a fresh suit.

A Court of Small Causes cannot be expected to consider whether the suit before it is one which it has jurisdiction to entertain independently on whether an actual plea is not taken to that effect. C. PARAMESWARI v. JAGAT CHANDRA DAS, 21 C. L. J. 141; 19 C. W. N. 900 972

Jurisdiction—contd.

——— ——— Succession certificate, revocation of—Succession certificate granted by Subordinate Judge—District Judge, whether can revoke—Regulation V of 1799—Intestate—Succession—District Judge, power of 821

——— ——— ——— Suit between rival claimants to tenancy—Cognizable by Civil Court—Res judicata 913

——— ——— ——— ——— Title—Issue—Parties 917

——— ——— of Civil Court—Equitable estoppel, whether creates jurisdiction 11

——— ——— ——— ——— Government grant free of payment of land revenue, sale of, in execution of a mortgage decree—Government refusing sale—Suit against Secretary of State, the judgment-debtor and the subsequent transferee, maintainability of—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Hearing of case on merits, necessity of, before granting declaration 354

——— ——— ——— Occupancy right, relinquishment of, by ex-proprietor—Agreement, voluntary, validity of—Ex-proprietary tenancy converted by ex-proprietor into rent-free holding for life—Ejectment—Trespasser—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 7 A. cl. (4) 376

——— ——— of Civil or Revenue Court—Claim by one proprietor against another for establishing occupancy rights—When decree of Civil Court cannot be registered in Revenue Court—Return of plaint—Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), ss. 77, 100.

A suit by one of the proprietary body against another for declaring that the former is the occupancy tenant of land belonging to the latter falls under section 77 (3) (d) and is consequently triable only by a Revenue Court. It is immaterial whether the dispute has arisen out of partition proceedings about the land. When a suit of this nature has been decided by a Munsif having no Revenue powers his decree cannot be registered as that of a Revenue Court by the Chief Court. The ordinary course in such a case is to return the plaint for presenting it to a competent Revenue Court. P. KIRPA RAM v. KIRPA RAM, 156 P. W. R. 1914, 282 P. L. R. 1914 89

——— ——— ——— ——— Mortgage with possession—Landlord and tenant, relationship of—Second appeal—Finding of fact.

A finding to the effect that a certain person is the mortgagee and has paid consideration of the mortgage cannot be challenged in second appeal.

The mere fact that a land is mortgaged with possession and the mortgagors hold it under the mortgagee, does not create the relationship of landlord and tenant, and consequently a suit for possession of such a land is cognizable by a Civil and not by a Revenue Court. P. SHADI BEG v. AHMED KHAN, 168 P. W. R. 1914 446

Jurisdiction—concld.

——————— of Magistrate to ignore acquittal and proceed with case—Acquittal on date not fixed for hearing—Nullity 212

——————— of Small Cause Court —Suit for accounts—Consent of parties.

A Small Cause Court has no jurisdiction to entertain suits for accounts, and consent of parties does not give a Court jurisdiction which it has not got. L. B. ABDUL KARIM v. BURRAY SAIB 803

——————— of Subordinate Judge to hear appeal—Appeal—Suit filed in Subordinate Judge's Court but heard and decided by Munsif 874

Jus tertii, plea of—Enjoyment of water-course—Right of person in possession 999

Kabuliat. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Kaligbat palas. See CUSTOM.

Karmakari tenure 889

Kathanabaing, authority of 112

Kattubadi amounts, rate of interest payable on arrears of 937

Kidnapping. See PENAL CODE, s. 361, 366.

Kudivaram interest. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT, s. 6.

Laches. See LIMITATION ACT, s. 5.

Land Improvement Loans Act (XIX of 1883), ss. 7, 12—Certificate—Suit for balance of loan—Charge on land for improvement of which advance made—Charge, enforceability of—Sale, validity of—Estoppel.

Section 7 of the Land Improvement Loans Act (XIX of 1883) gives various means by which the Collector may, on behalf of the Government, recover the moneys that have been advanced According to it the land for which the advance is made is a security to the Government for the purpose of securing the re-payment of the improvement charge.

Where the certificate executed by the Collector at the time of the granting of the loan, and registered under section 12 of Act XIX of 1883, stated that for the re-payment of the loan with interest, the immoveable property specified in the margin in addition to the land on which the improvement was to be made, was hypothecated to the Government, the Government obtained under the terms of the Statute read along with the certificate, a perfectly good charge on the land that was hypothecated by the certificate and was entitled to enforce that charge by sale in the ordinary manner.

It would be wrong to say that because the word mortgage was put in the plaint, the rights of the Government are gone. C. SECRETARY OF STATE v. LALIT MOHAN BOSE 391

Landlord and tenant, agreement between, interpretation of—Occupancy tenant liable to all incidences attaching to him as such 385

——————— Contribution, right of, founded on justice, equity and good conscience—Principle—Contribution for excess over one's share—Liability limited only to one's share — Over-payment good defence—Suit for contribution—Decree, how to be framed.

The right of contribution has its foundation in and is controlled, by the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. It does not arise from contract, although it has sometimes been based on the theory of an implied contract for contribution supposed to exist between parties jointly liable ex contractu. The principle is that one who has discharged a common liability can recover from his co-obligors only for the excess that he has paid over his share, and each co-obligor is liable to contribute only in proportion to his share of the common debt or obligation. No contribution can be claimed against a person who paid more than his share of the debt. It is not necessary that the entire debt should have been satisfied by the plaintiff, but he must establish that he has paid more than his share of the joint liability. In a suit for contribution, the liabilities of the different parties, plaintiffs and defendants, must be separately ascertained: a joint decree cannot be made in favour of the plaintiffs against the defendants.

X, Y, and Z are co-sharer landlords, each of whom collects his share of the rent separately, X obtains a decree for rent against A, B, and C. Similar decrees are obtained by Y and Z against the same set of tenants. A satisfies the decree of X, B that of Y, and C that of Z. In a suit for contribution brought by A against B and C in respect of payment made by him to satisfy the decree of X, it is open to B and C to plead non-liability on the ground that they have discharged a liability which would otherwise have fallen upon A under the decrees of Y and Z. C. MATUNGINI DEBI v. BROJESWAR BANERJEE, 20 C. L. J. 205 22

——————— ——— ——— Eviction of tenant from part of demised lands—Abatement of rent—Cause of action—Res judicata—Finding of fact not to be questioned in second appeal even if based upon evidence on remand.

Where the question for abatement of rent had been raised in a previous litigation between the parties and by mutual consent it was left open for consideration by the Court, which was quite competent to do so, the matter would not be res judicata in a subsequent suit for rent.

A claim for rent, as it accrues due from year to year, is a recurring claim, and to each of such recurring causes of action, the defendant is entitled to interpose his claim for abatement of rent.

The parties in a second appeal are not entitled to call in question the accuracy of findings of fact, even if such findings are based upon additional evidence taken for the first time by the Court of Appeal below on remand from the High Court.

A lessee is entitled to abatement of rent in proportion to the loss of lands through eviction by title paramount.

To justify the inference that the tenant would continue liable for the entire rent even after such loss, there must be a clear and unambiguous provision in the lease to that effect. C. RASH MOHINEE DASSEE v. NAFAR CHANDRA PAL 265

Landlord and tenant—contd.

———————Kabuliat never acted on, effect of—Land, rights and liabilities as regards, when not affected by kabuliat in respect of it.

A kabuliat never given effect to does not affect the rights and liabilities otherwise existing with regard to the land mentioned in it. U. P. B. R. MAREY v. UMRAO SINGH, 1 O. L. J. 766 108

———————Land belonging to Government transferred by lease—Government declaring its right and granting it to lessor—Determination of tenancy 785

———————Lease, land once held under —Presumption—Fazendari tenure, meaning of.

There is a strong presumption that land once shown to be held under a written instrument of lease continues to be held under it as long as it is occupied by the same tenant, unless the contrary is shown by evidence of a cogent nature.

The word "fazendari" is used with reference to tenants holding under a private landholder to indicate, sometimes, an indefeasible right to hold in perpetuity on payment of a small quit or ground-rent, and sometimes any kind of tenure agreed upon between the parties. B. PARMANANDDAS v. ARDESHIR FRAMJI, 16 BOM. L. R. 723 note 512

———————Lease of land for purposes of building over—Ejectment—Terms of agreement—Mere non-payment of rent, effect of—Fazendari, meaning of

A tenant took a piece of land for building a house thereon on the condition that so long as the wadi, of which the said piece of land formed a portion remained in the possession of the landlord, the tenant would occupy the land, but when the wadi ceased to be in the landlord's possession and the land was required, the tenant was to be paid the valuation of the house and to vacate:

Held, (1) that the landlord whose possession was contemplated in the agreement must include both the landlord and his assigns, and in the same way the tenant would include his assigns;

(2) that the tenant could not be ejected according to the terms of the agreement while the landlord remained in possession of the wadi and the land was not required by any one else;

(3) that the mere non-payment of rent by a tenant, if the tenancy is not determined, does not give him a right to the property as against his landlord.

The word "fazendari", even though indicating the nature of the rent, does not necessarily decide the nature of the tenure which depends upon the agreement between the parties. B. YESHWANT VISHNU NENE v. KESHAVRAO BHALJI, 16 BOM. L. R. 720 523

———————Lease—Reversionary lease, whether can be granted—Trustee of devastanam granting lease at low rental—Right of tenant—Improvement, right of tenant to claim compensation for.

The grant of a reversionary lease is always objectionable and can be justified only in exceptional cases.

Where a trustee of a devastanam, just before his retirement from office, granted a lease for the long period of 40 years, at a time when nine years of the previous lease for the like period had still to run, at an advance of only Rs. 25 a year in spite of the fact that there had been materially a very great increase in the price of produce since the date when the previous lease was granted:

Held, that, having regard to the prevailing conditions, the lease must be deemed to have been granted at an under-value and the tenant was not entitled to compensation for such improvements as he was bound to do under the terms of the previous lease. M. MANGALASAWMI THEVAR v. RAJAH OF RAMNAD, 1 L. W. 1074 361

———————Malabar Law — Kudima tenure—Ejectment, right of, when arises—Failure to perform services—Forfeiture—Denial of landlord's title, whether sufficient.

The mere denial of the landlord's title will not work a forfeiture of that tenancy.

A landlord's power to recover the land and to oust the tenant in kudima janmam demises, is limited to cases in which the tenant omits to perform the services for the performance of which the grant was made M. THEKKILLATH TARAWAD KARANAVAN v. VADAKKA CHATHIBIKATH MANCHU NAIR, 2 L. W. 102 863

———————, relation of, proof of—Presumption, rebutting of—Burden of proof—Rental agreement, inadmissible in evidence—Oral evidence, whether admissible 804

———————, relationship of—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Court—Mortgage with possession—Second appeal—Finding of fact 446

———————, relationship of—Landlord parting with his proprietary right, whether entitled to sell tenant's holding under section 65—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, rr. 89 to 96—Court, power of, not to confirm sale 601

———————, relationship of—Rent assessed—Collection of rent, failure in, effect of.

If rent is once assessed on land, failure to collect it does not destroy the relationship of landlord and tenant which has once been established. U. P. B. R. RAMESHAR DAT v. SHYAMA KUMAR SINGH, 1 O. L. J. 764 102 ———————Rent-free title—Possession for long series of years without payment of rent—Absence of proof of rent having been ever realised—Inference.

Possession of lands for a long series of years without payment of rent, in the absence of proof that rent has ever been realised in respect of the lands, leads to the inference that they are held under a rent-free title. C. BIRENDRA KISHORE MANIKYA v. BHOIRAB CHANDRA CHAKRABARTI, 20 C. L. J. 206 12

——————— Suit by former for ejectment and rent—Stamp duty paid on one year's rent—Competency of Court to inquire into title—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 58 and 83—Mortgage by conditional sale—Sale and rental agreement—Document of even date containing an undertaking to re-convey under certain conditions—Deposit in Court—Refusal to receive money—Whether subsisting relation of landlord and tenant affected by deposit 162

Landlord and tenant—concld.

——— ——— ——— ——— Tenancy, permanent or not —Burden of proof—Question of fact—Tenancy of homestead land, created before Transfer of Property Act, 1882, transferability of.

In the absence of a written instrument containing the terms and conditions of a tenancy, the burden of proving that a tenancy is a permanent one is on the person who alleges it.

Such a question is primarily one of fact. The incident of non-transferability is common to tenancies from year to year of homestead lands created before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, in the absence of a custom to the contrary. C. KALURAM SRIMAL v. PURAN CHAND NAHAR 500

——— ——— ——— Under-raiyati holding, not transferable—Tenure, when can be transferred—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 49, applicability of—Relinquishment or abandonment—Transfer of the whole holding—Landlord, right of, to eject.

An under-raiyati holding is not transferable. Where a tenure or holding, apart from the Transfer of Property Act, is not transferable, it cannot become so unless it is expressly made so by some other Statute.

Where a transfer of the whole holding has been made, the landlord is ordinarily entitled to enter on the holding and a relinquishment of the whole holding without any proof of payment of rent or any arrangement made to pay the rent is a relinquishment in fact, which would entitle the landlord to eject the tenant. Section 49 of the Bengal Tenancy Act does not apply to such a case.

What is relinquishment or abandonment depends on the substantial effect of what has been done in each case. C. AMINUNNISA v. JINNAT ALI, 19 C. W. N 43; 20 C. L. J. 548 271

Lease. See MINING LEASE.

——— for certain purpose—Lessee's act in pursuance of purpose of lease—Landlord bound by lessee's act.

Where a lessee holds land from the landlord for a certain purpose and does any act in pursuance of that purpose the landlord is bound by that act, although that particular act may not be mentioned in the lease as one which the lessee is entitled to do U. P. B. R. SHEORAJ KOER v. FAKHRUDDIN, 1 O. L. J. 739 21

———, construction of 432

———, construction of—Fishery right, suit for—Limitation—Fishery, money payable for, whether rent 614

———Landlord and tenant—Reversionary lease, whether can be granted—Trustee of devastanam granting lease at low rental—Right of tenant—Improvement, right of tenant to claim compensation for 361

— — Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 52, applicability of—Partition proceedings—Subsequent agricultural lease void 940

Lease-hold property, whether heritable—Lease for a term of years—Death of tenant before expiry of term—Right of son to hold lease—Suit for ejectment—Notice to quit 45

Legacy, assent to, effect of 849

Legal necessity. See HINDU LAW.

——— ——— ———Mortgage by guardian of minor 859

Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), s. 13, cl. (f)—Pleader retaining in his service suspected tout—Making false statement—Professional misconduct.

A Pleader, who after having given a very clear promise to the Bar Council to dismiss N, whose name had been entered in the list of suspected touts and to whom notice had been issued to show cause why he should not be proclaimed as a tout, retained N in his service and made a distinctly false promise in order to escape the further action of the Council and broke that promise, and subsequently when an inquiry was made from him, deliberately made a false statement, false to his knowledge, regarding the employment and notice, etc, of the dismissal of N, is guilty of professional misconduct under section 13, clause (f), of Act XVIII of 1879 and is liable to be either dismissed or suspended for a certain period. P. MR M., FIRST GRADE PLEADER, In the matter of, 29 P. W. R. 1914 Cr; 16 Cr L J. 108 156

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 28—Promissory note for out-fees disbursed by Pleader, suit on—Note not filed in Court—Dismissal of suit no bar to fresh suit on original cause of action—Note operates as acknowledgment of liability—Interest at stipulated rate not recoverable.

A promissory note obtained by a Pleader from a client in respect of out-fees disbursed by him is invalid, if not filed in Court under section 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act, XVIII of 1879, but that does not estop the Pleader from obtaining a decree for the sums actually spent by him.

A promissory note, even though it cannot be sued upon on account of not having been filed in Court, may still operate as an acknowledgment of liability and the dismissal of a suit on the note does not bar a fresh suit on the original cause of action, but interest at the rate specified in the note cannot be recovered. M. NATESA MOOPPAN v. RAMACHANDRA IYER, 27 M. L. J. 728, 1 L. W. 1070 116

Legal representative, appointment of—Account—Commissioner not knowing characters in which accounts are kept, appointment of, whether allowable—Objections to report not taken in first Court or not raised in grounds of appeal before lower Appellate Court, whether allowed in second appeal.

In the presence of the widow and the mother of a deceased, the widow of deceased's cousin should not be added as a legal representative and her name, if added, should be struck off.

A Local Commissioner appointed by consent of parties, cannot be superseded simply on the ground that he is incompetent to go into the accounts as he cannot himself read the characters in which such accounts are kept.

The objections against the report of the Local Commissioner not raised in the original Court, or those against the said report and decree of that Court not put forward in the grounds of appeal before the lower Appellate Court and, therefore, not dealt with by the latter Court, cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in the further appeal before the Chief Court. P. MUNSHI RAM v. Mussammat MIARI, 9 P. W. R. 1915; 70 P. L. R. 1915 598

Legal representative—concld.

———————, right of, to continue suit 396

———————, who is—Admission by legal representative 861

Lessor and lessee, estoppel between 785

Lessor and under-lessee—Privity of contract, whether exists between lessor and under-lessee—Covenant by tenure-holder not to excavate tank—Breach of covenant by raiyat—Tenure-holder, liability of—No actual damages suffered—Infringement of right—Nominal damages 397

Letters of Administration—Property held in capacity of mohunt—Mohunt, whether entitled to letters 24

Limitation. See EXECUTION.

——————Adverse possession—Eleven years five months, possession for—Practice of Settlement Department—Judicial procedure—Possession follows title—Presumption, when raised 802

—————— Appeal—Award, filing of 31

——————Appeal re-heard on application for review—Second appeal 732

—————— Exclusion of time spent in obtaining conciliator's certificate—Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act (XVII of 1879), s. 48—Mode of computation.

The plaintiff's possessory suit in the mamlatdar's Court having been dismissed on the 28th September 1906, he applied on the 24th September 1909 for a conciliator's certificate which was issued to him on the 24th August 1910. He then filed the present suit to recover possession of the land

Held, that in computing the period of limitation the time to be excluded according to section 48 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists' Relief Act, 1879, must be reckoned by days, and that even excluding the days between the day of the application and the day of the grant of the certificate, the plaintiff's suit was barred by time. B. APPAJI BHARMAPPA v. THALEGAUDA SATYAPPA, 16 BOM. L. R. 661 101

—————— Hundi payable after certain period—Days of grace—Date of maturity—Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 22(2), 24

Every bill of exchange (hundi) made payable a certain number of days after date of its execution is at maturity on the third day after the day on which it is expressed to be payable under section 22 (2) of Act XXVI of 1881, and the day of that date is also to be excluded as is laid down in section 24 of the Act. Thus a hundi payable on 28th January falls due on 31st of that month. P. NANAK SINGH v. KESHO DAS, 1 P. W. R. 1915, 34 P. L. R. 1915 608

—————— Ijara—Non-payment of rent—Possession without payment after expiry of lease—Assessment of rent 31

—————— Mortgage—Application for personal decree 770

—————— Mortgage—Preliminary mortgage decree—Application for sale of mortgaged property—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 88, 89—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 183.

Limitation—concld.

Where a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction passes a preliminary mortgage-decree under section 88 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, an application under section 89 of the Act for an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property made after twelve years from the date of the preliminary decree is barred by Article 183 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act, 1908. P. C. MUNNA LAL v. SARAT CHUNDER, 17 M. L. T. 120; 21 C. L. J. 118, 2 L. W. 282; 19 C. W. N. 561; 17 BOM. L. R. 408 683

—————— special. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT SCH. III, ART. 6.

—————— Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 199—Suit for ejectment—Defendant set up lease—Direction of Revenue Court to file suit for declaration of title in Civil Court within three months—Suit filed after expiration of three months 511

Limitation Act (IX of 1871), Sch. II, Art. 129 109

Limitation Act (XV of 1877), Sch. II, Art. 141, scope of—Succession vesting jointly in two female heirs—Suit by one on death of another, nature of.

A left him surviving two married daughters B and C and one daughter-in-law D, widow of his predeceased son. D continued to hold certain jote lands left by A to the exclusion of B and C for more than 12 years and then sold the jote to the father of the plaintiff, who in his turn, having got himself recognised as an incoming tenant by the landlord, remained in possession and also the plaintiff after him, until on the death of D the plaintiff was dispossessed by C and her two sons. The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of possession:

Held, that as there was no partition between B and C, Article 141 of the Limitation Act, 1877, could not bar the suit so long as C was alive.

Where succession vests jointly in two female heirs, between whom no partition of the property is made, the suit by one on the death of the other for the property cannot be said to be one for recovery of possession. C. SAGHINDRA KISHORE DEY v. RAJANI KANTA CHAKRABARTY 83

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5—Appeal—Admission of appeal presented after time—Discretion of Court—Discretion must be legal and regular—Presentation of appeal to wrong Court, whether sufficient cause.

Discretion when applied to a Court of Law means discretion guided by law. It must not be arbitrary, vague and fanciful but legal and regular.

The presentation of an appeal to a wrong Court through a mistake in ignorance of law is not a sufficient cause for admitting an appeal after time.

In an appeal filed after time the appellant should state in his memorandum of appeal the grounds on which he asks the Court to admit it after time. U. B. NGA PO KAN v. NGA SHWE DAT, 7 BUR. L. T. 250 967

—————— s. 5—Appeal filed late by Advocate—Laches—Sufficient cause.

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Where the appellant sent the costs and fees to his Advocates' firm by money order in the name of one of the members of the firm who happened then to be absent, and where despite the knowledge that the required costs and fees had been despatched, the Advocate present in the firm did not advance the Court-fees to present the appeal in time, the laches cannot be excused specially when the appellant could have sent the copies and the money far earlier than he did. L. B. MA KYA NYA v. MG. TUN HLA, 639

——— ——— ——— s. 5—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XX, r. 1—Appeal filed beyond time, admissibility of—Court's negligence to observe procedure—Sufficient cause.

A party is not bound to make inquiries as to when a judgment will be delivered, but is entitled to rely on the Court obeying the express provisions of law and giving notice to his Pleader of the date fixed for delivery of judgment, and if an appeal is barred entirely through the negligence of the Judge in following the procedure, the appellant cannot be held responsible for it and the appeal should be admitted. L. B. MA ME THIN v. MAUNG SAN LUN 784

——— ——— ——— ss. 5, 14, Sch. I, Art. 11—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 63—Removal of attachment—Appeal and revision—Advocate's act, how far binding on his client—Agent—Negligence.

Under Order XXI, rule 63, Civil Procedure Code, an order on the application for removal of attachment is conclusive, subject to a regular suit to establish the right to the attached property, and under Article 11 of the Limitation Act one year is allowed for such a suit. Therefore, it would be culpable negligence on the part of an Advocate to file an appeal or revision notwithstanding the plain provisions of Order XXI, rule 63, Civil Procedure Code, and the time spent in such appeal or revision cannot be excluded under section 14 of the Limitation Act, as the plaintiff would be bound by his Advocate's negligence under the ordinary rule that, if a person employs an agent, he is bound by what his agent does in the course of his employment.

Section 5 of the Limitation Act leaves it to the discretion of an Appellate Court to exclude the time, whereas section 14 obliges a Court to exclude time if it finds a certain state of facts. L. B. MG TUN U v. PALLANIAPPA CHETTY 829

——— ——— ——— s. 6, applicability of 865

——— ——— ——— s. 6—Privilege, personal and not transferable—Minor, assignee from, position of.

The privilege conferred by section 6 of the Limitation Act is personal and not transferable, so that an assignee from a minor, whether during the continuance or after the cessation of his disability, must file the suit within the ordinary period provided for the suit or on the date of the transfer, if the transferor's right subsists till that date. O. IMAMUDDIN v. MUMTAZ UNNISA, 1 O. L. J. 747; 188 O. 34 118

——— ——— ——— s. 10, applicability of—Composition deed—Absolute transfer of property by debtor to trustees—Resulting trust—Suit for surplus moneys.

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

Section 10 of the Limitation Act has a very limited application and has no reference to trusts which are merely founded on an unexpressed but implied intention of the party creating them, or to trusts which are raised by construction of Equity without any reference to the intention of the parties.

Where, therefore, certain debtors entered into a composition deed with their creditors whereby they transferred absolutely to trustees all their property for the benefit of the creditors in order to obtain a discharge from all liabilities:

Held, that no resulting trust was created in favour of the debtors and that they had no cause of action to sue for surplus moneys.

Obiter dictum.—Where property is vested in a trustee under a Will, he holds it as express trustee, not only for the devisees and legatees named therein, but as regards any undisposed of residue, for the heir-at-law and next-of-kin, the trust is said to arise on the face of the instrument itself. S. LEKHRAJ VISUMAL v. ASSAMAL TARUMAL, 8 S. L. R. 132 332

——— ——— ——— s. 14 144, 829

——— ——— ——— s. 14—One suit for pre-emption of several properties sold on different occasions to separate vendees—Plaint restricted to one—Subsequent institution of other suits after time.

Where several portions of a property have been sold to separate vendees on different occasions, but the pre-emptor in good faith sues all the vendees jointly and the suit is restricted to only one of the sales, section 14 of the Indian Limitation Act IX of 1908 applies in computing the period of limitation for the other suits subsequently instituted in respect of the sales of rest of the property. P. AHMAD v. SULTAN, 26 P. W. R. 1915; 87 P. L. R. 1915 927

——— ——— ——— s. 19—Suit on promissory note—Endorsement of payment—Body in plaintiff's handwriting—Endorsement signed by debtor—Sufficient acknowledgment of liability

Where an endorsement on the back of a promissory note written by the plaintiff and signed by the debtor ran as follows: "Rs 164-5-0 was paid in respect of the promissory note:"

Held, that the endorsement was a sufficient acknowledgment of liability under the promissory note within the meaning of section 19 of the Limitation Act. M. JAGANADHA SAHU v. RAMA SAHU, 17 M. L. T. 80 747

——— ——— ——— s. 19—Suit to recover balance of principal and interest due on registered lease—Part payment by lessee accompanied by letter—Letter, whether acknowledgment.

A registered lease provided that the rent was payable in four instalments on the 15th days of November and December 1901 and January and February 1902. The lessee made a payment of Rs 20 on the 15th of February 1905, when he wrote to the plaintiff asking that the sum be credited to the account on the lease. The plaintiff sued on the 20th April 1910 to recover the balance of the principal and interest:

Held, that the letter of the 15th of February 1905 contained a clear admission that the rent was then due, from which an implied promise to pay

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

whatever was actually due might be inferred, and was sufficient to save the bar of limitation. M. VISVANATHA SANTHASINGARO v. RAMACHANDRA MARDRAJA, 17 M. L. T. 78 744

——— s. 28 250

——— s. 91 687

——— Sch. I, Art. 11 829

——— art. 29 —Growing crops, whether moveable property—Wrongful attachment—Suit for damages.

The Law of Limitation must be strictly interpreted and applied. That is to say, no right or remedy is to be regarded as barred unless it is clearly shown to be shut out by the enactment.

Growing crops until severed from the soil are immoveable property within the meaning of the Limitation Act; the attachment of such crops is not a seizure of moveable property for the purposes of Article 29 of the Act and a suit for damages arising out of such seizure is not governed by that Article. N. MURLIDHAR v. MULU, 11 N. L. R. 18 935

——— art. 44 687, 695

——— art. 49—Hire and purchase system—Sewing machine purchased on instalment system—Suit for return of machine—Non-payment of instalments—Limitation.

The mere non-payment of rent for a sewing machine taken on the hire and purchase system would not amount to wrongful taking or wrongful detention of the machine within the meaning of Article 49 of the Limitation Act. There must be some overt act or demand for the machine by the hirer and refusal by the purchaser. A. SINGER MANFG. Co. v. E FELIUN, 13 A. L. J. 81 637

——— art. 62 807

——— art. 62, applicability of—Money had and received—Suit by some heirs on mortgage—Decree in favour of them and property purchased by them—Other heir, right of, to realize his share—Limitation.

M, a Muhammadan, died leaving his widow N, and other heirs. The other heirs brought a suit on a mortgage in favour of the deceased, making N a defendant. They obtained a decree and in its execution purchased the properties themselves.

Held, that the suit by N against those heirs who had recovered the mortgage-debt to realize her share of the debt was governed by Article 62 of the Limitation Act, as the suit was one for money received and had by the defendant for the plaintiff's use. A. AMINA BIBI v. NAIMUNNISSA BIBI, 13 A. L. J. 255, 37 A. 238 712

——— art. 62—Suit to recover money from person appointed to realize assets of a deceased—Money had and received—Limitation.

The defendant was appointed to sell the stock-in-trade of a deceased, to realize debts due to him and pay debts due to others by the deceased, pending the settlement by arbitration of disputes between the relatives of the deceased as to their shares. The defendant realized the assets of the deceased and paid certain debts. The arbitration proceedings meanwhile fell through. The plaintiff, a sister of the deceased, sued to recover her share.

Held, that the plaintiff was only entitled to recover under the form of action known as a claim for "money had and received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff" and as the suit was brought more than three years after the latest item was received, it was barred by Article 62 of the Limitation Act. A. MASIH-UD-DIN v. IMTIAZUNNISA BIBI, 12 A. L. J. 1256; 37 A. 40 533

——— art. 68 849

——— art. 85—"Mutual, open and current account," meaning of—Settled account, opening of.

For an account to be mutual, it is necessary not only that one of the parties has received money and paid on account of the other, but that each of the two parties has received and paid on the other's account: each party should be able to say to the other "I have an account against you."

Where an account has been settled up to a certain date, it lies on the party desiring to re-open that account to aver some specific error in the account and to prove it. L. B. EBRAHIM AHMED MEHTER v. S. ABDUL HUQ 879

——— art. 89 807.

——— art. 120 607, 807

——— art. 120 —Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act (I of 1900)—Suit for declaratory decree setting aside a Will, incompetent during life-time of testator—Limitation—Six years.

A suit will not lie for a declaratory decree setting aside a Will during the life-time of the testator.

A declaratory suit for setting aside a Will is governed by Article 120 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. The Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act, 1900, does not apply to such suits P. NUR KHAN v. BAKHTAWAR, 80 P. L. R. 1915 574

——— art. 132 —Further charge, deed of, suit for recovery of money due on—Mortgagor not to redeem prior mortgages without first discharging further charge—Mortgagee to enforce at any time payment of money due on deed of further charge—Limitation, starting point of.

Where a deed of further charge provided that the mortgagor should not be at liberty to redeem the prior mortgages without first redeeming the deed of further charge and that if in the meantime the mortgagee desired to recover his money she should be at liberty to realise it whenever he wished, and more than 20 years after the execution of the deed of further charge a suit was brought for recovery of money due on it

Held, that the money became due from the date of the execution of the deed and that the suit was time-barred under Article 132, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act. O. GAJRAJ SINGH v. RAGHUBAR, 2 O. L. J. 46, 18 O. C. 86 540

——— art. 141 250, 95

Limitation Act—(1908)—contd.

——— ——— ——— art. 142 — Possession within 12 years of suit—Undisturbed possession—Discontinuance of possession.

In a suit for ejectment of a trespasser from certain land allowed to remain fallow for many years by the owner, the defendant pleaded that the land had been waste land for 40 years and he cleared the jungle with the permission of the Thugyi and was in occupation.

Held, that the suit was governed by Article 142 of the first Schedule of the Limitation Act and the plaintiffs must prove that they were the rightful owners and were in possession at some time within 12 years before the suit.

Discontinuance of possession means an abandonment of possession by one person followed by the actual possession of another person. U. B. NGA PO v. NGA SO PE, 7 BUR. L. T. 255 981

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 144 610

——— ——— ——— ——— arts. 144, 44, 91—Sale by one member of joint Hindu family—Suit to set aside sale and for possession—Limitation.

A suit to set aside a sale executed by one member of a joint Hindu family, and for possession of the property is governed by Article 144 of the Limitation Act and not by Article 44 or 91. A. KALYAN SINGH v. PITAMBAR SINGH, 13 A. L. J. 94 687

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 158—Application to set aside award—Commencement of period of limitation—Material irregularity—Erroneous decision on point of law.

The period of limitation prescribed by Article 158, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act, 1908, for an application to set aside an award commences to run from the date of submission of the award to the Court, and not from the date of service of the notice.

To give an erroneous decision on a point of law is not necessarily to act illegally or with material irregularity. S. KALIANBARTHI v. ROCHANBAI, 8 S. L. R. 190 371

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 160—Application to re-admit petition for review—Extension of time—Illness of co-petitioner, whether sufficient ground—Absence of co-petitioners and their Pleader.

The illness of one of the petitioners for restoration of a petition for review is no ground for extending the period provided by Article 160 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act, 1908, specially when the absence of the petitioner's Counsel and of the other co-petitioner is not explained. P. KALU v. SOWARIA, 16 P. W. R. 1915; 68 P. L. R. 1915 703

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 164—Application to set aside ex parte decree—Summons not served—Sufficient time—Defendant, rights and liabilities of.

A defendant who has been duly served cannot get an ex parte decree set aside unless he can show that he acted diligently and was prevented from appearing at the adjourned hearing, and he is barred by Article 164 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act, 1908, if he fails to make proper use of the 30 days following the decree. There is no justification for construing "duly served" in Article 164 as excluding a case where a summons was not served in sufficient time. S. KASARCHAND KESHAVJI v. LAKHAMSI RAISI, 8 S. L. R. 153 351

Limitation Act—(1908)—concld.

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 180—Sale in execution—Application for delivery of possession.

Where an auction-sale was confirmed before the Limitation Act of 1908 came into force but the application for possession of purchased property was made after the operation of the Act, it is governed by Article 180 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act of 1908 and is barred, if not brought within three years from the date when the sale became absolute. C. HUSSEIN BUX v. BEOHA 420

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 182, cls. (5) and (6)—Step-in-aid of execution—Decree-holder accompanying peon to identify judgment-debtor—Ex parte decree, effect of—Judgment-debtor, not having notice, right of.

The mere fact that one of the decree-holders went along with the serving peon to identify the judgment-debtors, is not itself a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of either clause (5) or clause (6) of Article 182 of the Limitation Act.

An ex parte decree passed by a Court is a good decree; but, if the decree is made in the absence of and without notice to the other party, that decree does not bind the other party or does not stand in his way of showing what were the true facts of the case.

Therefore, a judgment-debtor, not having any notice of an order of the Court admitting a previous application for execution as not time-barred, is entitled to show that the application was barred on that date. C. JUGOL KISHORE v. CHINTAMONEY, 18 C. W. N. 1288 225

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 182—Step-in-aid of execution—Application for execution of mortgage-decree wrongly returned as defective, not re-presented—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 238.

An application for execution of a mortgage-decree for sale, wrongly returned for want of a certificate under section 238 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, although not re-presented is a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of Article 182 of Schedule I of the Limitation Act. M. MOOTHA v. KANDAM VITTIL SANKUNNI NAIR 811

——— ——— ——— ——— art. 183 683

Lunacy Act (XXXV of 1858), inquiry under 459

Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886), s. 22—License to sell toddy, transfer of—Promissory note given in consideration, legality of.

A promissory note given in consideration of the transfer of a right to sell toddy prohibited under section 22 of the Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886) is unenforceable, as being for an illegal consideration. M. SADHU KONDAYYA v. KOSAGANI PEDASWAMY, (1915) M. W. N. 25 919

Madras Civil Courts Act (III of 1873), s. 24—Evidence—Affidavit sworn to in Munsif's Court—Affidavit sworn to before Head Clerk in absence of Nazir, admissibility of

An affidavit sworn to in the Court of a District Munsif is a declaration which a Court of Justice is bound to receive as evidence of the facts stated in it, and it has nonetheless this character because it was sworn to before the Head Clerk of the Madras Civil Courts Act—concld.

District Munsif's Court, who was performing the Deputy Nazir's duties during his absence under the District Munsif's order in accordance with section 24 of Act III of 1873. M. KOTAYYA PILLAI. In re, 16 CR. L. J 111 159

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), ss. 3, 8, 185—Private land, meaning of—Conversion of ryoti into private land—Degree of proof—Onus—Letting lands as kambattam, whether amounts to conversion—Landlord cultivating lands himself—Presumption

Per Wallis, C J—Section 8 of the Estates Land Act does not impose retrospectively an absolute prohibition of the conversion of ryoti into private land not to be found in the definition, or in the section specially dealing with evidence as to what is private land. It is necessary that an actual conversion should be proved by clear and satisfactory evidence.

Merely calling the lands kambattam and letting them on terms which negative occupancy rights, with a view to prevent the assertion of such rights, is not sufficient to convert them into private lands within the meaning of the definition.

The burden is on the zemindar to show that the suit lands come within the definition in section 3 as forming part of his domain or home-farm lands Though the fact that the lands have been let as kambattam, is evidence under section 185 that they are private lands and though the provisions of section 183 do not apply to Civil Courts, still the fact that the lands really were at some time domain or home-farm lands must be strictly proved Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J—The object of the Act is to prevent the conversion of ryoti into kambattam land. The definition section and section 8 clearly show that the Legislature demands the strictest proof of a land being kambattam.

The proviso to section 185 is not in the nature of an exception and raises the irrebuttable presumption in favour of a landlord who has by his own servants or by hired labour cultivated the land for 12 years preceding the Act that it should be regarded as his home-farm land. M. ZEMINDAR OF CHELLUPALLI v. RAJALAPATI SOMAYYA. 27 M. L J. 718, 16 M. L. T. 376; (1915) M W N. 1, 2 L W 17 77

——— ——— ——— ss. 4, 12—Custom not to pay rent for land remaining fallow—Term in patta that no rent is chargeable on lands allowed to lie fallow, whether improper—Tax on palmyras, when payable.

A tenant is bound to pay rent upon every portion of his holding, whether he cultivates it or not, but is subject to any custom which may be proved to exist in particular localities

Where, therefore, a custom not to charge any rent for the lands which are allowed to lie fallow by the tenants exists, a term in a patta to that effect is not improper.

Prima facie, a tenant who pays rent for a land should not be taxed twice over for trees standing on the land unless he derives special benefit from them

Therefore, a separate tree tax on palmyras should be levied only when they are tapped for toddy, and not when they merely put forth spathes. M. UDAYAL v. ARUNACHALA CHETTIAR, 2 L. W 145; (1915) M. W. N. 190 872

Madras Estates Land Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— ss. 6 (1), 8—Holding sold in rent auction—Ryot in possession on date Act came into force, whether still ryot—Kudivaram interest, right to, whether affected by s. 6—Landlord purchasing Kudivaram interest, right of.

A person in possession of ryoti land professing to hold it as a ryot on the date of the passing of the Madras Estates Land Act, gets a permanent right of occupancy.

Therefore, a ryot whose holding was sold away in a rent auction before the Madras Estates Land Act came into force but who continued in possession of such land at the commencement of the Act, obtained a permanent right of occupancy in the holding under section 6, clause (1), of the Act.

The rights to the kudivaram interest as between the rival claimants thereto (other than the landlord who is debarred by section 8 from claiming such interest) are not affected by section 6, clause (1). M. SIVAPADA MUDALI v. PITTY THAYAGARAJA, 27 M. L J. 665 383

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 8 77, 383

——— ——— ——— ——— s. 12 872

——— ——— ——— s. 13 (3), scope of—"Contract to the contrary" in s. 13, cl. (3), meaning of—Interpretation of Statute—Act, whether retrospective—Improvement by tenant—Payment of higher rent, when enforced—Contract before Act, effect of—Sadelwar and Madiri Kasuvu, whether illegal cess.

Per Kumaraswami Sastri, J—The words "contract to the contrary" in section 13, clause (3), of the Madras Estates Land Act refer only to contracts made after the passing of the Act and the section has no retrospective operation in cases where rent claimed was payable under a contract which would have been legally enforceable under the Rent Recovery Act or any other law in force at the time of the passing of the Estates Land Act

Per Kumaraswami Sastri and Napier, JJ.—Section 3, clause (3), of the Madras Estates Land Act does not enable a tenant to claim exemption from liability to pay a higher rate of rent for crops raised with the help of improvements made at his sole expense, where the improvements had been effected before the Act came into force and where there had been a contract entered into between him and the landlord before the passing of the Act for the payment of such enhanced rent.

An Act is always prospective in its operation, and to make it retrospective stronger words than those found in section 13, clause (3), of the Estates Land Act are necessary.

Sadasiva Aiyar, J, (dissenting)—Clauses (1) and (2) of section 13 of Act I of 1908 merely declare the existing law and do not create new rights, and there is no reason to hold that section 13, clause (3), is intended to apply only to prospective improvements made by the tenant

A landlord is not entitled to increase the annual assessment by the addition of a second crop assessment.

Sadelwar and Madiri Kasuvu are part of rent and not illegal cesses.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ—In the case where the payment of higher rate of rent for crops raised with improvements effected by tenants has gone on for over 60 years, consideration for agreement to pay at the higher rate should be presumed. M. VENKATA PERUMAL v. RAMUDU 688

Madras Estates Land Act—concld.

——— ——— ——— s. 13, cl. 3, if retrospective—Enhanced rent, contract to pay, if presumable from 40 years' payment—Wells dug at tenant's expense—Site of wells given free of rent by landlord—Consideration—Enhanced rent, if claimable.

Section 13, clause (3), of the Madras Estates Land Act I of 1908, has no retrospective operation.

A valid contract to pay rent at enhanced rate can be presumed from payments at that rate for 40 years.

Where a landlord set apart a considerable area of land for the digging of wells for irrigating the lands in respect of which enhanced rates are claimed and charged no rent for the area so set apart, he must be deemed to have contributed to the cost of the wells dug by tenants on that area, though at their expense, and such contribution is sufficient consideration for a contract to pay rent at enhanced rate. M. GOVIND DOSS v. GURRAM CHINNAPPA NAIDU, 2 L. W. 142, 28 M. L. J. 136 869

——— ——— ——— s. 73 937

——— ——— ——— ss. 112, 113, 189—Sale under the Act—Suit to contest sale—Jurisdiction—Civil suit barred both before and after sale

Section 189 of the Madras Estates Land Act precludes a Civil Court from taking cognizance of a suit for declaration that no valid sale can be effected and therefore a party is not entitled to contest in a civil suit, the validity of a sale under the said Act, and it makes no difference whether the suit is brought before or after the sale. M. RAMANATHAN CHETTY v. RAMASAMI CHETTY 409

——— ——— ——— s. 185 77

——— ——— ——— s. 185—Private land—Determination—Onus—Evidence.

Section 185 of the Madras Estates Land Act enacts rules to determine whether any particular land is private land. The presumption is that it is not and in determining the question the Court is to have regard to the local custom and to the question whether the land was before the 1st day of July 1898 specifically let as private land, and to any other evidence that may be produced. Letting as private land after 1st July 1898 is not to be taken into account. M. CHINTAM REDDI SANYASI v. RAJASAGI APPALA NARASIMHA RAJA GARU, (1914) M. W. N. 497 50

——— ——— ——— s. 189 409

——— ——— ——— s. 189—Ryoti land—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Equitable estoppel, whether creates jurisdiction.

Where the jurisdiction of a Civil Court is barred by section 189 of the Madras Estates Land Act, the fact that the defendant is equitably estopped from raising such an objection cannot give jurisdiction. M. G. NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU, In re 11

Madras General Clauses Act (I of 1891), s. 18 937

Madras Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act (I of 1914), retrospective effect of 298

Madras Local Boards Act (V of 1884), s. 51—Trust, powers as to, transferred from Board of Revenue—Suit for recovery of trust property, when maintainable by local body.

The local body to which the powers of the Board of Revenue are transferred under section 51 of the Madras Local Boards Act, 1884, is invested with the rights of management as well as superintendence of a trust property and is entitled, where there is no trustee, to sue for the recovery of trust property. M. BHIMAYARAPU BUCHI REDDI v. PREDT., T. B, GUNTUR, 27 M. L. J. 284 1001

——— ——— ——— s. 73—Mortgagee with possession, whether an intermediate landholder—Tenant's right to pay cess to him.

A mortgagee with possession is as much a landholder as any lessee and is intermediate between the ultimate landlord and his tenants within the meaning of section 73 of the Local Boards Act, and the tenants' right to pay him, recognised in that section, cannot be abrogated by a contract to which they were not parties.

Section 73 in its amended form confers on the tenant a right to pay the cess to the intermediate landholder, irrespective of the question whether the intermediate landholder is bound to reimburse the landlord or not.

Per Tyabji, J—The question whether if the mortgagee became entitled to collect half of the cess in his capacity as intermediate landholder he was at liberty to retain it himself or was bound to pay it or account for it to the mortgagor, is not relevant to the rights and liabilities existing between the landholder and the tenant.

The notion of transfer of property is not an ingredient in the notion of an intermediate landholder whose right to collect the cess from the tenant is not dependent on his paying to his landlord, that might form the subject of an express or implied contract. M. PUCHAKAYALA JAGANNAIKULU v. MANAGER OF NANDIGAM ESTATE, (1914) M. W. N. 939, 28 M. L. J. 154 122

Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act (II of 1894), s. 18—Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865), s. 37—Kattubadi amounts, rate of interest payable on arrears of, whether 6 per cent. or 12 per cent—Interpretation of Statute—One Act repealed and another enacted—Applicability of provisions of old and new Acts—Madras General Clauses Act (I of 1891), s. 18—Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 61—Custom, if can be proved by a single witness—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 73, applicability of.

The rate of interest payable on arrears of kattubadi amounts is only 6 per cent. and not 12 per cent.

Section 18 of Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act, II of 1894, only extends the procedure enacted in section 37 of the Madras Act VIII of 1865 (Rent Recovery Act) to proceedings for the recovery of arrears of kattubadi. The substantial provision declaring the rate of interest claimable on arrears of rent has not been extended to arrears of kattubadi.

In construing section 18 of Madras Act II of 1894, in respect of arrears of kattubadi which fell due after the repeal of Madras Act VIII of 1865, reference must, under section 18 of Madras General Clauses Act, I of 1891, be made to the corresponding provision of the Madras Estates Land Act, I of 1908, viz., section 61.

Madras Proprietary Estates Village Service Act—concld.

A recognised and enforceable custom cannot be proved by the evidence of a single witness as to the practice.

Quære:—Whether section 73 of the Indian Contract Act applied to the case? M. NARAYANASWAMI NAIDU v. BALIJEPALLI SUNDARARAMIAH, 2 L. W. 194 937

Madras Rent Recovery Act (VIII of 1865), s. 37 937

Madras Revenue Recovery Act (II of 1864), s. 59 274

Maintenance. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 488; DIVORCE ACT, s. 37.

———. See HINDU LAW 379

——— allowance, whether charge—Intention of parties 283

Majority Act (IX of 1875), s. 3 553

Malabar Law—Anubhavam tenure—Alienation to stranger, effect of.

Alienation by an anubhavam tenant to a stranger puts an end to the tenure, and the land reverts to the grantor, even without an express clause in the grant providing for a re-entry. M. UKKANDATH v. PULIYAKOT KUNHI KUTTAN 10

——— ——— Landlord and tenant—Kudima tenure—Ejectment, right of, when arises—Failure to perform services—Forfeiture—Denial of landlord's title, whether sufficient 863

——— ——— Melcharath executed prior to expiry of kanom, validity of—Family necessity—Successor, whether bound.

A melcharath executed without family necessity before the expiry of a prior kanom in respect of the same property is not binding on the successor of the karnavan whether the karnavan did or did not survive the expiry of the prior kanom. M. CHAMBOKIL MOIDIN KUTTI v. ACHUTANDAL KUNHI KOYAN MUTH, 27 M. L. J. 691 1007

——— ——— ———Redemption of kanom *mortgage, suit for—Previous suit against mortgagor and mortgagee deciding title to property—Res judicata—Estoppel—Covenant for title, breach of—Damages, measure of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s 72 (c)—Expenses incurred in supporting title of mortgagor, reimbursement for—Compensation for trees of spontaneous growth—Malabar Tenants Improvements Act (I of 1900), ss. 5 (11), 10.*

Where in a suit for redemption of a kanom mortgage by a janmi who had paid off a previous mortgagee with compensation for improvements, it appeared that the title to the property had been decided against the plaintiff in a previous suit brought in the District Munsif's Court by a third party against himself and the mortgagor:

Held, (1) that the matter was res judicata though the former suit was brought in a Court which had no jurisdiction over the present suit;

(2) that even if it was not res judicata the defendant and the plaintiff in the present suit having been parties to the former suit, the plaintiff was equitably estopped by reason of the finding in the previous suit from raising the contention that the properties disputed in that suit belonged to him,

(3) that as the plaintiff included the disputed lands in his demise to the defendant, he must be deemed to have given a covenant for title,

(4) that the defendant's statutory right given by the breach of covenant could not be taken away except by an express release of such rights by him or by acquiescence of such a very long duration that a release could be safely presumed;

(5) that no question of limitation arises as between the mortgagors and mortgagees when accounts are taken at the time of redemption,

(6) that the damages which the defendant sustained by being unable to get possession of those lands should be calculated on the basis of the present pattom income minus a reasonable interest on the sum which he would have had to pay for the improvements;

(7) that the defendant could not claim any reimbursement for expenses incurred in supporting the title of the mortgagor, as it is only "in the absence of a contract to the contrary" that such a claim can be successfully brought;

(8) that the defendant was entitled to compensation for improvements under sections 5 (11) and 10 of the Malabar Tenants Improvements Act. The compensation due to the defendant's predecessor in the kanom right now vested in and was claimable by him irrespective of the fact that under the old law no compensation was payable for trees of spontaneous growth and the defendant was not obliged to pay anything to the prior kanomdars for those trees M. THEKKEMANNENGATH RAMAN v. KAKKESSERI PAZHIYOT MANAKKAL, 28 M. L. J. 184, 2 L. W. 438 989

Malabar Tenants Improvements Act (I of 1900), ss. 5 (11), 10 989

Malicious prosecution—Plaintiff accused of theft of electricity and acquitted—Dishonest conduct—Suit for damages—Liability of defendant, when arises—Malice in law—"Mains," use of, effect of—"Dishonestly" in s 39, Electricity Act, meaning of—Electricity Act (III of 1903), s. 39—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 370.

The plaintiff made certain alterations in the electric wires on his estate, which had the result of conducting the current directly from wires conveying the current supplied by the Municipality without passing through the meter supplied for the purpose of measuring the amount of energy consumed on his estate. The Chairman of the Municipality charged him for theft of electricity under section 39 (5) of the Electricity Act, but he was acquitted of all charges. He then sued the Chairman of the Municipality for damages for malicious prosecution.

Held, that the plaintiff may have been honestly mistaken in his views of law, but he cannot as a reasonable man have been ignorant of the fact that his alteration of the wires would cause wrongful loss to the Municipality and that on the principle that a man's intention should be held to be the reasonable and probable consequence of his acts, his conduct was dishonest within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Malicious prosecution—contd.

Held, further, that as the defendant had reasonable and probable cause for directing the prosecution of the plaintiff, there was no malice in law in his conduct and he was not liable for damages.

The use of the word "mains" for the words "any electric supply-line through which energy is supplied by the licensees" in section 39 of the Electricity Act in a notice issued by a Municipality Engineer to an accused, would operate as an admission against the Municipality and would be a good defence to a criminal charge under section 379, Indian Penal Code.

Where the word "mains" is qualified by such words as "outside your metre," the accused gets full notice that he must not take current except through the metre.

The word "dishonestly" as used in section 39 of the Electricity Act is a legal expression having the same sense as that in which it is used in the Penal Code. C. CARL FORSTMANN v. H. T S FORREST 591 ——— Prosecutor, whether defendant must be proved to be—Mental distress—Bodily discomfort—Damages.

In order to succeed in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that the defendant was in fact his prosecutor in the proceedings before the Criminal Court.

The plaintiff was proceeding from the Jaunpur Railway Station to his home when the defendant ran up from behind and arrested him The plaintiff was eventually put upon his trial on a charge of theft but was acquitted On plaintiff's suit for damages for malicious prosecution

Held, that in taking upon himself to arrest the plaintiff, the defendant took upon himself a responsibility far greater than he would have done if he had merely made a report or complaint alleging the commission of an offence of theft before an authority competent to take action in the matter;

(2) that the prosecution of the plaintiff before the Criminal Court was substantially the work of the defendant and that he was, therefore, liable for damages, and

(3) that the plaintiff was entitled to claim damages for his mental distress and bodily discomfort resulting from his arrest and detention in the lock-up. A. BALDEO SHUKUL v. BALBHADAR SINGH 410

——— ——— suit for—"Prosecution" and "prosecutor," meaning of—Proceeding for furnishing security maliciously taken, ground for suit for damages—Person setting machinery of criminal law in motion, liability of—Prosecution, when commences.

The term 'prosecution' should not be interpreted in the restricted sense in which it is used in the Code of Criminal Procedure. Therefore, a proceeding maliciously taken against a person to compel him to furnish surety to keep the peace may be made the foundation of a suit for damages for malicious prosecution.

If a person maliciously and without reasonable and probable cause sets the machinery of the criminal law in motion, he is responsible for the consequences, and cannot escape liability on the ground that the action by the Court was such as he did not intend or was erroneous in law.

Malicious prosecution—concld.

The point of commencement of a prosecution is independent of the result of the prosecution. The prosecution commences when a complaint is made to a Magistrate.

A prosecution exists where a criminal charge is made before a Judicial Officer or Tribunal, and any person who makes or is actively instrumental in the making or prosecuting of such a charge, is deemed to prosecute it and is called a prosecutor. C. BISHUN PERGASH NARAIN SINGH v. FULMAN SINGH, 20 C. L. J. 518 449

Manager. See HINDU LAW.

Material irregularity—Erroneous decision on point of law 371

Merger—Putni, purchaser of—New tenancy, creation of—Transferee, right of—Bengal Rent Act (X of 1859)—Khudkasht rights, nature of, before and after the passing of Act X of 1859 928

Mesne profits—Decree declaring liability of defendants, inoperative until extent and quality of liability determined—Amendment of decree once refused bars subsequent applications—Change of circumstances after decree—Remedy of decree-holder.

A decree declaring in general terms the liability of the defendants to pay mesne profits does not become operative till after the amount has been ascertained by the Court and the Court-fee prescribed by section 11 of the Court Fees Act has been paid by the decree-holder

A decree to be operative must define the extent and quality of the liability of the defendants for mesne profits.

When an application for the amendment of a decree has once been refused on the merits, the decision is conclusive between the parties.

Where the amendment of a decree is required on the ground of subsequent change of circumstances, the decree-holders are not entitled to have it amended by an application to the Court which passed it, but may have their remedy in a suit appropriately framed to set aside the decree. C. JITENDRA NATH ROY v. RASIK LAL SEN 300 ——— ——— ———, decree for, when passed 788

Mining lease—Grant—Maintenance grant for life without any provision as to opening mines—Grantee, whether has power to grant mining lease—Construction of lease—Conduct of parties—Mine, when open—Intention—Damages, measure of.

Where a deed of grant is one for maintenance for life of the grantee and does not contain any express provision which authorises the grantee to open new mines and use the minerals thereof, the grantee has no right to grant a mining lease for the purpose of opening and working new mines.

Only in the case of ancient grants whose terms are ambiguous, reliance may be placed on the conduct of the parties to ascertain the intention of the grantor

"Whether a mine is open or not," is a question of intention. A mine is said to be open when it has been devoted, by the person lawfully entitled to do so, to the purpose of making a profit by the working and sale of the minerals therein

The measure of damages is the value of the minerals wrongfully abstracted as at the date of Mining lease—concld.

abstraction minus the expenditure of converting them into chattel and of carrying them to the pit's mouth. C. CHRISTIAN v. TEKAITNI NARBADA KOERI, 20 C. L. J. 527; 19 C. W. N. 796 471

Minor, assignee from, position of 118

——— Conveyance in favour of minor, validity of —Contract and conveyance, distinction between—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 127—Gift in favour of minor, validity of—Rulings, construction of 733

——— Ex parte decree against minor—Minor not properly represented—Irregularity—Minor, right of, to get decree set aside—Officer of Court appointed as guardian ad litem—Expenses, provision for 623

——— guardian ad litem of, appointment of—Appointment without consent of person appointed, validity of—Mortgage decree, sale under—Reversal of decree—Stranger purchaser, effect on—Party purchaser, liability of—Cessante ratione legis, cessat otipsa lex, applicability of—Reversal of sale—Party, who is a necessary—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 4—Decree, form of, whether can be modified—Inherent power.

A Court is not competent to appoint a person without his express consent as a guardian ad litem of a minor.

Where, therefore, a guardian ad litem is appointed without his express consent, the minor is not properly represented before the Court and is in no way bound by a decree passed against him and a sale held under such a decree does not pass the right, title and interest of the minor in the property sold.

A stranger purchaser of property in execution of a decree is not affected by the subsequent cancellation of the sale on reversal of the decree, as he cannot be expected to go behind the judgment to inquire into irregularities in the suit; it is sufficient for him to know that the Court had jurisdiction and exercised it and that the order, on the faith of which he purchased, was made and did authorize the sale. But this does not apply when the purchaser is himself a party and has notice, or at least opportunity of knowledge, of all the proceedings therein, on the principle of cessante ratione legis, cessat otipsa lex.

It is essential for the reversal of a sale that the person whose property has been sold must be a party to the proceeding.

Order XXXIV, rule 4, of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908, contemplates a sale of the mortgaged properties but where a sale of the mortgaged properties be impossible, as where the mortgaged properties have been sold for arrears of revenue or of rent or in execution of some decree, the decree must be suitably modified and a Court is competent, in the exercise of its inherent powers, to give appropriate directions for the disposal of the fund which represents the property. C. KRISHNA CHANDRA v. JOGENDRA NARAIN, 20 C. L. J. 499 138

——— Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 48—Extension of period of limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 6, applicability of 865

——— Mortgage by guardian—Legal necessity—Alience of minor's rights in property entitled to challenge the mortgage.

Minor—concld.

An alienee who has acquired the rights of a minor in property is entitled to challenge a mortgage granted by the guardian of the said minor, and make the mortgagee establish legal necessity for the loan, or to show the same was for the minor's benefit. N. DALCHAND v. CHAND KHAN, 11 N. L. R. 1 859

——— Mortgage suit—Guardian ad litem of infant defendants not appointed—Decree—Sale in execution—Decree-holder purchaser, whether acquires infant's title—Father representing interest of infant son, unknown to mortgagee.

A decree-holder, purchaser of a property brought to sale in execution of a mortgage decree, does not acquire the right, title and interest in the property of an infant for whom no guardian ad litem has been appointed in the suit.

In a mortgage suit the interest of an infant of whose existence the mortgagee had no knowledge, is represented by his father and passes to the purchaser at an auction-sale. C. HALLI JHA v. LAL SINGH, 425

——— Mutation proceeding—Compromise by mother on behalf of minor sons—Suit by minor for setting aside compromise—Leave of Court not obtained 97

——— Position of, as trustee 389

——— , whether can be share-holder—Receipt of dividends—Estoppel by conduct—Estoppel—Registered holder of Company's share, rights and liabilities of 335

——— suing to recover certain property as his by survivorship despite a Will of his father—Suit, abatement of—Death of minor—Legal representative, right of, to continue suit 396

Mohunt—Document appointing successor to gaddi, whether Will—Property held in capacity of mohunt —Letters of Administration—Probate—Question of title.

Letters of Administration cannot be granted in respect of properties held by a person in his capacity of mohunt

Where a mohunt executed a document purporting to appoint a successor to the gaddi and making over to him as mohunt all the properties of the asthal and the right of performing the debshaba:

Held, that the document was not a Will and therefore its probate could not be granted.

Obiter.—On a bona fide application for Probate or Letters of Administration the Court will not go into questions of title, with reference to the property of which the deceased purported to dispose or in respect of which he died intestate. C. MADHUSUDAN DAS v. JAGADINDRA NATH ROY, 20 C. L. J. 307 24

Mortgage See BUDDHIST LAW; REDEMPTION.

——— Alienation of a religious office, when permissible—Essentials of a valid custom—Immemorial existence of custom—Presumption—Reasonableness of custom—Inconsistency with general law—Mortgagor setting up title of third person 400

——— ——— by administrators erroneously appointed by competent Court, if operative and binding on estate—Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) s. 90—Interest, high rate of—Powers of Court—Interest not specified in petition for sanction of mortgage.

Mortgage—contd.

All acts done by an executor or an administrator in the due and legal course of administration are valid and binding, even though the letters issued by the Court are afterwards revoked or the incumbent discharged from his trust

A mortgage granted by the administrators, though erroneously appointed as such with the sanction of the District Judge, to satisfy a debt of the estate which the executor himself was compellable to pay, is operative and binding on the estate.

Where in an application by an administrator to the District Judge for sanction to mortgage a property the principal amount required was mentioned, but no mention was made about interest and when the deed was executed, the administrator covenanted to pay compound interest at 30 per cent per annum:

Held, that the claim for payment of interest at such a high rate was unreasonable.

Section 90 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881) authorizes an administrator to grant a mortgage of the immovable property vested in him only with the previous sanction of the Probate Court, and this implies a sanction by the Court of all the essential elements of the mortgage transaction. C. SAILAJA PROSAD v. JADU NATH BOSE, 19 C. W. N. 240; 21 C L. J. 88 715

——— ———Benamidar, whether can sue—Presumption—Mortgagor, whether can object to such institution.

A suit instituted by a benamidar should be presumed, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, to have been instituted with the full authority of the beneficial owner, and any decision made in such a suit is as much binding upon the real owner as if the suit had been brought by the real owner himself.

A mortgagor, who received money from the beneficial owner but chose to contract with the benamidar, cannot object to the institution of the suit on the mortgage by the benamidar nor can his sons when bound by the mortgage-bond raise any such plea. C. KIRTIBASH DAS v. GOPALJEE THAKUR, 18 C. W. N. 814 136

——— ——— Co-mortgagors—Purchaser of portion of mortgaged property, position of—One co-mortgagor redeeming whole mortgage, right of—Contribution—Charge.

When one of several mortgagors redeems the whole mortgage, he acquires a charge on the share of each of his co-mortgagors for his proportion of the expenses properly incurred in the redemption of the property

The purchaser of a portion of a mortgaged property is in the same position as one of the co-mortgagors and if he redeems the property, he is entitled to a charge for such sum as the owner of the rest may be called upon to contribute.

A decree obtained on a mortgage does not extinguish the security, though the security may be merged in the decree, and the judgment recovered in any form of action is still but a security for the original cause of action until it be made productive in satisfaction to the judgment-creditor,

Mortgage—contd.

The right to claim contribution is the same, whether the mortgage is redeemed in the usual way or whether the debt is realized by a forced sale of the property of one of several owners of the equity of redemption. C. DILKESWAR PROSAD SINGH v. HARIHAR PROSAD NARAINSINGH, 21 C. L. J. 104 780

——— ———, conditional sale—Foreclosure suit—Decree nisi—Time from when begins—Six months allowed for redemption—Decree absolute—Decree-holder put in possession—Restitution—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 86—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 2—Judicial orders, construction of.

A decree nisi in a foreclosure suit on the basis of a conditional mortgage may either direct an account to be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff or declare the amount due. Where the Court orders that an account be taken of what would be due to the plaintiff, the day to be fixed by the Court under section 86 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) rule 2, Order XXXIV, of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act V of 1908) is to be within six months not from the date of the order nisi, but from the date of declaring in Court the amount due.

In construing judicial orders, wherever practicable, they should be so interpreted as to be consistent with and not in contravention of law.

Where a decree-holder has obtained possession of the mortgaged property through Court on the basis of the decree absolute which was erroneously made, he is bound to make restitution to the mortgagor. C. KARTIK CHANDRA SARKAR v. HARA GOBIND GHOSH, 21 C. L J. 75 813

——— ——— Conditional sale—No independent covenant for payment of interest—Post diem interest allowed

Where a mortgage-deed contained a stipulation to the effect that in case of failure of payment of the principal and interest in 17 months, the deed would take effect as a sale out and out from the date of the expiry of the above-mentioned period and the terms of the deed did not show that the covenant for payment of interest was an independent one, on a suit for possession by redemption:

Held, (1) that interest should not be allowed to the mortgagee for the full period from the date of the mortgage up to the date of the suit, there being no independent covenant for the payment of interest after the period fixed for redemption;

(2) that the stipulated rate of interest could not be allowed for the period for which post diem interest at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum had been granted by the lower Appellate Court. P. KISHNA MAL v. MUHAMMAD BAKHSH, 52 P L. R. 1915 616

——— ——— Contemporaneous documents—Sale and agreement to re-convey—Intention to create mortgage.

Where parties execute two documents within an interval of a few days of each other, one purporting to be a sale and another an agreement to re-convey, the intention is rather to create a mortgage than a sale. M. MUTHUKARUPA PILLAI v. MARUDACHALAM CHETTI 436

Mortgage—contd.

——— Contract brought about by fraud—Concealment of prior mortgage—Rescission of contract—Contract Act (IX of 1872), ss. 19, 65—Obligation of mortgagee to return mortgage money.

A contract of mortgage brought about by concealing fraudulently from the mortgagee the existence of a prior mortgage is voidable at the option of the mortgagee.

Where a mortgagor sues for the cancellation of a mortgage document he must pay over to the mortgagee the amount paid by the latter under the contract of mortgage. M. KIZHAKOT PARATHAT MARIKAMMA v. NANDANASSERI ILLATH GANAPATHI MUSSAD 130

——— — Foreclosure suit—Preliminary decree—Mortgagor failing to redeem—Mortgagee failing to obtain decree absolute—Fresh suit for redemption—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 11, 47.

If a mortgagee does not apply in a foreclosure suit for a decree absolute, he does not get rid of the relationship of mortgagor and mortgagee.

Therefore, in such a case a mortgagor or his representative who was allowed in the suit six months' time to pay the decretal amount, is not barred by reason of section 47, Civil Procedure Code, from filing a fresh suit for redemption, nor is his suit barred by section 11 of the Code; but he cannot go behind the decree in the mortgagee's suit in so far as it settles the amount of the mortgage-debt up to the date of that decree.

Obiter dictum.—A dismissal for want of prosecution of a mortgagor's action for redemption does not prevent the mortgagor from bringing a fresh suit for redemption. B. RAMA TULSA MAHAR v. BHAGCHAND MOTIRAM, 16 BOM. L. R. 687, 39 B. 41 249

——— by guardian - Minor—Legal necessity—Alienee of minor's rights in property entitled to challenge the mortgage 859

——— —Limitation—Preliminary mortgage decree—Application for sale of mortgaged property—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 88, 89—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 183 683

——— — Malikana rights—Agreement not to reclaim property till satisfaction, effect of—Hypothecation—Mortgagee, right of, to a decree for sale.

Where a superior proprietor mortgages with possession his malikana rights of a village in lieu of a money-debt, and covenants not to claim the mortgaged property till satisfaction of the debt, the agreement amounts to a hypothecation of the property and the mortgagee is entitled to a decree for sale of his proprietary rights. N. RAM GULAM v. BALA PRASAD, 10 N. L. R. 185 493

——— —Mortgagee in possession—Mortgage to terminate ipso facto on a certain date—Mutation of redemption—Suit for possession by mortgagee—Condition making mortgagor liable for rent due from village tenants, meaning of.

A mortgage-deed executed on the 25th February 1895, contained an express stipulation to the effect that the mortgagees should remain in possession up to the 15th July 1907, on which date the mortgage was to determine, without the payment of any further sum, and that the mortgagors should be liable for any amount of rent left due to the mortgagees from the village tenants. In 1908 the Revenue Tahsildar at the instance of the mortgagors ordered a mutation of redemption. On the 7th June 1909, the plaintiffs-mortgagees instituted a suit for possession of the mortgaged area, on the allegation that no redemption could be made until the sum due by the mortgagors on account of arrears of rent had been made good to them.

Held, (1) that the mortgage-deed did not contemplate that rent due from the mortgagors as tenants should be secured upon the mortgaged property and that as a large portion of the sum claimed by the plaintiffs was made up of rent alleged to be due not by the village tenants, but by the mortgagors themselves in their capacity of tenants of the mortgagees, the plaintiffs could not get a decree for possession on the strength of the stipulation in the mortgage-deed;

(2) that the accounts put in by the plaintiffs had not been proved and the suit must, therefore, be dismissed. P. Muhammad RUKIA v. DUNGAR MAL, 56 P. L. R. 1915 710

Mortgage—contd.

——— ———Mortgagor and mortgagee, right and liability of—Mortgagor, right of, to enhance rent of tenant—Reduction of mortgage-debt—Suit for declaration and injunction, maintainability of 697

——— — Prior mortgagee, ex parte decree on subsequent mortgage against—Interest of prior mortgagee, whether can be declared subsequently—Application to prevent execution by such prior mortgagee, whether under s. 47 164

——— ———Prior mortgagee of property sold at auction—Right to set aside sale 831

——— ———, prior and subsequent—Prior mortgagee's suit decreed—Mortgaged property sold in execution and purchased in part by prior mortgagee—Subsequent mortgagee, suit by - Redemption, piecemeal and partial.

The prior mortgagee, without impleading the subsequent mortgagee, brought a suit and got a decree for sale of the properties mortgaged to him, viz. A, B and C. In execution some properties were purchased by the prior mortgagee himself and some by another auction-purchaser. Thereafter the subsequent mortgagee brought a suit for sale of the properties included in his mortgage, viz., B, C and D, making the prior mortgagee a party to his suit:

Held, that the subsequent mortgagee was entitled to a decree for sale of the properties B, C and D, conditionally on his at first redeeming B and C by paying off the proportionate amounts due on each of them on account of the prior mortgage as calculated by the respective values of B and C. O. SURAJ KISHAN v. AJUDHIA PRASAD SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 73 960

——— ——— Properties mortgaged—Ownership of mortgagor—Suit between mortgagee and third party—Burden of proof 478

——— ——— Razinama by mortgagor and complementary kabuliat by mortgagee—Equity of redemption, transfer of.

A razinama executed by a mortgagor in favour of his mortgagee relinquishing occupancy rights in the mortgaged land and the complementary kabuliat

Mortgage—contd.

given by the mortgagee operate to transfer the equity of redemption from the mortgagor to the mortgagee. B. DAGON v. SAKHARAM, 16 BOM. L. R 719 note 594 ——Razinama by mortgagor and complementary kabuliat by mortgagee—Transfer of equity of redemption.

A razinama executed by a mortgagor in favour of his mortgagee relinquishing occupancy-rights in the mortgaged land and a complementary kabuliat given by the mortgagee operate to transfer the equity of redemption from the mortgagor to the mortgagee. B. VENKAJI NARAYAN KULKARNI v. GOPAL RAMCHANDRA, 16 BOM. L. R. 718, 39 B. 55 613

——, recovery of balance due on, separate decree for—Preliminary decree 72

——— Redemption of mortgage without payment of deeds of further charge—Deeds of further charge, payment of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 60, 62.

Section 62 of the Transfer of Property Act is a special section supplementary to the general provisions of section 60. It provides a summary remedy which is available to a mortgagor in two special cases of usufructuary mortgage: (a) where the mortgagee is authorised to pay himself the mortgage-money from the rents and profits of the mortgaged property, (b) where the mortgagee is authorised to pay himself from such rents and profits the interest of the principal money It cannot apply to cases where from the conditions contained in the mortgage, accounts have to be made up between the parties.

It contemplates the existence of only one transaction and does not at all touch the case where a usufructuary mortgage having been executed, other mortgages by way of further charge have been executed by the same mortgagor. O. ZAHID ALI v. KEDAR NATH. 17 O C. 388 427 ——— Sale of portion of mortgaged property—Subsequent sale of remainder to mortgagee—Suit to recover balance of mortgage-money—Right to redeem entire mortgage.

Where out of a house-site and a field mortgaged to the plaintiff the house-site was sold to the defendants who thereby acquired a right to redeem the whole property and the plaintiff subsequently purchased the field and set off the purchase-money pro tanto against the mortgage-debt, and sued to recover the balance by sale of the house-site:

Held, that as the sale to the plaintiff was subsequent to the acquisition of the house-site by the defendants and was without their privity or consent, they had not been deprived of their right of redemption which had been in existence since they purchased the house-site. B. MAHMADALI KAMRUDDIN v. ABDULALI KARIMBHAI, 16 BOM L. R 645 38

——— Several mortgages upon same property—Necessary parties to suit - Two mortgages in favour of same person—Suit on later mortgage—Subsequent suit on former mortgage, whether maintainable 1005 ——— Simple mortgage—Court's power to enlarge time of paying mortgage amount—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s 148, O. XXXIV, rr. 7 (1) (d), 8 (2) 708

Mortgage—contd.

——— Simple mortgage converted into usufructuary mortgage by subsequent arrangement—Mortgagee put in possession—Registration—Mortgagee, right of, to sue on original mortgage 430

——— Sir—Mortgage before 1st January 1902, effect of, upon sir—Sir, when ceases to be so—Ex-proprietary rights, how surrendered and extinguished—Abandonment, actual—Limitation for claim of ex-proprietary rights—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 7A 586

——Suit for interest on bond executed after mortgage—Consideration—Abstention from suit—Suit to defeat provisions of any law 579 ——— Suit for redemption—What should mortgagor prove—Adverse possession, what amounts to—Issue, whether properly remitted.

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage if the mortgagor proves that there is a subsisting mortgage affecting the property claimed by the other party as his and that the equity of redemption is vested in him (the mortgagor) he is entitled to a decree, but if he fails to prove a subsisting mortgage covering the property, he cannot succeed.

It is not necessary for the person who claims the property as his to prove that he or the person through whom he claims were in possession for 12 years.

A mortgagor must prove that he has been in legal possession of the property mortgaged within 12 years of the institution of the suit.

A man can be in legal possession either through his tenant, care-taker or mortgagee.

Per Richards, J.—(Banerji, J., dissenting).—

Where the lower Appellate Court has found in a redemption case that the mortgage is not proved, a Judge of the High Court is not entitled to remit an issue to inquire whether the mortgagor has been in possession either personally or through others within 12 years.

Per Banerji, J.—If the ownership of the property was vested in the mortgagor and not in the party claiming adversely, the mortgagors are entitled to recover possession unless they have lost their title by reason of the adverse possession of some one for a period exceeding 12 years.

Possession to be adverse must be by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them There must be an express or implied repudiation of the rights of the true owner and an open assertion by the person in possession of a claim of rights to hold the property on his own behalf. Unless possession is coupled with an express or implied claim of right inconsistent with the title of the lawful owner, it cannot be regarded as adverse to the true owner A. ASAD ALI v. ANAND SARUP. 12 A L. J. 1283 35

——, usufructuary—Mortgagee's right to sell—Covenant to pay money, whether promise to pay on conditional statement—Terms in covenant, interpretation of—Presumption

In an usufructuary mortgage the mortgagee has no right to recover the money by the sale of the mortgaged property unless there is a covenant to pay the money.

Where a mortgage-deed provided "When I or my heirs and representatives shall pay off in cash and in one lump Rs. 250, the amount covered by this surpeshgi deed, on the 30th of Magh 1311 F. S. or on the 30th of Magh of any other year after the expiration of the deed, to the said surpeshgidar or his heirs and representatives, I shall take back this deed and enter upon possession of the lease-hold property, and I or my heirs shall not apply for redemption of the mortgages without paying off the peshgi money In security of the peshgi money I mortgaged and hypothecated the said lease-hold property."

Mortgage—concld.

Held, that there was no covenant to pay the money and the mortgagee could not give up possession and sue for sale of the property. C. BASAWAN SINGH v. MAHAMAD FARIZ 800

———————deed—Provision extinguishing right of redemption if right not exercised within two years, effect of

A mortgage-deed provided that if the mortgagor failed to redeem within two years, the mortgagees had a right to treat the transaction as a sale, and further that if they did not wish so to treat it, they could call upon the mortgagor to redeem at once and that the mortgagor was bound to do so, but if he were unable to do so, the right of redemption would be extended indefinitely.

Held, that as soon as the two years had elapsed without the mortgagor exercising her right of redemption, that which was a mortgage in its inception became an absolute sale from the beginning, finally closing the transaction between the parties as in the case of an ordinary mortgage by conditional sale. L. B. MA NGWE v MA THA HLAY 868

———————, suit on—Covenant to pay—Personal decree, right of—Application for personal decree—Limitation

Where in a document there is a covenant to pay a debt on a particular date, although followed by a direction that in default of payment the sum may be recovered from the hypothecated property, the mortgagee is nevertheless entitled to a personal decree.

An application for a personal decree can be made even after six years from the date of bond, provided the suit is filed within six years from the date of the bond M. ARSALWAR PERIA TIRUVADI AIYENGAR v. MUTHAMMAL JANAKI, 2 L. W. 66 770

Mortgagor and mortgagee—Mortgagor purchasing benami in revenue sale—Subsequent mortgage sale, validity of—Right of bona fide lessee.

The plaintiff mortgagee brought a suit on a mortgage and it was dismissed by the first Court and while an appeal against that dismissal order was pending, the mortgagor let the revenue of the mortgaged land fall into arrears and had it brought to sale by the Revenue Department for the recovery of such arrears and purchased the property himself in the name of the 2nd defendant The plaintiff succeeded in appeal and the property was sold and purchased by him but he failed to get actual possession as the judgment-debtor had let the lands to the first defendant. The plaintiffs then sued for possession of the land and the crops standing on it.

Held, that the sale under the mortgage decree was valid and conveyed the full title to the plaintiff as the 2nd defendant was only the benamidar of the plaintiff's judgment-debtor, who was the owner notwithstanding the revenue sale; and that the first defendant who was a bona fide lessee of the properties from the 2nd defendant was entitled to the crops raised during the continuance of the lease, and that the auction-purchaser could only get the rent during the remaining portion of the tenancy.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee—concld

Section 59 of the Revenue Recovery Act has no application in a case where the mortgagor purchases the property at a revenue sale benami in another person's name and the revenue sale need not be set aside by a mortgagee suing on a mortgage M. NUKALAPATI RAMI REDDI v. VAVILLA VENKATHSAM. (1914) M. W. N. 910 274

Muafi. See OUDH RENT ACT, s. 107-H

Muhammadan Law—Dower fixed at time of marriage—Dispute as to amount fixed—Wife unable to prove amount asserted by her—Decree according to admission of husband—Customary dower, when allowed—Verbal contract of dower—Evidence—Procedure.

Where the wife alleges that her dower was fixed at the time of marriage, but she cannot prove the amount asserted by her, the Court is bound to pass a decree for the sum admitted by the defendant, inasmuch as the wife is entitled to the customary dower only in cases where admittedly no dower was specified at the time of the marriage

The rules of procedure and evidence laid down by the Muhammadan Law to be followed in deciding disputes as to dower between the husband and the wife which are at variance with the Statute Law on the subject, cannot be followed by Courts in British India

A verbal contract for a dower of a large amount can be admitted only if proved by most clear and satisfactory evidence. P. FAZL KHAN v. KARAM BEGAM, 105 P. R. 1914 113

———————Guardianship—Female minor—Sister's husband and maternal uncle—None but mahram to be appointed 74

———————Possession. suit for—Mortgage by ostensible owner—Benefit to estate 621

———————Succession—Muhammadan Law or custom—Ahains of Lahore depending on agriculture 577

———————Right of convert's son to inherit—Exclusion of Kafir 357

———————Waqf—Dedication for religious purposes—Muharram, observance of, dedication for, whether valid

Where a Sunni Muhammadan conveyed certain properties of his to his grand-daughter and grandson under a deed of waqf for the "service of Imam Hossain and Hassan and for religious purposes".

Held, that the deed was valid and operative as a deed of waqf and that the trustee under the deed could not alienate the property by sale or mortgage.

A dedication of property for the observance of the Muharram constitutes the service of man and the good of humanity, though to a limited section, as it entails the feeding of the poor and distribution of alms to the needy. C. RAM CHURN LAW v FATIMA BEGUM, 19 C. W. N. 33 442

Muhammadan Law—concld.

——————Waqf—Muhammadan dedicating properties for expenses of mosque and maintenance of family, how far valid—Mussalmans Waqf Validating Act (VI of 1913), retrospective effect of 96

Murder. See PENAL CODE, s. 302.

Mussalmans Waqf Validating Act (VI of 1913), retrospective effect of 96

Mutation of names—Possession by ex-proprietor, effect of 20

Mutation proceedings—Family arrangement—Registration, whether necessary 497

Mutt, kinds of 739

Nankar, cash, right to—Under-proprietary right—Ejectment, notice of, cancellation of—Prima facie case of under-proprietary rights to be established.

A right to receive a cash nankar does not necessarily connote a right to possession of land as an under-proprietor, but may, when coupled with some other facts, go to establish a prima facie case of under-proprietary rights.

A notice of ejectment ought to be cancelled by the Revenue Courts in cases where a prima facie claim to under-proprietary rights has been established. U. P. B. R. LAL MUKESHAR BAKHSH SINGH v. SHAHZADA KHAN, 1 O. L. J. 733 175

Nattukottai Chettiers. See HINDU LAW.

Negligence. See TORT.

Negotiable Instruments Act (XXVI of 1881), ss. 9, 43, 118 (g)—Endorsee from payee of hundi—Holder in due course—Presumption—Consideration, failure of.

An endorsee from the payee of a hundi must be presumed until the contrary is proved to be a holder in due course within the meaning of section 9 by reason of section 118 (g) of the Negotiable Instruments Act and is unaffected by the failure of the consideration as between the drawer and the payee. B. SAKHARAM MANSARAM v. GOLABCHAND TARACHAND, 16 BOM. L. R. 743 362

——————————— ss. 22 (2), 24 608

——————————— ss. 43, 118 (g) 362

Northern India Canal and Drainage Act (VIII of 1873), s. 70, subsecs. (1) and (2)—Preventing digging of water-course—Revision—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439—Finding of fact based on inadmissible evidence.

The preventing of the digging of a water-course for taking water from a canal does not come within the purview of section 70 of Act VIII of 1873.

A finding of fact based on no evidence or on inadmissible evidence is liable to be set aside on revision under section 439, Criminal Procedure Code, 1898. P. ATUBA v. EMPEROR, 7 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 202; 94 P. L. R. 1915 762

Notice, whether necessary in all suits against Secretary of State for India in Council 232

Nuisance. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 133.

Oaths Act (X of 1873), s. 13—Omission to administer oath or affirmation, effect of 215

Occupancy holding, right of—Testamentary disposition of occupancy holding, validity of—Statute, construction of—Right, whether conferred by mere implication—Estoppel—Testator and legatee—Heir-at-law of raiyat, whether estopped from questioning validity of gift by raiyat—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 26, 178 (3) (d)

In the absence of proof of any local usage to the contrary a raiyat is not competent to make a testamentary disposition of his right of occupancy.

A right cannot be conferred by mere implication from the language used in a Statute; there must be a clear and unequivocal enactment to confer the right.

As between the testator on the one hand and the legatee or the executor on the other, there is not estoppel; therefore the heir-at-law of a testator raiyat is estopped from questioning the transfer of a holding made by a Will.

In every case of gift, the doctrine of estoppel does not apply as between donor and donee. C. AMULYA RATAN SARKAR v. TARINI NATH DEY, 18 C. W. N. 1290; 21 C. L. J. 187; 42 C. 254 235

——————————— Transfer for value, validity of—Principles governing transfer—Sale in execution of rent-decree—Application to set aside sale—Transferee a representative of judgment-debtor—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47.

The principles regarding the transfer for value of occupancy holdings apart from custom or local usage as based upon modern authority are:

1. The transfer of the whole or a part is operative as against the raiyat:

(a) where it is made voluntarily,

(b) where it is made involuntarily and the raiyat with knowledge fails or omits to have the sale set aside.

A sale is made involuntarily where it is in execution of a money-decree, but not of a decree founded on a mortgage or charge voluntarily made.

2. The transfer is operative as against the landlord in all cases in which it is operative against the raiyat, provided the landlord has given his previous or subsequent consent. Where the transfer is a sale of the whole holding, the landlord, in the absence of his consent, is ordinarily entitled to enter on the holding, but where the transfer is of a part only of the holding, or not by way of sale, the landlord, though he has not consented, is not ordinarily entitled to recover possession of the holding, unless there has been (a) an abandonment within the meaning of section 87 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, or (b) a relinquishment of the holding, or (c) a repudiation of the tenancy.

Whether there has been a relinquishment or repudiation or not, depends on the substantial effect of what has been done in each case.

3. The transfer of the whole or a part is operative as against all other persons where it is operative against the raiyat.

A person, who without the landlord's consent purchases from a raiyat a portion of an occupancy holding which is not transferable by local custom or usage is a person whose immoveable property has been sold and is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and is entitled to have a sale of the holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent set aside on the ground of fraud

Occupancy, holding—concld.

Where a portion of an occupancy holding is transferred, the transferee can by suit recover possession from the landlord who has forcibly dispossessed him.

A right of occupancy, which is not transferable by custom or local usage, can be transferred.

A holding apart from the right of occupancy cannot be transferred. C. DAYAMOYI v. ANANDA MOHAN ROY, 18 C. W. N. 971; 20 C. L. J. 52; 42 C. 172 61

———, not transferable by local usage or custom, usufructuary mortgage of a portion of —Registered document—Covenant not to surrender—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 86 (6), 88 —Encumbrance on part of holding, whether encumbrance on whole.

Where a part of an occupancy holding not transferable by local custom or usage was usufructuarily mortgaged by a registered document with the covenant not to surrender, and the mortgagor surrendered it.

Held, that as the encumbrance is by a registered document and the surrender was without the consent of the plaintiff, the surrender is invalid under section 86 (6) of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

An encumbrance on a part of a holding is an encumbrance on the whole. C. RAM UDAR SINGH v. WILLIAM COX, 19 C. W. N. 268 564 ———Will—Custom—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), ss. 26, 188.

An occupancy-raiyat has no power to bequeath by Will his holding unless a special custom to do so is proved. C. KUNJA LAL ROY v. UMESH CHANDRA ROY, 18 C. W. N. 1294 352

Occupancy rights, claim for—Claimant's relatives under-proprietor, effect of—Ejectment case—Statutory tenant, status superior to that of, claimed —Inquiry to be complete

Where a co-sharer in a holding has got a decree for under-proprietary rights, no occupancy rights shall be claimed in that holding; but a person can claim occupancy rights even though his relatives may have got under-proprietary rights in the village.

Ejectment cases in which rights superior to those of statutory tenants are claimed, should not be adjudicated upon without a complete inquiry being made. U. P. B. R. JAGADMBA SINGH v. BHAGWAN BAKHSH SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 65 935

———, claim for—Claimant's relative under-proprietor, effect of—Ejectment case—Statutory tenant, status superior to that of, claimed —Inquiry to be complete 935

———————, relinquishment of, by ex-proprietor—Agreement, voluntary, validity of—Ex-proprietary tenancy converted by ex-proprietor into rent-free holding for life—Ejectment—Trespasser—Jurisdiction of Civil Court—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 7 A, cl. (4).

A voluntary agreement entered into by an ex-proprietor before the enactment of section 7A of the Oudh Rent Act, to relinquish his occupancy rights arising in respect of his sir land in consideration of his holding that land rent-free for his life-time, cannot be regarded as invalid or forbidden by law. The successors-in-interest of the ex-proprietor taking possession of the land after his death are liable to ejectment as trespassers through the Civil Court. O. VISHUNATH KUAR v. GAURI SHANKAR, 1 O. L. J. 710 376

Occupancy rights—concld.

Opium Act (I of 1878)—Rules framed under s. 5—Rule 4 (iii) (c)—Ultra vires—Conviction based on, whether legal.

Rule 4 (iii) (c) of the Rules framed by the Bombay Government under section 5 of the Opium Act is a rule of evidence as to the fact of possession, and not a rule as to the conditions of possession as contemplated by section 5, and as such is ultra vires of the section. Therefore, a conviction based on the rule is illegal S. GANDALAL MURARJI v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 138; 16 CR. L. J. 186 200

Oudh Laws Act (XVIII of 1876), s. 10 420

Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), ss. 3 (3), 107B (b) and 107G—"Land" includes fallow plots—Rent-free land liable to pay rent as provided by settlement decree—Proprietor of grove, not necessarily owner of land as well—Grove, character of—Assessment of rent, suit for, landlord's rights as to—Undivided holding, effect of.

"Land," as defined in the Oudh Rent Act, includes plots remaining fallow.

Land held rent-free but liable to pay rent on breach of a condition annexed to it, as provided by the settlement decree, is not land held rent-free under a judicial decision as contemplated by section 107*B* (b) of the Oudh Rent Act.

A person recorded as proprietor of a grove is not necessarily a proprietor or under-proprietor of the land covered by the grove.

A land is not grove if only a portion of it remains grove.

A landlord has no right to sue for assessment of rent some only of the co-sharers in an undivided holding. U. P. B. R. MUHAMMAD BAQAR v. SHEO MOHAN SINGH, 2 O. L. J 88 974

——— ——— ——— s. 7A 586

——— ——— ——— s. 7A, cl. (4) 376

——— ——— ——— s. 7A—Mortgage before 1st January 1902, effect of, upon sir—Sir, when ceases to be so—Ex-proprietary rights, how surrendered and extinguished—Abandonment, actual—Limitation for claim of ex-proprietary rights.

A mortgage with or without possession before 1st January 1902 has no effect whatsoever upon sir, so that a sir thus mortgaged does not cease to be so.

A holder of sir when his proprietary rights are transferred cannot surrender his ex-proprietary rights except by actual abandonment.

If a sir-holder fails to take up his ex-proprietary rights, in Agra within six months, and in Oudh within a year, after their accrual, they are extinguished. U. P. B. R. SULTAN HUSAIN KHAN v. SEWAK SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 11 586

Oudh Rent Act—contd.

——— ——— ——— s. 33—Enhancement of rent, claim for—Construction of document—"Ziada sitani," meaning of—Landlord and tenant, agreement between, interpretation of—Occupancy tenant liable to all incidences attaching to him as such.

Where a landlord enters into an agreement with a tenant binding himself not to commit "ziada sitani," it simply means that there will be no unreasonable enhancement of rent, and not that no enhancement at all shall be made, and thus does not bar an enhancement warranted by the express provisions of the law.

A person declared to be an occupancy tenant must accept the incidences attaching to that tenure. U. P. B. R. MATA PRASAD v. SPECIAL MANAGER, COURT OF WARDS, UMRAINGAON, 1 O. L. J. 724 385

——— s. 48—Heirs of a deceased tenant—Joint Hindu family, member of, claim of—Widow of deceased tenant, right of.

A member of a joint Hindu family comprising himself and a deceased tenant, if not shown to be a co-tenant with the latter, cannot under section 48 of the Outh Rent Act succeed as heir to the deceased's holding, so long as the deceased's widow is alive. U. P. B. R. BHAGWAN BAKHSH SINGH v. SURAJ BALI SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 50 561

——— s. 69 407

——— ——— s. 107B (b) 974

——— ——— ——— ss. 107G, 107H—Groves entered as "maurusi" in column "of tenants' groves"—Under-proprietary right, accrual of.

Section 107G or section 107H of the Oudh Rent Act applies to plots entered at the time of the First Regular Settlement as "maurusi" in the column of "tenants' groves", if the landlord fails to establish his right to resume them. U. P. B. R. SULTAN SINGH v. CHANDRAPAL SINGH, 1 O. L. J. 600 120

——— ——— ——— s. 107H 120

——— ——— ——— s. 107H—Groves brought under cultivation—Bila tasfia, land held as—Under-proprietary rights, accrual of—Presumption.

A person who was a former proprietor of a village and had got Settlement Court decrees for sir lands and under-proprietary rights in the village and had his claims at the time of the Settlement for large areas besides the sir dismissed in default, was in possession of some old groves. These groves having subsequently been brought under cultivation were recorded as land held bila tasfia, and the landlord sued for assessment of rent on that land.

Held, that the provisions of section 107H of the Oudh Rent Act applied to the land in suit, inasmuch as it could reasonably be inferred that the possession of the grove was not that of an ordinary tenant whose rights come to an abrupt conclusion when the land ceases to be grove. U. P. B. R. HUDRA PRATAB SAHI v. RAM CHARAN PANDE, 1 O. L. J. 751 165

——— ——— s. 107H—Munafi, heritable but not transferable—Transferee from munafidar, right of—Under-proprietary rights, non-accrual of.

Oudh Rent Act—concld.

A transferee from a munafidar who has only a heritable but not a transferable interest in the munafi, cannot claim under-proprietary rights under section 107H of the Oudh Rent Act. U. P. B. R. MANSA DIN v. THAKUR PRASAD, 2 O. L. J. 10 585

——— ——— s. 108 (10)—"Illegally ejected," meaning of—Res judicata, temporary.

The words "illegally ejected" used in section 108 (10) include an ejectment by a process of law if the ejectment was illegal.

A decision in a previous ejectment case under section 62 of the Oudh Rent Act as to under-proprietary rights operates as res judicata between the parties in a subsequent case for recovery of possession in the Revenue Court until there is a final adjudication of the question in the Civil Court. U. P. B. R. MAHESH SHUKLA v. RUDRA PRATAB SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 68 525

——— s. 120A 587

——— ——— ss. 152, 154—Statutory liability to pay arrears of rent cast upon transferee and land that came into his possession—Pre-emptor's liabilities to pay arrears of rent recovered from vendee 420

——— ——— s. 154 420

——— Ch. VII A 532

Pachete Raj—Family custom—Maintenance grant, nature of—Impartible estate, alienability of—Equitable interest, value of—Putnindar under grantor of maintenance—Grantor, right of, against grantee—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 43, scope of.

According to the family custom in the Pachete Raj, a maintenance grant to the members of the Raj is not absolute in its nature like gift, but lasts only for the life-time of the grantee, and it is entirely optional with the successor of the grantor to resume or confirm the grant.

It is only where a custom in restraint of alienation is not proved that an impartible estate is alienable.

If the transferor himself has once become entitled to a valid estate in the land, the transferee's equity would attach upon it in the hands of all persons claiming under the transferor otherwise than for a legal interest by purchase for value without notice.

The holder of the Pachete Raj, after having granted certain villages to the defendant for her maintenance, created a putni in favour of the predecessor of the plaintiff on the allegation that the grant had been resumed. The maintenance grant, after the death of the grantor, was not resumed by his successor The plaintiff filed a suit for ejectment of the defendant on the ground of trespass:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable for want of title, and that section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act was not applicable, inasmuch as the section recognised the doctrine of title by estoppel and applied only where a person erroneously represented that he was authorised to transfer certain immoveable property. C. CHOTA BAHIBA SAHEBA v. PURNA CHUNDER CHAUDHURI, 19 C. L. J. 144 982

Pardanashin lady, document executed by—Terms not explained to her—Suit by persons of unsound mind—Next friend, whether a party 459

Pardanashin lady—concld.

——— Power-of-attorney — Document executed by Agent, claim on basis of—Evidence—Burden of proof.

When a claim is made against pardanashin ladies on the basis of a document executed by an Agent on behalf of them, the plaintiff must show not only that a power-of-attorney was actually signed by the pardanashin ladies, but also that they knew what they were doing, knew the nature of the document and the extent of powers they were conferring by such a document. L. B. ASRI JAN v. CHELLAPPA CHETTY 610

Pardon, forfeiture of. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 337.

Parties—Jurisdiction—Res judicata—Title—Issue 917

Partition. See HINDU LAW.

——— Compromise by some of the parties—Consent decree, validity of—Appeal against consent decree, when maintainable—Suit to declare such consent decree inoperative, unnecessary—Dismissal for default, effect of.

In a partition suit the defendants, who were not parties to the compromise effected between the plaintiffs and the other defendants, will not be bound by the terms of the compromise, and the decree based thereon would not have greater validity than the contract upon which it is based.

A partition of joint property cannot be effected on a compromise which binds only some of the co-owners, and, therefore, a consent decree based upon such a compromise cannot bind any of the parties to the suit.

Ordinarily an appeal does not lie against a decree made by consent, but an appeal may be preferred by persons who were not parties to the consent decree.

The dismissal for default of a suit for declaration that the consent decree was not operative cannot give greater efficacy to the consent decree than it really possesses. It is unnecessary for persons who are not parties to a consent decree to institute a suit for such a declaration. C. GOBIND CHANDRA v. BHAGABAT SARDAR 242

——— ——— Discretion 417

——— ——— Hindu Law—Status—Intention to divide—Presumption when one co-parcener divides 736

———, how established—Oral evidence—Circumstances, sufficient, for inference of partition—Adverse possession—Fallow land—Grazing of cattle, whether interrupts operation of adverse possession—Co-sharer, adverse possession of, when presumed—Hostile title.

A partition may be occasionally established by oral evidence which, though not directly proving the factum of partition, may be of such a character as to justify the inference that a partition must have been made between the parties or their predecessors.

In a case where there were, first, transfer by one member of the family to another of cultivated lands in his occupation; secondly, long possession of specific parcels and sub-division among members of a particular branch; thirdly, reclamation and improvement of waste lands at considerable cost; fourthly, direct admission of parties that there had been a previous partition; fifthly, separate occupation of land, and collection of rent from the separate tenants and the institution of suits by the superior landlord against the members of the family as if they were separate tenants, and the separate enforcement of decrees so obtained:

Held, that the circumstances are sufficient to establish previous partition.

Where exclusive possession is taken of such lands as are cultivated during one season and left fallow during the two following seasons, and the owner is ousted, the mere fact that a stranger grazes his cattle during the period that the lands are not under cultivation would not interrupt the operation of adverse possession.

A co-sharer cannot be said to have been in adverse possession merely because he cultivated a larger area than what would fall to his share upon a distribution of all the lands.

In order to constitute adverse possession as against a co-sharer, there must be an assertion of hostile title for more than a period of 12 years before the commencement of the suit. C. KULADA PROSAD TWARY v. SADHU CHARAN, 20 C. L. J. 32 412

———, instrument of—Award 489

——— ———, instrument of—Full duty paid—Second instrument affirming first with minor alterations—Duty payable—Interpretation of Statute—Fiscal enactment 731

———, right of—Suit for recovery of possession—Person entitled to half share, whether can eject one from whole—Decree, nature of 228

——— among superior landlords—Distribution of rent—Enhancement 49

——— Suit—Agreement appointing trustees to hold plaintiff's share, whether reference to arbitration and adjustment of suit 369

——— ——— ——— Court-fee — Actual or constructive possession not proved — Plaintiff not entitled to maintain suit—Proper remedy—Leave to amend plaint—Costs 465

——— ——— ——— Res judicata—Compromise—Agreement not carried out—Second suit for partition, if barred—Continuing right 694

Partnership business, sale of—Misjoinder of causes of action 344

——— for fixed term—Dissolution before expiry of term, whether allowed—Contract, breach of—Compensation for breach—Partner, liability of.

The parties to the suit entered into a partnership in a contract which the defendants had obtained from the Municipal Committee, Delhi, for erecting stands on the central portion (patri) of the Chandni Chauk Street, Delhi, for spectators to watch the elephant procession in connection with the Coronation Darbar of 1903. On the 2nd December 1902, the defendants sent a registered notice to the plaintiff to the effect that as he had up to that date made no preparations to perform his part of the contract, the partnership between the parties was dissolved, and thereafter the defendants got the work of erecting stands done by their own workmen without reference to the plaintiff and appropriated the whole of the income that accrued from the sale of tickets. The plaintiff sued for rendition of accounts and his share of profits and also claimed compensation for a certain number of chairs which he had got made:

Partnership—contd.

Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to the compensation, for he had not carried out his part of the contract and the defendants could not be expected to wait indefinitely; but that he was entitled to his share of the net profits of the partnership as the partnership could not be legally put an end to by the defendants. P. MUHAMMAD ALI v. SHAM LAL, 6 P. L. R. 1915; 44 P. W. R. 1915 650

———Joint Hindu family—Death of member of family—Partnership not dissolved—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s 253 (10)—Principle—Partnership continued after its determination by death—Limitation—Manager's statement as to date of dissolution—Estoppel—Surety bond to be read in conjunction with partnership deed.

A partnership between certain individuals and a joint Hindu family is not dissolved by the death of a member of the joint family.

The principle of law embodied in section 253 (10), Contract Act, is based on the ground that partners cannot be expected to acquiesce in new partners being forced upon them. But this principle cannot apply when all that happens is that one of the existing partners becomes, by operation of law, entitled on the death of his co-parcener to a larger share in the partnership than he previously possessed in his individual capacity.

When a partnership is determined by death and the surviving partners continue to carry on the business, the statute of limitation is no bar to taking the accounts of the new partnership by going into the accounts of the old partnership which have been carried on into the new partnership without interruption or settlement.

Where the managing partner of a firm himself issues notices to its constituents informing them that the partnership had dissolved from a particular date, it is not open to him subsequently to contend that this was false and that the partnership had actually terminated sometime before.

A surety bond executed in connection with a partnership must be read in conjunction with the partnership agreement to which it makes express reference. A bond of this kind is to be construed strictly, and the liability of the surety cannot be extended beyond the period for which he was undertaking liability simply by showing that the partnership, which, according to the express provision of the partnership agreement, he was led to believe was to terminate within a specified period, was in fact, by subsequent mutual agreement of the partners to which he was no party, continued beyond that period. P. MAHARAJ KISHEN v. HAR GOBIND, 101 P. R. 1914 69

———Suit for accounts—Counter-claim—Court-Fees Act (VII of 1870), Sch. I, Art. 1.

In a suit for accounts and to recover money due on a dissolved partnership, the defendant's claim for decree on accounts, is not a counter-claim, and no Court-fee is leviable thereon until the amount has been ascertained. S FATEH MAHOMED HAJI SULEMAN v. RAMZAN KHAN, 8 S. L. R. 122 316

Partnership—concld.

———Suit for accounts—Counter-claim—Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), Sch I, Art. 1.

In a suit for accounts and to recover money due on a dissolved partnership, the defendants' claim for decree on accounts is not a counter-claim, and no Court-fee is leviable thereon until the amount has been ascertained.

A suit for partnership accounts is in the nature of a suit in Chancery, and a Court of Equity will not drive the defendant to a fresh suit if the balance turns out to be in his favour.

A set-off is a cross-debt on which a separate action may be sustained. S. JESSARAM DHANURAM v. IKARDASS, 8 S L. R. 124 320

———, suit for dissolution of—Jurisdiction 629

——— suit—Court competent to pass decrees for amount exceeding its pecuniary jurisdiction—Incompetency to order amendment of valuation according to amount found due after preliminary decree—Course of appeal to be determined by amended valuation.

In a partnership suit the fact that the amount found due exceeds the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court does not prevent it from passing a decree for the full amount.

After a preliminary decree under section 215 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, and an appellate decree confirming it has been passed, the plaint as such may well be regarded as merged in the decree, and the Court is incompetent to order amendment of the valuation of the plaint in accordance with its finding as to the amount due and then to return the plaint for presentation to the Court having jurisdiction over the suit thus valued.

If the order for amendment is complied with by the plaintiff, the course of appeal will be determined by the valuation of the amended plaint. N. SHRIRAM v. CHUNI LAL, 11 N. L. R. 13 988

Party—Suit by person of unsound mind—Next friend, whether party 459

Patents and Designs Act (II of 1911) 996

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 105 (2), 147, 304, 325—Right of private defence of property, limitations of—Unlawful assembly—Common object—Death caused by some members—Liability of all members.

The Penal Code does not give any right of private defence of property in regard to which an offence under section 403 or 411 of the Code has been committed.

Section 105 (2) of the Penal Code applies to cases of theft only. Where more than 25 persons went in a body to enforce the right or supposed right of one of them to an animal by removing it from the house of a third person, and after they had removed it and gone some distance, they were followed by that person, who was consequently attacked and beaten by some of them and died by a blow on the head:

Held, that the assembly was an unlawful assembly within the meaning of section 141, Penal Code, and the force used by some of them in beating the deceased being in prosecution of their common object, all were guilty of rioting, but all could not be convicted of an offence under section 304, Penal Code, as the offence could not be said to have been committed in prosecution of the common object, nor was it such as the members of the assembly know to be likely to be committed in prosecution of that object.

Penal Code—contd.

Where a man receives only one blow on the head and dies, and there is no evidence to show which of the two persons attacking him gave that blow, neither of the two will be convicted under section 304 but both of them can be convicted of an offence under section 325 of the Penal Code. P. AGRA v. EMPEROR, 37 P. R. 1914 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J 209 833

——— ss. 114, 302—Abetment must be complete apart from presence of abettor—Public Prosecutor, duty of, in murder case—All available eye-witnesses, production of witnesses not called without sufficient reason, whether raises inference adverse to prosecution.

A conviction for murder under section 302 of the Penal Code, read with section 114, cannot stand where the only abetment charged necessarily required the presence of the accused, for to come within section 114, the abetment must be complete apart from the presence of the abettor

It is the duty of the Public Prosecutor in a murder case to place before the trial Court the testimony of all available eye-witnesses.

The purpose of a criminal trial is not to support at all costs a theory, but to investigate the offence and to determine the guilt or innocence of the accused, and the duty of a Public Prosecutor is to represent not the Police, but the Crown, and his duty should be discharged by him fairly and fearlessly and with a full sense of the responsibility that attaches to his position.

Where witnesses are not called without sufficient reason being shown, the Court may properly draw an inference adverse to the prosecution. C. RAM RANJAN ROY v. EMPEROR, 19 C. W. N. 28; 42 C. 422; 16 Cr. L. J. 170 554 ——— ——— ss. 143, 341—Restraint, when amounts to offence.

The restraint, to amount to an offence under section 341 of the Indian Penal Code, must be directed to a person and not to anything else M. KUMBOLA GURAVADU v. YERAGATIPALLI KRISTNA, 2 L. W. 185; (1915) M. W. N. 203; 16 Cr. L. J 176 560

——— ——— s. 147 833

——— ——— s. 176—Failure to report—"Intentionally," meaning of—Co-existent obligation of another no excuse.

Where a person is under a legal duty to report certain facts and fails to report them, he must be presumed to intend to conceal them, unless he can show that he had reason to suppose that the authority to which the report was due had the information from other sources.

The mere fact that another person was also present at the time of the occurrence and was under a similar obligation to report does not justify omission to report. M. PAVALLIMANAKKAL NARAYAN NAMPUDRIPAD, In re, 17 M. L. T. 263; (1915) M. W. N. 276; 16 Cr. L. J 210 843

——— ——— s. 182 223

——— ——— s. 193 218

Penal Code—contd.

——— ——— s. 193—Prosecution, direction of against a witness—Perjury, order to prosecute for while case still pending, whether proper.

An order directing the prosecution of a witness under section 193, Indian Penal Code, while the case in connection with which he is said to have made a false statement is still pending in the Sessions Court, is improper. C. BIRENDRA NATH DAS GUPTA v. EMPEROR, 19 C. W. N. 478 211

——— ——— s. 209 218

——— ——— s. 211 223

——— ——— s. 302 554

——— ——— ——— s. 302—Murder—Circumstantial evidence—No direct evidence—Conviction, whether legal.

In a murder case stress can be fairly laid on the absence of direct proof and the inferential nature of the prosecution case. But where the evidence points to the accused alone and admits of no reasonable doubt, the accused can rightly be convicted. M. MAHAMMAD KHASIM v. EMPEROR, (1914) M. W. N. 718; 16 Cr. L. J. 195 755

——— ——— ss. 302, 307—Murder—Evidence—Prosecution, duty of, to prove their own story—Weakness of defence, effect of—Right of private defence—Benefit of doubt—Practice

The prosecution are bound to prove their own story independently and cannot rely upon the weakness of that put forward by the defence.

The tenants of a sahukar zemindar went to his house in a body to make some sort of demonstration against him and perhaps to seize their cotton crop which the zemindar had taken possession of and stored in his house. Probably some of the tenants had weapons and the zemindar, apprehending that some hurt would be caused to him, fired off his gun in the direction of the crowd of villagers without any intention of killing any one or of doing more harm than was necessary for his own protection:

Held, that what the sahukar did was done in the exercise of his right of private defence and that he was, therefore, entitled to the benefit of any doubt which existed. P. LACHHMAN DAS v. EMPEROR, 16 Cr. L. J. 152; 14 P. W. R. 1915, 131 P. L. R. 1915 216

——— ——— ss. 302, 369—Murdered child found in well indicated by the accused who disclaimed all knowledge—Fact of stripping the child of her ornaments established—Youth of accused.

In a case of murder the facts clearly established were that the accused was last seen with the child alleged to have been murdered, and that he stripped her of most of her ornaments and sold them and that her body was next found in a well, and the accused disclaimed all knowledge of the matter, though he himself indicated the well:

Held, that the accused was guilty of a foul murder, which in spite of his youth called for the extreme penalty. P. WADHAWA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 16 Cr. L. J. 167 551

——— ——— s. 304 833

——— ——— s. 307 216

——— ——— s. 325 833

Penal Code—contd.

——— ——— s. 335—Nose-cutting—Act importing deliberate design—Grave and sudden provocation.

When the particular act, such as nose-cutting, of which the accused is found guilty, is one which imports deliberate design, the plea of grave and sudden provocation or the excuse it implies will not have by any means the same effect as in the case of a man who in sudden and provoked anger strikes a blow, however serious that blow may be. B. EMPEROR v. BHAGWAN CHHAGAN, 17 BOM. L. R. 68; 16 CR. L. J. 168 552

——— ——— s. 336—Temple—Place of public resort—Person in charge to take necessary precautions to ensure safety of visitors—Well not properly enclosed—Gross negligence—Endangering safety of people.

On the occasion of a festival a temple becomes a place of public resort and it is the bounden duty of the person in charge to take all reasonable precautions necessary to ensure the safety of those crowding thither by his license and invitation. Therefore if he omits to enclose a well in the courtyard standing by the path which the pilgrims must necessarily take in order to reach the shrine, omits not only to indicate at night its position by lights, but also removes the light placed near the well at the instance of the officers on duty, and consequently a man falls into the well, his conviction under section 336 of the Penal Code will be upheld. C. NARSING CHARAN MAHAPATRA v. EMPEROR, 18 C. W. N. 1176; 16 CR. L. J. 181 195

——— s. 341 560

——— ——— ss. 361 (Explanation), 366—Passing out of keeping of natural guardian—Kidnapping—Offence, whether committed—Confinement, what constitutes.

Where a little girl, who has no intention of starting life independently, leaves her house for the purpose of seeking refuge with another relation, she cannot be considered to have passed out of the keeping of her natural guardians within the meaning of the explanation to section 361, Indian Penal Code, until she has by some overt act passed into the keeping of some one else. Therefore, a person who induces her to accompany him shortly after she leaves her house is guilty of an offence under section 366 of the Penal Code.

Where a child of 12 is removed a very great distance from her home and has been deprived of all independent judgment or will power by threats and inducements, she is confined because she is not conscious of the desire to escape. S. MULO v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 182; 16 CR. L. J. 117 181

——— s. 363—Minority—lawful guardian—Majority Act (IX of 1875), s. 3—Unmarried Muhammadan girl—Father not living—Mother, whether lawful guardian—Kidnapping, offence of, when completed question of, whether can be raised in revision for first time.

According to Muhammadan Law the occurrence of puberty determines minority and the mother's right to custody, but for the purposes of section 363 of the Indian Penal Code, regard must be had only to the definition of minority in section 3, Act IX of 1875

Penal Code—contd.

Where the girl alleged to have been kidnapped was unmarried, and her father was not living, there could be no question of any guardianship other than her mother's as lawful.

The question at what stage the offence of kidnapping was completed is one of fact, and cannot be raised in the High Court for the first time M. MUTHU IBRAHI, In re 37 M. 567; 16 CR. L.J. 169 553

——— s. 364 551

——— s. 366 181

——— ——— s. 366—Kidnapping girl from lawful guardianship—Child temporarily in custody of maternal uncle—Mother resuming custody—Taking with mother's consent, whether amounts to offence.

Where the accused was charged with kidnapping a girl from the lawful guardianship of her maternal uncle and it appeared that the mother of the girl was present with the accused when he was leading the girl to a railway station, and consented to the girl's being so taken.

Held, (1) that the maternal uncle had ceased to have the girl under his guardianship and the mother had again taken custody of the girl as her guardian;

(2) that taking with her consent did not amount to an offence under section 366 of the Penal Code. M. NATESA PADAYACHI, In re, 16 M. L. J. 406, 1 M L. W. 403 909

——— s. 379 591

——— s. 395—Dacoity committed in Lucknow District—Trial by jury and not by assessors—Government Notification No. 1092,-VI-545 A-9.

Under Government Notification No. 1092,-VI-545A-9, dated 10th December 1884, which is in force no person can be tried on a charge under section 395, Indian Penal Code, by the Court of Session in Lucknow, when such person has been committed to that Court by a Magistrate exercising jurisdiction in Lucknow District with respect to an offence of dacoity alleged to have been committed in Lucknow District, except by a jury. O. RAMADHIN v. EMPEROR, 16 Cr. L. J. 169 553

——— ——— ss. 415, 419—Cheating by personation—Inducing muharrir of a fair to write false name in certificate of sale—Muharrir deceived—Evidence—Thumb impression—Expert opinion, value of.

Two persons A and L persuaded a muharrir at a fair to write in a certificate of sale of a mare that L was the purchaser and one S the seller A affixed his thumb mark for S. It was found that (i) the mare was not stolen property, but (ii) it was come by in some doubtful fashion and that (iii) the muharrir was deceived.

Held, that for whatever reasons L and A did deceive the muharrir and did induce him to write a false certificate, they were guilty of cheating by personation.

The deliberate opinion of an expert that two thumb marks exactly agree is on quite a different plane from an opinion as to handwriting and is sufficient to conclude that the same thumb made both the marks. P. AHMADA v. EMPEROR, 9 P. R. 1914 Cr 16 Cr. L. J. 189 203

——— s. 419 203

Penal Code—contd.

——— ss. 420, 482, 486—Trade-mark and property mark, distinction between—"National Bank of India" stamped on gold bars, whether trade-mark or property mark—Counterfeit trade-mark—Interference in revision—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439.

Where the object of stamping the words "National Bank of India" on gold bars is to inform the public that the bars are the merchandise of the Bank, imported, sold and guaranteed by it, the mark is a trade-mark and not a property mark.

For the purposes of the Penal Code it is not essential that an imitation should be exact in order to be "counterfeit."

Where, therefore, the accused used marks on his bar likely to deceive an ignorant and unwary purchaser, but which would be obvious on ordinary observation by comparison with a genuine bar:

Held, that this was a case of using a false trade-mark and not a counterfeit one and the accused was not guilty of an offence under section 486, Indian Penal Code.

It is not usual for a High Court in revision, to interfere with any finding of fact, so far as it is a finding of fact pure and simple based on evidence on the record; but where the lower Courts have erred in their inferences from facts as found and have found applicants guilty of offences which are not constituted by such facts, the High Court will interfere in revision. S. LOKUMAL v. EMPEROR, 8 S. L. R. 199 902

——— s. 482 902

——— ——— s. 486 902

——— s. 497—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 50—Actual fact of marriage must be proved—Conduct not sufficient.

To justify a conviction under section 497 of the Penal Code, the actual fact of marriage must be proved in some way or another.

The evidence that the man and woman spoke of each other as husband and wife and that some of those who were acquainted with them spoke of them as man and wife, proves nothing more than conduct, and under section 50 of the Evidence Act conduct alone is not sufficient to prove marriage. B. BHAGU DHONDI v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 75, 16 Cr. L. J. 48 837

——— ——— s. 498—Enticing away married woman—Discarded wife living in her father's house—Protection—Knowledge or belief of her being wife of another man—Revision—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439.

A husband who openly discarded his wife for many years and recognised her as a free agent, to go where she liked, has no ground for complaining under section 498 of the Penal Code even if she is enticed away by another man from her father's house where she lives.

In such a case it cannot be said either that her father has the care of her on behalf of her husband or the man enticing her away had the knowledge or belief of her being the wife of the complainant. P. PAHLWAN v. EMPEROR, 5 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 129 P. L. R. 1915; 16 Cr. L. J. 216 840

——— s. 499 657

Penal Code—contd.

——— s. 499, 521—Defamation—'Lowers'—'In the estimation of others'—'Good faith'—Imputation, when in good faith—Care and attention must relate to occasion and circumstances—Reason to believe a thing to be true—Conviction, legality of—Defamation, charge of, proof of.

The accused felt aggrieved by an order made by the Mamlatdar complainant, and as he was entitled to do under the provisions of the Land Revenue Code, appealed to the Assistant Collector against the order praying that it may be reversed. In the petition of appeal it was stated that the Mamlatdar had acted towards the appellant unjustly and spitefully, that in passing the order appealed against he was actuated by personal ill-will and malice against the appellant and that the Mamlatdar had in acting as he had done exercised his authority with a view to cause harassment and loss to the appellant. The Mamlatdar charged the accused for defaming him:

Held by Davar and Shah, JJ.—That the accused was protected by exceptions 8 and 9 of section 499 of the Indian Penal Code.

Per Davar, J.—That as the Mamlatdar by his previous conduct had given ample reasons to the accused for believing rightly or wrongly that he was acting with personal ill-will against him, the imputation was made in good faith.

Per Shah, J.—The care and attention required by law must have relation to the occasion and the circumstances and the question as to what would be due care and attention must be determined with reference thereto:

Per Davar, J.—It is an elementary principle of law which Criminal Courts have always to keep in view that where a person is charged with having committed a criminal offence, the commission of that offence must be strictly proved against him, and every necessary ingredient of the section under which he is charged must be satisfied before an accused person can be convicted and punished.

To convict a man under section 499, Penal Code, it must be shown that the complainant has proved that the imputation has directly or indirectly lowered his moral or intellectual character or has lowered his character in respect of his calling or has lowered his credit in the 'estimation of others'. The words 'in the estimation of others', taken in conjunction with the word 'lowers' in Explanation 4 govern all clauses in that provision of section 499. It is not sufficient for the complainant merely to raise a presumption that the imputation may lower him or may lower his moral or intellectual character in the estimation of others, or that it may, in the estimation of others, lower his character in respect of his calling, or may lower his credit. These are matters that must be proved. There must be proof that the complainant has been lowered as to his character, credit, or calling, reputation or position in the estimation of some person or persons.

Per Heaton, J.—That the imputation was not made in good faith.

It does not constitute 'good faith' necessarily that the person making the imputation believed it to be true. 'Due care and attention' implies genuine effort to reach the truth and not the ready acceptance of an ill-natured belief.

Penal Code—contd.

Explanation 4 to section 499, Penal Code, like the other three merely describes the quality or nature of the imputation and not its actual effects. B. ANANDRAO BALKRISHNA v. EMPEROR, 17 Bom. L. R. 82, 16 Cr. L. J. 177 657

——— s. 499, Excep. III—Privileged occasion—Substantial truth—Exaggeration—Interference in revision with a pending case—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439.

Where the occasion is privileged, it is not necessary to justify every detail of the charge, provided the gist of the libel is proved to be in substance correct and the details, etc., which are not justified produce no different effect on the mind of the reader than the actual truth would do.

Where in a newspaper report the main aspersion of the accused against the complainant is true, the fact that there is some exaggeration or departure from strict truth does not deprive the accused of the protection provided in Exception 3 to section 499, Indian Penal Code.

Mere exaggeration, or even gross exaggeration, does not make a comment unfair. Where the matter is of public interest, the Court ought not to weigh any comment on it in a fine scale and some allowance must be made for even intemperate language, provided, however, that the writer keeps himself within the bounds of substantial truth and does not misrepresent or suppress any facts.

As a rule, a Court of Revision does not interfere with a pending case, but where the real object of the complainant is, not to vindicate his own character or to exact from the defendant the substantive penalty for his own offence, but to subject him to heavy financial loss and very serious and long continued annoyance by the very process of the trial itself, the Court will quash proceedings. S. MURLIDHAR JERAMDASS v. NARAYENDAS, 8 S. L. R. 143; 16 Cr. L. J. 141 205

Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871), s. 6—Suit relating to grant of land revenue—Certificate of Collector—Procedure, where certificate not obtained.

A suit relating to a definite share in an inam, which consists in the enjoyment by the inamdars of 1rds of the revenue of a certain village, is a suit relating to a grant of land revenue and cannot be taken cognizance of without a certificate from the Collector under the Pensions Act.

Where the plaintiff has not obtained a certificate, the hearing of the appeal may be adjourned to enable him to procure the certificate. B. ANTAJI VASUDEV KELKAR v. VINAYAK KESHAV BHISE, 17 Bom. L. R. 153 927

Perjury. See PENAL CODE, s. 193.

Plaint. See AMENDMENT.

Pleader retaining in his service suspected tout—Making false statement—Professional misconduct 156

Police report—Non-cognizable case reported by Police—Procedure 145

Possession, when becomes adverse against absentee owners—Suit for recovery of possession—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 144.

Possession—contd.

It is the duty of persons possessing rights to keep an eye on those rights.

Any overt act of adverse possession by the person in possession of property starts adverse possession as against the absentee owner thereof.

Where, therefore, the plaintiff's step-mother mortgaged the property in suit on the 2nd December 1898, expressly declaring herself in the deed to be the sole owner and that the plaintiff had no concern with it, in a suit for possession brought on the 5th March 1912:

Held, that the step-mother's possession became adverse when she mortgaged the house and the plaintiff's suit having been brought more than 12 years afterwards was barred by time. P. KHUDA BAKHSH v. KARMUN, 49 P. L. R. 1915 610

——— ———Evidence of title—Suit on ground of dispossession.

Possession is a good title against all persons except the true owner.

In a suit for possession on the ground of dispossession, the plaintiff must show that there was no discontinuance of possession before the defendant's entry. N. GANAJI v. DHANSINGH, 11 N. L. R. 31 977

——— ———, suit for—Assessment of rent—Addition to holding—Maintainability of suit—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s 52.

A suit for possession on the allegation of dispossession by the defendant, or in the alternative for assessment of rent, where the land in suit is not part of the original holding but is subsequently acquired and treated as an addition to the original holding, is not maintainable, as not being framed under section 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. C. HARA CHANDRA MAJUMDAR v. RADHA KISHORE MANIKYA BAHADUR, 20 C. L. J. 296 19

———, suit for—Decree-holder purchasing share of judgment-debtor in an undivided house, right of—Judgment-debtor obtaining partition decree on certain condition—Decree-holder, whether can fulfil condition and obtain exclusive possession.

B obtained a decree against S in execution of which he attached S's one-sixth share in a house. S meanwhile sued B and others for partition of the house and obtained a decree on the condition to pay Rs. 237 into Court. S did not pay the money and the decree remained unexecuted. B brought to sale and purchased the specific share allotted to S in the partition suit. B paid Rs. 237 into Court and obtained possession. R sued for declaration of her right and that B was not entitled to possession of the house by virtue of his purchase.

Held, that B was not entitled to separate possession of any specific portion of the house by virtue only of his purchase at the execution-sale, as what passed to him was the right, title and interest of S in an undivided one-sixth share. A. RAM DULARI v. BALAKRAM, 18 A. L. J. 105; 37 A. 120 696

——— ———, suit for—Mortgage by ostensible owner—Benefit to estate—Muhammadan Law.

According to Muhammadan Law as between sisters and nephews, sisters are the sole heirs and, therefore, nephews have no right to mortgage the property, unless they act as sisters' agents.

Possession—concld.

A loan for the nephews' defence in a suit for possession by the sister-in-law is not for the benefit of the estate, as neither party has any right to the possession of the estate. L. B. MA NAN THE v. MI HMA MA YE 621

Possessory right over channel—Right exercised for 40 years—Obstruction in enjoyment of right—Damages, right of.

Where nothing more than a mere possessory right over a chal exercised for a period of forty years is proved, that of itself, is sufficient to entitle a person to claim damages for obstruction in the enjoyment of that right M. KUTHIARVATHATH PRABAKARAN v. SESHAN PATTAR 772

Post diem interest. See INTEREST 616

Practice—Admission of additional evidence on appeal—Appellate Court, duty of 33

——Certifying of part-payments in application for execution—Limitation for certifying 11

——Custody of minor—Enquiry—Court, duty of 257

——Execution—Decree cannot be executed against persons who were no parties to it 804

——Forfeiture of pardon 906

——Limitation extending time, how pleaded 344

——Magistrate, whether can exercise discretion in selection of witnesses 220

——Pleadings in mofussil—High Court, interference by 373

——Property attached under s. 145—Cancelment of order—Disposal of property—Proper order 152

——Prosecution, duty of, to prove their own story—Weakness of defence, effect of—Benefit of doubt 216

——Revision by private prosecutor against order of acquittal—High Court, jurisdiction of, to set aside acquittal 186

—— of settlement—Department—Judicial procedure 802

——Suit by representative of deceased—Probate or Letters of Administration obtained—Succession certificate, whether necessary—Suit, whether to be dismissed if certificate not previously obtained 822

——Trial by Bench of Honorary Magistrates—Difference of opinion—Benefit of doubt—Reference to District Magistrate, whether legal 177

——Madras High Court Original Side Rules, r. 48—Written statement, failure to file, in time—Delay, excuse of, if discretionary—Ex parte decree, setting aside of—Proof of promissory note—Witness examined—Notes of evidence not on record—Decree, if valid.

Under rule 48 of the Original Side Rules a defendant is not entitled, until the leave of the Court is obtained, to put in a written statement after the date fixed in the summons served on him and the Judge has a discretion to grant or refuse such leave.

If, however, a written statement is filed after the due date without getting the leave of the Court, but an extension of time is afterwards applied for and obtained, the pleading already put in is not a nullity but can be looked into and accepted.

An ex parte decree will not be set aside merely for the reason that it does not appear from the record, viz., (the Judge's notes) that the promissory note in suit had been properly proved, especially when the point had not been taken in the memorandum of appeal and where as a matter of fact it appeared from the statement of the Vakil for the respondent-plaintiff that an attestor of the note had been examined before the trial Judge. M. ARUNACHELAM CHETTY v. KOTHANDAPANI PILLAY, 2 L. W. 1 769

Pre-emption. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.

——Custom—Instances in adjoining mohallas*—Degree of proof required—Lahore City, Taksali Gate Bazar.*

In order to prove the custom of pre-emption instances of the enforcement of the right of pre-emption in the adjoining streets or mohallas are relevant.

The circumstance that a particular bazar is essentially a street of shops and prostitutes' lodgings cannot override the fact that pre-emption has been enforced as a matter of right in certain cases.

The mere fact that the property in suit has changed hands three or four times without any claim of pre-emption being made does not go to disprove the existence of the custom.

Where in a pre-emption suit it was contended on behalf of the vendee-defendant that four instances were not enough to prove custom and that compromises out of Court should not be relied on:

Held, (1) that extra-judicial compromises were valid instances of the existence of custom;

(2) that each case must be decided on its own facts and that in this case the custom of pre-emption was proved to exist. PS. JHANDA MAL v. SARDAR BEGAM 778

——Oudh Laws Act (XVIII of 1876), s. 10*—Decree for foreclosure in respect of under-proprietary lands—Oudh Rent Act* (XXII of 1886), ss. 152 and 154*—Statutory liability to pay arrears of rent cast upon transferee and land that came into his possession—Pre-emptor's liabilities to pay arrears of rent recovered from vendee.*

One M, a mortgagee, obtained a decree for foreclosure in respect of certain under-proprietary lands on the basis of his mortgage, but he failed to give the notice required by section 10, Oudh Laws Act. At the time of foreclosure there were outstanding certain arrears of rent, which inspite of his objections were realized from M by the Talukdar. Subsequently the appellants instituted a suit for pre-emption and claimed a decree on payment merely of the sum which was found to be due under the foreclosure decree.

Held, that after M had obtained the under-proprietary tenure by foreclosure, it was impossible for him to escape the statutory liability cast by sections 152 and 154 of the Oudh Rent Act both upon the transferee and upon the land which came into his possession:

Pre-emption—concld.

Held, further, that plaintiffs who were seeking to have themselves placed in the situation in which M had stood at the time he obtained foreclosure, could not avoid any liability to which M was then subject.

Held, also, that the payments made by M were in the nature of salvage made to save the property from sale, and on that principle also the plaintiffs were bound to pay the amount. O. HAZARI LAL v. RAM NARAIN, 17 O. C. 379 420 ———Rival pre-emptors—Collusion with vendee to be strictly proved before pre-emption suit dismissed.

Before the suit of a pre-emptor is dismissed on the ground that he is acting in collusion with the vendee and in the latter's interest, it will have to be shown by the strictest evidence that his object is really to secure the property for the vendee. His motive to annoy and defeat his rival pre-emptors is not sufficient. P. AMAR SINGH v. KISHEN SINGH, 108 P. R. 1914 93

——— ——— One suit for pre-emption of several properties sold on different occasions to separate vendees—Plaint restricted to one—Subsequent institution of other suits after time 927

——— ——— decree—Jurisdiction of Court to extend period fixed for payment—Application for extension of time—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 148.

A Court has no jurisdiction to extend the period fixed for payment in a pre-emption decree, whether the application for extension is made before or after the expiration of the period permitted. O. HASIB-UN-NISSA v. MAHMUD-UN-NISSA, 17 O. C. 377 419

Preliminary decree, appeal from 135

——— ——— ——— on mortgage suit—Decree, combined, in suit for sale of mortgaged property and for recovery of balance due on mortgage—Mortgage, recovery of balance due on, separate decree for 72

Prescription Ouster—Adverse possession 1

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), ss. 49 (4), 103—Offence under s. 103, essential element of—Inference—Conviction, when sustained.

In order to constitute an offence under section 103 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, the intent to give undue preference or diminish the divisible assets is essential and unless it is shown that that is the natural result of an accused person's action such [redacted] cannot be inferred.

[redacted] ogused (a member of a firm declared [redacted] under section

Presumption when one co-parcener divides 736

——— ——— Document 30 years old 562

——— ——— Endorsee from payee of hundi—Holder in due course—Consideration, failure of 362

——— ——— Landlord and tenant, relation of, proof of—Burden of proof 804

——— ——— Lease, land once held under 512

——— ——— Letting lands as kambattam, whether amounts to conversion—Landlord cultivating lands himself 77

——— ——— Mortgage—Benamidar, whether can sue 136

——— ——— Nature of possession 506

——— ——— Possession follows title 802

——— ——— Record-of-Rights, entry in 478

——— ——— Tenure-holder—Lease 432

Principal and agent—Misappropriation by agent—Termination of agency—Suit to recover money—Cause of action against agent and his legal representatives, whether same—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 62, 89, 120.

A suit to recover money alleged to have been misappropriated by the defendants' father, acting as the plaintiff's agent, is barred by time if brought more than three years after the termination of the agency and also after the amount due was ascertained by arbitration.

Where the defendants are sued as the representatives of their deceased father, the cause of action against them is the same as against their father; and if the suit would be barred against him if he had lived, it is also barred against them.

Article 120, Schedule I, of the Limitation Act is not applicable to a suit brought against the representatives of a deceased agent, and while Article 89 applies to a suit against an agent for acts committed during the continuance of his agency, the Article applicable in respect of money payable by him after the termination of his agency would be Article 62. M. ARUNACHELLAM CHETTY v. RAMAN CHETTY, 16 M. L. T 614; (1915) M. W. N. 23 807

——— ——— Promissory note—Partnership—Money deposited with manager of business not in course of business—Liability of proprietor—Estoppel 252

——— and surety—Omission to pursue suit against principal on account of difficulty in service—Striking off his name—Surety not discharged—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. IX, r. 5, O. XXIII, r. 1, applicability of 65

Privies, rights and liabilities of—Classes of pri- [redacted]

Probate and Administration Act —contd.

cutor to Probate—Guardian of minor, whether can take Probate.

Where the principal beneficiary under a Will and codicil was the testator's minor son and the codicil made the applicant guardian till majority of the person of the minor and gave all the property to his charge, directing him to pay off all testator's debts and to give maintenance to the testator's wife and where during the pendency of the probate proceedings the minor beneficiary died:

Held, (1) that both the Will and the codicil were genuine documents and the fact that they were not registered did not render them suspicious,

(2) that if the codicil did make the applicant executor, then he must have Probate irrespective of the possible effect of the minor's death,

(3) that the direction in the Will making the applicant guardian of the minor beneficiary did not make him an executor and was not sufficient for grant of Probate. P. ANUP SINGH v. SOHAN SINGH, 44 P. L. R. 1915 749

——— s. 7 749

——— ss. 19, 45, 78, 89

—Administration, when comes to an end—Grant of Letters of Administration to Hindu widow—Her liability under an administration bond—Administrator of executor, whether a derivative executor—Executor, whether trustee—Assent to legacy, effect of—Suit on bond conditioned with performance of several acts—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 68.

As soon as an administrator has performed the duties imposed on him by the Probate and Administration Act, the administration must be deemed to be at an end and when the person entitled to the estate is the executor or administrator himself, subsequent possession and acts are attributable to him not as administrator but as heir.

Where a Hindu widow obtained Letters of Administration to the estate of her deceased husband and executed the usual administration bond under section 78 of the Probate and Administration Act:

Held, that her liability under the bond was confined only to such acts of waste and mismanagement as could be attributed to her as administratrix and not any such acts attributable to her as the widow in possession of her husband's estate under Hindu Law after administration was over.

The administrator of an executor is not a derivative executor. Where, therefore, an executor dies without having fully administered the estate the duty of carrying on the administration of that estate does not devolve upon the deceased executor or administrator's personal representative but on a person appointed for the purpose under sections 19 and 45 of the Probate and Administration Act.

An executor is not

Probate and Administration Act —concld.

In cases where a bond contains successive covenants each breach gives a separate cause of action, but the date of the last breach is the starting point of limitation in a suit on the bond when the bond is conditioned on the performance of several acts and the obligation to pay is enforceable till the last of the conditions is fulfilled.

Where the assignees of an administration bond executed by a Hindu widow in connection with the grant to her of the Letters of Administration to the estate of her deceased husband, sued for an account of the administration:

Held, that the suit was governed by Article 68 of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act and having been brought more than three years from the period when the conditions of the bond were broken, was barred by limitation. M. RAMANATHAM CHETTY v. RAGAMMAL, 17 M. L. T. 61 849

——— s. 34 617

——— s. 45 849

——— s. 55 617

——— ss. 78, 89 849

——— s. 90 715

Procedure—Confession by some of accused—Failure of Judge to record their conviction—Conviction along with others—Irregularity, effect of.

If some of the accused in a Sessions trial plead guilty to the charge, their conviction should be recorded then and there; but if the Sessions Judge convicts them after he has taken evidence against the other accused and does not take into account their confession in passing sentence upon the others, he commits only a curable irregularity. A. SURJAN SINGH v. EMPEROR, 12 A. L. J. 1239; 16 Cr. L. J. 103 151

——— District Judge adopting finding of Divisional Judge in another case on custom, legality of.

Where a District Judge affirms a decree in favour of the plaintiff, following a finding as to custom arrived at by the Divisional Judge in another case relating to houses in the abadi of the village, he does not apply his mind to the point and his procedure is irregular. P. THUMAN v. BASANTI, 43 P. L. R. 1915 980

——— of Muhammadan Law, how far can be followed in British Courts 113

——— Police report—Non-cognisable case reported by Police 145

——— Principal and agent—Objection as to right of agent, whether can be taken for the first time in High Court

Professional misconduct

Promissory note—concld.

———————————Principal and agent—Partnership—Money deposited with manager of business not in course of business—Liability of proprietor—Estoppel.

The plaintiff sued the defendant, on a document which purported to be a receipt in favour of the plaintiff, for a certain sum of money as a deposit bearing interest. The amount was stated to be on account of plaintiff's one-third share deposited by his grandfather for the plaintiff during his minority. It was not signed by the defendant, but by a person who was alleged by the plaintiff to be the partner of the defendant in a business and who was admittedly acting as its manager. It was not shown that he had received the money and signed the document in the course of the business, but on the contrary, it was found that the money was advanced to the executant to buy up the business from the defendant who was its sole proprietor. It was urged on behalf of the plaintiff (1) that the document was a promissory note and (2) that the defendant had in correspondence described himself as part proprietor of the business.

Held, that the document could not be treated as a promissory note, that the plaintiff had no cause of action against the defendant and that the defendant was in no way estopped by merely describing himself as a part proprietor from showing the true nature of the transaction. P. DAYA KISHEN KAUL v. FRANK B. POOL, 247 P. L. R. 1914; 159 P. W. R. 1914 252

———————————Recital as to execution by three persons—Execution by two alone—Enforceability—Question of fact.

Where a bond, which contains a recital purporting to have been executed by three people, is executed by two persons alone, the question whether such a bond can be enforced against the actual executants is one of fact, depending upon the circumstances of each case.

Where the executant agreed to be liable under the bond notwithstanding that another person mentioned in the bond as a co-executant did not sign it:

Held, that the bond was enforceable against the executant. M. BANGARUSAWMY AIYANGAR v. SOMASUNDARAM CHETTIAR, 16 M. L. T. 102; 1 L. W. 584; 27 M. L. J. 176 161

———————————Suit by assignee of promissory note—Right of assignee to sue, how far executant can question

In a suit by the assignee of a promissory note to recover the money due under the note, all that the executant is entitled to have ascertained is that the plaintiff is the legal holder of the note, and able to give him a good discharge, he cannot question whether consideration was paid or not paid by the assignee. A. BALDEO SAHAI v. BEHARI LAL, 18 A. L. J. 19; 37 A. 99 509

Prosecution, when commences 449

"Prosecution" and "Prosecutor" 449

Provident Insurance Societies Act (V of 1912)—Insurance Company, whether corporate or share-capital divided into shares—Registration under the Act necessary before carrying on business.

An Insurance Society, whether it is a corporate company before or whether its share-capital is divided into shares or not, cannot carry on the business of life insurance unless and until it is registered under the Provident Insurance Societies Act (V of 1912). C. DEPUTY SUPERINTENDENT AND REMEMBRANCER OF LEGAL AFFAIRS v. SITAL CHANDRA PAL, 18 C. W. N. 1182; 16 Cr. L. J. 149 213

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), ss. 4, 6—Appeal in insolvency proceedings—What parties entitled to notice—Annual Practice O. LVIII, r. 8—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 14, applicability of.

In an appeal against an order passed in an insolvency matter, only the parties affected by the order are entitled to notice.

As the Limitation Act is not applicable to proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act the time during which a petition in insolvency was pending in a Court not having jurisdiction cannot be allowed in computing the period for filing a petition under section 6 of the Act. M. TRASI DEVA RAO v. PARAMESHRAYA 144

——————————s. 16 (2) (b)—Application by creditor after declaration of insolvency.

Once a person has been declared insolvent and a vesting order passed, no creditor can apply for any remedy against him without the leave of the Court. M. LINGAPPA CHETTIAR v. NARASIMHA CHARIAR 6

——————————s. 20, cl. (d)—Insolvent, whether can sue to set aside decrees against him.

An insolvent is not prevented by reason of section 20, clause (d), of Act III of 1907, from instituting, defending or continuing any suit or other legal proceeding relating to a decree against him. A. RAM NARAIN v. BEHARI, 12 A. L. J. 925 876

——————————s. 43, proceedings under, nature of—Criminal proceedings—Procedure not followed—Insolvent, conviction of, whether sustained.

Proceedings against insolvents under section 43 of the Provincial Insolvency Act are in the nature of criminal proceedings, and it is necessary that there should be a charge, a finding and a conviction as a foundation for the sentence and these should be strictly and accurately pursued and if on any of these three points a substantial defect should appear, it would be a ground for reversing the proceedings.

Therefore, where a Judge does not follow the procedure but arrives at his conclusion of guilt of an insolvent not on evidence but substantially on the report of the Receiver of his property, the conviction of the insolvent cannot be sustained. C. HARIHAR SINGH v. MOHESHWAR PROSHAD, 18 C. W. N. 692; 16 Cr. L. J. 135 199

——————————ss. 43 (2) (b), 46 (1)—Order refusing to take action against insolvent—Creditor, whether an aggrieved person—Appeal.

A creditor is not a person aggrieved, within the meaning of section 46 (1) of the Provincial Insol-

Provincial Insolvency Act—concld.

vency Act, by an order refusing to take action against an insolvent under section 43 (2) (b) and he has, therefore, no right of appeal. M. IYAPPA NAINER v. MANIKKA ASARI 241

——— s. 46 (1) 241

Provincial Small Causes Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 23—Jurisdiction—Bengal, Agra and N.-W. P. Civil Courts Act (XII of 1887), s. 13.

In absence of the second Munsif on leave, the District Judge assigned the Small Cause Court cases of the second Munsif's jurisdiction to the 3rd Munsif. In one of those cases the 3rd Munsif made an order under section 23 of the Small Cause Courts Act, that the case involved complicated questions of title and should be tried by the Court in its ordinary jurisdiction and that as he had not the local jurisdiction to try the case, it should go to the Court which had the local jurisdiction The second Munsif, who had by that time returned, disregarding the said order of the third Munsif tried the suit as a Small Cause Court case and decreed it.

Held, that the action of the second Munsif in trying the case as a Small Cause Court suit within his jurisdiction, notwithstanding the order under section 23 by the third Court, was incompetent and illegal. C. BHULU SARDAR v. MAYAN JAMADAR 751

——— s. 25, scope of—Findings of fact—Interference in revision—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115.

The powers conferred by section 25 of Act IX of 1887 are wider than those conferred by section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Where a Small Cause Court decree is based on a finding which is clearly opposed to the evidence, resulting in grave injustice to the defendant, the High Court is not merely justified in exercising, but acts reasonably in the exercise of, its revisional jurisdiction. S. RUPCHAND v. MINHOMAL HARDASMAL, 8 S. L. R. 164 366

——— Sch II, Art. 8—Suit for rent other than house rent, whether cognizable by Small Cause Court—Revenue Sale Law (Act XI of 1859), s. 37, cl. (4)—Land on which a garden stood before, sold for arrears of revenue—Incumbrance, whether void—Landlord, right of, to annul notice—Notice, how sufficient—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1903), s. 102—Appeal, second, whether competent

A suit for rent (other than house rent) is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court and in the absence of a notification issued by the Local Government expressly investing a Judge of the Court of Small Causes with authority to exercise jurisdiction with respect thereto, a second appeal in such a suit, although the value thereof does not exceed Rs. 500, is not barred by section 102, Civil Procedure Code.

The mere fact that a garden was made on a piece of land a quarter of a century before it was sold for arrears of revenue, would not make it land "on which a garden has been made" for all time to come, and it does not fall within the exception to section 37 of Act XI of 1859 and is liable to be annulled.

A sale for arrears of revenue does not ipso facto avoid incumbrances or under-tenures, but only renders them voidable at the option of the purchaser. It is, therefore, necessary that the purchaser must, by some unequivocal act, indicate his intention to avoid under-tenure if he desires to do so. A formal written notice is not essential, but the election of the purchaser to avoid must be brought to the knowledge of the tenure-holder.

Per Beachcroft, J.—Section 37, clause (4), of Act XI of 1859 contemplates improvements or works of a permanent character and these are protected, irrespective of whether the lease was or was not given for the purpose of the work in question. But to afford protection the work must still be in existence or the land be used for the purpose of the work. C. SAHODORA MUDIALI v. SARBOSOBHA DASI, 20 C. L. J 494 258

——— Sch. II, Art. 13—Suit to recover sums payable by a khatedar to an inamdar in respect of immoveable property—Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. VIII, r. 6.

A suit for the recovery by an inamdar of sums payable by a khatedar in respect of certain immoveable property held by him under the inamdar as his superior holder, is not cognisable by a Court of Small Causes. In such a suit the claim of the defendant to set off the stipend payable by the plaintiff to certain pujaris of a temple, of whom defendant was one, could not be allowed, as he was claiming in a different capacity, a different category to that in which he held as tenant or khatedar of the plaintiff. B. MADHAVRAO MORESHWAR v. RAMA KALU GHANI, 16 Bom. L. R 746; 39 Bom. 131 350

——— ——— ——— Art. 28, interpretation and scope of—Suit by heir of deceased to recover moveables of deceased detained by defendant, whether cognizable by Small Cause Court—Defendant's denial of plaintiff's title, effect of.

The suits contemplated by the words in Article 28 of Schedule II of Act IX of 1887, are suits for the recovery of the property of an intestate, between rival claimants to the estate or against persons administering the estate.

Therefore a Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit by the heir of a deceased to recover from the defendant certain moveable property of the deceased detained by him. The fact that the defendant denies the title of the plaintiff does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court. C. TIKA SHAHU v. CHIRKAT SHAHU, 19 C. W. N. 614 773 ——— ——— ——— Art. 29—Suit for dissolution of partnership and account—Jurisdiction—Material irregularity—Revision.

A Judge acts with material irregularity if he misapprehends the nature of the plaintiff's claim and the provisions of Article 29 of Act IX of 1887, and in such a case the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for revision.

A suit for partnership accounts with an allegation that the partnership has been dissolved and containing also an alternative prayer for the dissolution of the partnership if it has not been dissolved, is triable by a Munsif and not by a Small Cause Court. A. INDAR MAL v. BUDHA, 13 A. L. J. 58 629

Provincial Small Causes Courts Act—concld.

——————— Sch. II, Art. 38—Maintenance—Suit based on agreement—Claim not made by maintenance-holder—Jurisdiction.

In a division between two Hindu brothers, S and V, it was agreed that their mother would live with S and that V would pay S therefor a certain quantity of paddy by way of maintenance. V fell into arrears. On the death of both S and V, the sons of S sued the sons of V for the arrears due in the Small Cause Court:

Held, that the suit, not being by the maintenance-holder or for maintenance, but being based on a contract was not one 'relating to maintenance' within the meaning of Article 38, Schedule II, of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and that it was, therefore, cognisable by the said Court. M. ANNASAMI SASTRIGAL v. RAMASAMI SASTRIGAL, 15 M. L. T. 352 824

——————— Art. 41 56

Public Gambling Act (III of 1867), ss. 3 and 4—Keeping gaming house and being present in it—Offence—Joint trial, whether illegal.

The joint trial of a person accused of keeping a gaming house and others for being present in it at the time of a Police raid, is not warranted by the provisions of section 239 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and thus being illegal must be set aside. P. EMPEROR v. FAZAL DIN, 35 P. R. 1914 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 220 844

——————— s. 4 844

Public Prosecutor, duty of, in murder case—All available eye-witnesses, production of—Witnesses not called without sufficient reason, whether raises inference adverse to prosecution 554

Public purpose—Contract—Lease and sanad by Government—Resumption for public purposes—"Public purpose," meaning of—Erection of dwelling houses for Government officials, whether public purpose 26

Punjab Courts Act (I of 1912), s. 40—Appeal, Second—Application for certificate to appeal made after 30 days—Question of custom mixed with law—Certificate refused—Second appeal, whether lies to Chief Court.

Where a certificate to appeal on the question of custom is not granted, no second appeal lies to the Chief Court and it is immaterial on what ground the same is refused. P. MULA v. MOSHIARA, 24 P. W. R. 1915; 85 P. L. R. 1915 723

——————— s. 70 561

Punjab Courts (Amendment) Act (IV of 1912), s. 70 589

Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 38—Court of District Judge, power of—Original and Appellate jurisdiction—Enactments regulating procedure—Interpretation.

It was the intention of the Legislature to substitute in the Punjab, for all general purposes, the present Court of the District Judge for the former Court of the Divisional Judge as a Court of Appeal from decrees or orders of Subordinate Judges and Munsifs; but the Court of the present District Judge is essentially a new Court and not merely the successor or transferee of the business of the Court of the former Divisional Judge, within the meaning of section 150 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Distinctive features of the present Court of the District Judge and the former Court of the Divisional Judge explained and illustrated.

Where, therefore, on the 18th July 1914, the then District Judge of Lahore passed certain orders in liquidation proceedings connected with the winding-up of certain banks and the Official Liquidators filed appeals under section 169 of the Indian Companies Act, 1882, on the 29th July 1914, in the Court of the Divisional Judge, Lahore, and while the appeals were still pending the new Punjab Courts Act came into force and abolished the Court of the Divisional Judge; on a reference whether the present District Judge of Lahore was competent to hear and determine the appeals:

Held, that as the appeals in question were preferred from orders passed by a District Judge, the Court which had jurisdiction to hear and determine them was the Chief Court and not the present District Judge.

Acts of the Legislature which regulate procedure, though in general retrospective in their effect, must not be interpreted so as to affect prejudicially the vested rights of the parties to a suit. P. MESSRS. MEUGENS v. SUTLEJ FLOUR MILLS, FEROZEPORE, 42 P. L. R. 1915; 25 P. W. R. 1915; 30 P. R. 1915 625

——————— s. 40 (3)—Refusal to grant certificate on insufficient grounds—Revision.

Ordinarily no revision lies from an order of lower Appellate Court refusing to grant a certificate under section 40 (3) of Act III of 1914, but where it has been refused on the ground that no general question of custom etc. is involved, the Chief Court can exercise its revisional power and remand the application to obtain the certificate for re-decision. P. SAHAB DIN v. DASWANDHI BEG, 23 P. W. R. 1915; 86 P. L. R. 1915 722

——————— s. 41 620

——————— s. 44 589, 593

Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), ss. 115, 117 (2)—Order by Revenue Officer—Partition—Discretion—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11.

When a Revenue Officer is acting, not as a Court under section 117 (2) of Act XVII of 1887, but merely as a Revenue Officer dealing with an application for partition, the proceeding is an administrative adjustment, to which the principle of res judicata, as embodied in section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code, does not apply. But it does not mean that the orders passed by a Revenue Officer have no legal finality.

Under section 115 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, a Revenue Officer has discretionary authority absolutely to disallow an application for partition, and he ought to use this authority in every instance in which the same question has been previously decided, unless it is shown that the circumstances which made the previous order appropriate have changed. P. NATHU v. BISHNA, 5 P. R. 1915 Rev. 417

Punjab Laws Act (IV of 1872), s. 5 542

Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act (I of 1900) 574

——— ——— ——— Sale of equity of redemption of land by sonless male proprietor—Declaratory suit by reversioner to protect his right—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art 120.

A person is entitled to the benefit of the new Law of Limitation extending the period, if on the date of its coming into force his right to sue subsists. Therefore, where an alienor died before the Punjab Limitation Act I of 1900 came into force and the right of his reversioner to sue for his land still survived the suit is governed by Act I of 1900, even if it extends the period of limitation.

The Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act I of 1900 applies also to the sale of the equity of redemption by the alienor.

After the death of an alienor, his reversioner is entitled to maintain merely a suit to declare that the sale is not binding upon him. P. MAHIA MAL v. GHULAM KADIR, 11 P. W. R. 1915; 61 P. L. R. 1915 607

Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 11—'Member of agricultural tribe'—Government Notification—'Holding land'—Tenant-at-will—Right should also be subsisting at date of suit.

Under section 11 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, 1905, the expression 'member of an agricultural tribe' means, according to the Government notification on the subject, a person (i) belonging to any one of the tribes notified as agricultural tribes for the district in which he claims that status, and (ii) either holding land or residing in that district.

It is very doubtful whether a person who occupies land as a tenant-at-will can be said to 'hold land' within the meaning of the notification.

To maintain a suit for pre-emption, the plaintiff must show, not only that he had a right of pre-emption at the time of the sale, but also that his right subsisted at the date of the institution of the suit. P. FATEH SINGH v. SANT SINGH, 47 P. W. R. 1915; 125 P. L. R. 1915, 43 P. R. 1915 29

——— ——— s. 12 (a)—Pre-emption—Occupancy holding—Rival claimants—Landlord—Deceased tenant's heirs—Res judicata—Same parties.

A decision is not res judicata when the parties to the litigation are not the same.

The heirs of an occupancy tenant have a preferential right of pre-emption to the landlord in respect of sale of the occupancy holding. P. MUHAMMAD HASAN v. YUSAF, 11 P. L. R. 1915 642

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 5—Shop—Building situate in a lane—Part used as shop and part as residential quarters—House or shop.

Where in a pre-emption suit it appeared that the building in suit was situated in a lane not a Bazar and was originally purely residential, but that there had been some subsequent alterations in the structure with the result that the three rooms abutting on the lane could be used as shops, and in fact had been used as such for some time, while the upper storey had been used as residential quarters by different persons including the owner.

Punjab Pre-emption Act—(1913)—concld.

Held, that as there was no evidence that at the time of the sale or at any time shortly before it the building was used for commercial purposes, it was not a shop and the plaintiff was entitled to pre-empt. P. HANKU MAL v. ATMA RAM, 47 P. L. R. 1915 799

Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), s. 8—Occupancy rights, butamari per se does not confer—Criterion.

In the Sirsa Tahsil Settlement papers of 1883 and 1882, the clause giving the right to break up waste cannot be construed to import that butamari per se confers an occupancy right As to whether it does or not, must turn on the question whether at the time when the land was first broken up and occupied, the competition for land was such that the tenant could dictate his own terms, or such that the landlord could do so. P. NAWAB ALI v. LAL SINGH, 6 P. R. 1915 Rev. 791

——— ——— s. 8—Sirsa Tahsil—Wajib-ul-arz—Occupancy-tenant — Butamari, whether confers per se occupancy rights—Principle.

Section 6 of the Wajib-ul-arz of Mouza Rampura, Sirsa Tahsil, prepared in 1883 and revised in 1882, cannot be construed to imply that butamari per se confers an occupancy right. But as the village was barani and the demand for tenants great, up to 1882, at all events, land personally broken up in or before 1882, and since cultivated by occupancy-tenants, must be held to rest in them as occupancy-tenants under section 8 of the Punjab Tenancy Act. P. ARJAN v. MANDAS, 6 P. R. 1914. Rev. 745

——— ss. 77, 100 89

Purchaser for value without notice—Purchase under involuntary alienation—Inquiry 261

Putni, purchaser of—Merger—New tenancy, creation of—Transferee, right of—Bengal Rent Act (X of 1859)—Khudkasht right, nature of, before and after the passing of Act X of 1859.

A purchaser under the Putni Regulation (VIII of 1819) is entitled to eject tenants from their holdings when they have no protected right.

There is no merger where the purchaser possesses the land as a third person wholly distinct from the putnidars, although he happens to be the son of one of them.

The purchaser cannot obtain the original holding before the putni was created, though he is in possession of the same holding.

The effect of a transfer of such a holding with the consent of the landlord under Act X of 1859 can only be that the original tenant is considered to have relinquished the holding altogether and that a new tenancy is created in the transferee.

After the enactment of Act X of 1859 the original khudkasht raiyats continued to hold the same rights as they held before, but the khudkasht right ceased to exist as a right that can be acquired after the passing of the Act. C. MALAGHI v. AHALAD MAHATO 928

Putni Regulation (VIII of 1819)—Putni tenure, sale of—Irregularity in service and publication of notice of sale, effect of.

A due publication of the notices prescribed by Regulation VIII of 1819 forms an essential portion of the foundation on which the summary power of sale is exercised and makes the zemindar who institutes the proceedings exclusively responsible for its regularity.

The provision for the advertisement of sale in the Collectorate is very material and is not directory but mandatory, and failure to duly observe it is a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale. C. RUNJIT SINGH v. JNANENDRA NATH SEN GUPTA 825

Razinama. See MORTGAGE.

Receiver. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, O. XL, R. 1, O. XLIII.

———— appointment of under Civil Rules of Practice (Madras), r. 189 812

Record of Rights. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT (VIII OF 1885), s. 103A.

———— ———— ————, entry in—Presumption 478

Redemption. See MORTGAGE.

———— and foreclosure, rights of, whether co-extensive—Mortgage-deed containing onerous and one-sided conditions—Mortgagor authorised to recover his money at any time he liked—Redemption, right of postponed to 60 years—Equity of redemption, fetter on effect of—Consideration, want of, allegation as to—Burden of proof, mitigation of—Loans, oral—Lekha bahi, entries in, whether reliable by themselves—Intrinsic evidence, necessity of.

As a general rule, the right of foreclosure and the right of redemption should be co-extensive, and every agreement by which the right of redemption is fettered for the benefit of the mortgagee without any corresponding advantage to the mortgagor must be examined with close scrutiny.

Thus, where a mortgage-deed contained onerous and one-sided conditions, the effect of some of which was to permit the mortgagee to call in the mortgage-money together with the money spent by him in making improvements on the mortgaged property at any time he liked, and to postpone redemption till the expiry of 60 years from the date when the mortgage would be converted from simple into usufructuary:

Held, that the covenant postponing redemption was an unreasonable fetter on the equity of redemption and could not be enforced, so that the mortgagor was entitled to redeem irrespective of that fetter.

The onus of proving want of consideration lies heavily on the party alleging it, but where it is found that he is a man weak in intellect and hard of hearing, who played the part of an irresponsible puppet in the hands of the opposite party, the onus is mitigated to some extent in this way that the Court may for its own satisfaction demand from the opposite party, if it thinks proper under the circumstances of the case, reliable evidence of the fact that there was no want of consideration as alleged.

Redemption—contd.

In the absence of corroborative evidence, no reliance can be placed on the entries of oral loans as appearing in a lekha bahi, inasmuch as it is not a regular account-book kept in the ordinary course of business from day to day. O. LAL BAHADUR v. ZALIM SINGH, 2 O. L. J. 1 581

———— suit—Reliefs inconsistent and contradictory—Possession, claimed as owner—Redemption, alternative relief for—Fresh suit for redemption, maintainability of—Res integra 575

Reference to High Court—Discretion—Decision on merits 972

Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897), ss. 5, 10 198

Registration—Mutation proceedings—Family arrangement 497

———— object and effect of—Execution—Admission by legal representative—Who is legal representative—Validity of registration.

Registration is intended to be a contemporaneous publication of a transaction as a guard against subsequent fraud and alteration. It is not in the least necessary for the purposes of registration that the legal representative should be the heir of the deceased executant. It is sufficient if he has authority, express or implied, to admit execution of the deed.

Registration of a deed is something different from the validity thereof, and from the value of the title of the executant to the property affected by the deed.

Documents are not registered against any person in the same way as a decree may be given against one person and not against another.

T, the executant of a deed, left two children a boy and a girl, both under the guardianship of her husband. T having died before registration, her husband as guardian of the boy, erroneously believed to be the heir, admitted execution at the time of registration. The legal heir of T was the girl.

Held, that the deed was duly presented by a person authorized to present it and the registration was valid. N. BHIKRAJ v. NARAYAN, 11 N. L. R. 4 861

Registration Act (III of 1877), s. 17—Simple mortgage converted into usufructuary mortgage by subsequent arrangement—Mortgagee put in possession—Registration—Mortgage, right of, to sue on original mortgage.

A simple mortgage of three groves and a house was made in favour of the plaintiff in 1874. In 1877 a part of the mortgage-money was paid by the sale of one of the groves, and it was mutually arranged that the mortgagees should be put in possession of the other two groves for 10 years and receive the profits thereof in lieu of interest upon the amount remaining due and should be entitled to foreclose if the mortgagors should fail to redeem within one year after the expiry of the ten years. The mortgage sued for recovery of the amount on the basis of an original simple mortgage.

Held, that in order to effect a usufructuary mortgage the proceedings of 1877 ought to have been registered, but not having been registered, they took effect only as an arrangement for the payment of interest and the mortgagee was entitled to sue upon the original simple mortgage. A. DEOCHAND v. PHARAY, 12 A. L. J. 1183 430

Registration Act—(1877)—concld.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 17 —Document creating immediate interest in grantee, whether compulsorily registrable—Payment of rent—Proof of tenancy—Rent suit at request of defendant, when not collusive.

A document specifying the boundaries of a certain plot of land, fixing the rent and the terms of the tenancy and stating that a lease is granted to the grantee who undertakes to execute a kabuliat within a specified period, is in substance a lease purporting to create an immediate interest in the grantee in the land demised and is, therefore, compulsorily registrable.

It is open to a party to establish a tenancy by proof of the payment of rent to the landlord.

If there is a real contract of tenancy and rent is really due, a rent suit cannot be said to be collusive, though instituted by the landlord at the instance or request of the defendant. C. BHUBAN MOHAN v. EDAN SARDAR 91

——— ——— ——— s. 17—Documents evidencing family settlement—Petition of compromise declaring interests of parties in property exceeding Rs. 100 in value—Compromise not to minor's benefit, validity of 97

——— ——— ——— s. 17—Title, fresh, not conferred by document—Document declaring antecedent title by way of inheritance—Mutation proceedings—Compromise-deed, unregistered, filed in mutation case, whether enforceable.

Section 17 of the Registration Act, which renders compulsory the registration of certain documents, is aimed at those documents which operate by themselves to confer a fresh title, and not at those in which no new interest is created but simply a declaration is made as to an antecedent title of certain persons by way of inheritance.

Hence, where certain persons claim mutation by right of inheritance as heirs to the deceased and eventually a compromise is arrived at between them, under which they agree as to the respective shares of the deceased's property to be allotted to each of them, the deed of compromise does not amount to a transfer from one of them to the other, but merely to declaration by them that each of them has a right by way of inheritance and that by virtue of that right they are entitled to be put in possession of the said shares, and the agreement is binding upon them and enforceable as such, even though unregistered. O. RAM SARUP v. BINDESHURI, 2 O. L. J. 67; 18 O. C. 51 938

——— ——— ——— s. 17—Transfer of landed property by wife in lieu of sharai dower, validity of—Sale—Registration 562

——— ——— ——— s. 17 (1) (b)—Reversionary rights, surrender of—Adverse possession—Possession of third person with consent of widow—Mutation of names in favour of manager of widow's property—Presumption.

An agreement whereby a reversioner surrenders his reversionary rights in immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100 or upwards is compulsorily registrable, for the surrender amounts to an extinguishment of the right in immoveable property.

When a widow in possession of land agrees to mutation in favour of another person, who manages property of the widow, his possession cannot be considered adverse to the next heir from the mere fact of the mutation having taken place in his favour. P. HAKAM SINGH v. INDAR, 12 P. L. R. 1915; 18 P. W. R. 1915 699

Registration Act—(1908)—concld.

——— ——— ——— ss. 17 (c), 49—Document extinguishing rights, whether compulsorily registrable.

A document which purports to extinguish the executant's right in immoveable property of the value of more than Rs. 100, in respect of the mortgage rights held by his grandfather in the land in suit, is compulsorily registrable, and if not registered, cannot be received in evidence of any transaction affecting that property. P. DYAL SINGH v. GIAN SINGH, 55 P. W. R. 1915; 142 P. L. R. 1915 769

——— ——— ——— s. 47—Execution and Registration—Operation, date of.

Under section 47 of the Registration Act a registered deed operates from the date of its execution and not of registration. L. B. MAUNG SAN MIN v. SANNA 802

——— ——— ——— s. 49 769

——— ——— ——— s. 60 478

——— ——— ——— s. 82 208

——— ——— ——— s. 82—Thumb impression as executant while presenting document for registration—Similarity of thumb impression, how far sufficient for conviction.

The identity of a person as the executant or presenter of a document for registration though not conclusively proved by similarity of the thumb impression taken at the time of presentation, is sufficient for conviction when supported also by other evidence in the case. M. SINGRI BHIMA, In re. 16 CR. L. J. 228 900

Regulation VIII of 1793, s. 54 470

Regulation V of 1799 821

Regulation V of 1812, s. 13 470

Reliefs inconsistent and contradictory—Possession, claimed as owner—Redemption, alternative relief for—Fresh suit for redemption, maintainability of—Res integra.

In a suit for recovery of possession as owner, an alternative relief for redemption cannot be asked, inasmuch as the two reliefs are inconsistent and contradictory. And if the relief for possession is refused on merits and that for redemption owing to the said defect of misjoinder of reliefs, the plaintiff can bring a fresh suit for redemption as res integra. O. Mussammat CHOTTI BEGAM v. RAM PRASAD 575

Religious office—Women, right of, to inherit and get services performed by proxy—Custom—Legality.

A custom allowing women to succeed as heirs to a religious office and getting the duties thereof performed by proxy is not illegal. M. RAMASUNDARAM PILLAI v. SAVUNDARATHA AMMAL, 1 L. W. 900; 16 M. L. T. 423; (1914) M. W. N. 919 440

Relinquishment. See EX-PROPRIETARY RIGHTS.

Remand, evidence taken on—Appellate Court, power of, to interfere in second appeal 827

Rent. See LANDLORD AND TENANT.

———, assessment of—Ijara—Possession without payment after expiry of lease 31

———, distribution of—Enhancement 49

Rent-decree, setting aside of—Fraud, allegation of—Rent, exaggeration of—Burden of proof—Entry in Record of Rights, mistake due to, effect of.

A rent-decree cannot be set aside on the ground of an act of fraud which is not clearly and precisely alleged in the plaint at all.

In a suit to set aside a rent-decree on the ground that the rent claimed was greatly exaggerated, it is for the plaintiff to prove affirmatively that the rent sued for was more than the rent due and he must also prove that the exaggerated rent was claimed in order to defraud him.

A mistake on the part of the claimant arising out of an entry in the Record-of-Rights will not be fraud. C. BIBI SALIMAN v. UDHORAM SAHI 890

———— ———, when executed as money decree—Purchaser of right, title and interest of usufructuary mortgagee, position of—Right of re-entry—Second appeal—Party, whether entitled to make a new case.

Where several different holdings are included in one rent decree, the decree can only be executed as a money decree and nothing but the right, title and interest, if any, of the judgment-debtor in the holdings can pass to a purchaser on sale of the holdings in execution of that decree.

Therefore, a purchaser of the right, title and interest of a mortgagee is not entitled to khas possession if before his suit for possession the mortgage is redeemed.

A party is not entitled to make a new case in second appeal. C. CHUNI AHIR v. KHEM CHAND DUSADH 810

Res judicata. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 11.

———— ———— Adoption, validity of—Question involved in suit to recover immoveable property not raised 109

————————Compromise decree not relating to suit, whether operates as res judicata 640

————————Dispossession of tenant by zemindar through another tenant—Limitation—Rival claimants to tenancy, suit between—Jurisdiction of Civil or Revenue Court 914

————————Estoppel—Malabar Law—Redemption of kanom mortgage, suit for—Previous suit against mortgagor and mortgagee deciding title to property—Covenant for title, breach of—Damages, measure of—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s 72 (c)—Expenses incurred in supporting title of mortgagor, re-imbursement for—Compensation for trees of spontaneous growth 989

————————Execution—Judgment-debtor not raising an objection which he ought to have raised—Objection, whether can be raised subsequently 950

Res judicata—contd.

————————Finding adverse to defendant—Appeal 861

———— ———— Incorrect specification in plaint—Decree accordingly—Acquiescence by plaintiff—Further suit on same cause of action, whether maintainable

Where a litigant, who is fully aware of the facts which constituted his cause of action, mismanages his litigation and fails through his own mismanagement to obtain from the Courts the full reliefs to which he is entitled, neither he nor his transferees are entitled to maintain any further suit upon the same cause of action.

Therefore neither a reversioner to the estate of a deceased, who brought a suit to set aside a sale made by the widow of the deceased and wrongly described the extent of the property claimed by him and on a decree being passed acquiesced in that decree and also in its interpretation, nor the transferee of that property is entitled to maintain a further suit for the property. A. RAMJIAGAR PANDE v. BHAGIRATHI 808

———— ———— *Issues not framed, effect of—Miscellaneous proceedings, order passed in, force of—Decision, exhaustive, effect of—*Jamabandi, correction of, case as to—U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), ss. 42, 44.

Where in a correction of jamabandi case, a Court does not frame specific issues for trial as provided by section 42 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act, but clearly and definitely understands those issues, and pronounces its decision after hearing the pleadings and arguments and consulting the rulings advanced on behalf of both the parties, that decision, although passed in a miscellaneous proceeding and without a formal drawing up of issues, does, in view of the provisions of section 44 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act, operate as res judicata in a subsequent case for declaration of tenure between those parties as regards the kind of tenure already determined in the jamabandi case. U. P. B. R. HARJAS BRAHMAN v. MAKUND SARUP, 1 O. L. J. 745 73

————————Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 10, scope of—Jurisdiction—Title—Issue—Parties—Charter Act, 1861, s. 15 917

———— ————Landlord and tenant—Eviction of tenant from part of demised lands—Abatement of rent—Cause of action—Finding of fact not to be questioned in second appeal even if based upon evidence on remand 265

————————Same parties 642

———— ————Suit between rival claimants to tenancy—Cognizable by Civil Court—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 95—Jurisdiction 913

———— ———— Suit for partition—Compromise—Agreement not carried out—Second suit for partition, if barred—Continuing right.

Where a suit for partition is dismissed upon a compromise whereby the defendants promise to sell their entire interest in the property for consideration to the plaintiff, a second suit for partition is not barred by res judicata if the agreement is not carried out.

Res judicata—concld.

The right to bring a suit for partition, unlike other suits, is a continuing right incidental to the ownership of joint property. A. T. C. MUKERJI v. AZIAL BEG, 18 A. L. J. 98 694

———————, temporary 525

——————— as to title—Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s 49—Under-raiyat—Suit for rent by raiyat dismissed—Under-raiyat claiming to hold directly under landlord and paying rent to plaintiff as gomastah—Notice to quit necessary 273

Restraint of trade. See CONTRACT ACT, s. 27.

Resulting trust—Composition deed—Absolute transfer of property by debtor to trustees—Suit for surplus moneys 332

Retracted confession. See EVIDENCE ACT, s. 30.

Revenue sale—Residuary taluq—Suit for possession by purchaser—Burden of proof.

Where separate accounts were opened with different share-holders of a certain taluq in respect of specified portions thereof, and ultimately a residuary taluq was left in the hands of a person who defaulted in the payment of the Government revenue with the result that the estate was sold up and purchased by the plaintiff, who sued for possession.

Held, that the plaintiff must succeed on the strength of his own title, and it lay on him to prove that the lands in suit formed part of the residuary taluq. C. MOHAMED FAIZ CHOWDHURY v. KASHI NATH, 20 C. L. J. 310 13

Revenue Surveyor's report not signed by transferors, probative value of 777

Reversioners. See HINDU LAW.

Review—Fraudulent decree—Court, power of, to set aside 628

——————by subordinate Revenue Courts in Oudh, power of—Board and other Revenue Courts, powers of review of, difference between—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 120A—Decree, when considered as nullity—Fraud of party to case, effect of.

Every Revenue Court in Oudh has the power of review—the Courts subordinate to the Board having only a limited power in that respect, as provided by section 114 and Order XLVII, Civil Procedure Code, while the Board having a special and wider power as provided by section 120A of the Oudh Rent Act.

A decree which is based on and solely due to fraud by a party can be held to be a nullity, even though it cannot be said to have the effect of preventing an opposite party from placing his case properly before the Court. U. P. B. R. TRIBHUWAN DAT v. BALAK RAM MISRA, 2 O. L. J. 14 587

Revision. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, (V of 1908), ss. 115, 152; CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 439.

——————Amendment of decree—Mistake as to costs—Pleader's fee—Arithmetical or clerical error 922

Revision—concld.

——————Application for permission to sue as pauper, how framed—Omission of one item in schedule—Dismissal of application 891

——————Dispute likely to cause breach of the peace not mentioned in notice—Parties aware—Magistrate—Jurisdiction 848

——————Finding of fact based on inadmissible evidence 762

——————Finding of fact without fully considering evidence of parties—Punjab Courts Act (III of 1914), s. 44.

A finding of fact arrived at by an Appellate Court without fully considering and discussing the evidence of the parties is liable to be set aside in revision under section 44 of the Punjab Courts Act III of 1914. P. KARM ILAHI v. NUR MAHI, 7 P. W. R. 1915; 120 P. L. R. 1915 593

——————Interlocutory order.

In the absence of special circumstances the Chief Court would decline to revise an interlocutory order passed by a subordinate Court. P. MISRI v. CHAULI, 10 P. L. R. 1915 640

——————Kidnapping, when completed question of, whether can be raised in revision for first time 553

——————Material irregularity in assessing damages—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 74, disregarding provisions of.

To disregard the provisions of section 74 of the Indian Contract Act in assessing the damages is a material irregularity within the meaning of section 115, Civil Procedure Code. L. B. MAUNG THA v. SHWE ZAN 885 ——————Material irregularity—Judgment without considering whole evidence—Punjab Courts Act (IV of 1912), s. 70—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, r. 31—Post card with post mark.

Where a Court passes a judgment in following words:

"In view of the post mark of November 7th, 1908, Post of Sasoli, I do not consider the signature of Muhurram Din on the deed as proved."

Held, that the judgment does not show that the evidence on the record has been fully weighed and considered, and, therefore, does not fulfil the requirements of Order XLI, rule 31, of Civil Procedure Code, 1908, and is liable to be set aside on revision. P. MATHRA DASS v. MUHARRAM DIN, 4 P. W. R. 1915; 36 P. L. R. 1915 561

——————Material irregularity—Jurisdiction 629

——————Non-compliance with provisions of s. 145, Criminal Procedure Code—Fatal defect 766

——————Principal and agent—Objection as to right of agent, whether can be taken for first time in High Court—Procedure 607

——————Refusal to grant certificate to appeal on insufficient grounds 722

Right of private defence of property. See PENAL CODE, s. 105.

Sadelwar and Madiri Kasuvu, whether illegal cesses 688

Sale—Consideration—Full consideration not paid—Vendee not entitled to possession without payment of whole consideration—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLI, r. 33—Power of High Court

In a suit for possession of the property purchased, the vendee who has not paid the full consideration cannot be allowed in a Court of Equity to recover possession except on the condition of his paying the balance of the purchase-money.

Under Order XLI, rule 33, of the Code of Civil Procedure the High Court is entitled to pass any decree which is in accordance with justice, whatever the decision of the first Court or the lower Appellate Court may have been. M. RAMA AIYAR v. VANAMAMALAI AIYAR 336

Sanction to prosecute. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, S. 195 551

——— ——— ——— Guiding principle 545

——— ——— ——— ——— Suing wrong person on genuine pro-note—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 193, 209.

Where on a genuine promissory note a plaintiff sues a wrong person of the same name, but not dishonestly and intentionally, a sanction to prosecute him under sections 193 and 209, Indian Penal Code, cannot be granted. L. B. SUBRAMANIA PILLAY v. NACHIAPPA CHETTY, 16 Cr. L. J. 154 218

Search under Gambling Act—Mashirs, absence of, effect of—Accused pleading guilty—Magistrate, duty of, to convict 910

——— warrant, Magistrate, power of, to issue 897

Security bond, forfeiture of, in a separate proceeding, when not allowed 754

Sentence—Hurt caused to complainant—Conviction of accused—Defence story believed by Appellate Court—Reduction of sentence.

The accused were convicted of having trespassed into the haveli of the complainant and beaten him, causing severe injuries, and then having carried him to a house of one of the accused, where they charged him of having entered the house to commit theft. The accused were sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for eight months, including one month's solitary confinement. The Sessions Judge in appeal believed the version of the accused and disbelieved all the witnesses for the prosecution, but maintained the sentence.

Held, that under the circumstances the sentence originally imposed should not have been maintained, as the accused met with great provocation and could hardly be blamed for giving the would-be thief a sound beating P. GANDA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 17 P. L. R. 1915; 16 Cr. L. J. 175 559

Set-off—Cross-debt 320

Share-holder. See COMPANIES ACT (VI OF 1882), S. 45; COMPANY.

Slander—Repetition of rumour, whether actionable—Suit for damages for slander—Law applicable—Defence—Truth of slander.

Repetition of slanders heard from others is ... unless privileged.

... suit for damages for slander, the criminal ... mation has no application. The suit must be decided according to justice, equity and good conscience.

The proof of the truth of the slander is a complete defence in a civil suit for damages. U. B. MI NGWE HMON v. MI PWA SU, 7 BUR. L. T. 253 979

Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation (III of 1872), ss. 25, 25A—Record of Rights, when to be questioned in Civil Court—Zemindar or other proprietor—Suit for declaration of title in a share of a shikmi ghatwali khorposh grant, whether cognizable by Civil Court.

The provisions of Regulation III of 1872 make the Record of Rights conclusive proof of the rights and customs therein recorded and prohibit the record from being re-opened, until a fresh Settlement is made, without the previous sanction of the Local Government. The jurisdiction of the Civil Courts is absolutely excluded, except, in cases specially provided for in section 25A of the Regulation, which applies only in the case of a 'zemindar or other proprietor.'

A suit for declaration of title and for registration of the plaintiff's name in the Settlement Records, in a share of a shikmi ghatwali khorposh grant, where rent is payable to the Ghatwals and no land revenue is payable direct to the Government, though the land is not free from the Government revenue, is not cognizable by a Civil Court. C. NEMO DEO v. PARBATI KUMARI, 20 C. L. 103; 19 C. W. N. 540 5

——— ——— ——— ss. 25, 25A, scope of—"Proprietor"—Ownership of maurasi mokarari tenure—Decision of Settlement Court, whether final.

Section 25A of the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation III of 1872 is strictly limited to suits where only the rights of zemindars and other proprietors as between themselves are in controversy.

A person who holds a derivative title under a zemindar cannot rightly be classed as a proprietor within the meaning of that word as used in the expression "zemindars and other proprietors" in section 25A of Regulation III of 1872.

The decision of a Settlement Court under section 25, sub-section (1) of Regulation III of 1872 is conclusive, till it has been set aside by some method known to law at the instance of any person prejudicially affected thereby. C. SIB NARAYAN MOOKERJEE v. S. P. CHATTERJEE, 20 C. L. J. 220 89

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 9, scope of — Illegal dispossession—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 110—Nature of possession—Presumption.

Section 9 of the Specific Relief Act in no way controls the operation of section 110 of the Evidence Act. It has no concern whatever with title, but is merely a law for restoring a possession which has been disturbed otherwise than in due course of law, and may properly be used to eject even a true owner who has disturbed a peaceful possession

The possession which attracts the presumption of ownership is a juridical possession obtained nec vi, nec clam, nec precario, ab adversario, and stands valid against all the world except the person legally entitled. N. SAMBHASHEO v. MAHADEO, 10 N. L. R. 188 506

——— ——— ——— s. 12 732

Specific Relief Act—concld.

——— ——— ——— s. 14—Covenant for title—Impossibility of assessing compensation in money—Contract, whether enforceable.

Where a contract to sell lands is coupled with a security undertaken against a claim to be set up by reversioners in future, it cannot be specifically enforced as the portion of it relating to security, cannot be compensated for in money within the meaning of section 14 of the Specific Relief Act. M. NARAYANA PILLAI v. ALAMELU AGHI 449

——— ——— ——— s. 42 354

——— ——— ——— ss. 42, 52—Declaration—Injunction—Mortgagor and mortgagee, right and liability of—Mortgagor, right of, to enhance rent of tenant—Reduction of mortgage-debt—Suit for declaration and injunction, maintainability of.

M usufructuarily mortgaged certain shops to R. The tenants of the shops paid Rs. 30-8 per mensem as rent, which the mortgagee had to realize in lieu of interest. The mortgage-deed provided that in the event of the tenants paying less amount, the mortgagor would make good the deficiency, and in the case of enhancement he would take the excess. The mortgagor served a notice on two of the tenants to vacate the shops in their occupation and to the mortgagee to compel them to do so, on the ground that there was a man who was willing to pay Rs. 4-12 in excess of what was being paid by them. Both the tenants and the mortgagee failed to comply with the requisition. The mortgagor then sued both the tenants and the mortgagee for (1) an injunction to direct the mortgagee to enhance the rent payable by the tenants to the extent of Rs. 4-12 per mensem and (2) a declaration that in the event of his failing to do so the mortgagor would be entitled to have the excess credited in reduction of the mortgage-debt:

Held, that the suit as brought was not maintainable as there was no allegation that over a specified period of time the mortgagee had persistently and without reasonable cause been letting the shops for less than their fair letting value. A. ROSHAN LAL v. MOOL CHAND, 13 A. L. J. 85 697

——— ——— ——— s. 52 697

Stamp Act (I of 1879), s. 2, sub-sec. (11)—Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 2, sub-sec (15)—Instrument of partition—Award—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 91—Secondary evidence of partition—Details of partition not allowed—Hindu Law—Partial partition proved—Onus probandi as to jointness—Mortgage-decree, form of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, rr 4, 5, 6.

Under the Stamp Act of 1879 an award of arbitrators directing a partition was not included in the definition of "instrumentof partition" and, therefore, if such an award was executed before the present Stamp Act came into force, and the Court is satisfied that it was not put in the form of an award merely for the purpose of avoiding stamp duty, it will be received in evidence if it bears a stamp of Rs. 5 only.

The mere fact that the parties have signed an award does not necessarily constitute it a deed of partition.

Where an award effecting partition is lost, there is nothing in section 91 of the Indian Evidence Act to prevent one of the parties from proving aliunde that a partition did take place, but no secondary evidence of the details of such partition can be given.

Where a Hindu family consisted of a father and a son and the whole of its property was originally joint, but subsequently the father dealt with various properties as if he were their sole owner, the fact of his so dealing would not amount to proof of his right to do so as against his son. But when we find him actually selling certain properties to the son himself, the inference is obvious and conclusive that some sort of partition of the property must previously have taken place. Under these circumstances, the burden of proof as to jointness is shifted and the party alleging jointness has to prove that a particular property still remained joint ancestral property.

In mortgage-decrees the provisions of Order XXXIV, rules 4, 5 and 6 should not be overlooked. P. SUKH DIAL v. MANI RAM, 29 P. R. 1915 489

——— ——— s. 2 (15) 489

Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 4—Instrument of partition—Full duty paid—Second instrument affirming first with minor alterations—Duty payable—Interpretation of Statute—Fiscal enactment.

Act No. II of 1899 is a fiscal enactment and its provisions should be construed in favour of the subject.

S and B executed an instrument setting forth a family arrangement regarding their joint property. The deed was stamped as a deed of partition. Subsequently the two brothers executed another instrument, providing inter alia that the original deed of agreement should remain in force after certain alterations entered into later on and that both of them were to remain equally binding:

Held, that the principal deed having been charged with the full duty prescribed in Schedule I for settlement of property, the later instrument was chargeable with a duty of one rupee only. A. SHAMBHU DIYAL, In the matter of, 13 A. L. J. 96; 37 A. 159 731

——— ——— ss. 56, 57—Document not in existence—High Court, power of, to give opinion—Jurisdiction.

Under section 56 of the Stamp Act, the High Court can deal only with those instruments which are already in existence and which have been made the subject of action by the Collector, and not with such instruments as are not in existence. A. STAMP REFERENCE, In re, 13 A. L. J. 47 501

——— ——— s. 57 501

Statute, construction of 235

——— ——, interpretation of 921

——— ———, interpretation of—One Act repealed and another enacted—Applicability of provisions of old and new Acts—Madras General Clauses Act (I of 1891), s. 18—Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 61—Custom, if can be proved by a single witness—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s 78, applicability

———, interpretation of—Punctuation taken into consideration

Step-in-aid of execution. S
TION ACT (IX OF 1908), SCH. I, ART. 182

Succession. See KORA TENAKOY ACT (II OF 1901), s. 22; CUSTOM; HINDU LAW; MUHAMMADAN LAW; Mutt.

——————, expectancy of—Transfer, validity of 407

Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 46 276

—————— s. 50, cl. (3)—Interpretation—"Direction," meaning of—Attestation by witnesses, when legally made—Indian Law contrasted with English Law.

In order to constitute a direction it is not necessary that anything should be said. If a testator in making his mark is assisted by some other person and acquiesces and adopts it, it is just the same as if he had made it without any assistance.

It is sufficient for the purposes of section 50 of the Succession Act if each of the two or more witnesses to a Will speaks either to the signature, or to the fixing of the mark, or to the signature by another person, or to the personal acknowledgment.

The Indian Law does not require that the witnesses to a Will must be present at the same time as the English Law does. C. MUKTA NATH ROY v. JITENDRA NATH ROY 677

—————————— s. 62—Bequest in favour of a person not named—Secret instructions to trustee—Admissibility of oral evidence to prove trust.

A legatee who undertakes to carry out the wishes of a testator, will be treated as a trustee and compelled to carry out the instructions of the testator.

Where a testator directed that a certain pecuniary legacy be entrusted to one H to be disposed of by him in accordance with instructions given by the testator to one of his trustees and that his shares in a certain Company be transferred to the person whose name will be disclosed by H, and the intended beneficiary (who was admittedly the person in whose favour the instructions were given) filed a suit praying that H might be ordered to disclose the secret trust and that the bequest might be declared to be for her benefit:

Held, (1) that parol evidence was admissible to prove the trust;

(2) that the shares must be transferred to a person whose name was given by the testator to H, the power given to H being not a general one but a special one. B. BAYABAI SAKALKAR v. HARIDAS 946

—————— s. 111 53, 239

—————————— s. 187—*Hindu Wills Act (XXI of 1870), s. 2—Will not proved in Probate Court, when can be used as evidence—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32 (5)—Relationship, existence of—Adoption—*Mutt, kinds of—Succession.

Notwithstanding section 187 of the Succession Act, which is incorporated in the Hindu Wills Act, a Will not proved in the Probate Court may be cited in evidence for a purpose other than the establishment of a right as executor or legatee.

The relationship between a mohunt and his chela is a relationship by adoption within the meaning of clause (5), section 32, of the Indian Evidence Act (I of 1872). A statement in a Will that the testator has one chela and has no other chela is a statement relating to the existence of a relationship and is admissible in evidence under that clause.

Mutts are of three descriptions, viz., nirvani, panchayati and hakimi. In the first the office of the chief Mohunt is hereditary and devolves upon the chief disciple of the existing Mohunt who, moreover, usually nominates him as his successor; in the second the office is elective, the presiding Mohunt being selected by an assembly of Mohunts; in the third the appointment of the presiding Mohunt is vested in the Ruling Power or in the party who has endowed the temple.

Obiter dictum.—A statement as to the time of commencement of a relationship is so indissolubly associated with the existence itself of the relationship that it may be rightly regarded, without undue stretch of language, as a statement which relates to the existence of that relationship under clause (5), section 32, of the Indian Evidence Act. C. ACHUTANANDA DAS v. JAGANNATH DAS, 21 C. L. J. 96 739

Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889), s. 4—Practice—Suit by representative of deceased—Probate or Letters of Administration obtained—Succession certificate, whether necessary—Suit, whether to be dismissed if certificate not previously obtained.

Where Probate or Letters of Administration have been obtained as regards the estate of a deceased, a Succession Certificate is not necessary under section 4 of Act VII of 1889 to entitle a person to sue.

Where a Succession Certificate is necessary to entitle a plaintiff to maintain a suit, it should be allowed to be produced before a decree is passed and the suit should not be dismissed because the Succession Certificate has not been obtained previously. C. RAMANUGRAH NARAYAN SINGH v. OHUNI LAL 822 ——————————, ss. 18, 26—Succession certificate, revocation of—Jurisdiction—Succession certificate granted by Subordinate Judge—District Judge, whether can revoke—Regulation V of 1799—Intestate—Succession—District Judge, power of.

Ordinarily the revocation of a succession certificate must be made by the Court which granted it, if it still exercises jurisdiction in that district.

Therefore, a certificate granted by a Subordinate Judge invested with the powers of a District Court in certificate cases under section 26 of the Succession Certificate Act cannot be revoked by a District Judge if the former is still exercising jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of a District Judge under Regulation V of 1799 is of a limited character and is more administrative than judicial. He can act thereunder only if there is no claimant.

Therefore, a District Judge has no jurisdiction in an intestate case to ignore the claim of one who has obtained a certificate, until it is revoked by a competent Court. C. SUKHIA BEWA v. SECRETARY OF STATE, 21 C. L. J. 154; 19 C. W. N. 551 821

—————————— s. 26 821

Sufficient Cause. See LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), s. 5.

Suit, abatement of—Minor suing to recover certain property as his by survivorship despite a Will of his father—Death of minor—Legal representative, right of, to continue suit.

A minor sued through his guardian for possession of certain property as his by survivorship and also challenged the validity of his father's Will, which vested the property in the defendant in trust for the minor in case he should attain majority and in trust for a temple in case of his failure to do so. The minor died and his legal representative was placed on the record as plaintiff.

Held, (1) that as the minor had sued for possession of the suit property despite the Will, his legal representative was entitled to prosecute the suit;

(2) that the cause of action was not personal to the minor on the ground that it would be open to him to repudiate his guardian's action on attaining majority and that, therefore, the suit did not abate. M. NARAYANA REDDI v. KAMAKSHI AMMAL, 27 M. L. J. 674 396

——— for accounts—Jurisdiction—Consent of parties 803

———, whether to be dismissed if succession certificate not previously obtained 822

——— for possession—Hindu widow suing in representative capacity—Death of plaintiff—Suit, whether abates—Reversioners of last male owner—Legal representative—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (11)—Survival of right to sue.

A suit for possession brought by a Hindu widow in a representative capacity as representing the estate does not abate on her death. The right to sue survives to the reversioners of the last male owner, who are her legal representatives within the meaning of section 2 (11) of the Civil Procedure Code and as such are entitled to be brought on the record. M. GANDI RAMASWAMI v. PURAMSETTI PEDAMUNAYYA, 17 M. L. T. 186 1001

——— for recovery of possession—Person entitled to half share, whether can eject one from whole—Decree, nature of—Partition, right of.

A person entitled to an undivided half share of a piece of land cannot sue to eject anybody from the whole of it.

Where the proprietor of an eight-annas share sued the proprietors of the other eight-annas share and joined the tenants admitted by the latter to the whole land as parties and prayed for joint possession with the tenants, if joint possession with the other proprietors could not be granted.

Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree against all the defendants for recovery of joint possession of the eight-annas share and that he was entitled to enforce his right by a suit for partition, if he was not satisfied with delivery of possession of an undivided half share. C. GAJADHAR AHIR v. BHIKARI LAL, 18 C. W. N. 1011 228

——— against Secretary of State—Tort—Negligence of servants, liability for—Acts done by Sovereign in his Sovereign capacity—Maintenance of roads, whether function of Government—Government of India Act, 1833, 3 and 4 William IV, Ch. 85, s. 4 723

Surety. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 112

——— ———, liability of 251

Surety—concld.

——— ———, liability of—Contract of guarantee—Loss arising after breach—Unreasonable delay in re-sale—Discharge of broker—Failure to object to statement of accounts—Evidence of correctness 309

——— ———, personal liability of 365

Surrender. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT, s. 86 (6).

Taluk. See BENGAL LAND REVENUE SALES ACT.

Temporary Injunction. See INJUNCTION.

Thumb Impression. See EVIDENCE; REGISTRATION ACT, s. 82 800

Tort—Suit against Secretary of State—Negligence of servants, liability for—Acts done by Sovereign in his Sovereign capacity—Maintenance of roads, whether function of Government—Government of India Act, 1833, 3 and 4 William IV, Ch. 85, s. 4.

The maintenance of roads is one of the functions of Government and though that function may be delegated to Municipalities and Local Boards still it is a Sovereign function, especially where the road is maintained for military purposes, and the Secretary of State for India in Council exercising such Sovereign function will not be made liable for injuries sustained by a person coming against a heap of gravel stored on the road by a contractor, as it cannot be said to have been done in the conduct by Government of undertakings which might have been carried on by private persons.

Per Wallis, C. J.—A distinction exists between acts done by Government in the exercise of its Sovereign powers and conduct by Government of undertakings which might have been carried on by private persons.

Per Seshagiri Aiyar, J.—The maintenance of highways is one of the Sovereign functions of Government and where the injury caused is not due to negligence resulting from the exercise of other than Sovereign or Administrative functions, the Government are not liable.

Obiter dicta.—(1) The ordinary rule that States and Sovereigns are liable for damages occasioned by the negligence of their officers, does not apply to the Secretary of State who is subject to the same liability as the East India Company was.

(2) The rule that actions against the Sovereign must be limited only to such actions for which a remedy exists by the petition of right does not apply to subjects residing out of the United Kingdom, to whom the general rule as to liability for torts dependent upon the particular dominion applies.

(3) The Government departments and public officers and servants are liable for the wrongful acts of their servants in all cases where satisfaction can be had out of the revenues of the State.

(4) By section 4 of 3 and 4 William IV, Chapter 85, the right to carry on business for the benefit of the State was recognized.

Where the East India Company exercised Sovereign rights, they were generally exempt from liability to be sued in the Municipal Courts, but with reference to transactions which, though carried on for public purposes and for the public benefit, were of such a nature as could have been undertaken by private individuals or by a trading corporation, they were governed by laws regulating private rights.

Tort—concld.

(5) The line of demarcation between Sovereign powers and powers exercisable by private individuals is that in the one case no question of consideration comes, whereas the essence of the other is that some profit is secured or some special injury is inflicted in the exercise of individual rights.

(6) Where the sole object of Government in carrying out a project is the public good and no idea of profits is in contemplation, prima facie the business cannot be said to have been done in the discharge of private duties, but only in the exercise of administrative powers vested in the State or Sovereign. M. SECRETARY OF STATE v. A. COCKCRAFT, (1915) M. W. N. 39 723

Track evidence, value of 846

Trade-mark, law of—Trade-mark, whether can be assigned or can descend in gross—Originator of trade-mark, right of—Good-will, meaning of—Good-will, transferee of, right of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 117—Licensee—Estoppel.

In India the law of trade-marks is not governed by Statute: there is no Statutory system of registration, and the rights and liabilities in connection with trade-marks are determined by reference to the principles of the Common Law of England.

It is in the inherent nature of a trade-mark that it cannot be assigned or descend in gross, for it is a mode of representing the origin of the goods to which it is attached, or their trade association.

The representation of a trade-mark may perhaps only be true of its originator, but usage has sanctioned a more liberal treatment based on the principle of identification by succession and, therefore, successors in business have been allowed to use their predecessors' trade-marks where the representation still continues to be substantially true.

An originator of a trade-mark of a natural product, who certifies to their good quality, is entitled to it and has a right to alienate it.

A trade-mark can only be assigned together with the good-will of the business to which it relates.

Where, therefore, the trade-marks of jute-balers were assigned together with the business of jute-balers, the transfer was held to be valid.

Good-will is the benefit and advantage of the good name, reputation and connection of a business. It is the attractive force which brings in custom. It is the one thing which distinguishes an old established business from a new business at its first start

A transferee of the good-will is entitled to use the name in which the business was carried on and to represent himself as carrying on that business.

Under section 117 of the Evidence Act a licensee of a trade-mark shall not be permitted to deny that his licensor had, at the time when the license commenced, authority to grant such license. C. HANNAH v JAGANNATH & Co, 19 C. W. N. 1 483

— — and property mark, distinction between—"National Bank of India" stamped on gold bars, whether trade-mark or property mark—Counterfeit trade-mark—Interference in revision—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439 902

Transfer. See FRAUDULENT TRANSFER.

— — —, admission of, by defendant, effect of 704

— — —Necessity of trying Magistrate's evidence —Burden of proof 846

— — — of case—Dispute about mosque between Hindus and Muhammadans—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s 528.

It is desirable that a suit relating to a mosque between Hindus and Muhammadans should be tried by some European Magistrate. P. KADIR BAKHSH v. SUNDAR LAL, 1 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.; 127 P. L. R. 1915; 16 Cr. L. J. 213 837

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), ss. 3, 6 (e), 130—Breach of contract—Damages—Insolvent estate, transferee from purchaser of, right of, to sue for damages—Transfer of right to sue—Actionable claim.

A transferee from the purchaser of rights in an insolvent estate from the Receiver, cannot enforce a claim for damages on an unfulfilled contract in favour of the insolvent.

A right to sue for damages for breach of contract is not an actionable claim and cannot be transferred P. JANGLI MAL v. PIONEER FLOUR MILLS, 106 P. R. 1914 115.

— — — — — — s. 6—Contract not to claim property by inheritance in future for good consideration, legality of.

There is nothing illegal in a person, for good consideration, contracting not to claim a share in a property in the event of his becoming entitled to it on the decease of a living person. A. MOHAMMAD HASHMAT ALI v. KANIZ FATIMA, 13 A. L. J. 110 701

— — — — — — s. 6 (e) 115

— — — — — — s. 8—Assignment of debt whether arrears of interest on debt are included in assignment.

The arrears of interest of an assigned debt form part of the interest which the transferor is capable of passing by assignment and must be held to have been transferred in the absence of any words restricting the interest transferred. L. B MAUNG THA v. N. C. CHATTERJEE 896

— — — — — — s. 41—Purchase from ostensible owner—Inquiry by purchaser 777

— — — — — — s. 43—Landlord and tenant—Land belonging to Government transferred by lease—Government declaring its right and granting it to lessor—Determination of tenancy—Estoppel between lessor and lessee—Erroneous representation to create estoppel must be believed in good faith and after due inquiry—Privies, rights and liabilities of—Classes of privies.

Where land belonging to Government is included in a lease and the Government, subsequently having declared the land at its disposal, grants it to the lessor, the tenancy is determined by the declaration and the lessee cannot take the benefit of section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act.

In the absence of any allegation or proof to the effect that in taking the lease the lessee believed in good faith and after due inquiry the erroneous representation regarding the title to the land made by the lessor, the lessee is not en title detorly—upon the principle embodied in section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act.

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Section 43 of the Transfer of Property Act applies also to the privies of the original transferor and the original transferee.

Unless a Statute expressly or by necessary implication precludes the application of provisions awarding rights to or imposing civil liabilities on the privies of the person to whom the rights are given or on whom the liabilities are imposed, the privies are entitled or are bound, as the case may be, to the extent to which the original parties are so entitled or are so bound. The extent of privy's liability, however, is not always co-equal with the extent of the liability of the person through whom he claims.

Privies are of three classes (1) in blood (as heirs), (2) by estate (as lessees, assignees, etc.); (3) in law (as the lord by escheat, the tenant by courtesy, executors and administrators). M. HATTIKUDUR NARAIN RAO v. ANDAR SAYAD ABBAS SAHIB, 28 M. L. J. 44 785

——— ——— s. 43, scope of 982

——— ——— ——— s. 52, applicability of—Partition proceedings—Subsequent agricultural lease void.

Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act applies to an agricultural lease as well as to partition proceedings when they are contentious.

An agricultural lease granted during the pendency of partition proceedings which are contentious in their origin and nature is void, even though summons had not been served on the opposite party at the time of the grant. N. CHANDAN SINGH v. FAKIRGIR, 11 N. L. R. 21 940

——— ——— ——— s. 53—Remission of debt to defeat creditors—Voidable—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 92—Registered deed—Rescission or cancellation cannot be proved by oral agreement or unregistered document—Agreement to pay lesser amount in full discharge or fixing different period—Variation in terms—Endorsement on mortgage-deed, when admissible and when not

Under section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act 1882, it is not necessary that the transferor should reserve a benefit to himself, as gifts to a third party are as much voidable as other transfers. Though the section does not apply in terms, the principle on which it is based will apply to a creditor voluntarily remitting, with a view to defeat his creditors, the whole or a portion of a debt due to him.

Section 92, clause 4, of the Evidence Act precludes evidence of an oral agreement to rescind a registered contract.

Where it is sought to prove that though the parties provided in the registered-deed for performance in a particular way, e. g., by re-payment of the debt in a particular manner, an agreement whereby a lesser amount was agreed to be taken in full discharge or a different period was fixed, would be a variation of the terms and would fall within section 92.

A mortgage having been created by a registered document cannot be cancelled or rescinded either orally or by an unregistered endorsement on the mortgage-deed, reciting that the bond was cancelled and returned as the amount due was paid. M. NAMAGIRI LAKSHMI AMMAL v. SRINIVASA AIYANGAR 269

Transfer of Property Act—concld.

——— ——— ——— s. 55 (2)—Implied covenant for title—Vendee's knowledge of defect in vendor's title—Difference between cases of conveyances of full title and conveyances of qualified title—Karamkari tenure.

The rule that in spite of his knowledge of a defect in the title of the vendor, a vendee is in case of dispossession entitled to sue his vendor on the implied covenant for title under section 55 (2) of the Transfer of Property Act, applies only to cases of conveyances of absolute or full title. If, however, what is conveyed is not an absolute title, as in the case of a conveyance of lands held on karamkari tenure (which, by their very nature, are inalienable) and the vendee is evicted by the superior landlord, the vendor is not liable to the vendee on any implied covenant for title. M. VATAKKA CHATHILINGATH TAVAZHI v. RAMASWAMI PATTER, 2 L. W. 155 889

——— ——— ——— s. 58 162

——— ——— ——— s. 58 (c)—Sale or mortgage—Sale-deed by mortgagor—Agreement to reconvey by mortgagee within a limited period.

Where a mortgagor executed a deed of absolute sale in favour of his mortgagee who was about to sue on his mortgage, and ten days later the mortgagee executed an agreement to re-convey the property within 18 months if the mortgagor paid the mortgage money:

Held, that under the circumstances of the case the transaction amounted only to an absolute sale with an agreement to re-convey, and not to a mortgage by conditional sale. M. SWAMINATHA AIYAR v. APPARAMI AIYAR, 27 M. L. J. 686; (1914) M. W. N. 906 305

——— ——— ——— s. 59 788

——— ——— ——— ss. 60, 62 427

——— ——— ——— s. 72 (c) 989

——— ——— ——— s. 83 162

——— ——— ——— s. 85 788

——— ——— ——— s. 88, 89 683

——— ——— ——— s. 92—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 14—Sale held in contravention of section 99, Transfer of Property Act, whether void or voidable—Objection, if not taken before confirmation of sale, effect of—Hindu Law—Joint family—Managing member, representation by, whether on behalf of family.

Section 99 of the Transfer of Property Act does not render a sale in violation of the section absolutely null and void, it is only voidable.

If no objection is taken to such a sale before confirmation, such objection cannot be taken later.

Per Banerji, J.—In the case of a joint Hindu family the manager of the family represents the whole family. A. LAL BAHADUR SINGH v. ABHARAN SINGH, 18 A. L. J. 188 795

——— ——— ——— s. 127 733

——— ——— ——— s. 130 115

Tree—Tax on palmyras, when payable 872

Trust—Madras Local Boards Act (V of 1884), s. 51—Trust, powers as to, transferred from Board of Revenue—Suit for recovery of trust property, when maintainable by local body. 1001

Trustee, right of, to have new pujas and archanas performed. See HINDU LAW.

———, suit against. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, s. 92.

Under-proprietary tenure—Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), Chap. VIIA—U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), s. 79.

Under-proprietary tenures paying no rent at all fall under the operation of the Resumption Chapter of the Oudh Rent Act, those paying rent must be dealt with under section 79 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act. U. P. B. R. LACHHMAN SINGH v. MADHO PRASAD, 2 O. L. J. 41 552

Undue influence. See CONTRACT, s. 16.

U. P Land Revenue Act (III of 1901), ss. 42, 44 73

———, s. 79 532

———, s. 106 543

———, ss. 106, 111, 118

—Decree, interpretation of—Village, entire, division of—Jurisdiction of Revenue Courts—Petition of house—Objection as to jurisdiction not taken, effect of.

Ordinarily a decree for the division of an entire village means that the land of the village together with all the buildings appurtenant thereto is to be divided.

Revenue Courts, however, while making a partition, have no jurisdiction to make the actual division of a house or building or the materials thereof.

Section 111 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act is confined to objections raising a question of title only and does not contemplate those relating to the jurisdiction of Revenue Courts.

If, as a matter of law, a Court has no jurisdiction to do something, such a jurisdiction cannot be conferred upon it by a failure on the part of the parties interested to raise an objection in bar of the jurisdiction. O. IQBAL NARAIN v. SURAJ NARAIN, 2 O. L. J. 51; 18 O. C. 80 543

——— ss. 111, 118 543

Unlawful assembly. See PENAL CODE, s. 105.

Vendor and purchaser—Condition not to partition property, whether against public policy—Breach of contract—Compensation—Damages, measure of 503

Waiver—Ex-proprietary rights, claim for 850

Waqf. See MUHAMMADAN LAW.

———Muhammadan dedicating properties for expenses of mosque and maintenance of family, how far valid—Musalmans Waqf Validating Act (VI of 1913), retrospective effect of.

Where a Muhammadan made a waqf of his properties for the expenses of a mosque and for the maintenance of his children

Waqf—contd.

Held, that the waqf so far as it related to the expenses of the mosque was valid, but not for the maintenance of the children, as it was not properly endowed for religious purposes.

The Musalmans Waqf Validating Act, 1913, has not a retrospective effect. C. RAHIMUNISSA BIBI v. MANIK JAN, 19 C. W. N. 76 96

Water, flow of—Right ancillary to property—Lands adjoining each other on different levels.

Where A owns land adjoining that of B on a higher level and the water falling on the land of A naturally flows on to the land of B, it is the duty of B to allow the water from A's land to pass on through his land, and then to dispose of it as B thinks best.

The question is not one of easement, but of a right ancillary to property. C. RAMADHIN SINGH v. JADUNANDAN SINGH, 19 C. W. N. 54 268

Widow. See HINDU LAW.

Will. See SUCCESSION ACT (X of 1865), s. 187.

———Bequest in favour of unborn persons—Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act (Mad. Act I of 1914) retrospective effect of—Gift to daughter with a gift over, whether valid.

A bequest to persons who are not born at the date of the testator's death is invalid.

The Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act (Madras Act I of 1914), has no application where the testator died long before the Act came into force and has retrospective effect only to the extent that it applies to Wills made before the passing of the Act where the dispositions made are intended to come into operation at a time which is subsequent to the passing of the Act.

Where a Will made no gift in favour of the testator's children, but directed that they should enjoy his properties without having any right to them and that the executors should collect the rents, etc., and after meeting all expenses should add up the surplus for the benefit of the grand-children, who should take the properties on the death of the testator's children, the grand-children not having been born at the testator's death.

Held, that the disposition in favour of the grand-children was invalid and the properties vested in the heirs of the testator as an intestacy, the grand-children taking no interest except as members of an undivided family who by birth acquire a right to the grandfather's properties.

Where a gift made in favour of the daughter also provides that after her the property should be enjoyed by her descendants, the fact that the gift over is invalid does not defeat the estate given to her. M. VARADARAJA MUDALIAR v. NARAYANASAMI MUDALIAR, 27 M. L. J. 681 298

———Construction—Disposition with power to sell—Absolute interest—Absolute gift to legatee with a gift over simpliciter on contingency of death refers only to period of distribution—Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 111—Statutory rule of construction must be followed.

Where property is given to a person with power to sell, make a gift or hiba, etc., he takes thereby an absolute interest in the property.

The ordinary rule of construction where the testator has given an absolute gift to a legatee and then has made a gift over simpliciter on a contingency of death is that he was referring to death before the period of distribution.

UNIV. LIBRARY LAW COLLEGE

Will—contd.

The rule laid down in section 111 of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) is a statutory rule of construction which the Courts are bound to follow. C. NISTARINI DEBYA v. BEHARI LAL MOKHOPADHYA, 19 C. W. N. 52 239

———Mohunt—Document appointing successor to gaddi, whether Will—Property held in capacity of mohunt—Letters of Administration—Probate—Question of title 24

———Occupancy holding—Custom 352

———, Parsi, construction of—Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 111, applicability of.

A Parsi made a Will of his property in favour of his two sons, stating: "The.....two sons are proprietors, half and half alike, and in equal (shares) of my whole 'estate'....At present my elder son has no male issue of his body therefore, if my elder son gets a male issue half of the estate is to be made over to him, on his attaining full age. If my son (elder) does not get a son, my son (younger) is to give away his son as .. palak." After his death the elder son died leaving no male issue and then his heirs under the Parsi Intestate Succession Act sued for his share:

Held, that on the general principles applicable to the construction of such a Will as well as on the principle of section 111 of the Indian Succession Act, the estate got divided on the testator's death into two portions and each portion became the absolute property of one of the two sons. P. C. JEHANGIR DADABHOY v. KAIKHUSHRU KAVASHA, 28 M. L. J. 167; 2 L. W. 208; 18 A. L. J. 217; 19 C. W. N. 426; 21 C. L. J. 210; 17 Bom. L. R. 197; 17 M. L. T. 203; 39 B. 296 53 ———Succession Act (X of 1865), s. 46—Testamentary capacity, meaning of—Burden of proof—Opinions of witnesses as to competency, value of—Extraordinary terms—Requisites of valid Will—Testator of sound mind at time of giving instructions for Will—Subsequent execution, whether valid—Facts, finding of, by trial Court—Appellate Court, power of, to disturb.

It is the duty of the propounders of a Will to show that the testator had testamentary capacity, i. e., capacity to comprehend the nature and effect of his act; to discharge the burden of proof, it must be shown that he was able to dispose of his property with understanding and reason, that he was able to realise his position, to appreciate his property and to form a judgment with respect to the parties whom he decided to benefit.

The opinions of witnesses as to competency of a testator are entitled to little regard, unless supported by good reasons founded on facts which warrant them.

Mere ability to sign one's name does not necessarily imply the possession of the full mental powers requisite for a valid disposition of property. Nor is it sufficient to show that the testator was conscious when he executed the instrument.

A Court will not reject a Will merely because its terms appear extraordinary, against clear evidence of due execution by a competent testator. But where the terms are unusual and the evidence of testamentary capacity doubtful, the vigilance of the Court will be roused and, before pronouncing for the Will, the Court will require to be satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt that the testator was fully cognizant of its contents and in a condition to exercise and did exercise thought, judgment and reflection respecting the act he was doing.

Will—concld.

When a testator is of sound mind when he gives instructions for a Will but at the time of signature accepts the instrument drawn in pursuance thereof, even though not able to follow its provisions then, he must be deemed to be of sound mind when it is executed.

The proof eminently lies on him who sets up a Will, and it is more fatal to him than to his adversary if he leaves difficulties entirely without explanations.

Where, therefore, a Will was executed by a man about two hours before his death, when his condition was critical and when he was restless with pain, and there was no information whatsoever either as to instructions, if any, given by him, or the time when and the person to whom the directions were given and there was no evidence to show that the Will, as prepared, was, before execution read over to and approved by him:

Held, (1) that the propounders had failed to establish that the testator had sound disposing mind when he affixed his signature to the Will;

(2) that the propounders could not be given any further opportunity of filling up the deficiencies in the proof, offered by them as there was a real danger of manufacture and manipulation of evidence if witnesses were allowed to speak to events which happened many years ago.

The principle that "it is always difficult for Judges who have not seen and heard the witnesses to refuse to adopt the conclusion of fact of those who have," is not of universal application. Where the case is one not so much of estimate of credibility of witnesses who have been believed by the trial Court, as of the effect of their statements, on the assumption that they have spoken the truth, the Appellate Court will refuse to adopt the conclusion of the trial Court if good grounds are shown. C. SUSIL KUMAR BANERJEE v. APSARI DEBI, 20 C. L. J. 501; 19 C. W. N. 826 276

Witness—Examination of witnesses—Magistrate, whether can exercise discretion in selection of witnesses—Practice 220

Words and Phrases—

certifying or recording	11
contract to the contrary	688
direction	677
dishonestly	591
district	232
ejectment	864
fazendari	512, 523
good faith	657
good will	483
heard and finally decided	708
holding land	29

Words and Phrases—contd.

illegally effected 525
in the estimation of others 657 incumbrance 1003
instroke and outstroke 244 intentionally 843 litigating under the same title 226 lowers 657 matters in controversy 317 member of agricultural tribe 29 money 178 mutual, open and current account 879 omission 611 person 897 private land 77 proprietor 84 public purpose 26
pyrkhaings 777

Words and Phrases—concld.

testamentary capacity 276 vehicle carrying rubbish 497
zuda sitani 385

Workman's Breach of Contract Act (XIII of 1859)—Contract—Payment of advance by deduction from wages—Suit for breach of contract, whether within the Act.

A case in which the contract is that the workman shall work for wages, deducting from his wages a certain sum periodically to make good an advance, is within Act XIII of 1859. M. JELAGAN SUBRAMANIA NAIDU v. K. SINGARA MUDALI, 27 M. L. J. 616, 16 CR. L. J. 112 160 ——————— Contract to perform agricultural service, whether within the Act—Provision of penalty for its breach.

The Workman's Breach of Contract Act (XIII of 1859) was not intended to apply to a contract to perform agricultural service.

Where a contract prescribes a penalty for its breach, the remedy prescribed by the Act cannot be availed of. P. EMPEROR v. KHUDA BAKHSH, 38 P. R. 1914 CR., 16 CR. L. J. 229 901

Written statement, failure to file in time—Delay, excuse of, discretionary 789